Students may select from three degree tracks: research, advocacy, or critical trauma studies and social work. The research track prepares students for positions as researchers, analysts and advocates in governmental, intergovernmental and nongovernmental agencies. The advocacy track prepares students to be leaders in nonprofit, social movement, governmental and intergovernmental organizations. The critical trauma studies and social work track prepares students to assist vulnerable people, especially survivors of extreme violence, poverty, war, sex trafficking, human trafficking, gender-based violence, and various forms of marginalization.

Graduates are also prepared to enter PhD programs.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate application application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- two letters of recommendation
- an academic writing sample (preferred) or professional writing sample
- GRE scores
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant.

It is preferred that letters of recommendation be from faculty members who know the applicant's work well; if these are not available, letters of recommendation from individuals in supervisory or professional roles will be accepted. If letters of recommendation from two faculty members are not available, then it is strongly preferred that at least one letter be from a faculty member.

If the applicant does not meet the minimum GPA requirements, the application may still be considered.

Applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Mass Communication, MMC (CSMCOMMMC)

Online Degree Search Title: Master of Mass Communication, MMC
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication's 12-month MMC degree program uses the teaching hospital method to immerse students in the practice of journalism and prepare them for careers in today's rapidly evolving media industry.

This 36-credit hour program begins with a multimedia "boot camp" in which students learn to report and produce content for digital and broadcast platforms. From there, students dive deeper into advanced courses in broadcast production, investigative reporting, online media, business reporting, Spanish-language news, transborder coverage or digital media entrepreneurship. Students learn how to navigate a dramatically different 21 st-century media environment through classes and a symposium specifically focused on the future of journalism. The program culminates in a professional immersion experience in one of the Cronkite School's news bureaus in Los Angeles, Phoenix or Washington, D.C. Working under the guidance of award-winning journalists, these capstone programs offer real-world experience in a professional news environment.

The Cronkite School is housed in a world-class facility in the heart of downtown Phoenix, the nation's fifth largest city and 12th largest media market. The school is also home to Arizona PBS. Student journalists can walk to the state's largest newspaper, to the NBC and Fox television affiliates, and they are in walking distance to cover major events at city hall, at county, state and federal agencies and at major sporting and cultural venues.

The cornerstone of the graduate program is the journalism school's professional programs:

- Cronkite News Phoenix: Students produce a daily newscast on Arizona PBS (reaching 1.9 million households) and digital content for cronkitenews.azpbs.org (https://cronkitenews.azpbs.org/), Cronkite News social platforms and partner sites across Arizona. https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism
- Cronkite News Washington: Students cover Congress, the White House and the U.S. Supreme Court for Cronkite News and partner newsrooms. https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism
- Cronkite Noticias: Students produce Spanish-language news for digital and broadcast platforms in collaboration with Univision Arizona.
https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism
- Carnegie-Knight News21: Students produce major national investigations in partnership with newsrooms such as The Washington Post and NBCNews.com. https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism
- New Media Innovation and Entrepreneurship Lab: Journalism, engineering, design and business students work together to create cutting-edge digital products and launch new businesses. https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism

The LLM in biotechnology and genomics is offered through the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law's Center for Law, Science and Innovation, the nation's oldest, largest and most comprehensive research center focusing on the intersection of law and science. Through classroom instruction and guided independent study, Master of Laws candidates will examine the legal issues surrounding genetic applications such as:

- cloning
- forensic evidence
- gene testing
- gene therapy
- genetically modified organisms
- stem cells and behavioral genetics

The issues relate to:

- business planning
confidentiality
- evidentiary standards
- intellectual property
- international trade
- liability licensing
- privacy
- regulation

Master of Laws in biotechnology and genomics students explore and examine the law that enables and constrains the development, control and application of biotechnology and genomics. Relevant legal fields include:

- agricultural law and policy
- health law, particularly public health law
- intellectual property

Forensic science and ethical constraints upon the various contemplated uses are also important elements of the program. Because the legal, ethical and policy aspects of genomics and biotechnology are of global significance, this program is also beneficial for non-U.S. lawyers. Candidates for a Master of Laws degree must have received their JD or comparable terminal law degree from another country.

Degree Requirements:

The program is designed to be completed in nine months on a full-time basis but also may be pursued on a part-time basis. A degree candidate must complete 24 credit hours of coursework to obtain the Master of Laws degree in biotechnology and genomics. A candidate may elect to write a graduate thesis for either three or six credit hours or can elect not to write a thesis and fulfill the equivalent credits with other coursework. Two required courses are: genetics and the law; and biotechnology: science, law and policy.

The remaining credit hours generally will be obtained from the list of elective courses. With faculty advisor approval, a candidate may satisfy up to six credit hours with courses offered by other ASU departments or by law courses that are not included on the approved elective list.

Applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Admission to the program is competitive. In order to be admitted, an applicant must have completed a Juris Doctor degree program or a law degree program at a foreign institution that would qualify the applicant to practice law or pursue license to practice in that country and have submitted a complete application to the program. Selection will be based on:

- academic background and potential
career experience and ambitions
- diversity of experience and background
space and resource limitations in the law school
- strength of experience related to the program sought and other factors

For an application to be considered complete, it must include the following:

- completed Law School Admissions Council (LSAC) electronic application form (available at https://law.asu.edu/admissions/apply/lm (https://law.asu.edu/admissions/apply/llm))
- completed LLM Credential Assembly Service (CAS) report (https://www.lsac.org/llm/application-process/checklist-for-the-IIm-application-process (https://www.Isac.org/llm/application-process/checklist-for-the-Ilm-application-process))
- required application fee
- resume that does not exceed three typed pages
- personal statement that does not exceed 1,250 words (double-spaced typed pages)
- transcripts from all institutions attended, including the transcript showing that the bachelor's degree and law degree were conferred
- two letters of recommendation
- writing sample

Additional Application Information
Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the ASU College of Law by LSAC.

Applicants with degrees from foreign institutions must meet ASU Graduate College and College of Law English proficiency requirements.

W. P. Carey MBA - Full-Time Program

Degree Requirements:

Satisfactory completion of the course of study offered by the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law leads to the Juris Doctor degree.

To be eligible for the Juris Doctor degree, a student must satisfy all the following:

- Admission to the college as a candidate for the degree is required, as is satisfaction of any conditions imposed at the time of admission or prior to graduation during the course of law study.
- Successful completion of a minimum of 88 hours of academic credit is required, of which 72 must be graded with a cumulative weighted average of 2.0 or better (scale is $4.00=$ " $\mathrm{A} "$ ).
- No more than four credit hours of "D" (deficient) grade work after the first year can be applied toward the 88 hours.
- Completion of all required first-year courses is required.
- Satisfaction of the graduation writing requirement is required (see Section II, E of college policies).
- A maximum of 12 credits of externship work, a maximum of seven credits of independent study, and a maximum of four professional development credits can be counted toward the 88 credits required for graduation.
- All 88 credits required for graduation must be earned at the ASU College of Law unless prior approval by the dean's designee is granted (see Section IX, A and Section XI, B of the college policies).
- Completion of the degree requirements may be done no earlier than 24 months and no later than 84 months after commencing study at the law school or a law school from which the school has accepted transfer credit. A transfer student must complete the work of at least three semesters in the ASU Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law immediately preceding the granting of a degree.
- Satisfaction of the Flexible Writing Requirement is required (see Section II, H of the college policies).
- Satisfaction of the Experiential Learning Requirement is required (see Section II, G of the college policies).
- A minimum of 64 units must be obtained from courses that involve attendance at regularly scheduled class sessions. The following do not count toward these required 64 units: all externships; independent studies; courses taken outside the law school under section IX A; credits received for working for a journal under section X F; credits received for Moot Court under section X G; credits received for being a teaching assistant; credits received from any clinic other than Civil Justice Clinic, Immigration Law and Policy Clinic, Indian Legal Clinic, Innovation Advancement Legal Clinic, Mediation Clinic, Post Conviction Clinic; and credit from courses without regularly scheduled meetings.
- A maximum of 29 transfer credits can be counted toward the 88 credits necessary for graduation.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants with degrees from foreign institutions must meet the Graduate College and College of Law English proficiency requirements.

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University enrolls only one first-year Juris Doctor class per year, and it enters in the fall semester. The Juris Doctor degree is a three-year program, and almost all students study on a full-time basis. The college does offer a flexible scheduling option for students with circumstances that make full-time enrollment impossible. Each year, far more applications are submitted to the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law than the college's facilities and programs can accommodate. Thus, admission is competitive. The Sandra Day O'Connor College College of Law makes its admission decisions based upon all information contained in the applicant's file.

To be considered for admission to the program, an applicant must have taken the LSAT and have earned, or expect to have earned by the time of enrollment in law school, a bachelor's degree from an accredited four-year college or university. Further, a candidate must complete the application for admission and submit all mandatory attachments. Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the College of Law by LSAC with the applicant's LSAT record. Applicants must apply electronically through https://www.lsac.org (https://www.lsac.org/).

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law will provide full file review to 100 percent of the completed applications to the Juris Doctor program. While the applicant's undergraduate record and LSAT score are important predictors, no decision will be made on objective criteria alone. Among the other factors considered by the admission committee are:

[^4]- publications
- service in the Armed Forces
- the rigor of the undergraduate course of study
- work experience

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

For an application to be considered complete, it must include the following:

- a complete Credential Assembly Service report, with all transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations
- the completed application, including explanations for affirmative answers to conduct, character and fitness questions
- LSAT scores from Law School Admissions Council
- a personal statement that does not exceed two double-spaced, typed pages
- the required application fee
- a resume that does not exceed three typed pages

The Credential Assembly Service report must be from the current application year.

Laws (Global Legal Studies), LL.M. (LAWLGLPLLM)

Online Degree Search Title: Laws (Global Legal Studies), LLM
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The LLM program allows one year of post-JD study tailored to the scholarly and practice interests of participating students. The concentration in global legal studies is designed in coordination with the College of Law's Center for Law and Global Affairs. The program draws on the unique focus of the center and the faculty's international and transnational legal expertise in global health, the environment, human rights, trade and emerging technologies. The program emphasizes transdisciplinary study and links rigorous legal training with the research and scholarship drawn from political science, policy studies, anthropology and sustainability.

Coursework

Students can take a wide variety of courses on international topics, ranging from international environmental law to international human rights law to international institutions. These include business-related courses such as international contracts, international taxation, international commercial arbitration and international business transactions.

Externships

Students that participate in externships gain practical experience that makes them more competitive for jobs at home and abroad. ASU Law can place every eligible enrolled student into an externship at organizations in Arizona (https://law.asu.edu/about/new-building (https://law.asu.edu/about/new-building)) or Washington, D.C., like the U.S. State Department, World Bank, International Rescue Committee, Department of Homeland Security and Human Rights First. ASU Law DC-based externship opportunities are available to view here: https://law.asu.edu/experiences/externships/washington (https://law.asu.edu/experiences/externships/washington). The opportunity for students to network with international decision-makers, opinion leaders, and top practitioners is further amplified through ASU's large DC presence (https://washingtondc.asu.edu/#why-is-asu-in-washington-dc (https://washingtondc.asu.edu/#why-is-asu-in-washington-dc)).

Community Involvement

Students can engage with globally minded leaders in the legal, government and business communities to develop professionally. For instance, the Phoenix Committee on Foreign Relations hosts events and other forums for select students to engage with prominent leaders and practitioners on trending international issues. Each year, LGA holds a workshop with the American Red Cross on international humanitarian law that brings students, members of the military, and community leaders together to learn more about the principles governing armed conflict.

Degree Requirements:

The program is designed to be completed in one academic year (nine months) on a full-time basis but may also be pursued on a part-time basis. A degree program candidate must complete 24 credit hours of coursework. A candidate may elect to write a master's degree portfolio paper or, instead, can elect to complete an applied project. Required coursework includes two of the following courses:

LAW 615 Public International Law (3)
LAW 691 International Institutions (2)
LAW 709 International Human Rights (2-3)
LAW 768 International Business Transactions (2-4)

An international student whose initial law degree is not from a U.S. law school is required to take the following course:

LAW 596 Professional Legal Writing (2)

The remaining credit hours will generally be obtained from the list of elective courses in international law.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

Legal Studies (Patent Practice), MLS (LWLPPMLEGS)

Online Degree Search Title: Legal Studies (Patent Practice), MLS
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The concentration in patent practice within the MLS degree program prepares students for the practice of patent law as registered patent agents with the United States Patent and Trademark Office. The concentration program focuses on providing students with substantial doctrinal knowledge about patent law as well as practical skills training, including a capstone clinical course, relevant in the patent law field.

Undergraduates with an engineering or hard science degree can draft and submit patent applications on behalf of themselves and others by passing the patent bar exam and becoming a registered Patent Agent with the USPTO. Additionally, many law firms, corporations, entrepreneurial ventures, and others hire nonlawyers to draft patents.

At ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, the patent practice focus provides students with a detailed understanding of patent law and a general understanding of intellectual property and the U.S. legal system. Skills gained enable students to successfully assist clients in securing their patentable invention rights.

Patent Agent

Trends show that many law firms, large corporations and other companies that rely on patent prosecution expertise are increasing their hiring and use of patent agents. Patent agents are nonlawyers but are approved by the USPTO to represent individuals and companies in the patent prosecution process.

Not surprisingly, patent agents are well-paid. According to the American Intellectual Property Law Association, the average salary is $$ 131,333$ and $$ 147,978$ for all patent agents having five or fewer years of experience and who are employed at law firms who participated in the 2015 AIPLA Economic Survey.

Clinical Experience

Students in the Lisa Foundation Patent Law Clinic (https://law.asu.edu/experiences/clinics/lisa-foundation (https://law.asu.edu/experiences/clinics/lisa-foundation)) receive hands-on experience in real-world patent prosecution and learn skills needed to recognize and obtain valuable and enforceable patents for clients that later may be successfully licensed or litigated. Regardless of whether students plan to practice transactional patent law or work in patent litigation, the clinic gives students insight into both areas of practice so they may understand the impact that actions taken during the patent procurement process have during a subsequent patent litigation.

Through their clinical experience, students work with independent inventors and start-up companies to draft and prosecute patent applications in the USPTO under the supervision of licensed patent attorneys. Additionally, students learn to conduct validity and infringement analyses while gaining valuable skills such as patent due diligence, valuation and licensing strategies.

The clinic focuses on providing students with hands-on experience in the most commonly encountered practical areas such as inventor interviewing, patentability searching and opinion drafting, patent application and office action response drafting, and examiner interviewing.

Additional Application Information

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University enrolls only one first-year Juris Doctor class per year, and it enters in the fall semester. The Juris Doctor degree is a three-year program, and almost all students study on a full-time basis. The college does offer a flexible scheduling option for students with circumstances that make full-time enrollment impossible. Each year, far more applications are submitted to the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law than the college's facilities and programs can accommodate. Thus, admission is competitive. The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law makes its admission decisions based upon all information contained in the applicant's file.

To be considered for admission to the program, a candidate must complete the application for admission and submit all mandatory attachments. Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the College of Law by LSAC with the applicant's LSAT record. Applicants must apply electronically through https://www.lsac.org (https://www.lsac.org).

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The Credential Assembly Service report must be from the current application year.

Students should refer to the program website for application deadlines.

Program Description:

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University offers a master's degree in sports law and business, in partnership with the W.P. Carey School of Business and in full cooperation with ASU's athletics department.

The MSLB program provides students with the training to understand the regulatory and revenue forces that drive the increasingly global sports industry: legal, policy, business, branding and marketing. The program uses a small class environment to deliver a problem- and project-based legal and business curriculum taught by recognized academic and professional leaders. That curriculum, together with an applied project, prepares students with the skills necessary to address the difficult issues present in the sports industry.

This unique graduate degree can be completed on a full-time basis in a 12-month period or in two or fewer years for part-time students working in the field.

Tribal Policy, Law and Government, LL.M. (LWTBLMLAWS)

Online Degree Search Title: Tribal Policy, Law, and Government, LLM

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The LLM in tribal policy, law and government is designed for lawyers and law school graduates who desire to work on issues related to tribal law and federal Indian law at the professional and academic levels. The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law is a leading institution in producing graduates specializing in Indian law. The College of Law is also home to the nationally known Indian Legal Program, established in 1988.

The program provides students with a detailed understanding of the nature of tribal government and of law and policy development within the domestic federal structure. Candidates will benefit from the extensive resources committed to the Indian legal program, including a director and staff and an Indian law clinic with its own full-time director and staff.

The core curricular offerings focus on domestic tribal law, federal Indian law and American institutions of law and government. The program explores the expression of domestic law within contemporary administrative, governmental and judicial institutions.

ASU is located in the heart of the southwestern U.S., home to roughly one-third of the native population in the U.S. and where many of the largest Indian nations in the country are located. The university is the academic home for several nationally known scholars who do research on American Indian issues and houses many unique resources for such scholarship, including the Labriola Collection at Hayden Library.

Degree Requirements:

The program is administered by the Indian Legal Program and is oriented toward students who seek practical experience in tribal law and federal Indian law. It provides intensive instruction to students who graduated from a law school that had few or no courses in Indian law and who now seek to practice in these areas at a professional level. This degree program requires a minimum of 24 credit hours of study. A thesis is not required.

Students will immerse themselves in the study of tribal law and federal Indian law and will apply the knowledge and experience they gain through the practical component of the degree program which may consist of research projects for tribal courts and governments; state, tribal and federal court practice; and tribal code drafting.

Graduates will be well-equipped for professional positions that require knowledge and expertise in tribal law and federal Indian law. Students have the option of pursuing the degree on a part-time basis.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and College of Law English proficiency requirements.

Admission to the program is competitive. In order to be admitted, an applicant must have completed a JD degree or law degree at a foreign institution that would qualify the applicant to practice law or pursue license to practice in that country and have submitted a complete application to the program.

Selection will be based on:

- academic background and potential
- career experience and ambitions
- diversity of experience and background
- space and resource limitations in the law school
- strength of experience related to the program sought, and other factors

Applicants are encouraged to apply electronically through https://www.lsac.org (https://www.lsac.org). For an application to be considered complete, it must include the following:

- the completed LLM application form
- the required application fee
- a resume that does not exceed three, typed pages
- a statement of interest that does not exceed 1,250 words, typed and double-spaced
- transcripts from all institutions attended, including the transcript showing that the bachelor's degree and law degree were conferred
- two letters of recommendation
- a writing sample

Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the ASU College of Law by LSAC.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

The training students receive in this program prepares them to become expert scholars able to contribute not only to their chosen field but to finding solutions to humankind's greatest challenges.

The concentration in urbanism leverages the varied interests in urbanism and helps emerging scholars as they attempt to compare, contrast and take stock of urbanism. Working with faculty from across a range of departments and programs at ASU, doctoral students will be able to capture the creative tensions that scholarship on urbanism has inspired in order to stimulate a provocative, constructive kind of inquiry.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 hours of research credit and 12 hours of dissertation credit ( 54 credit hours total) to be earned post-admission.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee, and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate.

All students must maintain a 3.20 (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") average GPA in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

For the concentration in urbanism, 15 credit hours will be selected from an approved list of applicable courses related to urbanism. These courses will include the core urbanism course, GCU 516, as well as one course from each of the four urbanism clusters. These clusters are:

- built form
- culture and society
- institutions and governance
- natural environment

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Undergraduate coursework in anthropology is not a prerequisite for admission, but is generally advisable. Students may be admitted without such a background and may be required to acquire knowledge of general anthropology in a manner to be specified at the time of admission.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20-30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Applied Behavior Analysis, MS (LAAPBAMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Behavior Analysis, MS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Offered by the Department of Psychology, this MS program in applied behavior analysis is a full-time, scientifically based, two-year program that meets the Behavior Analyst Certification Board fourth edition task list for coursework with more than 270 classroom hours and 1,500 hours of practicum fieldwork. Successful graduates will be able to sit for BACB certification and once certified, they will be eligible for state-licensure. The program's learning outcomes include mastery across three major areas as identified by the BACB: basic behavior-analytic skills, client-centered responsibilities and foundational knowledge.

Applied behavior analysis training in the Department of Psychology at ASU includes supervised experience and instruction in:

- behavior analytic attitudes such as determinism, empiricism and parsimony
- fundamental elements of behavior change and behavior change procedures
- identification, assessments and interventions for behavioral excesses, deficiencies and challenging behavior
- professional ethics and conduct of ABA
- training others in the science and practice of ABA
- use of different behavioral measurement types and systems
- use of experimental designs to determine relationships among and between measurement, relevant variables and behavior

Degree Requirements:

42 Credit hours including the required applied project course (PSB 593).

Required Core ( 24 credit hours)
PSB 501 Basic Principles of Applied Behavior Analysis (3)
PSB 510 Basic Principles of Experimental Analysis of Behavior (2)
PSB 511 Advanced Research Methods (2)
PSB 520 Ethical Issues and Professional Standards in Applied Behavior Analysis (3)
PSB 530 Behavioral Observation and Functional Assessment (3)
PSB 540 Development of Applied Behavioral Intervention Programs (3)
PSB 563 Basic Principles of Organizational Behavior Management (2)
PSB 573 Advanced Principles of Learning and Analysis of Behavior (3)
PSB 578 Applied Behavior Analysis in Developmental Disorders (3)

Electives or Research (4 credit hours)
PSB 591 Seminar (2)
PSB 598 Special Topics (2)

Other Requirements (9 credit hours)
PSB 580 Practicum: Applied Behavior Analysis (4)
PSB 583 Fieldwork: Applied Behavior Analysis (5)

Culminating Experience (5 credit hours)
PSB 593 Applied Project (5)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in psychology, human development, sociology or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- SlideRoom application and fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose form
- applicant response form
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- two academic letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The Department of Psychology application process is completed online through ASU's Graduate Admission Services which includes the application form and official transcripts. Application to the Department of Psychology Master of Science program in applied behavioral analysis is also completed via SlideRoom to process supplemental application materials. The SlideRoom account requires an additional fee. To apply to the program, students must follow the instructions on the applied behavioral analysis admission checklist.

It is strongly recommended that applicants download and print the Master of Science in applied behavioral analysis admission checklist to ensure completion of the application process and inclusion of all the required supplemental forms.

The statement of purpose form should describe professional and academic aspirations.

Applicants must submit two academic letters of recommendation, one of which should be from a tenure-track faculty member associated with the applicant's most recent degree program. If the applicant's graduation year is greater than five years from the application date, then a letter from a recent or current employer may be substituted.

Applied Linguistics, PHD (EDAPLPHD)
Online Degree Search Title: Applied Linguistics, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Applied linguistics combines research topics in the linguistics sciences and education to pursue principled approaches to language-related concerns. The applied linguistics PhD program at Arizona State University is focused on simultaneous and developmental bilingualism in children and adolescents. Faculty participate in the program from within multiple curricular units across the institution's four campuses. The program encourages transdisciplinary study, and its flexible requirements enable students to pursue those aspects of the disciplines that interest them the most. The program prepares students for entrance into the field as teachers, scholars and professionals.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Foundation Coursework (18 credit hours)
Overview of the Field: A three-credit course providing a survey of the field of applied linguistics is required. (3)
Linguistics: Coursework in theoretical linguistics, including one approved linguistics elective, is required. (15)

Teaching Internship (1 credit hour)

Colloquia (8 credit hours)
A four-semester sequence of two-credit colloquium meetings is required for students in the first two years.

Research Methods (6 credit hours)
Students must take two courses in research methods, selected in consultation with the advisor.

Research Specialization (33 credit hours)
In consultation with the program director, students take 11 three-credit courses in their field of specialization.

Breadth (6 credit hours)
Two courses in a secondary concentration area are required.

Dissertation (12 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information
An oral defense of the dissertation is required.

There must be a minimum of 54 credit hours beyond the master's degree level, including a minimum of 12 units of dissertation credit. All students in the program must satisfy 18 credit hours of foundation coursework.

Because applied linguistics is transdisciplinary in nature, applicants may differ from one another with regard to their prior experience and preparation. For instance, while some applicants may have substantial prior training in core theoretical linguistics (foundations) others may have considerable preparation in an area related to a supported concentration. Students should consult the program director for assistance in planning their degree programs. The program director may address potential redundancies in a student's program requirements with prior academic preparation by allocating a maximum of 30 credit hours from an awarded and approved graduate degree toward the applied linguistics program requirements, or the director may permit the student to take additional elective courses in lieu of introductory courses covered in an undergraduate program.

Language Requirement: Students in the applied linguistics doctoral program must demonstrate proficiency in a second language equivalent to two years of study. A language appropriate to the student's area of interest is selected in consultation with the advisor. The language requirement must be satisfied, by examination or coursework, prior to advancement to candidacy. Computer or other nonhuman languages may not be used to satisfy this requirement. Students for whom English is a second language may use their first language to satisfy the requirement by examination. Course credit used to satisfy the language requirement cannot be used to satisfy other program requirements and cannot be counted toward the total required 84 credit hours.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- academic writing sample relevant to the field
- GRE general test scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Applied Mathematics, PHD (LAAPMPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Mathematics, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This PhD program in applied mathematics is intended for students with superior computational and mathematical modeling ability. It emphasizes a solid mathematical foundation and promotes creative scholarship in an application discipline. The School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences at Arizona State University has faculty in applied mathematics with outstanding transdisciplinary research programs with strong external funding.

Current research interests include mathematical epidemiology and mathematical ecology, mathematical neuroscience, environmental fluid dynamics and high performance computing, imaging and inverse problems, supply chain dynamics, control and optimization, computational methods for ordinary and partial differential equations, analysis of differential equations, and geophysical and environmental fluid dynamics.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Five core courses (15)
MAT 591 Seminar (3)
MAT 799 Dissertation (12)

Students must pass a written comprehensive examination and an oral dissertation prospectus. Each student must write a dissertation and defend it orally in front of five dissertation committee members. Students should see the department website for examination information.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics, applied mathematics, economics, engineering or a natural science from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of education and career goals
- resume
- GRE (general) scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Additional eligibility requirements include:

- be competitive in an applicant pool as evidenced by coursework in linear algebra (equivalent to ASU course MAT 342 or MAT 343) and advanced calculus (equivalent to ASU course MAT 371)
- have scientific programming skills (desirable)

Applied Mathematics for the Life & Social Sciences, PHD (LAAMLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Mathematics for the Life and Social Sciences, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in applied mathematics for the life and social sciences focuses on training researchers to analyze scientific questions at the intersection of the mathematical, life and social sciences. Graduates of the program will be making innovative and far-reaching scientific contributions that rely on cutting-edge computational mathematical and modeling approaches. This program focuses on producing quantitative scientists and applied mathematicians conducting high-level, transdisciplinary research. The faculty includes mathematicians, statisticians, theoretical biologists and social scientists from five different schools at Arizona State University.

There is a high demand for first-rate scientists, researchers and faculty interested in meeting the challenges faced by communities in the 21 st century. Institutional research and planning programs create space and opportunity to address such challenges on a global scale. The health, environmental and natural resource challenges in Arizona and the nation are urgently in need of a large pool of researchers with these transdisciplinary skills.

There are three tracks a student can follow. Applied mathematics is a more in-depth focus on the tools applied to the life and social sciences such as dynamical systems, computational and numerical methods, simulation and mathematical analysis. Life sciences focuses on understanding the tools for representing the structure and operation of complex biological and ecological processes. Social sciences focuses on understanding the tools for representing the structure and operation of complex social systems and processes.

By offering courses that enhance transdisciplinary exchanges and collaboration among the faculty and students interested in addressing questions of social relevance, the program builds upon foundations already established in:

- bioinformatics
- computational sciences ecology
- genomics
- mathematical analysis
- mathematical epidemiology
- nonlinear dynamics
- population dynamics
- social science fields

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate degree. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 credit hours of research credit and 12 hours of dissertation credit ( 54 credit hours total) to be earned post-admission.

Students entering the program without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee and present that research in a public forum before continuing in the later stage of the doctoral program.

All students must maintain a 3.20 (scale is $4.00=$ "A") average GPA in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

All students are required to complete a sequence of core courses. The core competencies consist of:

- core math skills
- deterministic modeling or computational methods
- math biology
- statistics and probability
- stochastic modeling

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. A master's degree in the social sciences (e.g., anthropology, gender studies, geography, sociology), life sciences or related fields (e.g., biology, ecology, genomics), applied mathematics, mathematics or statistics is preferred.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample of 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Prior to admission, students should have completed, at the undergraduate junior or senior level, a minimum of the following:

- 15 credit hours of mathematics or statistics
- nine credit hours of life sciences and social sciences coursework at the senior or college graduate level
- no fewer than three credit hours each of life sciences and social sciences coursework

Asian Languages and Civilizations (Chinese), MA (LACHINAMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Asian Languages/Civilizations (Chinese), MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Chinese graduate program in the School of International Letters and Cultures offers an MA degree with a focus in one of two areas:

- literature, linguistics, religion and culture
- pedagogy

A focus on literature, linguistics, religion and culture prepares students for further academic training, for entrance to professional schools in such fields as law, business, journalism and translation, and for a general level of knowledge about the languages and cultures of China as an asset to a professional career. The pedagogy focus is intended for students whose major interest is in teaching modern Chinese in K-16 environments.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course ( CHI 593 ).

The plan of study for the master's degree includes a minimum of 30 credit hours of graduate-level work as approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, a thesis or an applied project option. The plan must include a 500-level bibliography and research methods course offered by the department. When approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, nine credit hours of advanced-level work in another language or in closely related courses may be included in the plan. Students who are primarily interested in teaching at the secondary or community college levels may select a plan of study with a focus in language pedagogy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in Chinese or a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- resume
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking and writing skills on a topic connected with Chinese culture.

Candidates for the master's degree should present the equivalent of an undergraduate major in Chinese upon entrance to the program. Those who lack this background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements, including those with regard to English proficiency, may be admitted to a graduate program on a provisional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular plan of study for the master's degree.

Asian Languages and Civilizations (Japanese), MA (LAJAPANMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Asian Languages/Civilizations (Japanese), MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Asian languages faculty in the School of International Letters and Cultures offer a graduate program leading to an MA in Asian languages and civilizations with a concentration in Japanese. In addition to preparing some students for further academic training, the program helps to prepare students for jobs relating to Japan (in fields such as law, business, journalism and translation) and for entrance into professional schools. Students who see higher-level understanding of the language and culture Japan as a valuable asset to a professional career are an ideal fit for this program, as are students who want to pursue doctoral studies in the same or a closely related field.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (JPN 593)

The plan of study for the Master of Arts includes a minimum of 30 credit hours of graduate-level work and a thesis, as approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, or 27 credit hours of coursework and three credit hours of applied project. The plan must include a 500-level bibliography and research methods course offered by the department. When approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, nine hours of advanced-level work in another language or in closely related courses may be included in the plan.

Students who are primarily interested in teaching at the secondary or community college levels may select a plan of study with an area of study in language pedagogy. Students seeking a master's degree in Asian languages and civilization should consult their Graduate College representative. In keeping with the idea of in-situ experience as a key ingredient for advanced intellectual understanding, all degree candidates must have spent at least nine continuous months in a Japanese language environment within four years of entering the program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in Japanese or a related field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
personal statement
- resume
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking and writing skills on a topic connected with Japanese culture. The personal statement should highlight the applicant's motivations and skills and indicate why they are interested in the Japanese graduate program. Candidates for the program should present the equivalent of an undergraduate major in Japanese upon entrance to the program. Those who lack this background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements may be admitted to a graduate program on a conditional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular plan of study for the master's degree.

Students should see the School of International Letters and Cultures website for more information.

AST 591: Seminar: Topic (1)
SES 501: SESE Colloquium (1)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
SES 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information
When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree in a related field to be used for this degree.
*Substitutions for Other Requirements may be made per departmental approval.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admissions application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- scores on the general GRE
- scores on the physics GRE
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Atmospheric Science (certificate), Certificate (LAATMOSCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Atmospheric Science (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The transdisciplinary certificate program in atmospheric science is administered by an executive committee composed of faculty from the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The objective of this program is to recognize Arizona State University graduate students who complete a dissertation on a topic related to the atmospheric or oceanic sciences under the supervision of a faculty member from one of the cooperating departments.

Degree Requirements:

16 credit hours.

A minimum of 16 credit hours will be required in order to qualify for the atmospheric science certificate, consisting of:
three three-credit-hour courses from a list of courses in the core disciplines (9) two three-credit-hour courses from a list of electives at the 400 level or above (6)
a capstone seminar (1)

Considering the diversity of courses and in order to ensure a transdisciplinary flavor, all prospective recipients will have their certificate program approved by the certificate executive committee. Certificates will only be awarded to students who are enrolled in an MA, MS, MNS or PhD program at ASU. The student's thesis or dissertation must also be related to some aspect of atmospheric science.

The core courses are offered at least once every other year, so the certificate may be completed within two years.

Specific requirements are:
approval by the certificate committee of the student's proposed course selection completion of one course from each of the core disciplines with a grade of " B " $(3.00)$ or better completion of two courses from the list of electives with a grade of "B" (3.00) or better completion of the capstone seminar, which is one credit hour completion of a dissertation on a topic related to the atmospheric or oceanic sciences

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.
or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

Online Degree Search Title: Biochemistry, MS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Students earning an MS degree in biochemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences are trained in the fundamental aspects of the discipline, but most also will choose to learn by joining transdisciplinary teams that work on larger, mission-based contemporary problems in areas such as:

- biogeochemistry
- energy and sustainability
- fundamental chemical biology
- materials and nanoscience
- medicine and health
- structure function and dynamics

The master's degree program in biochemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences provides students with the training they need to solve biological problems at the molecular scale and to contribute to research in current challenging societal issues.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

500-level or above courses as approved by the school (12)
BCH 501 or CHM 501 Seminar or other seminar course as approved by the school (4)
BCH 592 Research courses (8)
BCH 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curricular Information
The program consists of coursework and seminars selected by the student in consultation with the student's supervisory committee and based on the student's area of research. A written thesis is required and must be successfully defended during a public final oral defense. Students must maintain a minimum GPA of 3.00 (scale is $4.00=$ "A") or better.

A program fee in the amount of $$ 300$ per semester is required in addition to the normal tuition costs.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in chemistry, biochemistry, or closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

Program Description:

The biology PhD program offers individualized courses of study tailored to students interests that include laboratory, field and theoretical work. Flexibility in the program is achieved by requiring only one core class, which is a choice between two topics that cover the breadth of the research directions in this program.

Electives are also as flexible as possible and include areas outside of biology. The major goal of this program is to provide opportunities to create an adaptable and general degree that allows both traditional and interdisciplinary approaches in any area of biology.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3-4 credit hours)
BIO 614 Biometry (4) or
BIO 620 Research Prospectus Writing (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
The program is tailored to the needs of the individual student. The plan of study is developed by the student and a supervisory committee consisting of a major professor and three additional faculty members. The electives credit hours are comprised of coursework showing breadth in biology subdisciplines, seminars and research.

An oral comprehensive examination is required in order to advance to candidacy, and a formal defense of the final written dissertation is required prior to graduation.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in biology or a related discipline from a regionally accredited institution.

Biology (Biology and Society), MS (LABIOSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Biology (Biology and Society), MS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

In the biology and society concentration of the MS program in biology, students examine topics where biology intersects with society. The concentration program tailors individual plans of study to individual needs and interests, with a solid grounding in life and related sciences and with a rigorous analytical and interdisciplinary education. Three tracks offer suggested courses for those wishing to focus on these areas: bioethics, policy and law; ecology, economics and ethics of the environment; and history and philosophy of science

The bioethics, policy and law track trains students in the pressing moral, policy and legal issues raised by the biosciences and biomedicine, and in the disciplinary methods necessary to address these issues. Ecology, economics and ethics of the environment trains students in the theory and empirical methods for understanding, analyzing and shaping policy for coupled human-natural systems. The history and philosophy of science track trains students in the conceptual foundations of science, especially the epistemological and methodological assumptions that shape science and its progress.

Program Description:

In the biology and society concentration of the PhD program in biology, students examine topics with biological and social dimensions that are best understood together, rather than in isolation. The concentration provides plans of study tailored to individual needs and interests. It encompasses a solid grounding in life sciences and related sciences and provides a rigorous analytical and interdisciplinary education. Students may further specialize in one of four tracks:

Bioethics, policy and law
This track focuses on pressing moral, policy and legal issues raised by biosciences and biomedicine, and on the methods needed to address them.

History and philosophy of science
This track focuses on the conceptual foundations of science, especially the epistemological and methodological assumptions that shape science and its progress.

Ecology, economics and ethics of the environment
This track focuses on the theory and empirical methods for understanding, analyzing and shaping policy that steer us toward a more productive, equitable and sustainable ecological future.

Biology education research
This track focuses on using education research to identify ways to broadly improve undergraduate biology education.

Online Degree Search Title: Biology (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in biology with a concentration in complex adaptive systems science trains the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing university-wide research on complex adaptive system science at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive perspective to give better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing our society today. Students will be fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Student doctoral dissertations should include the application of complex adaptive systems concepts and methods in their field of study, and candidates typically will have a member of the complex adaptive systems science graduate faculty as a member of the doctoral supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Online Degree Search Title: Biomimicry, MS
Campus: Online

Program Description:

ASU, in conjunction with Biomimicry 3.8, has developed an MS program designed to empower change agents passionate about a world mentored by life's genius. Graduates work toward innovative and sustainable solutions to pressing global challenges --- like the way business is conducted, buildings and products are designed, governments are run, health care is provided, and goods are manufactured to how future generations will be educated --- inspired by nature's time-tested sustainable solutions developed over the last 3.8 billion years.

The Master of Science program in biomimicry is designed to prepare students to facilitate the practice of biomimicry across corporate, government, education and nongovernment organization sectors. Students will gain biomimicry experience in biome-based applications, business case studies, biological strategy research and in each student's self-designed biomimicry project in the student's chosen career field.

For more information and to view current research, students should visit http://biomimicry.asu.edu/ (http://biomimicry.asu.edu/).

Biomimicry (Certificate), Certificate (LABMYGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Biomimicry (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in biomimicry, the practice of emulating nature's strategies for human designs, is offered at ASU in conjunction with Biomimicry 3.8.

The program is designed to introduce and delve into the core fundamentals of biomimicry, such as biomimicry thinking and life's principles with the intention to apply the knowledge and tools to one's specific interests or discipline. Participants will have the opportunity, through dedicated time and mentorship from instructors, to explore the application of these core fundamentals in their own discipline, field or area of interest during the biomimicry virtual design lab.

Graduates will have the ability to work toward innovative and sustainable solutions within their discipline, drawing upon time-tested sustainable solutions of the last 3.8 billion years.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours and a practicum.

Required Core (13 credit hours)
BMY 501 Essentials of Biomimicry (1)
BMY 502 Life's Principles (4)
BMY 503 Biology Taught Functionally (4)
BMY 504 Biomimicry Thinking (4)

Culminating Experience (2 credit hours)
BMY 530 Virtual Design Lab Practicum (2)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program

Applicants must submit the following:

- graduate admissions application and application fee
- official transcripts
- fill out and upload questionnaire
- curriculum vitae or resume
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Chemistry, MS (LACHEMMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Chemistry, MS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Students earning an MS degree in chemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences are trained in the foundation disciplines of analytical, organic, physical, inorganic, and environmental chemistry and geochemistry, but most will also choose to learn by joining transdisciplinary research teams that work on larger, mission-based contemporary problems in areas such as:

- energy and sustainability
- frontiers of chemical measurement
- fundamental molecular science
- geologic and biospheric science
- materials and nanoscience
- medicine and health
- structure function and dynamics

The master's degree program in chemistry provides students with the training they need to solve molecular scale problems and to contribute to research in current challenging societal issues.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

500-level or above courses as approved by the school (12)
BCH 501 or CHM 501 Seminar or other seminar course as approved by the school (4)
CHM 592 Research (8)
CHM 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information
The program consists of coursework and seminars selected by the student in consultation with the student's supervisory committee and based on the student's area of research. A written thesis is required and must be successfully defended during a public final oral defense. Students must maintain a minimum GPA of 3.00 (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") or better.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in chemistry, biochemistry, or closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program.

Online Degree Search Title: Communication, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate faculty members of communication offer a transdisciplinary graduate program leading to the PhD in communication. Areas of emphasis are available in interpersonal, intercultural and organizational communication. This program also provides coursework and resources in rhetoric and performance studies.

The program is housed in the Hugh Downs School of Human Communication and is designed to prepare scholars for research-oriented careers in universities and in the public or private sectors. Students are provided training in communication theory, research methodology, and a specialization in one or more areas of concentration. The goal of the program is to meet the needs of students whose interests transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries as exemplified by participation in our transdisciplinary research initiatives.

Degree Requirements:

96 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The doctorate requires a minimum of 66 credit hours beyond an appropriate master's degree.

Coursework for a typical plan of study is distributed as follows:
required core courses (6)
area of concentration (36)
COM 792 Research (12)
COM 799 Dissertation (12)

Students are required to demonstrate proficiency in research methods (statistics, computer languages, content analysis methods, interviewing, participant observation, etc.) which, in the judgment of the supervisory committee, is needed for the student's dissertation research.

Students are required to take three credit hours of COM 792 Prospectus/Dissertation Practicum and three credit hours of COM 792 Seminar Assistant.

Students must take at least one of the three advanced methods courses:

COM 607 Contemporary Rhetorical Methods (3)
COM 608 Multivariate Statistical Analysis of Data in Communication (3)
COM 609 Advanced Qualitative Research Methods in Communication (3)

The required theory course is COM 604 Theory Construction in Communication (3).

Two transdisciplinary theory and methodology courses are required of all students in the program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Computer-Assisted Language Learning (Certificate), Certificate (LACALLGRCT)
Online Degree Search Title: Computer-Assisted Language Learning (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in computer-assisted language learning focuses on the application of technology in foreign language teaching and research. It provides the practical, hands-on skills needed to create and evaluate learning and teaching materials with new computer-based technologies. The certificate program teaches students how to use technology effectively to facilitate instructed second-language acquisition and how to develop, manage and maintain a cutting-edge language computing facility. It also provides students with a solid theoretical and pedagogical framework for the integration of technology into the foreign language curriculum and provides them with the tools necessary to teach language courses in either a hybrid or distance-learning environment.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (6 credit hours)
ENG 557 Computer-Assisted Language Learning (3)
SLC 510 Computer-Assisted Language Learning Praxis (3)

Restricted Electives (3 credit hours)
LIN 520 Second-Language Acquisition Theories (3) OR SLC 515 Second-Language Acquisition (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information
For restricted electives, students may select an approved second language acquisition course equivalent to LIN 520 or SLC 515 with department approval.

Admission Requirements:

All applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned from a regionally accredited institution a bachelor's or master's degree with a major or minor in foreign language study, English, or English education.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students may apply for admission to the certificate program once they have been accepted into a graduate degree program in the School of International Letters and Cultures or other school or department at ASU.

Applicants must have an undergraduate major in the language they will teach or be native speakers of the language they will teach, or they must have a minor or ASU minor equivalency as determined by SILC policies (18 upper-division credit hours, including at least three credit hours from the 400 level in their undergraduate program). Current graduate student applicants who do not meet the language requirements must be enrolled in a foreign language graduate program, the Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages program, an applied linguistics graduate program, or a closely related field (determined by the directors). A teaching certification is not required as this certificate program is open to graduate students with an interest in computer-assisted language learning and who meet the admission requirements.

Applicants must have completed an introduction to linguistics or applied linguistics course at the time of application (to be verified by the certificate directors). The course does not count toward the 15 credit hours required for the certificate.

Applicants must complete a language teaching methods course (to be verified by the certificate directors.) This course also may be taken at ASU prior to completion of the certificate program. The course does not count toward the 15 credit hours required for the certificate.

Creative Writing, MFA (LACWRITMFA)

Online Degree Search Title: Creative Writing, MFA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MFA in creative writing at ASU has always been an unswervingly student-first program. Through small classes, intimate workshops, or one-toone mentoring, the centuries-old apprenticeship model thrives within the New American University. Poets and fiction writers work with an outstanding faculty that has published more than 80 books and has garnered national and international attention through awards that include:

- Guggenheim, Howard Foundation, and National Endowment for the Arts fellowships
- Pulitzer Prize
- International Griffin Poetry Prize
- Walt Whitman Award from the Academy of American Poets
- two Medals of Achievement from the National Society of Arts and Letters

Additionally, in concert with the Master of Fine Arts program, the Virginia G. Piper Center for Creative Writing offers students a variety of creative and global fellowship opportunities each year, including two teaching fellowships in Singapore; four to five global residency fellowships to study and write abroad; one to two fellowships to provide summer funding for writing; and other generous forms of support that include graduate assistantships and travel scholarships.

Furthermore, students have access to a variety of professional development opportunities, including serving on the editorial board of an international literary journal, Hayden's Ferry Review, and internships with Four Way Books.

Degree Requirements:

48 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, and an applied project (ENG 593).

Other Requirement (6 credit hours)
ENG 592 Research (6)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
ENG 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
The creative writing program requires 48 credit hours of study evenly divided between writing courses, and literature courses designed to inform that writing.

While students are expected to satisfy these requirements in the genre in which they were accepted, the program encourages cross-genre study and electives can include courses taken outside of the creative writing program, even outside the English department.

A written comprehensive exam and an applied project are required.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants should have an undergraduate major in English or creative writing; however, exceptional students who do not have either of these undergraduate majors may be admitted on the basis of writing excellence.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- creative manuscript
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Students applying for funding must submit a statement of teaching philosophy. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details. TA applicants also must submit an academic writing sample.

The personal statement should include the applicant's writing background, intended area of specialization, a brief self-evaluation of recent work and the applicant's goals. The statement should be single-spaced, up to 1000 words.

Applicants must also submit three copies of the creative manuscript, up to 20 pages of poetry or up to 30 pages of prose.

The three letters of recommendation must consist of one copy of each letter from three recommenders.

The personal statement, the creative manuscript copies, and the letters of recommendation must be sent directly to:

Digital Humanities (Certificate), Certificate (LACDHGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Digital Humanities (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in digital humanities provides students with methods and skills central to conducting humanities research that employs both qualitative and quantitative approaches. The certificate program is designed to promote cross-disciplinary study in humanities and social and computational sciences, and is open to students in all disciplines. The program features training in transdisciplinary collaboration, projectbased communication skills, critical theory and the simultaneous application of quantitative and qualitative problem-solving skills. This certificate highlights an area of excellence within ASU that has emerged across its colleges, schools and departments and is integral to the effort of transforming the humanities at ASU into new transdisciplinary configurations.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours including an applied project course (CDH 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Other Requirement (3 credit hours)
CDH 580 Practicum (3)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
CDH 593 Applied Project (3)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Admission is open to all ASU graduate students enrolled in an existing master's or doctoral program and in good standing. Students who are interested in transdisciplinary work are particularly well-suited for this certificate program.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 100 (iBT).

Students will be asked to outline a desired transdisciplinary area of inquiry. For example, a student who works on digital rhetoric and literacy may want to understand how to create and manage social media data sets or how to create a social media application. Alternatively, a student in School of International Letters and Cultures may want to study digital archives of Slavic literature and may need to understand how digital archives are enmeshed in national and capitalist networks.

East Asian Languages and Civilizations (Chinese), PHD (LAEALCPHD)
Online Degree Search Title: East Asian Languages and Civilization, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in East Asian languages and civilizations is a research-intensive, transdisciplinary, area-based degree in the study of traditional and modern languages and cultures of China and Japan. Students may focus on:
comparative cultural studies

- cultural history or linguistics
- literary criticism
- literature
thoughts

In every case, students will be expected to acquire a solid grounding in the classical and modern versions of the primary language of their area.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, two foreign language exams, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The program requires a minimum of 84 credit hours, of which 30 credit hours from an earned master's degree program that is directly relevant to the doctoral program may be counted toward that requirement. A minimum of 30 credit hours of coursework and 24 credit hours of research are required beyond the master's degree level. If a student already has a master's degree, it will not be necessary to complete the existing School of International Letters and Cultures master's degree program in Asian languages and civilizations. However, the student will be required to satisfy all course requirements for the master's degree.

All students, whether specializing in Chinese or Japanese, must comply with the following requirements:
complete a minimum of six courses selected from advanced courses in literature, religions or intellectual history

- complete five seminars
- complete SLC 500 Theory and Methodology in East Asian Literature and Culture complete 12 credit hours of core requirements submit a dissertation and pass an oral defense of that dissertation
- demonstrate reading knowledge of a second pertinent Asian language and one pertinent European language, aside from English
- pass written and oral comprehensive examinations in four fields, three of which must be selected from areas that are well-represented within the East Asian languages and civilizations doctoral graduate curriculum

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants specializing in Chinese should have completed at least three years of modern Chinese and one year of classical Chinese. Applicants specializing in Japanese should have completed at least three years of modern Japanese and one semester of classical Japanese.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
personal statement
- writing sample
- speech sample in Chinese or Japanese
- resume or curriculum vitae
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking as well as writing skills (on a topic connected with Chinese, Japanese or East Asian culture, no more than 15 pages).

The speech sample is required if the applicant is applying for teaching assistant ship funding. The speech sample should be a recorded message approximately four minutes in length, in Chinese or Japanese, on a topic of the applicant's choosing. (Applicants are asked to not read the message. This is to help the committee evaluate the level of proficiency, and the message should realistically reflect the applicant's spoken Chinese or Japanese). Recordings should be emailed to SILC@asu.edu (mailto:SILC@asu.edu).

Applicants should see the department website for more information.

English, MA (LAENGLMA)

Online Degree Search Title: English, MA
Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The MA program in English allows for a variety of transdisciplinary studies within four distinct tracks:

Comparative literature --- Students interpret cultural productions in English and at least one other language, and they explore approaches ranging from textual criticism, critical theory and translation to cultural studies and the social sciences.

English studies --- Students in this online delivery format option learn how to interpret and articulate complex cultural, historical, literary and language related ideas into accessible material for general audiences through a series of courses from across disciplinary areas of study.

Literature --- Students develop and hone skills in oral presentation, writing and critical thinking while exploring social, historical and cultural contexts.

Writing, rhetorics and literacies --- This program offers a wide array of courses encompassing the history, theory and practice of rhetoric and pedagogy of writing.

Accelerated Degrees:

With the same high-quality curriculum and world-renowned faculty, ASU students can accelerate the completion of their bachelor's and master's degree to as little as five years. :
Accelerated bachelors-masters degree options: This degree is also offered in an accelerated format with English (Literature), BA
Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior and senior years, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (LIN 593 or ENG 593) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours including the required capstone course (ENG 597) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a foreign language exam.

one course in concept and methods (course in comparative literature, criticism, or translation)
four courses in a language other than English electives

English Studies
one course in linguistics
one course in literature
one course in writing, rhetorics and literacies one course in English education electives or research courses

Literature
one course in literary theory
a distribution requirement
electives
two courses selected must be graduate seminars at the 600 level

Writing, Rhetorics, and Literacies one course in composition theory
one course in rhetoric theory electives, which must include six credit hours of graduate seminars at the 600 level

Culminating Experience (3 or 6 credit hours)
ENG 593 Applied Project (3) or ENG 597 Graduate Capstone Seminar (3) or
ENG 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students should see the academic unit for an approved course list.

The capstone culminating experience option is available to students in the English studies track only. Students in this track must take the capstone. Students in one of the other tracks may select an applied project or thesis for the culminating experience.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- academic writing sample relevant to the field
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in comparative literature must prove fluency in a foreign language to a level sufficient for graduate study. The one to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in comparative literature, and plans for the future.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in English studies (online program) are required to submit two academic or professional letters of recommendation (a third is optional). An academic writing sample is not required. The two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should explain how the applicant's academic and professional interests fit with the English studies track of the Master of Arts in English. Applicants with undergraduate majors in English, foreign language, history, philosophy, liberal studies, or other areas in humanities will be considered.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in literature are required to have an undergraduate major in English. Those who do not have a major in English are encouraged to register as nondegree students while they take supplementary courses, as identified by the advisor. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in literature, and plans for the future.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in writing, rhetorics, and literacies may have undergraduate majors in fields such as, but not limited to anthropology, cognitive science, communication, comparative languages and literatures, education, English literature, history, law, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, rhetoric or composition, sociology, or speech and hearing science. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in writing, rhetorics and literacies, and plans for the future

English (English Education), PHD (LAENEDPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: English (English Education), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in English with a concentration in English education prepares students to examine the writing and reading practices of secondary students as well as the instructional practices of secondary English language arts teachers by emphasizing the relationship between pedagogy and research methodologies used to study the teaching of secondary English.

Possible areas for research focus within this program include young adult literature, secondary reading and writing practices, new literacies, English language learning, critical literacy, and secondary English language arts curriculum and instruction development. The program encourages students to pursue coursework in other subdisciplines within the Department of English (such as rhetoric and composition, applied linguistics and literature) and coursework in the ASU Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College (such as literacy and educational research methodology). The program prepares students to become professors of English education or to pursue other relevant opportunities in research and administration.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)
ENG 501 Approaches to Research (3)

Foundational Distribution (12 credit hours)

Advanced Studies Distribution (12 credit hours)

Internships (9 credit hours)
ENG 784 Internship (9)

Specialization (6 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
ENG 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students must take 12 credit hours at the 500 level, selected from a list of approved courses in education, English, linguistics and applied linguistics for the foundational distribution.

Students must take at least two courses in the area of specialization.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If not approved, the 30 credit hours of coursework will be made up of electives and research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's and master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants with master's degrees in English education and related fields, such as English literature, applied linguistics, education, and rhetoric and composition, will be considered. A minimum of three years of full-time teaching or volunteer work in secondary English language arts classrooms or in literate-rich settings is required.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.50 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

English (Literature), PHD (LAENLITPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: English (Literature), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in English with a concentration in literature promotes the study of the production, distribution and reception of texts; of their linguistic, rhetorical and literary structures and functions; and of the internal and external forces shaping literature. The program offers courses that examine chronology and genre while also considering the importance of embodiment. Many courses explore issues relating to gender, class, race and ethnicity. The program prepares students for entrance into the profession as teachers and scholars.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a foreign language exam, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

A student with an appropriate master's degree must complete a minimum of 54 credit hours of approved graduate work, which includes 12 credit hours of dissertation, provided the student's master's degree is accepted by the supervisory committee and the academic unit. Research hours may be used toward coursework in consultation with the advisor. A student without an appropriate master's degree must complete 84 credit hours of work at ASU. At the advisor's discretion, students may include up to 12 credit hours of appropriate, graduate-level coursework undertaken at another university and not previously counted toward any other degree.

Specifically required are six credit hours in theory courses and ENG 501 Approaches to Research. Students must complete eight graduate courses in any of the following categories:

- cultural studies
- ethnic studies
- gender studies
- genre
- history and structure of the English language
- literature 1500-1660
- literature 1660-1900
- literature since 1900
- literature to 1500
- postcolonial or anglophone literatures

Students must take at least five graduate seminars at the 600 level en route to the doctorate, at least three of which must be taken in the doctoral program. Up to 12 credit hours taken outside the department may be counted toward the degree. Students should consult with their supervisory committees when choosing electives.

English (Writing, Rhetorics, and Literacies), PHD (LAENRHTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: English (Writing, Rhetorics and Literacies), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in English with a concentration in writing, rhetorics and literacies promotes the study of rhetorical strategies, production, distribution and interpretation of oral, written, digital, visual, discursive, material and symbolic texts.

Students study the history, theories and methods of inquiry as well as pragmatic and social actions of writing, rhetoric and literacies. With theories and methods from both historical and contemporary contexts, students learn strategies for inquiry; the ways in which communication creates knowledge and action; and how communication is constructed, circulated, reacted to and repurposed over time and across space. Program requirements are designed to encourage a full understanding of theoretical and applied aspects of writing studies, rhetorical studies and literacy studies. Students also will be provided many opportunities to explore the intersections and tensions that exist within and between the three different areas of inquiry.

The program encourages transdisciplinary study, and its flexible requirements enable students to pursue those aspects of the disciplines that interest them the most. The program prepares students for entrance into the field as teachers, scholars and professionals.

English Education, MA (LAENEDMA)

Online Degree Search Title: English Education, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA in English education is a one-year, intensive program designed to prepare practicing and transitioning teachers for careers as exemplary educators, teacher-researchers, and leaders in English language arts instruction. Students in the program develop a deep understanding of the English language arts by learning how to access, analyze and apply research and best practices for teaching secondary students (grades 7-12). This program balances the refining of disciplinary knowledge with pedagogical application of that knowledge in classrooms. Students take a variety of dynamic, cutting-edge methods courses, including advanced methods courses in research in English education, methods of teaching writing and text, teaching postcolonial young adult literature, and teaching writing in an era of standardization.

This innovative course of study culminates with an inquiry project related to English language arts instruction in secondary classrooms. The program encourages students to employ teacher research and inquiry to address questions they have about their own students' learning and their own teaching practice.

Environmental Life Sciences, PHD (LAELSPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental Life Sciences, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in environmental life sciences is a novel graduate degree program that provides doctorate-level training in several complementary fields focused on the interactions between organisms (e.g., plant, microbe, people and other animals) and the environment. This unique program provides opportunities to train across many fields of study, including:

- biology
- biochemistry and chemistry
conservation science
- ecology
- evolution
- environmental engineering
- geosciences
- mathematics and statistics
- spatial sciences
- social sciences
- sustainability

Graduate students are trained by means of:

- a core class, taught by environmental life science faculty members
- hands-on experiences in the lab and field
- guidance from committee members across multiple disciplines
- research seminars

The focus is on collaborative, interdisciplinary and integrative study of the causes and consequences of environmental variation across scales ranging from the organism to the globe. The overall goal is to provide a unique, interdisciplinary doctoral program that encourages students to explore and solve complex problems in the context of natural and anthropogenic environmental change.

Environmental Social Science, PHD (LAESSPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental Social Science, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in environmental social science is one of the few doctoral degree programs in the U.S. that draws on the premise that reducing human impacts and developing more sustainable environmental practices will be difficult, if not impossible, to achieve without a focus on the social dynamics of environmental issues using critical social science perspectives.

The program is organized around theoretically based conceptual domains:

- culture and the environment
- environmental hazards and vulnerability
- environmental justice
- human environment impacts
- political ecology
- science and technology studies

This is the basis for addressing various topical foci, including urban environments, technologies and their consequences, landscapes, institutions, and health and the environment.

Students work with faculty who have expertise in a broad range of fields including:

- archaeology
- community resources
- cultural and medical anthropology
- demography
- environmental history
- geographic information systems
- human and physical geography
- planning
public affairs
- science and technology studies
- sociology

The program trains students to move into teaching and research positions or to assume leadership roles in government, industry or nongovernmental organizations.

Coursework for the degree is focused on developing real-world skills and a solid grasp of complex social science approaches to environmental issues. Students work closely with their committee to develop a curriculum appropriate to their chosen interests and career goals.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate degree program. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 credit hours of research credit and 12 hours of dissertation credit (54 credit hours total) to be earned post-admission.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate degree program.

All students must maintain a 3.20 average GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Undergraduate coursework in the social sciences (e.g., geography, political science, sociology, anthropology, planning or history) is not a prerequisite for admission but is generally advisable. Students may be admitted without such a background and may be required to acquire knowledge of the social sciences in a manner to be specified at the time of admission.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in the application materials.

If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework will be made up of electives and research.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate.

All students must maintain a 3.20 (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") average GPA in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

Student doctoral dissertations should include the application of complex adaptive systems concepts and methods in their field of study and typically will have a member of the complex adaptive systems science graduate faculty as a member of their doctoral supervisory committee.

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved electives and concentration courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Undergraduate coursework in the social sciences (e.g., geography, political science, sociology, anthropology, planning or history) is not a prerequisite for admission but is generally advisable. Students may be admitted without such a background and may be required to acquire knowledge of the social sciences in a manner to be specified at the time of admission.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Environmental Social Science (Urbanism), PHD (LAESSURPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental Social Science (Urbanism), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in environmental social science is one of the few doctoral degree programs in the U.S. that draws on the premise that reducing human impacts and developing more sustainable environmental practices will be difficult, if not impossible, to achieve without a focus on the social dynamics of environmental issues using critical social science perspectives.

The program is organized around theoretically based conceptual domains:

- culture and the environment
- environmental hazards and vulnerability
- environmental justice
- human environment impacts
- political ecology
- science and technology studies

These are the bases for addressing various topical foci, including urban environments, technologies and their consequences, landscapes, institutions, health and the environment.

Students work with faculty who have expertise in a broad range of fields including:

- archaeology
- community resources
- cultural and medical anthropology
- demography
- environmental history
- geographic information systems
- human and physical geography
- planning
- public affairs
- science and technology studies
- sociology

The program trains students to move into teaching and research positions or to assume leadership roles in government, industry or in nongovernmental organizations.

Coursework for the degree is focused on developing real-world skills and a solid grasp of complex social science approaches to environmental issues. Students work closely with their committee to develop a curriculum appropriate to their chosen interests and career goals.

The concentration in urbanism leverages the varied interests in urbanism and helps emerging scholars as they attempt to compare, contrast and take stock of urbanism. Working with faculty from across a range of departments and programs at ASU, doctoral students will be able to capture the creative tensions that scholarship on urbanism has inspired in order to stimulate a provocative, constructive kind of inquiry.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 credit hours of research and 12 credit hours of dissertation (54 credit hours total) to be earned post admission.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 credit hours of graduate coursework, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee, and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate degree program.

All students must maintain a 3.20 average GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

All students entering the program complete 18 credit hours of core classes in conceptual domains and topical foci. For the concentration in urbanism, 15 credit hours will be selected from an approved list of applicable courses related to urbanism. Some of the environmental social science core courses also count toward the concentration in urbanism. These courses will include the core urbanism course GCU 516 as well as one course from each of the four urbanism clusters:

- built form
- culture and society
- natural environment
- institutions and governance

Additional credit hours come from courses in research design, technical expertise and electives. Students may select from a substantial range of courses to satisfy noncore requirements.

Evolutionary Biology, PHD (LAEVOPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Evolutionary Biology, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The evolutionary biology PhD is a transdisciplinary graduate degree program that will provide doctorate-level training in the historical, conceptual, empirical and quantitative aspects of biological evolution. Evolution cuts across the biological sciences in ways that few other foci do. It allows integration of information and patterns across levels of organization, informs the theoretical foundations of subfields ranging from population genetics to systematics to ecosystem ecology, and provides bridges between temporal and spatial scales.

Forgoing emphases on particular taxa or methods, the program focuses on understanding the patterns and processes that have and continue to shape life on Earth, training the next generation of scientists to use this knowledge to meet present and future challenges to the biosphere and human health in the face of increasing environmental perturbation.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core ( 9 credit hours)
BIO 614 Biometry (4)
EVO 601 Principles of Evolution (3)
EVO 610 Research Areas of Evolution (2)

Electives (9 credit hours)
The program advisor as well as the student's advisor will determine these courses in conjunction with the student.

Other Requirements (54 credit hours)
research, coursework or 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree

Dissertation (12 credit hours)
EVO 799 Dissertation (12)

Exploration Systems Design, PHD (LAESDPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Exploration Systems Design, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in exploration systems design offers students an advanced systems approach for developing scientific exploration technologies in a wide range of demanding environments on the earth, planets, moons and in space. This transdisciplinary degree program provides a unique platform to train systems engineers targeting technological development for exploration science. This collaborative program between the School of Earth and Space Exploration and the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering allows students to specialize in topics related to planetary exploration, astronomical instrumentation, robotics, sensors and sensor networks.

The curriculum integrates the School of Earth and Space Exploration's science, instrumentation and systems engineering core courses with related coursework from the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering. Students must select a concentration as part of this degree program. Concentrations are available in instrumentation, systems engineering and sensor networks.

Degree Requirements:

Family and Human Development, MS (LAFAMHDMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Family and Human Development, MS
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MS program in family and human development provides practitioner-oriented professionals with an understanding of relationships and developmental dynamics. Students learn how to effectively evaluate and consume research, translate research into best practices, and apply these principles at work

The online format provides easy access to rigorous and valuable information that informs best practices in improving the lives of families and family members. The program also includes a customizable culminating experience that allows students to focus their training in their areas of interest and work.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (FAS 588).

Required Core (9 credit hours)
CDE 531 Theoretical Issues in Child Development (3)
FAS 586 or SOC 586 Capstone I (3)
FAS 587 or SOC 587 Capstone II (3)

Electives or Research (18 credit hours)
FAS 500 Research Methods (3)
CDE 501 Social Statistics (3) diversity course (3)
other elective coursework (9)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
FAS 588 Capstone III (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students will complete the coursework and culminating experience courses in consultation with the assigned faculty advisor. The plan of study should be completed and approved by the faculty advisor once completing 50 percent of the minimum required credit hours for the degree.
Acceptance of the proposed plan of study must be verified by the signature of the chair and faculty advisor. After approval from the program or college, the plan of study is submitted to the Graduate College for final approval.

FAS 500 and CDE 501 may be replaced by equivalent courses with approval by the academic advisor.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- current resume or curriculum vitae
- personal statement of goals relevant to the master's degree program
- two letters of recommendation from professional or academic backgrounds
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement must be four to five pages, double-spaced, and must address the applicant's professional goals, the applicant's strengths that will enable the applicant to succeed in the program, and relevant professional experience or responsibilities to the program.

Letters of recommendation must be from at least two academic or professional sources. Family members or friends do not meet this criterion. Applicants should see the program website for full application deadlines and admission terms and details.

Program Description:

The PhD program in family and human development is devoted to the study of families, children and youth. The program's research, teaching and service have direct meaning in the lives of children and adults, and for the families and communities in which they live.

The faculty share a common commitment to high-quality research that both increases the basic understanding of human and family development and has the potential to contribute to the improvement of the lives of children and families.

Degree Requirements:

85 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Each student must prepare and submit a plan of study in conjunction with the chair and members of his or her supervisory committee once completing 50 percent of the minimum required credit hours for the degree. The plan of study consists of a minimum of the following:

- Postbaccalaureate (for students entering after the bachelor's degree) --- Of the 85 credit hours for a postbaccalaureate program, six credit hours are dedicated to an empirical project and 12 credit hours are of a dissertation. Postbaccalaureate students complete a master's-in-passing before advancing to their doctoral studies.
- Post-masters (for students entering after the master's degree) --- Of the 55 credit hours of the post-master's degree program, 12 credit hours are of a dissertation.

Additional credit hours in the postbaccalaureate and post-master's degree pathways involve courses in:

- electives relating to family and human development
- family and human development
- statistics and research methods

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- a resume or curriculum vitae
- statement of goals relevant to the doctoral program
- three letters of recommendation
- verbal, quantitative, and analytical GRE scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information:
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency via a TOEFL score of at least 600

The personal statement must be four to six pages, double-spaced, and address the applicant's professional goals, the applicant's strengths that will enable the applicant to succeed in the program, a detailed description of past research experience, relevant professional experiences or responsibilities, and specific personal research interests. The applicant also must identify two or three faculty members whose research interests match their own and explain why they are good matches.

Three letters of recommendation are required. These must include at least one from an instructor at the applicant's institution where undergraduate or graduate work was completed. The letters should be from people who know the applicant in a professional or academic capacity. Letters from family members or friends do not meet this criterion.

French (Comparative Literature), MA (LAFRECLMA)

Online Degree Search Title: French Comparative Literature, MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of International Letters and Cultures offers a graduate program in French leading to the MA in French with concentration in comparative literature.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (FRE 593) and a written comprehensive exam.

Graduate students may take only 500 -level courses for graduate credit. At least nine credit hours must be selected from those courses listed exclusively for graduate students. The program must include:

- FRE 500 Bibliography and Research Methods (3)
- two courses in linguistics, civilization or translation, of which one course must be in linguistics
- one course in critical or cultural theory

It is recommended that the candidate enroll in FRE 500 as early as possible.

A minimum of four core courses offered by the French section must be selected from any combination of the following categories:

- Francophone studies courses
- genre courses
- period courses

When approved by the graduate committee, up to six credit hours of related coursework may be taken outside of French.

A student must achieve a GPA of "B" ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher in all work specifically included in the plan of study. Grades below a "C" (2.00) cannot be used to meet the requirements of a graduate degree. No student may accumulate more than one incomplete at any one time.

Independent study courses will be given only under exceptional circumstances and will not duplicate courses which are available. The French graduate committee is responsible for authorizing such work in cooperation with the individual professor. No more than three credit hours of independent study will be permitted.

Students must complete an applied project.

The written examination for the concentration in comparative literature will be administered by the interdepartmental committee for comparative literature and will consist of two essay-based components: general concepts of comparative literature and problems of comparative literature.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in French from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking as well as writing skills, and it should be written in French on a topic connected with the language or French culture. The writing sample should be approximately five to 10 pages in length.

Those who lack the appropriate background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements may be admitted to a graduate program on a provisional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular program of study for the master's degree.

Gender Studies, PHD (LAGSTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Gender Studies, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The gender studies PhD program is part of the nation's first School of Social Transformation. The diverse community of scholars takes an innovative approach to the study of social justice by uniting multiple academic disciplines to strategically create social change that is democratic, inclusive and just.

The inclusive gender studies doctoral program empowers tomorrow's community leaders and shapers by immersing them in:

- ASU's on-campus Digital Humanities research lab
- creative and critical knowledge production
- deep fluency in feminist theory and practical applications
- publicly engaged academic research
- socially embedded community partnerships

The connections between social locations, community and lived experience are the foundation of the research, teaching and community engagement. Faculty and students explore these intersections from a holistic perspective that goes beyond the classroom.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (12 credit hours)
WST 601 Critical Concepts of Gender (3)
WST 602 Mapping the Intersections of Gender (3)
WST 603 Engendering Methodology (3)
WST 701 Research Design and Proposal Development in Gender Studies (3)

Elective Coursework in Methodology (6 credit hours)

Elective Coursework in Specialization (12 credit hours)

General Electives (30 credit hours)

Research and Dissertation (24 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information
When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework will be made up of electives to reach the required 84 credit hours.

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved electives.

The gender studies doctoral program is designed to provide students with the transdisciplinary training in theory and methods needed to conduct original research and scholarship about gender

Students also take two research methods courses relevant to their dissertation, plus additional courses chosen from three areas of specialization: gender, justice and social change; health, science and technology; and visual and narrative culture.

Students must maintain a 3.20 average GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in their courses.

Gender, Justice and Social Change --- Courses in this area explore the gender dimension of social structures, institutions and organizations; the processes of social change and community development; and the ways policies and laws can change gender relations. Faculty have expertise in:

- child welfare
- domestic violence
- gender and the biophysical environmen
- globalization
- immigration
- labor and employment
- social policy
- sustainability
- transnational feminisms
- women's rights and gender equality in the developing world

Health, Science and Technology --- Courses in this area explore the impact of gender on:

- health care
health occupations
- science and technology

Faculty have expertise in

- bioethics
- gender and technology
- health and sexuality
- HIV and AIDS prevention
- the participation of women in math and science in the developing world
- women's roles as healers and caregivers

Visual and Narrative Culture --- Courses in this area explore historical and contemporary representations of gender in all genres, including:

- art
- literature
- popular culture
scientific, medical, historical and legal discourse theater

The faculty focus especially on the intersections of gender representations with representations of race, sexuality and class, and the ways in which representations produce rather than simply mimic gender inequality and polarized identities.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The gender studies program welcomes applications from qualified students without regard to race, creed, color, religion, sex or national origin. Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official copies of all undergraduate and graduate transcripts
official GRE scores
- resume or curriculum vitae
- statement of purpose
- three letters of reference, preferably from faculty or other researchers
- writing sample (10-15 pages)
- proof of English language proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency

GRE test scores cannot be more than five years old.

Students should see the ASU Graduate Admission Services website for mailing addresses and further admission information.

Geographic Information Science (certificate), Certificate (LAGEOGISCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Geographic Information Science (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The geographic information sciences certificate program teaches students the theoretical aspects of GIS, the technical side of the discipline, and applications of the science. Students will learn how to analyze policy problems and research questions from a spatial lens, acquire and analyze remotely sensed data, and model spatial phenomenon.

Skills in geographic information science and geospatial data analytics offer students market-ready tools for turning novel sources of spatial data into informed practice and prepare students to address issues such as climate change, population growth and aging and active transportation. The certificate program enables ASU graduate students from all disciplines, and GIS professionals, to learn how to apply GIS concepts and technology to build invaluable problem-solving skills. The certificate is intended as either a specialization within an existing master's degree or a stand-alone nondegree program.

Degree Requirements:

16 credit hours including the required capstone course (GPH 591 or GIS 591).
three required courses (9)
two elective courses (6)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they are currently pursuing a master's degree at ASU or have earned a master's degree and are currently practicing professionals.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement must be a one-page letter describing the applicant's overall objective for the GIS certificate program. It should clearly state the applicant's interest in GIS and provide evidence that the certificate will enhance the applicant's education or current employment.

For currently practicing professionals, a final transcript from the master's degree-granting institution must be submitted.

Geographic Information Systems, MAS (LAGISMAS)
Online Degree Search Title: Geographic Information Systems, MAS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MAS program in geographic information systems is a compact, one-year nonthesis degree fostering advanced study in the management and use of GIS technology in public and corporate environments. The degree program meets important educational needs of working professionals and recent college graduates seeking to improve their career standing.

The program provides a comprehensive professional degree that balances work in the theoretical aspects of GIS, the technical side of the discipline, and the applications domain. Students are exposed to cutting-edge technology, with a focus on building invaluable problem-solving skills, and the opportunity to work on real-world GIS projects.

Courses are held in the evenings during the week, so the curriculum is highly adaptable to the work environment, and the master's degree is achievable in a one-year time period. A new group of students begins the program each August, attending evening classes during the fall and spring semesters. Upon completion of the spring semester, students select a capstone project that they complete during a summer eight-week session. Final presentations take place in mid-July, and in fewer than 11 months the degree is complete.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (GPH 693 or GIS 693).

Enrolled students must complete three sequential semesters of coursework:

First Semester
Offered during the fall, this semester is composed of six two-credit-hour modules that are not transferable.

Spring Semester
Students in this semester must complete four three-credit-hour courses.

Final Semester

Students must complete a three-credit-hour GIS internship and a three-credit-hour applied project course during the final semester, which is offered in the eight-week summer session.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in a related field from a regionally accredited institution or if they demonstrate a minimum of three years related professional experience with a bachelor's degree in any field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- two letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants must prepare a formal, written personal statement regarding relevant academic experience, professional experience and overall interest in GIS

Letters of recommendation must be from two people who can attest to the applicant's academic and professional achievements. Letters can be from any combination of current or former instructors, supervisors or professionals currently employed within the GIS or related discipline.

German, MA (LAGERMMA)
Online Degree Search Title: German, MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The faculty in the School of International Letters and Cultures offer graduate programs leading to the MA degree with a major in German. Students admitted to the master's degree program with a major in secondary education may elect German as their subject matter field.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (GER 593)

The plan of study for the master's degree includes a minimum of 30 credit hours of graduate-level work and a thesis or an applied project, as approved by the candidate's supervisory committee. The program must include a 500-level bibliography and research methods course offered by the school. When approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, nine credit hours in another language or in closely related courses may be included in the program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in German, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Those who lack this background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements may be admitted to a graduate program on a provisional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular program of study for the master's degree.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking as well as their writing skills, and it should be written in German on a topic connected with the language or German culture.

Global Health, MA (LASSHMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Health, MA

Campus:

Program Description:

In this MA program, global health is considered to be much more than and very different from international public health. It emphasizes that major health challenges stem from many factors well beyond disease itself --- factors that are:

- cultural
- ecological
- evolutionary
- historical institutional social
- technological

Any effective, sustainable solutions to the most pressing global health challenges will need to take all of these factors into account, including the complex ways in which they relate to each other. In this manner, this degree program teaches students to understand health as not simply a product of disease, but rather emerging in the contexts of complex and interrelated ecology, politics, history, culture, social institutions and evolutionary biology. It also places primacy on how to address the broader (i.e., structural, cultural) bases of ill health in complicated, ever-changing health challenges in low-resource community settings and a globalizing world. To do this, the program combines both social and life science theories with on-the-ground research and its application. There is a strong emphasis on collaborative action as key to identifying and addressing global health problems in a sustainable and meaningful way.

Students accepted into the program are tied to ongoing transdisciplinary global health projects that address complicated, multifaceted health challenges that defy easy fixes, such as:

- climate change-related diseases
- emerging infectious diseases
- obesity

By applying a collaborative, problem-solving format, the master's degree program in global health is intended to provide those planning to enter health or related fields (i.e., environmental, social) with the transdisciplinary orientation, team skills and social and cultural acuity that the Pew Health Professions Commission inter alia has identified as critical but lacking in current health workforce training. The program also emphasizes experiential learning as a way to gain mastery and requires participation in a global internship program based in one of the international partnering communities.

Accelerated Degrees:

With the same high-quality curriculum and world-renowned faculty, ASU students can accelerate the completion of their bachelor's and master's degree to as little as five years. :
Accelerated bachelors-masters degree options: This degree is also offered in an accelerated format with Global Health, BA
Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior and senior years, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 Credit Hours including the required applied project course (SSH 593).

All students are required to take the following four foundational courses (12 credit hours):

ASB 500 Topic: Ethnographic Field Methods (3)
ASB 503/SSH 503 Medical Anthropology (3)
ASB 510/SSH 510 Health: Social and Biocultural Theories (3)
AML 613 Methods and Concepts in Math Epidemiology OR SSH 591 Topic: Principles of Epidemiology for Global Health (3)

Substitutes may be permitted by the graduate director for some coursework that includes individualized research, conference and independent study courses with approved faculty. Additional methods-focused courses or graduate-level epidemiology courses can count toward this requirement.
project. Applied projects are completed in consultation with a faculty advisor; options include internship, practicum, a research project, scholarly research paper or an outreach project.

All students must maintain a 3.00 average GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") on both the interactive plan of study and graduate GPAs per the Graduate College satisfactory academic progress policy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in the social or life sciences (i.e., anthropology, sociology, gender studies, geography, political science), public health or related fields (i.e., nutrition, human biology), from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
three letters of recommendation
proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Admission is competitive and based on student academic excellence, additional relevant experience, and fit with available faculty. Value will be placed on foreign language skills; practical, cross-cultural and international experiences; and prior social science and life science research.

Global Health, PHD (LASSHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Health, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in global health draws on the premise that sustainable and satisfying solutions to the most pressing global health challenges require a sophisticated understanding of how cultural context, social and ecological processes and disease are really related.

The transdisciplinary graduate program trains students broadly in cutting-edge health social science research theory and methods. While it leverages the strength in medical anthropology at ASU (including the 15 medical anthropologists on campus), it also takes advantage of a much wider set of skills offered by such fields as medical sociology, demography, human geography and epidemiology. It is designed to train those who anticipate working in transdisciplinary academic settings, medical schools or nonacademic health settings, such as the commercial sector, government agencies or nongovernmental organizations

Some particular thematic foci of the program are:

- biocultural approaches to human coping
- computer-based complexity modeling
- culture and health
- health in the Americas
- indigenous and minority health
- mathematical epidemiology
- nutritional anthropology
- social justice and vulnerable populations
- social networks
- urban and environmental health

The program draws some 80 faculty members from throughout the university to consider how cutting-edge social science can be applied to understand and substantively improve the health of populations. The program favors community-based research and runs collaborative projects in which students are encouraged to gain experience and conduct research, from large U.S. cities to hunter-gatherer communities. Students generally enter the program with a master's degree in a relevant field.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 hours of research credit and 12 hours of dissertation credit ( 54 credit hours total) to be earned post admission.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio that is formally evaluated by a faculty committee, and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctoral program.

All students must maintain a 3.20 average GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Suitable backgrounds for admission include a master's degree in the social sciences (such as anthropology or sociology), public health, human biology or related fields. Students entering directly from a bachelor's degree program should have already completed at least 15 credit hours of social science and six hours of human biology (or equivalent) at the senior level, and also should have some background in statistics or epidemiology.

Applicants may submit with their application materials an optional scholarly writing sample of at least 20 but no more than 30 double-spaced pages.

The complex adaptive systems science doctoral concentration trains the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing, university-wide research on complex adaptive systems perspective at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive systems science perspective to give better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing our society today. Students will be fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

Students generally enter the program with a master's degree in a relevant field.

The concentration in culture and health provides focused, specialized training in theories and methods for researching the relationship between culture and health. This concentration utilizes the perspectives of medical anthropology and sophisticated ethnographic methods to study and interpret the role of cultural and social differences in shaping health. Students investigate these methods in the context of the community-based, participatory approaches that tend to promote the most mutually meaningful and lasting health solutions. Graduates are thus particularly prepared for leadership in addressing health disparities in cross-cultural settings and with the most vulnerable populations. This includes very complex, difficult settings where particularly nuanced and sophisticated (often anthropological) understandings of health-related challenges are needed.

Global Security, MA (LAGSCMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Security, MA
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MA in global security is an interdisciplinary, fully online program designed to aid professional advancement in military, government and private sector careers; students are trained to critically engage international security issues in a comprehensive manner.

The program is based on four key pillars: enabling innovative strategic thinking; developing analytic tools; supporting critical interdisciplinary engagement; and encouraging flexible and resilient approaches to the inherently complex challenges of current and future global security.

Students may pursue the master's degree from anywhere in the world, study while working full-time or part-time, and may advance at their own pace. The program assists students in gaining a grounded and relevant understanding of major global trends while developing critical analytic skills to improve their capacity to succeed in multiple career paths related to domestic and international security.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (GSC 550).

Required Core (3 credit hours)
GSC 501 War, Conflict and Security (3)

Electives or Research (24 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
GSC 550 Capstone (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
For electives or research, students will take eight courses from a restricted list for a total of 24 credit hours. Students should contact the academic unit for the approved course list. Other coursework may be used with approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in the humanities (English, history, etc.); social sciences (anthropology, sociology, political science, etc.); sciences (biology, chemistry, etc.); policy (public administration, etc.); computer science; engineering (all subfields); or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

History and Philosophy of Science, PHD (LAHPSCIPHD)
Online Degree Search Title: History and Philosophy of Science, PhD
Campus: Tempe

The history and philosophy of science is an interdisciplinary field that traces its origin to foundational works such as Thomas Kuhn's "Structure of Scientific Revolutions". The field is based on the idea that the best way to understand science is to study how it changes over time, along with careful analysis of its concepts and fundamental principles. The PhD program in the history and philosophy of science combines training in the core areas of history and philosophy of science with an emphasis on interdisciplinary studies of the sciences, including:

- computational history and philosophy of science
- foundations of evolutionary theory
- general philosophy of science and epistemology
- history and philosophy of applied ethics and science policy
- history of 19th and 20th century biology

The program is especially appropriate for students with an undergraduate or master's degree in philosophy history, or the sciences, and those who seek to broaden their disciplinary studies. Science students who have not taken relevant undergraduate humanistic core courses can make these up during their first years in the program. Graduates go on to careers in higher education, including research, teaching and administration; science communication; and other professions related to the life sciences.

Immigration Studies (certificate), Certificate (LAIMMSTUCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Immigration Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The immigration studies graduate certificate program provides students with an understanding of the causes and consequences of international migration as well as relevant professional and research training opportunities.

The program prepares graduates for future study in graduate and professional schools or for careers as immigration practitioners and advocates in nongovernmental organizations, local and federal government agencies, as well as in other private and public institutions serving immigrant and refugee communities.

The objective of the certificate program is to offer traditional academic training through coursework, research and practical experience working with local immigrant and refugee communities.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

All students will be required to take one core course, three approved elective courses on immigration, and three hours of a culminating experience (either an internship or a research project). Students are to contact the school for a list of approved courses.

Students may do an internship with Phoenix-based, nongovernmental organizations or government agencies that provide services to immigrants and refugees. Such internships will give students professional training and actual experience working with immigrant and refugee communities. Students will be required to write a report describing the organization and their experience as interns.

Students may enroll in three credit hours of research with a faculty member in order to do an independent research project. They must write a substantial research paper based on field research in a local immigrant community, on library and archival research or on readings on an immigration topic.

Certificate students may choose to specialize in humanities, Mexican and Latino immigrants in the U.S., or social sciences.

Given the nature of the immigration courses offered at ASU and the preponderance of Latino immigrant communities in the Phoenix area, the program emphasizes Latino immigration. However, students will have the opportunity to take broader courses focusing on global migration and other immigrant groups as well as work with local Asian or Southeast Asian immigrants and refugee communities.

For students currently enrolled in an ASU graduate degree program, applicable certificate courses may count toward their degree program with the approval and consent of the degree granting program. For certificate students who are later admitted to an ASU graduate degree program, up to 12 credit hours from the certificate program may count toward their doctoral degree or up to 12 credit hours may count toward their master's degree, with the approval and consent of the degree-granting program.

All requirements for the certificate program should be completed within a three year time limit with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.00 (scale is $4.00=$ "A"). Students who require more time to finish the program (because of their part-time status or lack of desirable or available courses) must obtain approval from the executive committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.
or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages to be included in their application materials.

International Letters and Cultures, PHD (LAILCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: International Letters and Cultures, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in international letters and cultures offers professional training that is linguistically well-grounded, historically and culturally informed, and methodologically transdisciplinary, through courses and supervision of research. Central to the program is the critical inquiry of primary texts, media and cultural expressions, aiming at an original understanding of cultures and social groups in their formations, interactions and transformations throughout history.

The program is attentive to the various roles of language in societies, and in the different perspectives through which language can be studied --among other aspects, its variations, transformations, hybridizations and processes of acquisition. The doctorate in international letters and cultures focuses particularly on research questions and themes that cannot be fully explored within the traditional disciplinary boundaries; instead, it fosters dynamic collaboration across disciplines in order to engage in the production of knowledge that is crucial to understanding transnational and transcultural interactions across time and space.

This degree program provides an innovative intellectual platform that advances transdisciplinary research and teaching. In consultation with their advisor, students arrange their coursework in both a primary and a secondary area of emphasis. Both areas are organized around interdisciplinary study and research in more than one language. Advanced language requirements will vary depending on chosen areas of research. Sample programs of study might include a primary emphasis area in medieval theater and a secondary emphasis area in medieval book culture, with a focus on France and Italy, or students might study multilingualism from a comparative sociolinguistic perspective, comparing trilingual communities like the Yaquis in Arizona and the Uros in Bolivia. Faculty members are drawn from various departments and programs in the humanities and social sciences.

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement should be one-and-a-half to two pages, double-spaced, outlining areas of interest, educational and career goals, and the writing sample should be 10 to 15 pages and should discuss the research that best represents the applicant's academic thinking and writing skills.

The PhD/JD option allows qualified students to earn a Juris Doctor from ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law while simultaneously earning a transdisciplinary doctoral degree in justice studies. Students must apply separately to both programs. Applicants should contact the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law for their requirements.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Linguistics (certificate), Certificate (LALINGUICE)

Online Degree Search Title: Linguistics (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This transdisciplinary graduate certificate in linguistics offers students in several fields the opportunity to gain an understanding of the way in which languages are structured, how they are acquired, and how they vary over time, space, social distance and situational contexts.

The skills acquired through the completion of the core courses for this certificate include analytical abilities, critical thinking, effective communication and problem-solving. In addition, the knowledge acquired in the areas of discourse analysis and pragmatics makes students aware of the necessity to use appropriate registers and styles when creating written documents or oral presentations to different audiences.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours.

Required Core Areas (9 credit hours) discourse analysis and pragmatics (3) phonology (3)
syntax (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information
The electives may be chosen from fields such as applied linguistics, educational linguistics, natural language processing, second-language acquisition and sociolinguistics. The electives are determined by the student in consultation with a faculty advisor.

Prerequisite: Students must have completed an introductory course in linguistics taken at the upper-division or graduate level. They should consult the certificate program director for advice.

All certificate coursework must be completed with an average grade of " B " or higher ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale).

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should visit the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Once the online application has been submitted, the applicant should send a copy of unofficial transcripts, a one- to two-page, well-considered statement of purpose detailing the student's background and reasons for wanting to do the linguistics certificate, and a resume to the department email address with the subject line: Linguistics Certificate Application.

To be considered for admission, an applicant must have taken an introductory course in linguistics at the upper-division or graduate level. Applicants must also show proof of a formal knowledge of a foreign language, equivalent to two years of study at the university level or plans to fulfill the language requirement concurrently with certificate courses. The language requirement may be met by completion of courses through the second-year level (four semesters) at ASU or elsewhere, or by completion of an upper-division language course with an average of "B" or better ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) for all such coursework ( 200 or 300 level), or through an examination that indicates placement above the 200 level. Language placement tests are available online at the Language Placement Policies and Tests webpage on the School of International Letters and Cultures website. If this requirement is not already fulfilled at the time of application, candidates must demonstrate completion of this requirement at the end of their certificate coursework in order for their certificate to be granted.

Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, MA (LALINMA)
Online Degree Search Title: Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA degree program in linguistics and applied linguistics addresses the study of human language and the application of that study to the human condition through training in linguistics and applied linguistics. At the master's level, it provides foundational training in several different areas, including discourse analysis, language and cognition, language contact and change, language planning, phonetics, phonology, pragmatics, second language acquisition, second-language teaching and learning, semantics, sociolinguistics, syntax, teaching English to speakers of other languages, and World Englishes.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (3 credit hours)
LIN 515 American English (3) or
LIN 516 Pragmatics and Discourse Analysis (3)

General Linguistics Track (6 credit hours)
LIN 511 Phonetics and Phonology (3)
LIN 514 Syntax (3)

Applied Linguistics Track (6 credit hours)
LIN 511 Phonetics and Phonology (3) or LIN 514 Syntax (3)
LIN 520 Second-Language Acquisition Theories (3) or APL 601 Introduction to Applied Linguistics (3)

Electives (12-15 credit hours)

Research (3 credit hours)
LIN 501 Approaches to Research (3)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)
LIN 599 or APL 599 Thesis (6)
LIN 593 or APL 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students choose one of the two tracks in either general linguistics or applied linguistics.

Electives are restricted based on the student's chosen track. For the general linguistics track, one of the electives must be a 600-level course from the approved course list.

Students who select the thesis option take 12 credit hours of electives. Applied project students select 15 credit hours of electives.

Students must demonstrate evidence of a competent knowledge of a natural language other than modern English, to be selected by the student, subject to the approval of the chair of the thesis committee or the director of the applied project. This requirement may be met by:

- earning a "B" or better ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) in a 400- or 500-level course in an appropriate (approved) language course
- demonstrating comparable proficiency by taking a language examination, administered by the School of International Letters and Cultures, in a language approved by the student's supervisory committee
- demonstrating native-speaker proficiency, as determined by the School of International Letters and Cultures, in a language approved by the student's supervisory committee
- earning a "B" or better ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) in both ENG 530 Old English and ENG 531 Old English Literature or their equivalent
- holding a bachelor's degree in an approved foreign language
- two years (four semesters) of successfully completed college-level coursework (completed no more than six years prior to admission to the degree program) at least at the 100 and 200 levels with a " C " or better (scale is $4.00=$ "A") for languages which the School of International Letters and Cultures does not offer or does not offer above the 200 level

Any course in which all class meetings are conducted in the approved language will satisfy the requirement for a "B" or better in a 400 - or 500 -level course in an appropriate language course; courses conducted in English will not satisfy the requirement. Also satisfying the requirement are GER 550 German for Reading Knowledge, FRE 550 French for Reading Knowledge, SPA 550 Spanish for Reading Knowledge, and ITA 550 Italian for Reading Knowledge. The Department of English does not require its graduate students to write papers in the approved language.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in such related fields as anthropology, applied linguistics, communication, cognitive science, comparative languages and literatures, literature, education, history, law, linguistics, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religious studies, rhetoric, composition, sociology, speech and hearing science, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Successful completion of (at least) one upper-division course in linguistics, language study, or related topic is required.

The one-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should explain the applicant's background in language study, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in linguistics, and plans for the future.

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in mathematics is designed to increase mathematical knowledge beyond the traditional level of a bachelor's degree in order to prepare students for careers requiring sophisticated mathematical skills. Students may choose to specialize in:

- applied mathematics
- core mathematics
- mathematics education statistics

Accelerated Degrees:

With the same high-quality curriculum and world-renowned faculty, ASU students can accelerate the completion of their bachelor's and master's degree to as little as five years.
Accelerated bachelors-masters degree options: This degree is also offered in an accelerated format with:
Computational Mathematical Sciences, BS
Mathematics, BS
Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior and senior years, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and 2 written comprehensive exams, or 30 credit hours and a portfolio, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a written comprehensive exam.

Thesis Option
The degree program requires:

- 30 credit hours of math or math-related graduate coursework, of which six credit hours must consist of the thesis (MAT 599)
- one qualifying sequence examination
- a final oral examination in defense of the thesis

Nonthesis Option

The degree program requires:

- 30 credit hours of math or math related graduate coursework
- two qualifying sequence examinations or portfolio with oral presentation

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution as well as coursework in linear algebra (equivalent to ASU course MAT 342 or MAT 343) and advanced calculus (equivalent to ASU course MAT 371).

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics or a closely related area, with exceptionally high grades in advanced coursework in mathematics, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of education and career goals
- writing sample
- GRE (general) scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Additional eligibility requirements include competitiveness in an applicant pool as evidenced by the required GRE scores.

At least two of the letters of recommendation must be from faculty.

Medieval Studies (certificate), Certificate (LAMEDSTCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Medieval Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The certificate program in medieval studies prepares students for advanced study or for academic positions by augmenting their skills and knowledge, thereby making them better equipped to meet the demands of their fields.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours (MA certificate), or 27 credit hours (PhD certificate).

Medieval Latin:
one semester (three or four credit hours) for students at the master's degree level, two semesters (six to eight credit hours) for doctoral students proficiency attested either by achieving a grade of "B" ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better in the Medieval Latin courses or by satisfactory performance on the Medieval/Renaissance Latin examinations offered by the Centre for Medieval Studies at the University of Toronto (the requirement presupposing two years or 12 to 16 credit hours or equivalent of undergraduate training in Latin)

Medieval vernacular language (e.g., Old English, Old Norse, Old French):
two semesters (six credit hours) for students at the master's degree level, three semesters (nine credit hours) for doctoral students

Paleography:
one semester (three credit hours)

Medieval coursework outside the major discipline:
two semesters (six credit hours) for students at the master's degree level, three semesters (nine credit hours) for doctoral students

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Admission is open to all ASU graduate students in good standing who are enrolled in an existing master's or doctoral degree program.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The Graduate College requires a TOEFL score of at least 550 (PBT) or 80 (iBT).

Program Description:

The PhD program in microbiology offers a dynamic research environment; a broad range of basic, translational and use-inspired research areas; cutting-edge transdisciplinary training; and opportunities to work with world-class faculty and collaborative research partners committed to training scientific leaders with skills necessary to address significant global microbiological problems and challenges.

The program prepares students for research and teaching careers in universities and colleges, government agencies and industry.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The plan of study is designed by the student and the supervisory committee, which consists of a professor in the major and three additional faculty members. The program is tailored to the needs of the individual student.

Eighty-four credit hours are required.

A formal defense of the final written dissertation is required prior to graduation.

The remaining credit hours are comprised of coursework showing breadth in microbiology and related disciplines, seminars and research.

Twelve credit hours of dissertation are required.

Written and oral comprehensive examinations are required in order to advance to candidacy.

Molecular and Cellular Biology, PHD (LACELLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Molecular/Cellular Biology, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in molecular and cellular biology prepares students for careers that span traditional disciplinary boundaries. Research in this exciting field is focused on understanding the fundamental molecular events that are at the core of all life. The goal of the program is to provide a diverse range of research and training opportunities for doctoral students interested in pursuing a transdisciplinary approach to their studies that extends beyond the traditional boundaries of biological research. The broad-based training provides the necessary skills for professional careers in academic institutions, governmental institutions and industry, particularly those related to health and chemical sciences.

Participating faculty members and researchers are drawn from multiple departments, colleges, centers and institutes across the university, including the School of Life Sciences; the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry; the School of Biological and Health Systems Engineering; the School for Engineering of Matter, Transport and Energy; the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences; the School of Human Evolution and Social Change; the Department of Psychology; and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. Participating faculty members are also based at partner institutions in the greater Phoenix area, including the Translational Genomics Research Institute, Mayo Clinic in Arizona, Barrow Neurological Institute, Carl T. Hayden Veteran's Administration Medical Center and University of Arizona College of Medicine-Phoenix.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Museum Studies, MA (LAMUSSTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Museum Studies, MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in museum studies examines how museums produce and reflect culture and examines the role museums play worldwide.

Students develop theoretical questions and applied skills that engage the functions, practices and critical analyses of museums. They also gain practical experience while being encouraged to challenge preconceived notions about museums and the way museums affect and are affected by societies and cultures. Designed to be use-inspired, socially embedded and transcultural, the program ensures that students understand the meaning and significance of museums in contemporary society and prepares them for diverse museum careers.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a research portfolio.

Required Core ( 3 credit hours)
ASB 579 Critical Issues in Museum Studies (3)

Electives and Research (18)
ASB 592 Research (6)
Other electives and research (12)

Other Requirements (9)
ASB 500 Research Methods (3) or ASB 572 Museum Collection Management (3)
ASB 584 Internship (6) OR ASB 584 Internship (3) and ASB 580 Practicum (3)

Culminating Experience (0 credit hours)
Portfolio (0)

Additional Curriculum Information
For a complete list of approved elective and research courses, students should contact the school.

Internship (ASB 584) and Practicum (ASB 580) must be approved by their supervisory committees, usually in a museum setting or museum quality collection or archive related to their chosen area of study: anthropology, art history, theory and criticism or public history.

Other courses may be substituted for ASB 500 as an equivalent course with academic unit approval.

On completion of the internship, students must submit a journal or portfolio about the internship and skills acquired.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Suitable backgrounds for admission include disciplines related to museum studies, anthropology, history or art (fine art or art history).

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " $\mathrm{A} "$ ) in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Nanoscience, PSM (LANANPSM)

Online Degree Search Title: Nanoscience, PSM
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PSM in nanoscience is a cohesive program of transdisciplinary courses that provide the knowledge base required for research and innovation in nanoscience. The program incorporates courses in:

- chemistry and biochemistry
- electrical engineering
- materials science
- physics

Commercial innovation is a particular target goal of the degree, including applications in:

- biochemistry and sensing technology
- biophysics and biomedical technology
- nanomaterials and nanoscale devices

The Professional Science Master's degree program in nanoscience is suitable for working professionals as well as for students who have obtained a traditional bachelor's degree or master's degree in related fields.

Accelerated Degrees:

With the same high-quality curriculum and world-renowned faculty, ASU students can accelerate the completion of their bachelor's and master's

Required Core (5 credit hours)
NAN 505 Nanoscience and Society (2) or NAN 506 Innovation and IP Management (2)
NAN 571 Quantum Physics (3) or NAN 544 Introduction to Nanoscience (3)

Electives or Research (15 credit hours)

Other Requirements (6 credit hours)
NAN 591 Professional Seminar (6)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)
NAN 593 Applied Project (6)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students must take either NAN 505 or NAN 506. Students may also take the other course as an elective.

Students with a physical science or engineering background should take NAN 571 Quantum Physics and students with a biochemistry or life sciences background should take NAN 544 Introduction to Nanoscience.

The program includes a two-semester, student-centered professional seminar in which emerges the central role of the program as a vehicle for innovation. During the spring semester and summer session, students conduct an individual applied project in association with a research group. Throughout the program, students interact with research faculty and other students in a variety of disciplines related to nanoscience. Students also meet with visiting speakers and industrialists in the professional seminar as well as in other seminars.

If taken full time, the PSM in nanoscience can be completed in 12 months (fall semester, spring semester and two eight-week summer sessions). Another option is the two-year, part-time program, which allows prospective students and their employers flexibility in scheduling the program of study.

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved electives. Many of the requisite elective courses are currently offered within the Department of Physics and the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry. Most are cross-listed with other units.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in physics, chemistry or a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Natural Science (Geological Sciences), MNS (LANATSCIMN)

Online Degree Search Title: Geological Sciences, MNS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of Earth and Space Exploration participates in the program leading to the MNS in geological sciences. This transdisciplinary degree program is designed to meet the needs of professionals seeking a graduate-level degree. The program offers the opportunity for transdisciplinary graduate training in the natural sciences (i.e., biological sciences, mathematics and physical sciences) and cognate areas.

The degree program is especially suited for individuals who desire professional training rather than research training. Because of designed flexibility, the degree also offers the opportunity for individualized professional graduate programs depending upon the backgrounds and goals of the students. Students are expected to emphasize coursework in two or more areas of specialization. The program must be transdisciplinary.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and an applied project.

The supervisory committee is chosen by the student in conjunction with the advisor. The composition of the supervisory committee must reflect the transdisciplinary nature of the program. The student will develop a suitable applied project with the approval of the supervisory committee.

Students must submit a plan of study after conferring with the supervisory committee. While a minimum of 30 credit hours is required for the degree, more credit hours may be required by the supervisory committee, depending upon the background of the student and the nature of the proposed program. All students admitted to this program are also required to take two seminars:

GLG 500 SESE Colloquium (1)
GLG 591 Faculty Research Seminar (1)

In some cases, undergraduate courses may be required to remove deficiencies.

An applied project is required.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admissions application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Natural Science (Physics), MNS (LAPHYSMNS)

Online Degree Search Title: Physics, MNS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MNS program in physics provides transdisciplinary graduate training in physics, physical science or physics education. The program is especially suited for high school science teachers who desire professional training rather than research training. Designed for flexibility, the curriculum also features individualized professional graduate programs. These programs are well-suited to the backgrounds and goals of students. Students are expected to emphasize coursework in two or more areas of concentration. The program must be transdisciplinary.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (PHS 593).

The graduate advisor and the student suggest three faculty members who reflect the transdisciplinary nature of the program to serve on the supervisory committee, which upon the recommendation of the chair of the Department of Physics is appointed by the vice provost for the Graduate College soon after the student has been admitted to the degree program.

After conferring with the student, the supervisory committee will recommend the plan of study. The committee may require additional coursework to ensure proficiency, depending upon the student's background and the nature of the proposed program. In some cases, undergraduate courses may be required to overcome deficiencies.

Teachers may enroll in these courses in order to earn credit toward recertification or to pursue a Master of Natural Science degree. These courses are held during the summer. Depending on teacher interest, they may be offered at other times. For some courses, the prerequisites are two semesters of trigonometry-based college physics and an introductory calculus course.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited institution. The program is open to in-service high school teachers who have completed two semesters of college physics and an introductory calculus course. Under-prepared teachers can make up deficiencies in regularly scheduled courses. Students must be able to attend classes in-person at the Tempe campus.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- two letters of recommendation
- personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The letters of recommendation should be from individuals familiar with the applicant's work or studies relevant to the natural science program.

Conditions for admission are the availability of resources for the proposed program and a Department of Physics faculty member designated to serve as a graduate advisor.

Neuroscience, PHD (GCBMENPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Neuroscience, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Neuroscience involves the study of the nervous system and its relation to an organism's function. It encompasses how gene and nerve networks interact with the environment throughout an organism.

The PhD degree program in neuroscience integrates aspects of graduate-level training from many different units on campus as well as from the program's partner institutions distributed across the greater Phoenix area. Partner institutions include Barrow Neurological Institute, Translational Genomics Research Institute, University of Arizona College of Medicine and Sun Health Research Institute.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The program requires the completion of 84 credit hours of which only 12 hours are dissertation credits. At least 18 credit hours of formal coursework are required. In consultation with their committee and their supervisor or mentor, students will be able to customize their plan of study to suit their particular interests and goals.

Each student completes six credit hours of core course credits. The core course sequence must be completed before the oral and written evaluation examinations are taken. Additional credit hours will be comprised of specialized disciplinary courses or research credits chosen in consultation with the mentor and advisory committee. A one credit hour journal club seminar will be required each semester.

Advancement to candidacy will be dependent on successfully passing a formal comprehensive examination that includes a written proposal of the dissertation research and an oral examination in the broader areas that pertain to that research study. When the research is completed, the dissertation must be written and presented in a public seminar and successfully defended before the supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Regular admission may be granted to applicants who have achieved a GPA of 3.00 (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") or better in the last two years of work leading to a bachelor's degree and who are competitive in the applicant pool as evidenced by GRE verbal, quantitative and analytical scores, the statement of educational and career goals (personal statement) and the letters of recommendation. Particular attention will be paid to research experience and overall preparation in problem-solving abilities as evidenced by previous coursework, research experiences and GRE scores.

Because this program draws on an extremely broad range of disciplinary backgrounds in recruiting students, there is no specific set of undergraduate course requirements other than those implied by the degree requirements described above. Most students will be expected to have had coursework in biology, chemistry and math or demonstrated ability through a subject test GRE.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Desired qualifications:

- GRE scores: 50 percent verbal and 70 percent quantitative
- research experience

Program Description:

The School of Historical, Philosophical, and Religious Studies offers an MA degree program in traditional and contemporary philosophy. General areas of research include ethics, political philosophy, metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of law, philosophy of science, feminist philosophy, philosophy of language, experimental philosophy and the history of philosophy. Members of the faculty are involved in interdisciplinary work in a variety of fields and enjoy close ties with the Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics, the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, and a number of other graduate programs at ASU. The philosophy program sponsors an active colloquium series and regular philosophical conferences on diverse topics. The Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics also sponsors a wide range of activities, including large-scale conferences, distinguished visitors and support for graduate study.

The master's degree program in philosophy is designed to prepare students to:

- enter doctoral programs
- teach philosophy at the community college level
- work in any area that requires critical, analytical thinking, such as medicine, law, government, or publishing

The program seeks to maintain a balance between course offerings in the traditional areas of philosophy and opportunities for study of current philosophical developments.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio, or 30 credit hours and a thesis.

There are two options for the master's degree program in philosophy: the thesis option and the nonthesis portfolio option.

The thesis options requires 30 credit hours of coursework, including six credit hours of PHI 599 Thesis.

The nonthesis portfolio option requires 30 credit hours of coursework, including three credit hours of PHI 592 Research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- official GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency as well as a copy of an article or research paper in their native or principal research language in addition to the English writing sample required of all students. The philosophy program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 90 (iBT).

GRE Scores should be no more than five years old. Official scores should be sent by the ETS to ASU using the university code 4007 . The department code may be left blank or entered as 0000.

The statement of purpose should explain the applicant's specific intent and be no more than 600 words in length.

The writing sample must be a piece of philosophical writing, preferably a seminar paper or published article (no more than 20 pages) and not a thesis or dissertation.

Philosophy, PHD (LAPHILPHD)
Online Degree Search Title: Philosophy, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies offers a newly redesigned PhD program that focuses on practical and applied philosophy. General areas of research include ethics, political philosophy, metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of law, philosophy of science, philosophy of language, philosophy of religion and the history of philosophy. Members of the faculty are involved in interdisciplinary work in a variety of fields and enjoy close ties with the Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics, the College of Law, and a number of other graduate programs at the university. The ASU philosophy faculty group sponsors an active colloquium series and regular philosophical conferences on diverse topics. The Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics also sponsors a wide range of activities, including large-scale conferences, distinguished visitors and support for graduate study.

The doctoral program in philosophy features a focus on practical and applied philosophy and an interdisciplinary coursework component related to the student's research topic. Practical philosophy includes the fields of ethics, philosophy of law, social and political philosophy, feminist ethics and political philosophy. Applied philosophy includes both the application of theories developed within any of the subdisciplines of philosophy to everyday problems or phenomena (for example, the application of the philosophy of language in relation to hate speech or the philosophy of mind in relation to computing and artificial intelligence). Applied philosophy also includes the application of research produced by methods used in other disciplines in order to understand and address philosophical questions (for example, the application of data-gathering instruments used in psychology to answer questions in experimental philosophy).

Students may design dissertation projects in any of the major subfields of philosophy. For their interdisciplinary coursework supporting the dissertation project, students might, for example, pursue a certificate in social transformation, gender studies, responsible innovation in sciences, or engineering and society, etc. The program is designed to prepare students for careers as philosophers, as teachers of philosophy, and in areas in which they may benefit from advanced training in philosophy, such as law, civil service and publishing.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core Areas (18 credit hours)
applied philosophy (3)
epistemology (3)
formal methods (3)
history of philosophy (3) metaphysics (3)
value theory (3)

Research (12 credit hours)
PHI 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
PHI 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students should see the academic unit for the list of courses approved for each required core area.

In completing the electives requirements, at least nine credit hours and no more than 18 credit hours must be from other disciplines supporting the student's proposed dissertation area. Thirty credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree may apply toward this requirement with approval by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College.

To ensure breadth in the traditional areas of philosophy, students must pass with a grade of " B " ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution

Philosophy (History and Philosophy of Science), MA (LAHPSMA)
Online Degree Search Title: Philosophy (History and Philosophy of Science), MA

Nationally, there is great interest in science and in understanding the nature of science and the forces that change scientific research. The job market in philosophy is strong for philosophers of science (and especially in the life sciences) with some positions remaining unfilled even when the market is intensely competitive in other areas. In addition, the history and philosophy of science is becoming a strong disciplinary emphasis within growing professional societies.

Some programs, elsewhere, focus primarily on philosophy or primarily on history, but those that bring the two together are regarded among the strongest in each area. The objective here is to provide a program for students who come to history and philosophy of science from the humanities and who seek a career based in philosophical analysis of the sciences. ASU's MA program in philosophy with a concentration in the history and philosophy of science has the research strength competitive with any international program.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours, including the required capstone course (HPS 551) and a thesis.

Graduate coursework includes:
history of science (3)
philosophy of science (3)
topics in the history of science (3) topics in the philosophy of science (3) research methods in the history and philosophy of science (3) prospectus writing (3)
research and thesis (12)

Program Description:

The strength of ASU's PhD program in philosophy with a concentration in the history and philosophy of science is to bring philosophy, history and the study of science together. This degree program combines solid training in the core areas of philosophy with an emphasis on transdisciplinary studies of the sciences, and their:

- conceptual structure
- epistemology
- history
- impacts on society

The program is especially appropriate for students with a background in philosophy who seek to broaden their disciplinary studies with a historical perspective. Applicants will typically come from undergraduate programs that have included philosophical, historical, or history and philosophy of science training, or with a master's degree in one of those fields. Science students are eligible as well and will make up relevant undergraduate humanistic core courses during their first years.

Most graduates will seek a career based in philosophical or historical analyses of the sciences.

Program Description:

The MS program in physics provides graduate instruction and research experience appropriate to many physics-related careers. The structure of the program is flexible enough to allow a wide range of programs of study and a wide range of student backgrounds. It is also suitable for part-time study.

Completion of the program requires a minimum of two years, with students typically taking courses for the first three semesters and completing a research project in their final semester. The student defends a master's degree thesis at the end of the program.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

The master's degree in physics can emphasize either physics or physics in combination with other fields.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in physics or a closely related field, from a regionally accredited institution. To be admitted to the master's degree program in physics without deficiencies, applicants should have adequate undergraduate preparation equivalent to an undergraduate major of 30 credit hours in physics and 20 credit hours in mathematics. Courses in analytic mechanics, electromagnetism and modern physics, including quantum mechanics, are particularly important.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- test scores for the verbal, quantitative and analytical sections of the GRE
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency in the form of a TOEFL or equivalent score

Submission of scores for the physics GRE subject test is recommended, although not mandatory.

Financial support in the form of teaching or research assistantships is contingent upon:

- satisfactory performance in coursework
- timely completion of the final examination for the master's degree
- need and availability of such support

Students on probation are offered financial support only under exceptional circumstances.

Physics, PHD (LAPHYSIPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Physics, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in physics is intended for highly capable students having the interest and ability to follow a career in independent research. Graduates find positions in a variety of settings, such as:

- academic faculty
- administration
- government labs
- industrial labs
- management

The recent advent of the graduate faculty initiative at ASU extends the spectrum of potential physics doctoral topics and advisors to include highly transdisciplinary projects that draw upon:

- biochemistry
- biology
- chemistry
- electrical engineering
- materials science
- other related fields

Consequently, students and doctoral advisors can craft novel doctoral projects that transcend the classical palette of physics subjects.
Transdisciplinary expertise of this nature is increasingly vital to modern science and technology.

Current areas of particular emphasis within the department include:

- biological physics
- cosmology
- electron diffraction and imaging
- nanoscale and materials physics
- particle physics and astrophysics

The department has more than 90 doctoral students and more than 40 faculty members.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Coursework (18 credit hours)
PHY 500 Research Rotation I (3)
PHY 500 Research Rotation II (3)
PHY 521 Classical and Continuum Mechanics (3)
PHY 531 Electrodynamics (3)
PHY 541 Statistical Physics (3)
PHY 576 Quantum Theory (3)

Electives or Research (54 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
PHY 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information
Of particular note within the core courses are the PHY 500 Research Rotations, which are specifically designed to engage doctoral students in genuine, faculty-guided research starting in their first semester at ASU. Students take PHY 500 in the first and second year of study.

Coursework beyond the core courses is established by the student's doctoral advisor and supervisory committee, working in partnership with the student. The intent is to tailor the doctoral training to the specific research interests and aptitudes of the student while ensuring that each graduating student emerges with the expertise, core knowledge and problem-solving skills that define a successful doctoral degree in physics.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 credit hours of coursework will be made up of electives to reach the required 84 credit hours.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in physics or a closely related area, from a regionally accredited institution. All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
personal statement
- resume
- GRE scores (general GRE and physics GRE)
- three letters of recommendation
proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency

Scores from the verbal, quantitative and analytical sections of the GRE are required. The subject GRE test scores are also required.

Applicants requesting credit for prior graduate courses, taken either at ASU or elsewhere, must demonstrate mastery of the relevant course material to the graduate-level standards of the Department of Physics.

Program Description:

The MA program in political science provides advanced education for students preparing for teaching, research or applied careers in political science. This degree program may be taken as a terminal program or as a step toward eventual fulfillment of the requirements for the PhD. Students who plan to obtain the doctorate at ASU should apply directly to the doctoral program.

Accelerated Degrees:

With the same high-quality curriculum and world-renowned faculty, ASU students can accelerate the completion of their bachelor's and master's degree to as little as five years. :
Accelerated bachelors-masters degree options: This degree is also offered in an accelerated format with:
Global Studies, BA
Political Science, BS
Political Science, BA
Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior and senior years, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio, or 30 credit hours and a thesis.

A minimum of 30 credit hours is required for the degree. This program includes two options: a thesis and portfolio (nonthesis).

All candidates must take POS 503 Empirical Political Inquiry (3) and the core courses in the student's major field. Coursework in other units beyond the six credit hour maximum may be taken with permission of both the director of Graduate Studies and the faculty advisor. Six credit hours of reading and conferences (POS 590) or independent study (POS 592) may count toward the 30 credit hour requirement. Additional credit hours must be taken in graduate-level courses and seminars each semester until coursework is completed.

If the thesis option is followed, the program must include six credit hours of thesis (POS 599).

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- list of political science courses taken
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

To assist in evaluating all candidates, the applicant should list titles and related information for all previous undergraduate and graduate courses or coursework in political science or related fields. The file must be saved in a .doc, .rtf or .txt format and uploaded with the online graduate admission application. The information should be in a table with the following column headings: Crs Title, Undergrad Credit Hrs, Graduate Credit Hrs, Grade, Institution, Year

Undergraduate coursework in political science is not a prerequisite for admission. However, master's degree students should have a basic understanding of elementary statistics and the undergraduate content of the political science fields of concentration that they wish to study. Students should allow sufficient time to acquire such a background.

Psychology, PHD (LAPSYCHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Psychology, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Department of Psychology offers PhD programs designed to provide outstanding training in innovative research, methodology and the application of psychological principles to a wide variety of human conditions. The department is organized into six major areas of interest:

- behavioral neuroscience
- clinical psychology cognitive science
- developmental psychology
- quantitative (must apply to the Quantitative Research Methods PhD)
- social psychology

Students pursue their graduate studies within one of these six areas, and each area determines the basic curriculum for their graduate program. There is, however, substantial opportunity to integrate courses of study across areas in the department.

Further specialized emphases are available that integrate across programs in the university (e.g., integrating psychology and law).

At the core of doctoral training in psychology is an emphasis on the development of skill in research and quantitative methods. Faculty in all six areas are actively engaged in major research programs. These theoretically grounded research programs address the breadth of psychological processes:

- cognitive processes (e.g., attention, language, memory) as they occur within the context of perception and action, personality and issues of stigma and prejudice
- cultural influences on psychological processes
- evolution and behavior
- individual resilience
- lifespan developmental aspects of emotion and cognition
- neurobiological and psychosocial processes that underlie behavior and health (e.g., drug abuse, stress, heart disease)
- prevention of child mental health problems

A unique strength of the Department of Psychology is the wealth of outstanding faculty members whose specialization is quantitative methods. A breadth of courses and experiences in quantitative methods are available that are well-integrated into the areas of research that characterize the department and offer students the distinctive opportunity to develop expertise in this critical domain.

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with Juris Doctor, JD

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

In addition to required coursework (according to training area), students take courses related to their area of interest as determined in consultation with their supervisory committees. All doctoral students complete 12 dissertation credit hours. Requirements vary across training areas.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in psychology or a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

The Department of Psychology application process is completed online through ASU's Graduate Admission Services which includes the application form and official transcripts. Application to Department of Psychology doctoral programs is also completed via SlideRoom, to process supplemental application materials. The SlideRoom account requires an additional fee. To apply to the doctoral programs, applicants must follow the instructions on the Doctoral Program Admissions Instructions and Checklist.

All applicants must submit:

Psychology (Quantitative Research Methods), PHD (LAPSYQUPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Psychology (Quantitative Research Methods), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The quantitative research methods concentration of the PhD in psychology focuses on the broad class of quantitative and methodological issues that arise in the conduct of both basic and applied psychological research. There are six core faculty members in the quantitative concentration who, in addition to their quantitative research, collaborate with colleagues in substantive research areas. This collaboration supports the training of students in quantitative methods against a backdrop of methodological issues associated with the substance of psychological science. The quantitative concentration is committed to training the next generation of psychological methodologists who will make contributions in developing methods in the areas of measurement, design and analysis, and in evaluating the utility of new and existing methods in psychological research.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The quantitative curriculum is structured as a series of progressively more advanced courses. New quantitative courses may be implemented under an omnibus number (PSY 591) at the interest of the faculty.

Students complete the following coursework:

PSY 530 Intermed Statistics (3)
PSY 531 Multiple Regression in Psychological Research (3)
PSY 532 Analysis of Multivariate Data (3)
PSY 533 Structural Equation Modeling (3)
PSY 534 Psychometric Methods (3)
PSY 555 Experimental and Quasi-Experimental Designs for Research (3)
PSY 591 Quantitative Seminar (3 credit hours annually)

During the course of training, students also complete these requirements:
psychological methodology electives (12)
substantive coursework (6)
additional substantive or psychological methodology electives (6)
PSY 599 Master's Thesis (6)
PSY 792 Post-Master's Research (12)
PSY 799 Dissertation (12)

Religious Studies, MA (LARELIGMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Religious Studies, MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The faculty in religious studies offer a graduate program leading to the MA in religious studies. Candidates are offered an opportunity to develop knowledge of various religious traditions in their historical and cultural contexts and to learn research methods. Although students often concentrate upon a single religious tradition for their thesis work, the program seeks to provide a broadly comparative understanding of religions, not simply a specialist's training in a single tradition.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (REL 593) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a foreign language exam.

Required Core (6 credit hours)
REL 501 Research Methods in Religious Studies (3)
REL 502 Research Methods in Religious Studies (3)

Electives or Research (18-21 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)
REL 599 Thesis (6) or
REL 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
There are two options for the culminating experience: a thesis or an applied project. An oral defense of the final written work is required for both options.

The thesis option is recommended for students intending to seek admission to a doctoral program upon completion of the master's degree or planning to teach in the discipline at community colleges. Thesis students must have reading knowledge of all languages relevant to the proposed thesis topic and take 18 credit hours of electives or research coursework.

The applied project option is recommended for students intending to augment their primary area of expertise and professional training in fields such as counseling, journalism, K-12 education, law, social work and the ministry. The applied project requires submission of three publishable papers: one on theory and method, one on the student's minor area of study, and one on the major area of study. The student's chosen areas of study determine the coursework taken as electives, with applied project students taking 21 credit hours of electives coursework, four courses being in a major area of study and two courses being in a minor area. Reading knowledge of a foreign language relevant to the proposed area of study is required.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Transcripts must show evidence of having completed the equivalent of 15 credit hours of undergraduate work in the study of religions, including advanced courses in both western and Asian or other nonwestern religions. Applicants who have not met this requirement may be required to take additional coursework beyond program requirements to remedy this deficiency.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program. The most competitive applicants will have a GPA of 3.50 or higher.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- curriculum vitae
writing sample
- contact information for three references
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The Graduate College requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (PBT) or 80 (iBT).

Students are required to submit contact information for three academic references who are qualified to provide detailed, accurate evaluations of the applicant's potential as a graduate student in religious studies. Professors are preferred, particularly faculty advisors. Recommenders are contacted by the Graduate College with a request to complete a reference questionnaire.

GRE scores should be no more than five years old. Official scores should be sent by the ETS to ASU using the university code 4007 . The department code can be left blank or entered as 0000.

The statement of purpose should be approximately 1,000 words and should outline the applicant's academic background, career goals, and specific areas of interest in religious studies.

Sexuality Studies (Certificate), Certificate (LASXSGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Sexuality Studies (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The graduate certificate in sexuality studies addresses the social construction of sexualities, sexual identities and cultures. This program interrogates heterosexuality and institutionalized heterosexism, and addresses Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer and Two-Spirit identities and expressions as well as non-normative sexual identities that are not captured by LGBTQ-TS categories. This program allows students the flexibility to work with courses in sexuality studies offered across disciplines and units at ASU. Students gain theoretical and analytic tools to examine gender and sexual formations, and how social issues and state institutions impact and are impacted by sexuality as a social norm. In addition, coursework allows students to further investigate sexualities in relation to sexual stratification, reproductive rights and justice, sexual health and justice, carceral genders and sexualities, sex work, the state and legal system, and transnational and diasporic formations.

Social Science Research Methods (Certificate), Certificate (LASSRMGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Science Research Methods (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in social science research methods prepares students to acquire, manage and analyze a broad range of data on human thought and human behavior. Data can be qualitative (e.g., text, images or sound) or quantitative (e.g., direct observation, surveys or geospatial). Data acquisition skills may include the downloading and managing of information from online sources or the primary collection of data in surveys or in direct observation. A key feature of this program is a focus on data analysis, so students and professionals will be able to analyze and interpret any data that they can collect. All students in this program will demonstrate skills in statistical analysis plus skills in a selection of methods related to their interests.

Degree Requirements:

Additional Curriculum Information
Students will select one of the multivariate data analysis core courses for a total of three credit hours.

Students select four three-credit hour elective and research methods courses for a total of 12 credit hours in consultation with the program directors. The program recognizes that other graduate-level courses on research methods are offered at ASU. Advanced courses on methods are often taught in omnibus courses, courses that have rotating content and whose content is not reflected in their titles. Students may include these courses in their certificate curriculum with approval of the program directors.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution in a field such as human development, sustainability, geography or political science. Other subject areas may be accepted with approval from the academic unit.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must have completed an introductory statistics course before admission to the program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee

Social Transformation Certificate, Certificate (LASOTGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Transformation (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in social transformation is designed for graduate and postbaccalaureate students interested in how change is catalyzed by social movements, protest, law, social entrepreneurship, activism and community organizing. Through the exploration of theories and research related to social change, students are able to augment their disciplinary degrees and be prepared to contribute as leaders and change makers in their communities.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours and a practicum.

Required Core (3 credit hours)
SST 501 Foundations of Social Transformation (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
SST 580 Practicum (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
The electives taken will be selected with the faculty advisor. The faculty advisor will directionalize the electives to ensure they have a common theme. That will help to ensure students' experiences in the courses align with the learning goals outlined for the certificate.

The culminating experience will be a community-based practicum experience and a paper that synthesizes students' interests with their implications for social transformation. The practicum placement will be with a local nonprofit or governmental organization working toward social innovation and social change. Students will be assisted in identifying a practicum placement by the program advisor. At the end of the practicum, students will produce a paper which will analyze the social and political dimensions of some issue within social transformation or some aspect of it. The paper should also identify the implications of this aspect or issue for social policy and social justice. The paper should begin within the context of the practicum experience and will be presented to the designated subset of the certificate executive board for final approval. Students will take SST 580 Practicum to complete the practicum and then revise, improve and finalize the paper with a certificate faculty member.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students must submit a statement of purpose to the School of Social Transformation that is no longer than 250 words. The statement should indicate any demonstrated interest in the study of social transformation (e.g., previous coursework, professional experience, internships, career plans).

Applicants must meet the above criteria as judged by the School of Social Transformation graduate committee to have strong academic credentials (undergraduate or graduate GPA) as well as demonstrated interest in the area of social transformation. The committee will review applications for the certificate program in the fall and spring semesters of each year and make its admission recommendations to Graduate Admission Services.

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in socioeconomic justice addresses the social and political implications of global and local economies for economic inequality and social justice. This transdisciplinary program fuses interests in political economy, socioeconomic inequality, and analysis of related policies and their consequences for social welfare in areas of income, housing, employment and education.

This program complements the current graduate curriculum at ASU and is structured to allow students to draw upon a combination of core courses in justice and social inquiry and coursework from units from throughout the university. The approach is transdisciplinary (i.e., inclusive of courses in a variety of disciplines but transcending disciplinary boundaries through an integrative core curriculum), intersectional (i.e., considering gender, race, class, nation and sexual relations) and transnational (courses that examine global and local concerns). It will strengthen student understanding of the justice implications of the convergence of social and economic inequalities in the global economy.

Spanish, PHD (LASPANPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Spanish, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of International Letters and Cultures offers a graduate program leading to a PhD in Spanish. The program trains students for entrance into the academic profession (teachers and scholars) as well as for professions outside of academia. The Spanish doctoral program offers three literature tracks and one linguistics track.

The tracks in literature promote the study of the production, distribution and reception of texts, either written or visual (photographs, films, visual narratives, etc.); study of their linguistic, rhetorical and literary structures and functions; and study of the internal and external forces shaping literature, with an emphasis on literary theories and cultural studies. Many literature courses explore issues relating to gender, class, race, ethnicity, globalization, post-human theories and digital humanities.

The linguistics curriculum provides advanced interdisciplinary graduate training in three focus areas: second-language acquisition and teaching methodologies; heritage language research and heritage language pedagogy; and sociolinguistics, bilingualism and Spanish in the U.S.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, two foreign language exams, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

Track (18 credit hours)

Focus Area (0 or 12 credit hours)

Electives (27 or 39 credit hours)

Research (12 credit hours)
SPA 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
SPA 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information
The doctoral program in Spanish has four available tracks: early-modern Iberian studies, Spanish linguistics, Mexican American studies, and visual studies.

Students in the Spanish linguistics track are required to complete 12 credit hours in a focus area. Available focus areas are: second-language acquisition and teaching methodologies; heritage language research and pedagogy; and sociolinguistics, bilingualism and Spanish in the U.S. Students in this track will complete a minimum of 27 credit hours of elective coursework.

Students in the early-modern Iberian studies, Mexican American studies, and visual studies tracks complete 39 credit hours of elective coursework and do not select a focus area.

The candidate must present an acceptable dissertation based on original investigation. The dissertation must represent a significant contribution to knowledge and demonstrate the candidate's ability to do independent, scholarly research.

Each candidate is expected to demonstrate a reading knowledge of one language other than English and Spanish. This language requirement must be satisfied before the candidate is eligible to take the comprehensive examination.

The written and oral comprehensive examination, designed to ascertain the candidate's knowledge and orientation in the field of study and competency to proceed with the dissertation, is required at or near the end of coursework.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in Spanish or equivalent, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants from other academic backgrounds with relevant coursework in Spanish language and cultural studies also may be evaluated by the admissions committee.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.75 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.75 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- writing sample
- personal statement
- resume
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

It is recommended but not required that students applying for admission to the program submit GRE scores; this is especially advisable for applicants for the Spanish Graduate Fellowship Award.

Candidates for the program will be required to demonstrate a near-native oral proficiency in Spanish and to show that they have developed a high order of expository prose in English and Spanish by presenting a term paper or a chapter of the master's degree thesis as their writing sample.

Statistics, MS (GCSTATMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Statistics, MS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MS program in statistics draws upon a wide spectrum of faculty research and teaching interests, including from faculty outside of the school. As a result, plans of study can be transdisciplinary and tailored to reflect students' individual needs and goals.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (STP 593 or IEE 593 or ECN 593) and an oral comprehensive exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and an oral comprehensive exam, or 30 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam and an oral comprehensive exam.

Required Theory Courses (9 credit hours)
STP 501 Theory of Statistics I: Distribution Theory 3 (3)
STP 502 Theory of Statistics II: Inference (3)
STP 526 Theory of Statistical Linear Models (3)

Required Applied Linear Statistical Model Courses (6 credit hours)
ECN 525 or IEE 578 or STP 530 Applied Regression Analysis (3)
IEE 572 or STP 531 Applied Analysis of Variance (3)

Electives (9-15 credit hours)

Culminating Experience ( $0-6$ credit hours)
ECN 593 or IEE 593 or STP 593 Applied Project (3)
ECN 599 or IEE 599 or STP 599 Thesis (6)
Oral and written comprehensive exam (0)

Additional Curriculum Information
Prerequisites may not be used to complete the 30 credit hours.

The required theory courses are fundamental to the education of statisticians and are necessary for more advanced graduate study.

The program must also include either three credit hours of ECN 593, IEE 593 or STP 593 Applied Project; six credit hours of ECN 599 , IEE 599 or STP 599 Thesis; or an oral and written comprehensive exam on advanced statistics coursework to be administered by the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences. The applied project or thesis must be defended at an oral examination. The content of the applied project report or thesis, in its final form, must be suitable for submission to an academic journal or conference proceedings. The thesis must conform to the Graduate College format requirements.

The remaining credit hours come from elective courses chosen by the student with the approval of supervising faculty. A maximum of six credit hours may be chosen from a related field on which statistics relies (such as computer science) or in which statistics is an essential tool (e.g., biostatistics, quality control). The elective courses allow the student to emphasize a particular area of statistical inference, culminating in an applied project report or a thesis on a topic in that area. No foreign language or written comprehensive examinations are required.

The student has considerable flexibility in selecting an area of specialty.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics, statistics or a closely related area from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of education and career goals
- GRE (general) scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants should have completed the following courses (equivalents at ASU are given in parentheses), and applicants who lack any of these prerequisite courses must complete the prerequisites before being considered for admission:

Transborder Studies, MAS (LATCLMAS)

Online Degree Search Title: Transborder Studies, MAS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MAS program in transborder studies is designed for the postbaccalaureate professional who seeks training in an integrated program that also provides for differentiation via three thematic options. The course of study is designed to provide a cohesive and holistic program of learning that focuses on the complex economic, political, ecological, social and cultural issues of a coevolving border region of the U.S. Southwest and Mexico. Students will be required to engage in an intensive internship process in which they will apply their learning. The program will also provide a choice to explore one of the following three areas more deeply:

Transborder culture, language and learning --- This area focuses on the interrelated processes of cultural emergence, language development and learning as they interact with each other in conjunction with the development of mathematical and scientific reasoning skills, literacy skills and critical thinking in the transborder context.

Transborder media and expressive culture --- This area provides students with a transdisciplinary understanding of how representation, interpretation and language shape and are shaped by Chicana/o, Mexican and Latina/o culture in a transborder context.

Transborder migration, health and applied social policy --- This area provides students with theoretical and applied frameworks for understanding border communities in the areas of migration, health, education, environment and other areas affecting social development.

Transborder Studies, PHD (LATCLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Transborder Studies, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This PhD program in transborder studies is intended for graduate students who seek rigorous study of transborder and transnational economic, political, artistic, social, psychological, ecological and cultural dynamics, with implications not only for the Mexican-origin and Latina/o communities in the U.S. or the U.S.-Mexico border region but also for other border communities around the world. This transdisciplinary degree is designed for students with serious interest in the many ways border processes affect society: past, present and future.

Due to the focus on transborder experiences in people's everyday lives, both regionally and globally, this program equips students with the knowledge, skills and competencies for transborder research, scholarship and innovation --- all of which are highly needed by current and future scholars in order to better grasp the complexity of contemporary societies in the 21 st century.

Students will gain the ability to communicate findings, creations or productions to an academic and community public; the ability to create pedagogical models, learning units and assessment protocols for the transmission of learned concepts, theories and methods; and the ability to design and develop transdisciplinary research. They learn how to display and apply concepts, methods and theories in courses and research projects; gain competency in the most pertinent theoretical and methodological approaches to the study of transborder and transnational contexts; and acquire historical understanding of the development of transborder ecologies, economies, social relations, migration and health, culture, power, language and expressive culture, and media.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a foreign language exam, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Transportation Systems (certificate), Certificate (GCTRANSCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Transportation Systems (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Transportation has emerged as one of the highest priority issues for policymakers, planners, employers and citizens. To respond to this challenging environment, the transportation systems certificate program (https://geoplan.asu.edu/transcert (https://geoplan.asu.edu/transcert) enhances the education of current and future transportation professionals by building upon existing programs in five disciplines offered in five colleges and two campuses in the ASU system.

The certificate program offers current ASU graduate students and transportation professionals the opportunity to pursue a wide range of transportation-related issues from a multimodal, interdisciplinary perspective. The certificate is intended to be either a specialization within an existing master's degree or as a stand-alone nondegree program.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours including the required applied project course (PUP 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)
a seminar course (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
PUP 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
Three electives must be taken from an approved list of transportation-related courses (including at least one from a field outside the student's major); students should see the academic unit. Students are strongly encouraged to include as one of the three elective courses a course in methods or techniques applicable to transportation systems planning.

In the applied project course, students are encouraged to work with transportation professionals in their area of interest to identify a project that is of interest to the broader public.

All decisions related to program offerings and departmental participation are made in cooperation with the transportation systems certificate admissions and advisory committee, which includes a member from each participating department.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " $\mathrm{A} "$ ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- online graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- letter of interest
- resume
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants who wish to seek a graduate degree in any of the cooperating departments and who are not currently enrolled at ASU must complete the full graduate school application process as specified by the department of interest in addition to the online application for the transportation certificate. The applications will be evaluated independent of each other.

Applicants will be asked to explain the following in their letter of interest: what they expect to gain from the transportation certificate program and the types of courses in the program that would be the most helpful in meeting their objective.

Urban and Environmental Planning, MUEP (ARURBMUEP)

Online Degree Search Title: Urban and Environmental Planning, MUEP

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MUEP program prepares students to help solve complex social, economic and environmental issues and create healthier, safer and more vibrant communities. Alumni of the Master of Urban and Environmental Planning program work as professional planners in a variety of public, private and nonprofit settings. The program emphasizes theories of planning, methods of analysis, effective public engagement, planning processes and creative implementation of planning tools, strategies and approaches. The master's degree program is accredited by the Planning Accreditation Board. Students who join the program are eligible for certification by the American Institute of Certified Planners (https://www.planning.org/aicp/ (https://www.planning.org/aicp/)) after two years of professional practice.

The Master of Urban and Environmental Planning program offers a unique opportunity to integrate urban and environmental aspects of planning in a rapidly developing metropolitan area. Small classes, one-on-one advising, and a common core of courses that translate knowledge into practice provide students opportunities to build technical skills and grow their professional network. As a part of the School of Geographical Sciences and Urban Planning, the master's degree program is enriched by school faculty whose research and teaching is grounded in geography, GIS, and meteorology and climatology. Students have access to a wide selection of electives within the school, electives that explore issues such as population and migration, environmental and landscape dynamics, and urban climate systems. The master's degree program is also complemented by the participation of faculty from other disciplines within the university, leading planning practitioners in the Phoenix area, and the NEURUS international research exchange program (https://geoplan.asu.edu/student-life/study-abroad (https://geoplan.asu.edu/student-life/study-abroad)).

Faculty research and teaching interests especially focus on the following broad interdisciplinary themes:

- city building and urban structure
- environmental and resiliency planning
- housing, neighborhoods and community development
- spatial analytics and smart cities
- transportation planning and policy

Biospecimen Repository Administration (certificate), Certificate (NUBRAGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Biospecimen Repository Administration (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The biospecimen repository administration certificate program prepares students to oversee the business and administrative operations of a biospecimen repository. The collection, storage and distribution of biological samples such as blood and tissue for research and personalized medicine is changing how researchers and doctors look at health, disease and treatments. Biobanks, or biospecimen repositories, found in hospitals, research institutions, laboratories, academic sites and pharmaceutical companies, need trained and capable leaders who can oversee the business, technical and operational aspects of the site including regulatory and informatics pieces. Leaders also need to apply best practices, existing regulations, and current methods and standards for the proper management of biospecimen repositories.

Focusing on collection, storage and disbursement of samples, the program includes ethical and practical considerations of biospecimen resource management and operations, resource evaluation and implementation, and project management. Related business concepts such as cost-benefit analytics, personnel and sustainability of the repository are also covered in the program. Emphasizing principles of ethical and quality practices, this program will prepare students to work in this highly regulated field.

Degree Requirements:

Family Psychiatric and Mental Health Nurse Practitioner (certificate), Certificate (NUPMNUPRCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Family Psychiatric and Mental Health Nurse Practitioner (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

This certificate program, accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, is designed for nurses with an MS in nursing who seek to become family psychiatric nurse practitioners or for nurse practitioners with a master's or DNP degree who seek additional certification as a family psychiatric nurse practitioner. This certificate program is offered in a hybrid iCourse and in-person format that requires students to travel to campus for up to a week for orientation at the beginning of the program and two or three times per semester.

Focused clinical experiences are arranged with appropriate preceptors and administrators. Every attempt will be made to arrange this in the student's geographical area. In the event that clinical sites are unavailable in that area or if the faculty determine the student needs additional faculty supervision of skills, the student will be required to complete the clinical experience in the Phoenix area. Rural health and experiences with disadvantaged and multicultural populations are encouraged, and sites are available for these experiences.

Degree Requirements:

28 credit hours.

This graduate certificate program (including 585 clinical hours) prepares nurses with a master's degree to become family psychiatric mental health nurse practitioners.

Required prerequisites (or equivalent courses taken while in master's degree program)

DNP 604 Advanced Human Pathophysiology Across Lifespan (4)
DNP 605 Advanced Health Assessment Across Lifespan (3)
DNP 608 Applied Pharmacotherapeutics Across Lifespan (3)
DNP 609 Advanced Practice Nursing Role I (1)

Students will have an individual review of their transcripts and an individualized plan of study designed to meet certification requirements. Depending on how many prerequisite courses are completed in the master's degree program, up to one year of additional study may need to be added to complete this specialty.

Women's Health Nurse Practitioner (Certificate), Certificate (NUWHNPGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Women's Health Nurse Practitioner (Graduate Certificate)
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

This certificate program accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education is designed for nurses with a master's degree in nursing who seek to become women's health nurse practitioners or for nurse practitioners with a master's degree or DNP who seek additional certification as women's health nurse practitioners.

This women's health nurse practitioner certificate program is offered in a hybrid iCourse and in-person format that requires students to travel to campus for orientation and then two or three times per semester. Women's health care theory and clinical courses include theories, principles and clinical skills in the care of women and their families. Courses focus on critical thinking, diagnosis, problem-solving and nursing management of women throughout the maternity cycle and with common gynecological problems. Client education, communication and collaboration are emphasized.

Focused clinical experiences are arranged with appropriate preceptors and administrators. Every attempt will be made to arrange this in the student's geographical area. In the event that clinical sites are unavailable in that area or if the faculty determine the student needs additional faculty supervision of skills, the student is required to complete the clinical experience in the Phoenix area. Rural health and experiences with disadvantaged and multicultural populations are encouraged, and sites are available for these experiences.

Degree Requirements:

23 credit hours.

Required Core (23 credit hours)

Public Service and Community Solutions, College of Assessment of Integrative Health Modalities (certificate), Certificate (PPSWGGRCH)Online Degree Search Title: Assessment of Integrative Health Modalities (Graduate Certificate)Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in assessment of integrative health modalities embraces lifelong learning with the development of an ongoing mindfulness practice for all health care professionals. The curriculum focuses on integrative health, the current term used by practitioners in the field who feel strongly that treating the whole person (body, mind and spirit) is the route to the highest quality of health and well-being.

Created to broaden a student's repertoire of skills, tools and techniques in providing holistic, well-rounded care to patients, clients and consumers, this certificate program provides students with extensive knowledge on integrative health and gives a practice base for mindfulness. This is achieved through evidenced-based readings and expert lectures from community health professionals and ASU faculty drawn from across disciplines. The required culminating experience can be one of three options: an approved research topic for a paper, a pre-approved community activity in which students highlight their mastery and application of the certificate content, or, if approved, a semester internship as a wellness program manager at an ASU facility.

Degree Requirements:

Program Description:

The School of Community Resources and Development offers a graduate program leading to the PhD in community resources and development.

The doctoral program in community resources and development is a theoretically grounded, research-intensive degree program designed to prepare graduates for research-oriented careers in higher education, governmental agencies, nonprofit organizations and private-sector businesses. The program is based on the concept of building sustainable and healthy communities as the unifying principle in the established focus areas of:

- community studies
- nonprofit leadership and management
- parks, recreation and leisure
- tourism development and management

The theoretical and methodological approaches embedded in this program serve to integrate scholarship in these areas, in order to gain a more meaningful understanding of and impact on community life and dynamics. The program is transdisciplinary in nature. The core faculty engaged in this program are housed in the School of Community Resources and Development. In addition, the program builds on current collaborations with faculty with related research interests from many ASU departments, schools and centers.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core ( 24 credit hours)
CRD 610 Sustainable Communities (3)
CRD 620 Community Research Methods (3)

advanced statistics or methods (3)

Electives or Research (18 credit hours)

Additional Curricular Information
Up to 30 hours from a previously awarded master's degree can count toward the doctoral requirements.

All students are advised initially by the doctoral program director as a cohort. Students are required to take 24 credit hours of core coursework, 15 hours of which are with the cohort during the first year and six hours of which are with the cohort during the second year. Students are assigned an individual advisor or mentor at the end of the first year of study. A supervisory committee is also formed at the end of the first year which reflects the interests of the student and faculty.

Each student develops a plan of study in consultation with the doctoral program coordinator, advisor and supervisory committee. Students complete elective coursework, including courses from contributing disciplines, selected in consultation with their advisor to foster the transdisciplinary nature of the degree program. Students also complete at least six credit hours of CRD 792 Research and 12 credit hours of CRD 799 Dissertation. When the majority of coursework has been completed and before dissertation research is started, students must complete a written examination followed by an oral examination. These examinations must be completed within five years of admission.

- GRE test scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. International applicants are also required to submit TOEFL scores and a financial guarantee statement.

The statement of academic and professional goals should be in sufficient detail to indicate compatibility with the educational objectives and capabilities of the doctoral program

The recommendation letters may be a mix of academic and professional references, but each must address the applicant's capacity to successfully complete the doctoral program.

Students applying to the program are expected to have a master's degree (from an accredited institution) which included a master's degree-level research methods and statistics class or classes. If deficiencies exist in community resource and development-related coursework at the master's degree level, appropriate classes are suggested.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines and admission terms.

Applications are reviewed by the admission committee and recommendations for admission are then made by the graduate program director to the dean for the Graduate College.

Emergency Management (Certificate), Certificate (PPEMEGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Emergency Management (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in emergency management provides motivated students with the skills and knowledge to manage and assume positions of leadership within the field of emergency management. More specifically, an orientation on all-hazards and all-threats provides students with a generalist perspective, which is critically important for today and tomorrow's disaster managers.

The certificate program may be of interest to students in disciplines such as public policy, planning, political science, nonprofit management, social work, criminology and other related fields.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (9 credit hours)
PAF 520 Public Management (3)
PAF 552 Integrated Emergency Management (3)
PAF 555 Information Technology in Emergency Management (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information
For electives, students should see the academic unit for an approved course list. Other coursework may be used with the approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- a statement of career and educational goals
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students will most likely come from related fields including political science, planning, urban and metropolitan studies, sociology, as well as other social science degrees; however, the school may accept applicants from all educational backgrounds provided they meet the minimum requirements. Current ASU graduate students are eligible for the certificate as a supplement to their existing degree program. In addition, students not enrolled in a graduate program at ASU are also eligible to apply as nondegree students provided they meet the admission criteria stated above. However, MPA students in the proposed emergency management concentration would not be eligible for admission.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Students are required to take 18 credit hours of core coursework, of which three credit hours are a capstone course that is completed at the end of the program of study. The capstone course is integrative and case-based, allowing students to synthesize material from prior coursework. Successful completion of this course is required in place of a thesis or applied project.

Students complete 15 credit hours of related elective coursework. Courses are selected from two contributing disciplines (public affairs and social work) to foster the transdisciplinary nature of the degree. Students may petition for one three credit hour course not listed as an approved elective in their program of study as long as students can establish an intellectual and professional development objective that substantiates the course selection. The petition should be submitted prior to enrollment in an elective.

Program Description:

The ASU EMPA is a 19-month, online graduate degree program which also features three-day face-to-face executive sessions in both Phoenix and Washington, D.C. The program is a collaboration between the School of Public Affairs and the McCain Institute for International Leadership.

The ASU Executive Master of Public Administration program is designed for public sector leaders throughout the world. Students participate in the program as part of a learning cohort, and the one-course-at-a-time online structure enables them to maintain a work and life balance as they immerse in each topic. The learning experience begins with an orientation and executive session in Phoenix. Approximately one year later, the class reconvenes in Washington, D.C. for a second executive session. The executive master's degree program ends in Phoenix, where students present their applied projects.

The ASU Executive Master of Public Administration program enables students to expand the breadth and depth of their professional network. The online curriculum attracts a more geographically diverse pool of applicants, both nationally and internationally. The executive sessions in Phoenix and Washington, D.C. further enable students to develop deeper relationships with their classmates. Executive Master of Public Administration students will be selected based on their ability to demonstrate the value they would add to the learning experience of the entire class, and a new cohort begins each year.

Students enrolling in Master of Public Administration core courses must demonstrate minimum competency in statistics and American government. Courses taken to fulfill the competency do not count toward the total credit hours required for the degree program. Completion of prerequisite courses is not a requirement for admission but must be completed within one semester after starting the program.

Competency in statistics is met with a grade of " B " (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") or higher in one of the approved courses (PAF 301 or PAF 401 , POS 401, PSY 230, ECN 221, QBA 221, SWU 321, STP 226 or SOC 390) within the past two years or passing a diagnostic test approved by the MPA committee. Other courses taken within the last two years may be substituted upon approval of the Master of Public Administration director.

Competency in American government is a demonstrated understanding of American government institutions and processes. Students may be required to take an undergraduate class in American government (PAF 300, PAF 340, POS 110 or POS 310) with a grade of "B" or higher. The College-Level Examination Program can also be used to demonstrate competency in American government.

Public Administration (Urbanism), PHD (PPPAURBPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Administration and Policy (Urbanism), PhD
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The PhD in public administration and policy is a theoretically grounded research degree program designed to prepare students for an academic career. The program is also appropriate for individuals who want to conduct high-level research and policy development in public and nonprofit agencies, foundations and research institutes. It is designed for students who seek full-time study.

The goal is to develop well-rounded, independent scholars who are grounded in the classic and current literatures of public administration and public policy, skilled in research methods, and ready to make a positive and important contribution to the field through teaching and research.

The doctoral program in public administration and policy with an urbanism concentration permits students to draw upon the extensive resources in urban affairs at ASU. As a result, these students are poised for success as productive and active scholars, researchers and teachers upon graduation.

The concentration in urbanism is a mechanism for organizing varied perspectives on urbanism into a collective body of scholarship. The study of public administration is enriched by grounding it in a comprehensive understanding of the characteristics of urban context and the dynamic forces that shape them. The concentration in urbanism leverages the varied interests in urbanism and helps emerging scholars as they attempt to compare, contrast and take stock of urbanism. Working with faculty from across a range of departments and programs at ASU, doctoral students will be able to capture the creative tensions that scholarship on urbanism has inspired in order to stimulate a provocative, constructive kind of inquiry.

Degree Requirements:

90 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (24 credit hours)
PAF 601 Advanced Public Policy Seminar (3)
PAF 602 Advanced Research Design for Public Policy and Management (3)
PAF 603 Advanced Economics for Public Administration and Public Policy (3)
PAF 604 Intellectual Foundations of Public Administration (3)
PAF 605 Organization Theory and Behavior Seminar (3)
PAF 609 Advanced Quantitative Methods Seminar (3)
PAF 610 Advanced Qualitative Methods for Public Affairs Research (3)
PAF 620 Public Administration Professional Development Workshop (3)

Urbanism Electives (12 credit hours)

Research (3 credit hours)
PAF 792 Research (3)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
PAF 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information
When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a master's degree, in a related field, from a regionally accredited institution.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- completed checklist
- written statement
- current resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- samples of research reports or papers
- scores on the GRE (verbal, quantitative, analytical)
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must submit TOEFL scores to be considered for admission (institution code: 4007). This is true even for those who have a master's degree from a United States university. To be considered for admission to the doctoral program in public administration and policy, the applicant's minimum score on a traditional TOEFL test must be 600; the minimum score for a TOEFL iBT must be 100. Applicants with scores below the minimum will not be considered. More on the English proficiency requirement is available at https://students.asu.edu/graduate/proficiency (https://students.asu.edu/graduate/proficiency).

The written statement of educational and career goals must include a discussion of research interests.

The letters of recommendation should be primarily from faculty members. All letters should address the candidate's capacity to successfully complete the doctoral program. They should assess the student's capacity for critical and analytic thought, ability to communicate effectively both orally and in writing, and commitment to completion of the program.

Only GRE test scores from within the past five years will be accepted, and analytical scores will be considered in admission decisions.

All applicants are expected to have completed graduate level statistics and research methods classes before admission. Applicants also are expected to have sufficient formal coursework in public administration to pursue doctoral study in the field. Admitted students are required to take PAF 501, PAF 502, PAF 503, PAF 504, PAF 508 (or their equivalents) and statistics prior to beginning the doctoral core courses. Applicants who are not pursuing an MPA should not take these courses until they consult with the doctoral program director.

Applicants are admitted for fall only. Admission is competitive; a limited number of well-qualified applicants will be admitted each year. Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

ASU's School of Public Affairs expects doctoral student applicants to have demonstrated competency in the following subject areas at the time of application: organizational theory, public policy analysis, economics and quantitative analysis.

Applicants who have obtained a master's degree accredited by the Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs, and Administration in public affairs, public administration or public policy will not be required to complete prerequisites for admission to ASU's School of Public Affairs. In some cases, applicants from allied fields (e.i., political science, economics, sociology, business) will not be required to complete prerequisites, depending upon the extent to which previous training aligns with the competencies described above.

As is the case with all applicants, the doctoral program director or advisors may require or recommend completion of courses when there is a perceived deficit, especially if the deficit relates to graduate-level quantitative analysis and economics (PAF 502 and PAF 504, respectively, or equivalent courses). However, these requirements or recommendations, if any, are not a barrier to admission.

In cases where the doctoral student applicant has graduated from a public affairs, public administration or public policy program from another nation, or from a program not accredited by NASPAA, the applicant may be admitted and required to meet prerequisites after a review by the doctoral committee and doctoral program director.

Students applying with master's degrees from programs not closely related to public affairs (e.g., engineering, modern languages, chemistry) will be required to meet prerequisites equivalent to the courses required for either ASU's Master of Public Administration or Master of Public Policy: https://spa.asu.edu/content/graduate-programs (https://spa.asu.edu/content/graduate-programs).

Prior to enrolling in any of the school's core classes, all students are expected to be familiar with the foundational competency readings related to organizational theory, public policy analysis, economics, and quantitative analysis.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program and have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- completed checklist
- written statement
- current resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- samples of research reports or papers
- GRE scores (verbal, quantitative, analytical)

Public Policy, MPP (PPPUBPMPP)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Policy, MPP

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The MPP program allows students to approach the study of public policy with a focus on public policy in the urban setting. The master's degree program in public policy prepares students for professional careers as policy analysts and leaders in public service involved in the formulation, approval, implementation and evaluation of public policy at all levels of government and in the private and nonprofit sectors. The program can also serve as a platform for preparation for doctoral studies in public policy, public administration, urban studies and other related programs. Students learn analytical techniques and conceptual frameworks for understanding policy issues and identifying potential solutions, and about applying these skills to real-world issues --- especially to the needs of cities in the region. Students also gain an understanding of policies addressing issues such as poverty, education, the environment and public safety.

The program trains people to lead by making positive policy decisions, addressing the difficult questions associated with public policy, and managing the process of policy creation, approval, implementation and evaluation. At the conclusion of the master's degree program, students will be able to identify, analyze and interpret the challenges and dilemmas of public policies, especially those of urban areas. Students will also be able to approach policy analysis with a variety of quantitative and qualitative methods and be prepared to develop innovative processes and tools to deal with changing realities of public policy and address issues on a global, regional and local scale.

Program Description:

The MPP program allows students to approach the study of public policy with a focus on public policy in the urban setting. The master's degree program in public policy prepares students for professional careers as policy analysts and leaders in public service involved in the formulation, approval, implementation and evaluation of public policy at all levels of government and in the private and nonprofit sectors. The program can also serve as a platform for preparation for doctoral studies in public policy, public administration, urban studies and other related programs. Students learn analytical techniques and conceptual frameworks for understanding policy issues and identifying potential solutions and about applying these skills to real-world issues --- especially to the needs of cities in the region. Students also gain an understanding of policies addressing issues such as poverty, education, the environment and public safety.

The program trains people to lead by making positive policy decisions, addressing the difficult questions associated with public policy, and managing the process of policy creation, approval, implementation and evaluation. At the conclusion of the master's degree program, students will be able to identify, analyze and interpret the challenges and dilemmas of public policies, especially those of urban areas. Students also will be able to approach policy analysis with a variety of quantitative and qualitative methods and be prepared to develop innovative processes and tools to deal with changing realities of public policy and address issues on a global, regional and local scale.

The concentration in environmental policy prepares students at the master's degree level to apply sustainability principles and approaches to careers in a variety of fields that address environmental and, inevitably, human challenges. Students pursuing the concentration in environmental policy will acquire the knowledge base and skills to bring sustainability solutions to corporate, government and nonprofit sectors. The concentration program begins by building a foundation in environmental policy and theory through the core coursework, followed by electives that develop and deepen student expertise in specific areas and issues. The program is uniquely positioned to allow students to build careers in public policy analysis and administration, international development and nonprofit organizations.

Social Work, MSW (PPSWDMSW)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Work - Standard Program, MSW
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tucson, Online

Program Description:

The professional program leading to the MSW degree prepares social workers for advanced professional social work practice. The program is designed to prepare social workers to be capable of responding effectively to the needs of special populations, particularly in the Southwest. The Master of Social Work program is accredited by the Council on Social Work Education.

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with:
Juris Doctor, JD
Public Administration - Downtown Phoenix, MPA

Degree Requirements:

45 credit hours and a portfolio, or 45 credit hours and a thesis, or 45 credit hours and an applied project (SWG 593), or 45 credit hours including the required capstone course (SWG 621), or 60 credit hours and a portfolio (MSW/MPA dual degree), or 60 credit hours and a thesis (MSW/MPA dual degree), or 60 credit hours and an applied project (SWG 593), or 60 credit hours including the required capstone course (SWG 621) (MSW/MPA dual degree).

Students begin the standard Master of Social Work program in the fall and they begin in the fall or spring for the online Master of Social Work program. The program may be completed within four semesters (full time) or six semesters (part time). It is a 45 to 60 credit hour program, including coursework and field instruction. It is divided into a foundation year ( 30 credit hours of core curriculum) taken by all students and a concentration year (30 credit hours).

The foundation year includes basic courses in direct practice, organizational and community change, social policy, human behavior and research.

In the second year, students pursue a concentration in one of the following:

- advanced direct practice
- advanced generalist
- policy, administration and community practice

Students who pursue the advanced direct practice concentration also select one of the following three specializations: children, youth and families; heath, behavioral health; or public child welfare.

Students are required to complete two internships: a foundation field placement (480 hours) and a concentration field placement (480 hours) in a different setting.

Culminating Events: The culminating events available to on-campus students are SWG 599 Thesis, SWG 593 Applied Project, SWG 621 Capstone course and the master's portfolio. The culminating events available to online students are SWG 593 Applied Project, SWG 621 Capstone course and the master's degree portfolio. The academic unit will advise and monitor the online campus students to ensure they choose the appropriate culminating event.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution. All applicants are required to have completed a course in human biology and a course in statistics before enrolling in the graduate program or before registering for SWG 519.

The School of Social Work requires one of the following:

- undergraduate degree with 30 credit hours in liberal arts courses at the undergraduate or graduate level
- Bachelor of Social Work from a Council on Social Work Education-accredited school of social work
- liberal arts undergraduate degree

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work
- three letters of reference
- professional resume that includes volunteer and paid work experience
- statement of educational and career goals
- signed standards of ethical and professional behavior form
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency

A combination of academic and professional references is desirable. References from friends, family members or personal therapists are not accepted. At least one of the three required references must be from the applicant's BSW field instructor or, if employed in a social work-related job for two or more years, a recommendation from the applicant's supervisor.

Professional resume should include both work and volunteer experience in social service organizations. In order to be considered for possible admission, applicants who do not have work experience in social service organizations are required to have a minimum of 240 hours of volunteer experience in the social services over a six-month period in the five years immediately preceding application.

Guidelines for writing the statement of educational and career goals can be found at https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/msw-applicationproceduresmaterials (https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/msw-application-proceduresmaterials).

Test scores from either the GRE or the Miller Analogies Test are required only if the applicant's junior and senior GPA was below a 3.20 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students should see the program website for application deadlines. Applicants admitted to the standard Master of Social Work degree program begin classes in the fall, and applicants admitted to the online Master of Social Work degree program begin classes in the fall or the spring.

Part-time Program

Students are admitted each fall to a planned part-time program and for the Master of Social Work online degree program in the fall or spring. Students interested in this option must specifically apply to the part-time program and complete it in accordance with the plan developed to finish the degree in three years.

Transfer Credit

Upon recommendation of the admission committee, the first year of graduate study (up to 30 graduate credit hours) earned at another school of social work that is accredited by the Council on Social Work Education may be transferred and applied toward the Master of Social Work degree program at ASU. Under these circumstances, the student must complete the second full year of graduate study (at least 30 credit hours of graduate work) at ASU. Transfer work must have been completed within three years of the semester and year of admission to the Master of Social Work degree program at ASU with a grade of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Exemption and Waiver Examinations
The number of hours required to complete the standard Master of Social Work program ranges from 45 to 60 credit hours. In addition to transferring in credit, per the recommendation of the School of Social Work director and the Master of Social Work coordinator, admitted students may meet requirements of up to 15 hours of credit toward the degree by exempting up to 15 hours of foundation coursework without examination or successfully completing examinations in SWG 501, SWG 502 or SWG 519. Students should note note that, when applicable, the academic unit will provide a rationale for a student's exemption if the student is not from a Bachelor of Social Work program accredited by the Council on Social Work Education.

Concurrent degrees are currently unavailable for the online Master of Social Work degree program.

Students should contact the School of Social Work at (602) 496-0800 with any questions about the application process.

Social Work, PHD (PPSW2PHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Work, PhD

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The purpose of the PhD program in social work is to train future social work scholars. A scholar in social work engages in research, teaching, and service. Graduates are prepared to enter careers in applied research that enhance human well-being, particularly among oppressed and vulnerable populations, and to educate the next generation of social workers.

This doctoral program provides an individualized program of study that seeks to nurture and build students' curiosity and creativity in pursuit of their intellectual passions. It offers an inter-disciplinary curriculum that gives students a unique degree of intimacy and breadth of choice. Core doctoral courses are small and taught by School of Social Work faculty. Additionally, students select among a repertoire of courses from throughout Arizona State University to customize their course of study according to their substantive interests.

Supplementary to the coursework, this doctoral program offers students opportunities to be actively involved in both research and teaching. Students benefit from the close mentorship of the committed faculty and regular partnerships with our many internal research centers and offices. Students also receive valuable opportunities to develop a teaching portfolio, positioning them to succeed in academic careers.

Sustainability, PHD (SUSUSTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in sustainability prepares students to become scientists and leaders in research and to investigate the urgent sustainability challenges of this century. Graduates will possess an advanced understanding of the dynamics of coupled socioecological systems and be able to lead others in research providing adaptive solutions to specific sustainability challenges.

The flexible, transdisciplinary nature of the program allows students to focus on problems of interest to them, drawing upon relevant knowledge from a variety of disciplines. Students can also apply to participate in the Global Development Research Program, which works in conjunction with this program.

All sustainability graduate students will possess:

- an understanding of the need for a transdisciplinary approach to solving sustainability challenges
- the ability to communicate their work to professionals in other disciplines and to policymakers and the general public
- the breadth of vision to recognize the interconnectedness of social, economic, environmental and technical systems
the critical-thinking skills to approach sustainability challenges from a systems perspective the skills needed to work effectively in transdisciplinary teams
- the technical skills to formulate and solve problems at the appropriate scale

In addition to the common learning outcomes, students will be able to conduct research on particular sustainability challenges using standard skills, including the capacity to identify problems; formulate and test hypotheses; use statistical, econometric and geographical information-system techniques to construct and analyze datasets; and build and apply models. They will be able to lead others in the analysis and design of the built environment and institutions' policies, regulations and technologies to support sustainable development, and they will be able to lead others in applying these concepts and methods to the development of sustainable strategies for water, land, air and urban management at the local and global levels. Students will be able to understand the concepts and methods of a number of critical disciplines bearing on the sustainability of systems at different spatial and temporal scales.

Sustainability (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PHD (SUSUSTCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Complex adaptive systems science is the study of interactive and dynamic systems that change over time. The complex adaptive systems science concentration under the PhD in sustainability trains the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing, university-wide research on complex adaptive systems science at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive systems science perspective, to give better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing our society today. Students will be fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

By broadly embedding an understanding of complex adaptive system-relevant approaches into the practice of normal science, students will gain the ability to transform science. The program promotes the development and testing of more robust theories and sophisticated methods in a wider array of research settings. This is needed to develop a deeper understanding of the nature and dynamics of complex adaptive systems, grounded in concrete examples and applications.

The doctoral program in sustainability with a concentration in complex adaptive systems science is offered for students who have completed a bachelor's or master's degree program. The program prepares students to become scientists and leaders in research and to investigate the urgent sustainability challenges of this century. Graduates will possess:

- an understanding of the need for a transdisciplinary approach to solving sustainability challenges
- the ability to communicate their work to professionals in other disciplines, policymakers and the general public
- the breadth of vision to recognize the interconnectedness of social, economic, environmental and technical systems
- the critical-thinking skills to approach sustainability challenges from a systems perspective
- the skills needed to work effectively in interdisciplinary teams
- the technical skills to formulate and solve problems at the appropriate scale

In addition to the common learning outcomes, students will be able to conduct research on particular sustainability challenges using standard skills, including the capacity to identify problems; formulate and test hypotheses; use statistical, econometric and geographical-information-system techniques to construct and analyze datasets; and build and apply models. They will be prepared to lead others in the analysis and design of the built environment and institutions' policies, regulations and technologies to support sustainable development and lead others in applying these concepts and methods to the development of sustainable strategies for water, land, air and urban management at the local and global levels. Students will understand the concepts and methods of a number of critical disciplines bearing on the sustainability of systems at different spatial and temporal scales.

Sustainability Leadership, EMSL (SUEMSLEMSL)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability Leadership - Executive, EMSL
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Executive Master of Sustainability Leadership program prepares experienced professionals to significantly advance sustainability practices in the workplace. The EMSL program will equip graduates to lead institutional and cultural change for their companies, organizations, communities and their own careers.

The accelerated curriculum is designed specifically for the working professional and can be completed in one year through a combination of unique in-person experiences (including an international immersive), online course content and a capstone project. The degree program, which includes focus areas in leadership, strategy, communications and global context, is uniquely powerful because it is backed by the extensive knowledge base of the Julie Ann Wrigley Global Institute of Sustainability at ASU and the institute's more than 400 sustainability scientists and scholars and a host of world-class sustainability and leadership professionals.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone courses (EMS 515 and EMS 516).

Required Core (27 credit hours)
EMS 501 Sustainability Leadership Workshop I (1)
EMS 502 Global Context I (2)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
EMS 515 Capstone I (2)
EMS 516 Capstone II - Sustainability Leadership Workshop II (1)

Additional Curriculum Information
The curriculum for this program is focused around four principal themes: global context, strategy, communications and leadership. Students attend three in-person sessions --- two sessions at the ASU campus and one abroad (EMS 508).

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements for both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants to the program should be interested in and passionate about advancing sustainability in their organizations, either directly or indirectly. Successful candidates will be expected to draw from and apply solutions to actual professional challenges and opportunities. Applicants should contact the program for more details if they are currently not employed.

Because this is an executive master's degree for experienced professionals, work and life experience may be taken into account in lieu of deficiencies from past bachelor's degree program experience. Applicants with GPAs less than 3.00 may be admitted on a provisional status. Applicants should contact the program for more details if their GPA falls below the 3.00 requirement.

Sustainability Leadership, MSL (SUSUSLMSL)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability Leadership, MSL
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MSL program prepares professionals to advance social and environmental responsibility. The program teaches organizational leadership skills through the lens of sustainability. The Master of Sustainability Leadership program equips graduates to drive high-impact global sustainability results for their companies, organizations and communities.

The curriculum includes four synergistic thematic areas:

- communications and change management
- global context of sustainability
- leadership for sustainability
- sustainability and strategy

The program also includes opportunities for students to include electives that are related to their specific area of interest. Elective courses are offered that focus on the military, cities, climate, food systems and other thematic areas. Students may also choose to go on an approved study abroad trip to fulfill elective credits.

A sustainable future requires leaders who are able to integrate sustainability into existing institutions and new enterprises. A particular knowledge base and skill set is required to drive this kind of transformational change. Professionals with tools and skills learned in sustainability leadership, as opposed to other degree programs, are in a prime position to establish sustainability practices in any type of organization. Because sustainability is a relatively new field of study, professionals who are interested in this emerging field have often migrated into sustainability roles without formal training and education in sustainability practice.

This program is designed and delivered by people who have worked in and with companies making sustainability transitions and continue to be on the cutting edge of global sustainability leadership.

Degree Requirements:

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements for both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. They should also have a minimum of three years of professional or organizational experience or the equivalent.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in an applicable master's degree program. Applicants who have a GPA less than 3.00 may submit a statement describing contributing circumstances and reference personal experience to be considered for admission.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of intent
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Because sustainability explores ways to improve human well-being globally without threatening earth's life supporting systems and because this program is designed to prepare decision-makers for the challenges ahead, for the statement of intent, applicants must explain in their own words (in no more than 300 words per question) why sustainability is important to them, and they must describe a time in which they demonstrated leadership to enact positive change. Applicants must explain how they plan to apply the lessons they learn from this degree in the short term and long term. And, lastly, applicants must explain how they have prepared to manage and accommodate family, work and life balance while completing this program in two years.

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability Solutions, MSUS
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MSUS program focuses on the application of established knowledge in sustainability and prepares students to develop solutions, working with stakeholders on sustainability challenges using a sustainability framework. The program is also designed to prepare students to apply sustainability principles and approaches to careers in a variety of fields, addressing complex human and environmental challenges. Students will have a knowledge base and skill set to bring sustainability solutions to corporate, government and NGO sectors. Students begin the program with a foundation in sustainability theory and methods, then are allowed to take electives in an area of interest.

A distinguishing element of the Master of Sustainability Solutions program is its applied approach and emphasis on solutions. This includes a course on managing sustainability projects as well as the capstone experience, in which students do an applied project in lieu of a thesis. Students are encouraged to apply sustainability principles and approaches to their chosen career field. They will be teaming up with a company, a government agency or a nongovernmental organization to develop a real-world sustainability solution. This practical experience will perfectly position graduates for today's competitive, knowledge-intensive job market. Students can also apply to participate in the Global Development Research Program, which works in conjunction with this program (or any graduate program at ASU).

Sustainable Energy, PHD (SUSUEPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainable Energy, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

American society struggles under the weight of its dependence on fossil fuels. As the global energy system is a complex, socio-technical system in which the technical and societal elements of producing and consuming energy have co-evolved into humanity's largest enterprise, educating the next generation of leaders in guiding society toward a sustainable energy future requires that future energy leaders can seamlessly navigate this very transdisciplinary landscape.

The PhD program in sustainable energy is designed to train students who can see beyond the boundaries of traditional methodologies and disciplinary viewpoints and who can integrate scientific excellence with societal and policy insights. The curriculum engages students to look at sustainable energy both from a transdisciplinary perspective and at different scales, from the lab to commercial application.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (18 credit hours)

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in applied behavior analysis pairs research and experience to prepare professionals to work with individuals with special learning and behavior needs using the principles of applied behavior analysis.

Applied projects and assignments allow students to focus on the population with which they plan to work, while gaining the knowledge and skills to use applied behavior analysis across various populations and settings. Graduates will be well prepared to provide applied behavior analysis and evidence-based consultative services and support to clients, community and family members across a variety of settings.

Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College offers university coursework verified by the Behavior Analyst Certification Board for students interested in sitting for the board-certified behavior analyst examination. Once certified, these professionals are equipped to meet diverse behavior needs and make a lasting difference in the community. The course sequence meets the Behavior Analyst Certification Board-required 270 classroom hours of graduate-level instruction aligned with the BCBA/BCaBA task list (fourth edition). BCBA supervision hours, required for certification, are arranged and completed by the student separately from ASU coursework. Students seeking the master's degree as well as the verified university coursework for the BCBA exam should apply to the MEd program in curriculum and instruction with a concentration in applied behavior analysis.

Curriculum and Instruction (Applied Behavior Analysis), MEd (TEABAMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Curriculum and Instruction (Applied Behavior Analysis), MEd
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MEd program in curriculum and instruction with a concentration in applied behavior analysis pairs research and experience to prepare professionals to use the principles of applied behavior analysis to work with individuals with special learning and behavior needs.

The coursework prepares students to use applied behavior analysis to address a variety of learning and behavior needs across a range of professions and settings. All courses are online, combining a range of resources and technologies to provide students the opportunity to interact directly with program faculty and classmates. Program graduates will be well-prepared to provide applied behavior analysis and evidence-based consultative services and support to clients, community and family members across a variety of settings.

Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College offers university coursework preapproved by the Behavior Analyst Certification Board for students interested in sitting for the Board Certified Behavior Analyst examination. Professionals with this certification are equipped to meet diverse behavior needs and make a lasting difference in the community. The course sequence meets the BACB-required 270 classroom hours of graduate-level instruction aligned with the fourth edition task list. BCBA supervision hours, required for certification, are arranged and completed by the student separately from ASU coursework. Students not seeking the master's degree but interested in only the preapproved university coursework for the BCBA exam may apply to the applied behavior analysis graduate certificate.

Online Degree Search Title: Curriculum and Instruction (Autism Spectrum Disorders), MEd
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MEd program in curriculum and instruction with a concentration in autism spectrum disorders equips individuals with specialized skills and knowledge to work effectively with children and adults affected with autism.

The steady rise in the number of those affected by autism has caused a public demand for professionals who are aware of the issues and needs facing these special individuals, their families and service providers. Program graduates will be well-prepared to provide important services and care for individuals with autism spectrum disorders in a variety of roles, including as educators, interventionists, paraprofessionals, psychologists, speech pathologists, behavior analysts or family members.

Each student completes a practicum customized to individual interests and abilities. The program culminates with a capstone experience in which students demonstrate analysis and synthesis of material learned in the master's program and evidence of competency in the six Council for Exceptional Children autism standards.

Students interested in sitting for the national Board Certified Behavior Analyst exam should apply to the master's degree in curriculum and instruction, applied behavior analysis concentration or the applied behavior analysis graduate certificate, depending on interest and need.

Curriculum and Instruction (Early Childhood Education), MEd (TEECDMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Curriculum and Instruction (Early Childhood Education), MEd
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MEd program in curriculum and instruction, early childhood education concentration, prepares individuals to meet the educational, social and emotional needs of children from birth through age eight.

Through online coursework, applied activities and in-person clinical experiences, the program equips students with specialized skills and advanced knowledge in early childhood pedagogy, community collaboration, technology, administration, policy analysis and advocacy.

The master's degree is appropriate for students interested in learning about early childhood education research and working with infants and children in grades K-3. This track may be of interest to students who already have a teaching certificate and are interested in furthering their knowledge and skills or pursuing doctoral studies in the future.

A second option is the master's degree and Arizona certification in early childhood education track, which provides students with the coursework and practical experiences necessary to become licensed to teach children birth through grade three in the public schools. The track provides participants an institutional recommendation for a state of Arizona early childhood education certification (birth through age eight or through grade three) and the master's degree.

All courses are online, but clinical experiences are completed in person.

Curriculum and Instruction (English as a Second Language), MA (EDESLMA)

Online Degree Search Title: English as a Second Language, MA
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MA program in curriculum and instruction, English as a second language concentration, prepares students to teach English language learners in a variety of settings, including U.S. schools. The program caters to professionals with a wide range of roles, including both new and experienced teachers, administrators, policymakers and community workers. Graduate students gain strategies to assist their students in developing ESL skills in reading, writing and listening, and they will learn how to involve community and families as partners.

The program teaches educators specific skills for assessing English learner proficiency and content area knowledge. It also exposes students to various program models and provides a strong foundation for supporting ESL students' language acquisition. Students will leave the program with a historical perspective of English learners in the U.S. and on past and current policy toward ESL. All program faculty have worked with English learner students, have a good mix of elementary- and secondary-level focus and field-tested research strategies, and are advocates for ESL students.

The program provides coursework in English as a second language required for the endorsement from the Arizona Department of Education. While the program is an excellent choice for teachers seeking to improve their preparation to work with English learners and includes coursework supporting the Arizona ESL endorsement for certified teachers, it does not lead to teacher certification. There is no requirement that students entering the program hold a teaching certificate or seek to obtain one.

Note: This degree is not the same as the Master of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages that is offered through the English department.

Curriculum and Instruction (Gifted Education), MEd (TEGEDMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Gifted Education, MEd
Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MEd program in curriculum and instruction with a concentration in gifted education prepares teachers, school administrators, school psychologists, early interventionists and family members to work effectively with gifted children. Students gain the theory and pedagogy needed to identify and serve gifted children as well as the knowledge and skills required to develop and provide the most current instructional methods and services for their gifted students.

Graduates will understand how to identify learning potential and address specific needs of gifted and talented students. They will have an understanding of gifted students' unique affective and academic needs and know how to design and provide appropriately challenging, differentiated curriculum and instruction so that gifted students may develop their full potential.

Graduates will know how to develop a continuum of gifted programs and services, work with school administrators, teachers, school boards and parents and be able to advocate for gifted students at local and national levels.

The program is designed for public and private teachers in regular classrooms, honors classrooms and gifted programs and for school administrators and gifted program coordinators.

The program provides the 12 credit hours of coursework in gifted education required for the gifted education ( $\mathrm{K}-12$ ) endorsement from the Arizona Department of Education. Students should refer to the Arizona Department of Education website for additional requirements.

Curriculum and Instruction (Literacy Education), MA (EDLANGMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Literacy Education, MA
Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The MA program in curriculum and instruction, with a concentration in literacy education, provides students the opportunity to investigate theoretical and pedagogical perspectives in literacy education.

Students will study literacy assessment, essential elements of instruction, content area literacy, leadership, children's literature, multiliteracies, literacy research and theoretical foundations. Students will choose from specializations in multiliteracies education or programs that lead to Arizona Department of Education reading endorsements. Embedded within the courses in this program are six strands of inquiry:

Literacy Leadership --- A primary goal of this program is to develop a cadre of literacy leaders to serve the needs of teachers and students in Arizona and beyond.

Theoretical Foundations --- Literacy educators need to understand the relationship between theories and instructional practices in order to develop sound instructional practices and provide effective literacy instruction for all students.

Pedagogical Knowledge and Resources --- This program provides a foundational knowledge base for literacy educators, addressing both pedagogical and content knowledge. Literacy educators need to understand how to use a variety of resources to assess students' literate abilities and use these assessments to construct appropriate instructional strategies.

Technology and Digital Resources --- Teachers and students alike need to be prepared to face the impact and challenges technology brings to today's learning environments. This program will focus on the use of technology in our lives and the classroom to enhance learning experiences for students.

Critical Literacy and Social Justice --- This program is designed to enhance teachers' skills and dispositions for supporting inclusive educational practices, critical-thinking skills and multiliteracies to face the challenges of a diverse and global society.
for literacy instruction, and critically examine the environments and learning experiences constructed in their classrooms.

- online principalship concentration, see master's degree program in educational leadership (principalship) (TEPRINMED)

The most innovative and effective educators stretch. They're relentless. They suspect that there's always a better way---and they find it. Those who attend graduate programs at ASU's Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College receive best-in-class preparation that allows them to harness and create knowledge, mobilize people and take action to improve education. These master's and doctoral programs prepare graduates to thrive in their careers and take leadership positions in advancing the world's most important profession.

The MEd program in educational leadership is designed for individuals who believe in the power of education to transform children's lives and who aspire to school leadership positions as administrators or teacher leaders. This rigorous, standards-based leadership preparation program provides students with the knowledge and expertise to become transformative administrators or teacher leaders with deep and unwavering commitment to providing excellent and equitable educational opportunities for all students.

This program equips students with the skills to facilitate school-level and systemic change; create and sustain a culture of innovation and collaboration; successfully lead curriculum development; interpret and use data to support student success; provide effective feedback, support and evaluation for teachers; build a community network of support for students and schools; ensure equitable and excellent educational opportunities and support for all students.

The two-year online pathway is designed for preK-12 teachers who want a more defined role in their school district by becoming an Arizona certified supervisor. The program focuses on building important leadership and curriculum skills and allows students to take advantage of the college's Internet-based coursework. Students must be employed in a school-based position or have access to an ASU- and district-approved school placement that will serve as the laboratory of practice for applying the concepts, principles and leadership approaches learned through the coursework.

Available options under the master's degree in educational leadership program are designed to prepare teachers to meet Arizona requirements for supervision certification. Students seeking certification in a state other than Arizona should contact their state department of education to determine the principal or supervision certification requirements prior to applying.

Educational Policy, MA (EDSPFMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Educational Policy, MA
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in educational policy provides graduates with skills in education policy and applied data analysis. It is particularly well suited for individuals whose current or prospective careers require the use and interpretation of data, such as overseeing assessments or conducting program evaluations. Classroom teachers and other practicing educators in all contexts will gain a new perspective on their schools, classrooms and teaching with the skills they develop in this master's degree program.

The coursework will deepen students' understanding of research and policymaking, allow them to critically assess education programs and policies and develop the skills they need to engage in data-driven decision-making. Courses address key issues in contemporary education policy, evaluating and synthesizing research literature, analyzing and interpreting data and conducting applied research projects. With the assistance of a faculty or academic advisor, students will also customize their elective courses in educational policy, research methods and areas of interest to enhance their knowledge and skills.

In the culminating experience in the final semester, students will design and execute an individual or group project that will utilize their new knowledge and research skills.

Educational Policy and Evaluation, PHD (EDLDRSHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Educational Policy and Evaluation, PhD
Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in educational policy and evaluation prepares scholars who teach and conduct rigorous, high-impact and transdisciplinary research on education policy that advances our collective understanding of preK-20 education.

Doctoral students in the educational policy and evaluation program engage in systematic analyses of education policies in a variety of settings, including schools, universities, research centers, government agencies and nongovernmental organizations.

The program emphasizes intensive training in the theory, methods and practice of education policy research and evaluation and an area of specialization supported by current faculty expertise.

Educational policy and evaluation students work closely with nationally and internationally recognized faculty members on collaborative and independent research projects that result in policy briefs, reports, scholarly articles and engagement in education policy. The program also provides opportunities for internships in applied settings and varied experiences in scholarly publishing.

Students are expected to engage in the doctoral program full time and are supported by Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College with funding renewable for four years with continued progress.

Elementary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd (TEEEACLMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Elementary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, West

Program Description:

This program is for those who already have a bachelor's degree in any field and want to become licensed to teach grades 1-8.

The elementary education program builds strong connections between theory and practice through quality classroom instruction paired with extensive clinical experiences.

Students gain a strong foundation in teaching and content knowledge from experts in the field of education. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty actively engage in the educational research community and embed this vital knowledge throughout the program. This connection further empowers our students to engage in their own research through the applied project coursework.

A series of clinical experiences or field placements are designed to assist our students in developing a thorough understanding of teaching and learning as they apply knowledge from their coursework in varied school settings. Individualized guidance through our clinical framework provides our students with the support they need to become effective educators.

The MEd program in elementary education offers the following three options for students to earn a master's degree and Arizona teacher certification:

The Masters and Arizona Certification (MAC) program students take classes at an ASU campus two nights a week and are required to do a field experience one day per week for at least two semesters. During the last semester of the MAC program, students complete a full-time student teaching experience.

The Induction, Masters and Arizona Certification (InMAC) program features a partnership with Teach For America, various school districts and charter schools. The InMAC program provides an alternative pathway to teacher certification for full-time teachers on an intern teaching certificate. To qualify, individuals must secure a full-time teaching position. Participants take classes one night per week and must be continuously enrolled in apprentice teaching coursework.

In the iTeachAZ program, students take classes and complete all field work in a partner school district. This is a daytime program in which students take classes two to three days per week and complete three days of field experience. In their next-to-last semester, students complete a full-time student teaching experience.

Leadership and Innovation, EdD (TELINEDD)

Online Degree Search Title: Leadership and Innovation, EdD
Campus: West, Online

Program Description:

The EdD program in leadership and innovation prepares scholarly practitioners and is designed for practicing educator-leaders who work in a range of settings who want to transform their practice and create better learning opportunities for students of all ages.

Students in the program begin as accomplished teachers, teacher leaders, principals, superintendents, higher education professionals or leaders in other educational contexts. Through coursework, students deepen their abilities to lead change and implement innovation in their local educational organizations. The program is not designed to prepare students for academic research-oriented tenure-track positions.

The cohort-based program focuses on research in action and includes required coursework and several options for advanced professional studies with a research core that deepens students' abilities to reflectively and critically think about problems of practice in one of the following contexts: preK-12 change leadership; higher education change leadership; or systems, professional and reimagined change leadership.

Differentiation among these contexts and students' interests occurs within the required coursework.

Students conduct multiple cycles of inquiry throughout the program and learn research within their own workplace and share their research at the end of each academic year through presentations in a public doctoral research conference.

Leader-scholar communities, formed at the end of the first year and consisting of five to seven students and one faculty member, meet regularly for the second and third years of the program to supply academic and personal support. Through LSCs, students support each other, under faculty guidance, in the conceptualization, implementation and study of change initiatives. Each student's LSC leader serves as the dissertation chair, along with two additional committee members who ultimately make up the doctoral committee.

Successful graduates make a commitment to continuing systematic study of their professional practice and sustaining innovation and leadership by making a positive difference in their local settings. The program aims to enable more thoughtful, intentional and informed leaders who are willing and able to implement and study continuous improvement.

The program will make a difference in the way a student thinks and works as a leader in education, for the immediate and local benefit of school children, adult learners, schools or organizations, and local communities.

Degree Requirements:

Program Description:

The PhD program in learning, literacies and technologies is designed to prepare scholars who will address socially significant educational programs and transform preK-20 educational programs through rigorous research and educational interventions. Graduates rely on transdisciplinary theoretical and methodological perspectives to engage, influence and transform educational institutions and their practices.

The program graduates educational researchers who serve as scholars, leaders and teacher educators engaged in the design, development and use of literacies and technologies that promote learning. Graduates are stewards of their educational field, working across disciplinary boundaries to address the learning challenges of the new millennium.
of scholars led by distinguished faculty will collaborate with doctoral students, individually and in teams, to design powerful studies, implement them in authentic settings, collect and analyze data, write research reports, and present and publish the results.

Academic study and research in the learning, literacies and technologies program focuses on the nature of human learning and literacies across diverse learners and contexts, the use of technologies to support learning, the design of learning environments, and the conditions under which learning occurs.

As a future scholar, teacher educator or researcher, students will develop areas of emphasis with their faculty advisor and doctoral committee members to work at the cutting edges of educational science, leading the way to innovation and exploration of new technologies and literacies for learning.

Students are expected to engage in the doctoral program full time and are supported by Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College with funding renewable for four years with continued satisfactory progress.

Physical Education, MPE (ECPHYEDMPE)

Online Degree Search Title: Physical Education, MPE
Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The MPE program offers three options for students interested in gaining knowledge of current curriculum and instructional and administrative practices and procedures in physical education. Emphasis is placed on improving instructional effectiveness and developing quality physical education programs in school settings as well as expanded physical activity programming beyond the physical education lessons within school environments. Students learn about designing, implementing and assessing Comprehensive School Physical Activity Programs. This type of programming reflects current global trends in promoting physical activity for children, youth, school staff and families in communities surrounding school campuses. The Master of Physical Education degree program gives candidates the flexibility to design a plan of study that enhances their interests and professional specialization.

The Master of Physical Education pedagogy research track is appropriate for students interested in learning more about research on teaching in physical education settings. This track may be of interest to students who already have a teacher certificate in physical education and are interested in pursuing doctoral studies in the future.

The Master of Physical Education with a physical education endorsement (grades K-12) familiarizes students with the most current trends and issues in school physical education. Students can focus on numerous topics within elementary physical education, secondary physical education and adapted physical education. This track may be of interest to students with a teaching certificate in a different subject matter who are interested in a K-12 physical education endorsement.

The master's degree and Arizona certification in physical education program provides students with the coursework and practical experiences necessary to become certified to teach physical education in the public schools. The program provides participants an institutional recommendation for an Arizona secondary education (grades 6-12) certification with a physical education endorsement (grades K-12) and the Master of Physical Education degree.

Secondary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd (TESCERTMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Secondary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

This program is for those who want to become certified to teach grades 6-12 in the public schools and already have a bachelor's degree in any field.

ASU's secondary education program builds strong connections between theory and practice through quality classroom instruction paired with extensive clinical experiences.

Students gain a strong foundation in teaching and content knowledge from experts in the field of education. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty actively engage in the educational research community and embed this vital knowledge throughout the program. This connection further empowers our students to engage in their own research through the culminating action research applied project.

A series of clinical experiences or field placements are designed to assist our students in developing a thorough understanding of teaching and learning as they apply knowledge from their coursework in varied school settings. Individualized guidance through our clinical framework provides our students with the support they need to be successful in today's rapidly evolving educational environment.

The MEd program in secondary education with teacher certification offers three options for students to earn a master's degree and Arizona teacher certification.

In the Masters and Arizona Certification (MAC) program, students take classes at an ASU campus two nights a week and are required to do a field experience one day per week for at least two semesters. During the last semester of the program, students complete a full-time student teaching experience in their content area.

The Induction, Master of Education and Arizona Certification (InMAC) program provides an alternative pathway to teacher certification for full-time teachers on a Teaching Intern certificate. To qualify, individuals must secure a full-time teaching position. The InMAC program also features a partnership with Teach For America. Participants take classes one night per week. The InMAC program supports individuals teaching in elementary, secondary and special education classrooms through coursework and supervised clinical experiences.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. A degree in education or another field related to applied behavior analysis is preferred.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- three letters of recommendation
- resume
- proof of English proficiency

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement should demonstrate the applicant's goals with respect to the program outcomes and success in a graduate and online program. The statement should also demonstrate high-quality writing and awareness that the student understands the demands of graduate school.

Three letters of recommendation from individuals who can speak to the applicant's potential for success in a graduate program are required for admission

Attend Online: ASU offers this program in an online format with multiple enrollment sessions throughout the year. Applicants may view the program description and request more information here. ## Special Education (Teacher Certification), MEd (TESECRTMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Special Education (Teacher Certification), MEd
Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

This program is for those seeking Arizona teacher certification in special education. The special education program builds strong connections between theory and practice through quality classroom instruction paired with extensive clinical experiences.

Students gain a strong foundation in teaching and content knowledge from experts in the field of education. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty actively engage in the educational research community and embed this vital knowledge throughout the program. This connection further empowers students to engage in their own research through the culminating action research applied project.

A series of clinical experiences or field placements are designed to assist students in developing a thorough understanding of teaching and learning as they apply knowledge from their coursework in varied school settings. Individualized guidance through our clinical framework provides students with the support they need to be successful in today's rapidly evolving educational environment.

The MEd program in special education with Arizona teacher certification offers two options for students to earn a master's degree and Arizona teacher certification: a mild-moderate track and a severe-profound track.

In the Master of Education and Arizona Certification (MAC) program, students take classes at an ASU campus two nights a week and are required to complete daytime field experiences for at least two semesters. During the last semester of the program, students complete a full-time split student teaching experience: half the semester in a special education classroom and the other half in an elementary classroom. Students in the MAC program receive dual Arizona teacher certification in the following teaching certificates: Mild-Moderate Disabilities Special Education, K-12 and Elementary Education, grades 1-8. The mild to moderate areas include forms of emotional, behavioral, learning, and orthopedic disabilities as well as intellectual disabilities and other health impairments.

The Induction, Master of Education and Arizona Certification (InMAC) program provides an alternative pathway to the Arizona teacher certification Mild-Moderate Disabilities Special Education, K-12, for full-time teachers on the teaching intern certificate. To qualify, individuals must secure a fulltime teaching position. The InMAC program also features a partnership with Teach For America. Participants take classes one night per week.

Degree Requirements:

33 credit hours including the required applied project course (SPE 593).

Required Core (12 credit hours)
EED 537 Mathematics Methods and Assessment (3)
SPE 501 Introduction to Research and Evaluation in Education (3)
SPE 538 Language and Literacy I (3)
SPE 575 Survey, Issues and Foundations for the Exceptional Student (3)

Track (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
SPE 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information
Students choose either the mild-moderate track, which has the options of the Masters and Arizona Certification (MAC) or Induction, Masters and Arizona Certification (InMAC) pathways; or the severe-profound track. Please note that students will take additional coursework for certification.

The applied project is completed during the student teaching or apprentice teaching experience.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of recommendation
- personal statement
- resume
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The letters of recommendation should be from individuals who can speak to the applicant's potential for success in a graduate program.

The personal statement should describe the applicant's interests and reason for seeking this degree.

GRE scores are not required for admission.

Minors (Program Descriptions and Requirements)

African and African American Studies Minor (LAAFRMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in African and African-American studies examines the culture, arts, history, politics, economics and current status of African-Americans, Africans and the African Diaspora, especially in the Caribbean, Central America and South America. The goal is to prepare students for lifelong learning, advanced study in a variety of fields and successful careers and productive public service in an increasingly diverse society, especially in Arizona.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires completion of 18 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level and a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for all courses.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours
AFR 200: Introduction to Africana Studies (SB & G & H) (3)

Elective Course (select one) -- 3 credit hours
AFR 300: Precolonial Africa (SB & G & H) (3)
AFR 301: Race and Racism in Africa/African Diaspora (SB & G) (3)
AFR 302: History of Black Women in America (SB & H) (3)
AFR 305: The Global History of the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade (SB & H) (3)

Electives -- 12 credit hours
AFR Upper Division Elective (12)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

American Studies Minor (ASAMSMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The American studies minor offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies gives students the opportunity to pursue an interest in the interdisciplinary study of American culture. This interdisciplinary minor is particularly appropriate for students majoring in one of the humanities or social sciences disciplines.

The minor in American studies consists of 18 credit hours. A minimum of 12 credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. Credit hours may not be shared between major and minor requirements. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Core Requirements -- 6 credit hours
AMS 201: Introduction to American Studies (L & C) (3)
HRC 200: Introduction to Social and Cultural Analysis (SB & C) (3)

Electives -- 12 credit hours
AMS 326: Popular Culture (3)
AMS 330: American Lives (HU & C) (3)
AMS 334: Class in America (SB) (3)
AMS 335: American Biography (3)
AMS 336 / ENG 334 / ETH 334: The American Southwest in Literature and Film ((L or HU) & C) (3)
AMS 353 / ENG 353 / ETH 353: African American Literature: Beginnings through the Harlem Renaissance ((L or HU) & C) (3)
AMS 354 / ENG 354 / ETH 354: African American Literature: Harlem Renaissance to the Present ((L or HU) & C) (3)

Anthropology Minor (LAASBMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The minor program in anthropology provides students with a great deal of flexibility in selecting courses. The program has been designed to allow students to focus on areas within the discipline that articulate well with their major. All students interested in the anthropology minor are encouraged to discuss the options available with a School of Human Evolution and Social Change undergraduate advisor.

The anthropology minor requires a minimum of 18 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be upper division. Only courses completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) can be used to fulfill minor requirements.

Required Introductory Courses (choose two) -- 6 credit hours
ASB 102: Introduction to Cultural Anthropology (SB & G) (3)
ASB 222: Buried Cities and Lost Tribes ((HU or SB) & H) or ASB 223: Aztecs, Incas and Mayas ((HU or SB) & G & H) (3)
ASM 104: Bones, Stones, and Human Evolution (SB or SG) (4)

Upper Division Subfield Courses -- 12 credit hours
Students choose 12 upper division credit hours from the subfields of archaeology, evolutionary anthropology and sociocultural anthropology (including linguistics). The particular required introductory courses selected may limit the courses available for use as subfield courses. At least two of the three subfields must be represented. (12)

Archaeology Subfield
ASB 301: Global History of Health (SB & G & H) (3)
ASB 335: Ancient Ruins of the Southwest (SB & H & C) (3)
ASB 337: Pyramids and Hieroglyphs: Life in Ancient Mesoamerica ((HU or SB) & G & H) (3)
ASB 368: Hunter-Gatherers (SB) (3)

Physical Subfield
ASB 301: Global History of Health (SB & G & H) (3)
ASB 368: Hunter-Gatherers (SB) (3)
ASM 345: Disease and Human Evolution (3)

Sociocultural Subfield
ASB 300: Food and Culture ((L or SB) & C) (3)
ASB 305: Poverty and Global Health ((L or SB) & G) (3)
ASB 316: Money and Culture (L or SB) (3)
ASB 327: Disaster! ((L or SB) & C) (3)
ASB 353: Death and Dying in Cross-Cultural Perspective ((HU or SB) & G) (3)
ASB 378: McGlobalization: Migration, Mass Media and McDonald's ((L or SB) & C) (3)
ASB 462: Medical Anthropology: Culture and Health (SB & C) (3)

Description:

The applied biological sciences minor is a rigorous and practical program. Consistent with a polytechnic vision, this minor involves extensive student interaction with faculty through experience-based learning activities, including:

- faculty-guided research and service-learning projects
- field trips
- internships
- laboratories

Mastery of fundamental biological principles is emphasized through quality learning in the classroom and hands-on activities in laboratories and in outdoor settings that include the Sonoran Desert, surrounding ecosystems and the landscape of the greater Phoenix area.

Program Requirements:

The applied biological sciences minor consists of 23 credit hours.

Applied Computing Minor (ASACOMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in applied computing offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences combines technical computing skills with an understanding of the impact of computer science in real-world contexts. Coursework in the applied computing minor provides a depth of knowledge in databases, networks and systems and gives students from other disciplines a computational component to their major field of study.
Computational and problem-solving skills are in high demand in a multitude of career fields including cybersecurity, web administration, education and telecommunications.

Program Requirements:

The minor in applied computing consists of a minimum of 15 credit hours. At least 9 credit hours must be upper division. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours
ACO 201: Data Structures and Algorithms (CS) (3)
ACO 240: Introduction to Programming Languages (3)
ACO 320: Database Systems (3)
ACO 330: Computer Networks (3)
ACO 350: Systems Programming (CS) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.50

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in applied computing

Other Enrollment Requirements: A "C" or better is required in ACO 102 Object-Oriented Programming and MAT 210 Brief Calculus in order to enroll in the required minor course, ACO 201.

Applied Mathematics Minor (LSAPMMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor in applied mathematics in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts at the Polytechnic campus is designed to enable students to understand and apply mathematics most commonly used in the fields of business, economics, engineering, physics, computer sciences, life sciences, social sciences and sustainability. The minor is recommended for students who plan to major in these diverse fields, are preparing for further graduate study or who wish for increased employment options. The coursework explores the study of advanced applied mathematical topics with an emphasis on applied sciences. Students with a minor in applied mathematics learn to use theories and techniques, such as mathematical modeling, computational methods and statistics to resolve practical, real-world problems.

Program Requirements:

The applied mathematics minor consists of 21 credit hours, including:
Required Courses -- 9 credit hours
MAT 265: Calculus for Engineers I (MA) or MAT 270: Calculus with Analytic Geometry I (MA) (3-4)
MAT 266: Calculus for Engineers II (MA) or MAT 271: Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (MA) (3-4)
MAT 275: Modern Differential Equations (MA) (3)

Electives -- 12 credit hours
MAT 267: Calculus for Engineers III (MA) or MAT 272: Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (MA) (3-4)
MAT 300: Mathematical Structures (L) (3)
MAT 310: Introduction to Geometry (3)

MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)
MAT 495: Supervised research in mathematical sciences (3)
MAT 499: Individualized Instruction (3)
STP 420: Introductory Applied Statistics (CS) (3)

At least six upper-division credit hours in elective courses must be offered by the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.
A minimum of 12 credit hours of the minor must be ASU credit
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00
Majors Ineligible to Add this Minor: None
Other Enrollment Requirements: MAT 170 or 171 with a " C " or better, OR Mathematics Placement Test with a score of 60 percent or higher and the Advanced Math Placement Test with a score of 38 or higher, OR ALEKS score of 76 or higher

Applied Psychology Minor (ECPSYMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

Americans spend more than 54 percent of their waking hours at work. As a result, students who want to make a real impact on peoples' lives are beginning to use industrial and organizational psychology to focus on the psychology of work. Industrial and organizational psychology helps employers identify the right job candidates to hire, determine the best job fit for each worker, and design enjoyable and effective workplaces, taking into account work-life balance. Finally, one specialty, human factors, focuses on designing tools and products that are easy to use and that reduce human error.

In addition to a strong educational foundation in human learning, memory, emotion, judgment and social psychology that prepares students for employment or graduate school, students can choose to focus in two of the following five focus areas:

- consumer psychology
- human resources and organizational behavior
- human systems engineering
- learning technology
- user experience

Program Requirements:

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00 and at least junior status.

Other Enrollment Requirements: Interested students should consult with a Polytechnic School advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. To schedule an advising appointment, go to https://fultonapps.asu.edu/advising (https://fultonapps.asu.edu/advising).

Arabic Studies Minor (LAARBMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor program in Arabic studies provides students with instruction in Modern Standard Arabic as well as Arab culture and literature. Students who successfully complete the prescribed coursework of the Arabic minor are expected to be able to communicate effectively in Arabic and interact with native speakers of the language. Students will be able to communicate in Arabic in the other two areas of language acquisition as well, reading and writing, through reading authentic material in Arabic and writing paragraphs in Modern Standard Arabic.

Literature courses expand students' knowledge in Arabic, the Middle East and Islamic culture and civilization. Students of all academic disciplines doing research or seeking employment in areas related to the Middle East or other parts of the Arab world will find the minor in Arabic highly beneficial.

Students are encouraged to participate in a study abroad program to enhance their education and overall minor experience. Students should visit https://mystudyabroad.asu.edu (https://mystudyabroad.asu.edu) for more information.

Program Requirements:

The minor in Arabic studies requires 26 credit hours of courses detailed below. A minimum grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in each course. Course substitutions are allowed for heritage and advanced speakers of the language.

Required Courses -- 23 credit hours
ARB 201: Intermediate Arabic I (G) (4)
ARB 202: Intermediate Arabic II (G) (4)
ARB 311: Advanced Arabic Skills I (3)

Architectural Studies Minor (ARSTDMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The architectural studies minor is available to nonarchitecture majors interested in this field. The courses are designed to provide an overview of architecture throughout history while focusing on architectural design, with the intention to explore the process of design thinking.

Program Requirements:

A minimum of 18 credit hours (to include 12 credit hours of upper-division course work) are required for the minor. A minimum grade of " C " ( 2.00 ) is required in all classes for the minor.
A minimum GPA of 2.50 in minor courses is required to earn the minor in architectural studies.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
ALA 100: Introduction to Environmental Design (HU & H & G) (3)
ALA 102: Landscapes and Sustainability (HU & G) (3)
APH 313: History of Architecture I ((L or HU) & G & H) (3)
APH 314: History of Architecture II ((L or HU) & G & H) (3)

Architectural History and Theory -- 6 credit hours
Six additional upper-division credit hours of electives in the architectural history and theory concentration must be selected from the following list:
ANP 494: Special Topics (3)
APH 394: Special Topics (3)
APH 405: Contemporary Architecture and Urbanism 1970 to the Present (HU & H) (3)
APH 414: Great Cities ((L or HU) & H) (3)
APH 421: First Concepts: What is... The Writing, Philosophy, and Culture of Architecture (L or HU) (3)
APH 441: Ancient Arch (3)
APH 494: Special Topics (3)
APH 499: Individualized Instruction (1-3)
Notes: APH 499 requires a petition to The Design School.
ARP 451: Architecture Field Studies (1-6)
ATE 494: Special Topics (3) minor.

Art History Minor (FAARTHMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The art history minor is designed for students who are interested in a broad introduction to the study of the history of art. In giving a broad chronological exposure to the history of art from diverse cultures, the minor program strengthens academic preparation and provides students with many options to select courses based on their individual interests.

Program Requirements:

The School of Art offers a minor in art history consisting of 18 credit hours of course work, including 12 upper-division electives. A minimum grade of "C" (2.00) is required in all classes for the minor. For those pursuing a minor, a minimum overall GPA of " C " (2.00) is required. Courses may not be double counted in a major and the minor, and a minimum of 12 credit hours of resident credit at ASU are required.

ARS 100 and ARS 300 may not be used toward an art history minor if the student has credit in ARS 101 and ARS 102. If a student has completed ARS 100 or ARS 300, then they must complete ARS 201 and ARS 202 instead of ARS 101 and 102.

Core Courses -- 6 credit hours
ARS 101: Art from Prehistory Through Middle Ages (HU & H) (3)
ARS 102: Art from Renaissance to Modernism (HU & H) (3)

Art History Upper Division Courses -- 12 credit hours
ARS Upper Division Elective (12)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BA in art (art history)

Asian Languages (Chinese) Minor (LACHIMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Students pursuing a minor in Asian languages (Chinese) gain an understanding of the language, literature and cultures of China. Students are encouraged to participate in a study abroad program to enhance their education and overall minor experience. Highly motivated students interested in learning Chinese to professional-level proficiency, while simultaneously pursuing the Asian languages (Chinese) minor and undergraduate major of their choice, are encouraged to apply to the Chinese Language Flagship Program: https://international.clas.asu.edu/chineseflagship (https://international.clas.asu.edu/chineseflagship).

Program Requirements:

The minor in Asian languages (Chinese) consists of 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper-division.
Course substitutions are allowed for heritage and advanced speakers of the language.

Required Courses -- 16 credit hours
CHI 201: Second-Year Chinese I (G) AND CHI 202: Second-Year Chinese II (G) (6)
Notes: Both second-year Chinese courses grant 5 credit-hours each. The extra 4 credits earned will be applied to the 120 credit hours minimum for graduation.
CHI 301: Third-Year Chinese I (G) (5)
CHI 302: Third-Year Chinese II (G) (5)

Upper-division CHI Coursework -- 2 credit hours
All of the upper-division CHI courses in this list are 3 credit hours. The extra 1 credit earned will be applied to the 45 minimum upper-division credit hours requirement.
CHI 307: Introduction to Literary Chinese I (HU) (3)
CHI 308: Introduction to Literary Chinese II (HU) (3)
CHI 321: Chinese Literature (HU) (3)
CHI 322: Chinese Literature (HU & G) (3)
CHI 333: China (SB & H) (3)
CHI 335: History of Chinese Medicine (HU & H & G) (3)
CHI 336: Interpreting China's Classics ((L or HU) & H) (3)

Asian Pacific American Studies Minor (LAAPAMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The Asian Pacific American studies minor program focuses on the long history and rich contemporary experiences, cultures and communities of Asian Pacific Americans in the Southwest. This minor will benefit students pursuing careers involving the complex and rapidly changing Asian American and Pacific Islander populations and other culturally diverse populations.

Program Requirements:

The minor in Asian Pacific American studies requires a total of 18 credit hours, including six credit hours of core courses and 12 elective credit hours selected from courses with the APA prefix. A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken in residency at ASU. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours
APA 200: Introduction to Asian Pacific American Studies ((HU or SB) & C) (3)
APA 360: Asian Pacific American Experience ((HU or SB) & C) (3)

Elective Courses (Choose four) -- 12 credit hours
APA 210: Introduction to Ethnic Studies in the U.S. (C) (3)
APA 310: Asian Pacific American Arts and Cultures (HU & C) (3)
APA 315: Asian Pacific American Literature (HU & C) (3)
APA 330: Asian Pacific American Genders and Sexualities ((L or SB) & C) (3)
APA 340: Asian Pacific Americans and Media (HU & C) (3)
APA 345: Asian Pacific Americans and Film (HU & C & H) (3)
APA 360: Special Topics (3)
APA 450: Asian Pacific American Contemporary Issues (SB & C) (3)
APA 484: Internship (3)
APA 499: Individualized Instruction (3)

A minimum of nine credit hours must be upper-division course work.
No course may be used to satisfy more than one requirement in the minor.
APA 360 Asian Pacific American Experience is required for the core. The course may be repeated for APA elective credit under different topics. APA 450 is repeatable for APA elective credit provided the course topics are different.
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Astronomy Minor (LAASTMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The astronomy minor is designed for students interested in developing a basic understanding of astronomy and astrophysics and in analyzing issues through a scientific viewpoint.

Program Requirements:

The minor in astronomy consists of a minimum of 24 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be upper-division courses. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Courses -- 8 credit hours
AST 113: Astronomy Laboratory I (SQ) (1)
AST 114: Astronomy Laboratory II (SQ) (1)
AST 321: Introduction to Planetary and Stellar Astrophysics (SQ) (3)
AST 322: Introduction to Galactic and Extragalactic Astrophysics (SQ) (3)

Physics Core -- 8 credit hours
PHY 150: Physics I (SQ) or PHY 121: University Physics I: Mechanics (SQ) AND PHY 122: University Physics Laboratory I (SQ) (4)
PHY 151: Physics II (SQ) or PHY 131: University Physics II: Electricity and Magnetism (SQ) AND PHY 132: University Physics Laboratory II (SQ) or
PHY 252: Physics III (SQ) (4)
Student must complete two semesters of physics

Electives -- 8 credit hours
AST OR MAT OR PHY OR SES Upper Division Elective (8)
Eight upper division credit hours of electives are chosen in consultation with an academic advisor in the School of Earth and Space Exploration In order to satisfy SQ natural science general studies requirements, both a lecture and its corresponding laboratory section must be completed. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:  GPA Requirement: None

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in earth and space exploration (astrophysics); BA in physics; BS in physics

Students interested in adding a minor in astronomy should contact an advisor in the School of Earth and Space Exploration to get information about the minor. Students will then work with the advisor in their major to have the minor officially added to their program.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Astrophysics Minor (LAASTPHMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The astrophysics minor is designed for students interested in developing a background in the theoretical modeling and observational techniques of galactic and stellar astronomy, extragalactic astronomy and cosmology. Students completing the minor will be able to think critically about scientific problems, reducing complex problems to their most important attributes, and to design experiments, observations and theoretical models that address those attributes. Students pursuing an astrophysics minor are expected to have a strong background in physics and mathematics.

Program Requirements:

The minor in astrophysics consists of a minimum of 20 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be upper division. Students complete 12 credit hours of required course work and select one of three eight-credit hour options to complete the minor. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
AST 321: Introduction to Planetary and Stellar Astrophysics (SQ) (3)
AST 322: Introduction to Galactic and Extragalactic Astrophysics (SQ) (3)
AST 421: Astrophysics I (3)
AST 422: Astrophysics II (3)

Electives Options -- 8 credit hours
Choose one of the following options for the additional eight credit hours. (8)

Option 1
SES 121: Earth, Solar System and Universe (SQ) (3)
SES 122: History of the Earth and Solar System (3)
SES 123: Earth, Solar System and Universe Laboratory (SQ) (1)
SES 124: History of the Earth and Solar System Laboratory (1)

Option 2
AST 111: Introduction to Solar Systems Astronomy (SQ) (3)
AST 112: Introduction to Stars, Galaxies, and Cosmology (SQ) (3)
AST 113: Astronomy Laboratory I (SQ) (1)
AST 114: Astronomy Laboratory II (SQ) (1)

Option 3
AST OR MAT OR PHY OR SES Upper Division Elective (8)

In order to satisfy SQ natural science requirements, both a lecture and its corresponding laboratory section must be completed.
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Biochemistry Minor (LABCHMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The biochemistry minor is designed to give students majoring in other disciplines a solid grounding in the basics of biochemistry to complement their major degree program. It is especially appropriate for students whose majors are in the various disciplines of life sciences, physics, engineering and geology and for students planning careers in the fields of medicine and health.

Program Requirements:

The minor in biochemistry comprises 28 credit hours of required courses, of which at least 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level. Six of the twelve upper division credit hours must be from courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 28 credit hours
BCH 341: Physical Chemistry with a Biological Focus (3)
Notes: Prerequisites for BCH 341 include CHM 114, 116 or 118 with " C " or better; CHM 231, 233 or 333 with " C " or better; MAT 251 , 265 or 270 with "C" or better; and PHY 101, 112 or 131 with " C " or better.

BCH 461: General Biochemistry (3)
BCH 462: General Biochemistry (3)
BCH 467: Analytical Biochemistry Laboratory (L) (3)
CHM 113: General Chemistry I (SQ) OR CHM 117: General Chemistry for Majors I (SQ) AND CHM 111: General Chemistry Laboratory for Majors I (SQ) (4)
Notes: Students completing CHM 117 must also complete its corresponding CHM 111 lab.
CHM 116: General Chemistry II (SQ) OR CHM 118: General Chemistry for Majors II (SQ) AND CHM 112: General Chemistry Laboratory for Majors II (SQ) (4)
Notes: Students completing CHM 118 must also complete its corresponding CHM 112 lab.
CHM 233: General Organic Chemistry I (3)
CHM 234: General Organic Chemistry II (3)
CHM 237: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory I (1)
CHM 238: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory II (1)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in applied biological sciences (all concentrations); BS in biochemistry (medicinal chemistry); BS in chemistry (environmental chemistry); BS in forensics; BS in health sciences preprofessional; BS in human nutrition and nutrition; BS in biochemistry; BA in biochemistry; BS in chemistry; BA in chemistry

Biological Sciences Minor (LABIOMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Biological science encompasses the study of all living things and includes the study of basic organization and function, how organisms evolve, their roles in the natural environment, how hereditary information is transferred and the development of biotechnology. The biological sciences minor is designed to provide students interested in the field with a flexible curriculum that can be tailored to their interests.

Program Requirements:

The minor in biological sciences requires a minimum of 24 credit hours, of which at least 12 credit hours must be upper-division. At least six of the upper-division credit hours must be from courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Students choose one of two options. The remaining elective credit hours may be chosen from those courses in the life sciences that can be used toward the majors offered by the school. Internship courses cannot be used.

Option 1 -- 15 credit hours
BIO 281: Conceptual Approaches to Biology for Majors I (SQ) (4)
BIO 282: Conceptual Approaches to Biology for Majors II (4)
BIO 340: General Genetics (4)
BIO 345: Evolution (3)

Option 2 -- 16 credit hours
BIO 281: Conceptual Approaches to Biology for Majors I (SQ) (4)
BIO 282: Conceptual Approaches to Biology for Majors II (4)
BIO 340: General Genetics (4)
MIC 206: Microbiology Laboratory (SG) (1)
MIC 220: Biology of Microorganisms (3)

BIO or MIC electives -- 9 credit hours
BIO or MIC electives (#trackgroup) (9)
Students choosing Option 1 will complete nine credit hours in electives selected from the BIO or MIC prefixes, at least five credit hours of which must be upper division.
Students choosing Option 2 will complete eight credit hours of BIO or MIC electives, all of which must be upper division credit hours.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Biology Minor (ASLSCMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

A minor in biology can be a valuable asset, particularly when paired with an appropriate major. For instance, a minor in biology paired with a major in political science would provide a good background for someone who wanted to practice environmental law.

Program Requirements:

The minor in biology consists of 28 credit hours. A minimum of eight upper division credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. Course work taken to fulfill the requirements of the minor my not be used to fulfill requirements for your major. Consult with an academic advisor prior to enrollment. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a " C " (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 28 credit hours
BIO 181: General Biology I (SQ) (4)
BIO 182: General Biology II (SG) (4)
BIO 320: Fundamentals of Ecology AND LSC 322: Fundamentals of Ecology Laboratory (4)
BIO 353: Cell Biology AND BIO 354: Cell Biology Laboratory (4)
CHM 113: General Chemistry I (SQ) (4)
CHM 116: General Chemistry II (SQ) (4)
LSC 347: Fundamentals of Genetics AND LSC 348: Fundamentals of Genetics Laboratory (4)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Business Minor (BABUSMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

A minor in business is available to students who are interested in business courses but wish to pursue majors in other colleges. The courses available for the minor are designed to appeal to and inform the nonbusiness student while covering a broad range of topics that are important to managers, such as:

- accounting
- computer information systems
- economics
- finance
- management
- marketing
- supply chain management

Program Requirements:

Students must complete 18 credit hours (12 of which must be upper division) of the specified business courses with a grade of " C " (2.00) or higher in each course. At least 12 credit hours must be taken at ASU.
No more than 6 credit hours can share between the minor and other business certificates and minors.
The upper-division courses specified for the minor will be restricted to students with 56 earned credit hours and a minimum 2.00 ASU cumulative GPA.
Business students are not eligible to apply for the minor. Economics majors must use ECN 212 in their degree and will take an additional elective to replace ECN 212 in the minor.

Chemistry Minor (ASCHMMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor program in chemistry offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences gives students expanded proficiency in the area of chemistry. Many of the growing career fields, such as forensic sciences, medicine and environmental quality, require a greater degree of chemistry than in the past. Therefore, students with a greater chemistry background have a competitive advantage in these fields. The chemistry minor gives students more experience in the advanced and integrative fields of chemistry through additional biochemistry and analytical chemistry courses. The awarding of the chemistry minor highlights the students' expanded chemistry knowledge to future schools and employers.

Program Requirements:

The minor in chemistry consists of 25 credit hours. A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken through the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a " C " (2.00).

Required Courses -- 25 credit hours
BCH 371: Modern Concepts in Biochemistry AND BCH 372: Modern Concepts in Biochemistry Laboratory (4)
CHM 113: General Chemistry I (SQ) (4)
CHM 116: General Chemistry II (SQ) (4)
CHM 233: General Organic Chemistry I AND CHM 237: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory I (4)
CHM 234: General Organic Chemistry II AND CHM 238: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory II (4)
LSC 425: Analytical Chemistry for Life Sciences AND LSC 426: Analytical Chemistry for Life Sciences Lab (5)

Criminology and Criminal Justice Minor (PPCRJMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Description:

The minor in criminology and criminal justice allows students in other undergraduate programs at ASU to explore issues of crime, law and the criminal justice system. The program provides students with the tools to analyze complex issues and policies within the criminal justice system, enhancing students' ability to understand the nature of crime and the system response to law breaking. In addition to the three required courses which provide a solid understanding of the field, each student selects electives to meet his or her specific interests. Criminal justice majors cannot earn a minor in criminal justice.

Program Requirements:

Program Requirements

1. at minimum, be in junior standing to take upper-division courses.
2. complete CRJ 100 as the prerequisite for all upper-division CRJ courses.
3. complete a minimum of 18 credit hours of graded classroom and online course work (internship or independent study not applicable).
4. complete a minimum of 12 credit hours of CRJ resident credit at ASU.
5. earn a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher for all classes in the minor.
6. meet with a criminal justice advisor prior to registration.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours
CRJ 100: Introduction to Criminal Justice (SB) (3)
CRJ 225: Introduction to Criminology (SB) (3)

Choose one of the following -- 3 credit hours
CRJ 203: Courts and Sentencing (3)
CRJ 230: Introduction to Policing (3)
CRJ 240: Introduction to Corrections (3)

Choose one of the following -- 3 credit hours
CRJ 305: Gender, Crime, and Criminal Justice (C) (3)
CRJ 306: Race, Ethnicity, Crime, and Criminal Justice (C) (3)

CRJ Electives -- 6 credit hours
CRJ Upper Division Elective (6)
Notes: Choose any two CRJ courses at the 300- or higher level.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: minimum 2.00 GPA

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in criminology and criminal justice; BS in public service and public policy with the following concentrations: criminology, law and policy, or emergency management and homeland security

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Applicants are asked to meet with a criminal justice advisor prior to registration.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Design Studies Minor (ARDSNMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Students interested in design can earn a minor in design studies. This minor in design studies is a nonstudio-based program of study in design that focuses on the design disciplines offered in the ASU Herberger Institute:

- architectural studies
- graphic design
- industrial design
- interior design
- landscape architecture

The courses may also appeal to students who wish to pursue the study of design within the BA in interdisciplinary studies.

Program Requirements:

Courses selected must satisfy the minimum requirement of 18 credit hours for the minor. Twelve of the credit hours must be in 300 -level or $400-$ level course work; the 18 credits may be chosen from any of the categories. To enhance understanding of the subject matter, some of the designated courses are sequential in nature and require certain prerequisites. Consequently, students should carefully note the semester in which these particular courses are offered. All designated courses for the minor in design studies are lecture courses. To pursue the minor in design studies, students must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50.

Digital Audiences Minor (CSDAUMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Description:

The minor program in digital audiences aims to answer the following questions: Who are digital consumers? How can we measure them? And how can we use what we know to better engage and grow audiences?

By exploring the users of websites, social networks and apps and applying skills such as analytics, social media execution, network analysis, search engine optimization and search engine marketing, students who pursue the digital audiences minor gain a rich understanding of how to acquire and engage audiences.

The program uses real cases from real brands and organizations to explore tools from Google Analytics to Facebook Audience Insights, and tactics from hashtag analysis to competitive keyword research. Upon completion, students have the skills to strategically grow digital audiences and harness analytics to drive organizational change.

Program Requirements:

Students must complete MCO 307 first. In order to enroll in the course, students must have a 2.00 cumulative GPA.
To be awarded the minor, students must earn a " C " or better in all courses.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours
MCO 307: The Digital Audience (3)
MCO 436: Audience Research and Behavior (3)
MCO 437: Audience Acquisition and Engagement (3)
MCO 438: Digital Audience Analysis (3)
MCO 439: Digital Audience Growth (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Digital Culture Minor (HIDGCMIN)
Campus: Tempe

Description:

The digital culture minor allows students to enhance their program of study with integrated, interdisciplinary training in creative processes and technical skills in new media with cultural applications. Students develop both the technical skills to create computational media and the cultural skills to know when or why to apply them. Students in the digital culture minor learn to:

- Create computational media: computation combined with objects, sound, video, time, space, culture and bodies.
- Breathe behavior into media, objects or systems by programming
- Think critically about how computation impacts our lives, and how culture makes a difference in how people experience computational media, a critical skill in the dynamic 21st century.

Armed with skills and judgment, digital culture graduates work in cultural communication, marketing, design, social media, health, education, entertainment and creative arts, and all areas in which culture is shaped by technology and computational media. All digital culture students gain techniques to change the world and communicate using contemporary computational media, a vital power in the 21 st century. Some students go on to invent fresh techniques.

Program Requirements:

Educational Studies Minor (TEEDSTMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Description:

Learning happens everywhere and at all ages. The Educational studies minor prepares graduates to work with children, youth and adults in nonprofit settings, community institutions, civic organizations and businesses. It provides a foundation for students to shape the role of education in society and the act of learning.

Students interested in career and technical education certificates can use the educational studies minor to meet coursework requirements for the Career and Technical Education certificate. Additional requirements for the CTE certificate, including work experience, are not included in the minor. Students interested in obtaining the CTE certificate should refer to the Arizona Department of Education website for further information.

Program Requirements:

The minor in educational studies requires a minimum of 18 credit hours, to include six lower-division credits and 12 upper-division credits from one of the following focus areas: learning and instruction, learning in the community, physical activity, or general overview of education.

Engineering Management Minor (ESENMMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The minor program in engineering management is designed to provide students with the skills for effective management and leadership of engineering-driven enterprises. The minor curriculum supplements the student's major by adding to the breadth of engineering science and design and equipping the student with additional management and design skills. This knowledge is augmented with an understanding of business practices, organizational behavior and management skills to enable the student to succeed in the management of a scientific or engineering enterprise. Topics such as project and resource management, financial engineering, risk management, configuration management, service plans, product liability, entrepreneurship and operations management are covered, in addition to product design and process development.

Program Requirements:

Prior to enrolling in the minor, students must have completed MAT 265 and MAT 266 (or an equivalent calculus sequence) with a grade of C or better in each.
The program of study for a minor in engineering management requires a minimum of 18 credit hours. Note that industrial engineering or engineering management majors will NOT be eligible for the minor.

The minor requires completion of four core courses ( 12 credit hours) and two elective courses (six credit hours) for a total of 18 credit hours. All courses must be passed with a "C" or better. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in residency at ASU or through ASU Online. The required core courses include:

Core Courses -- 12 credit hours
IEE 220: Business and Industrial Engineering or IEE 380: Probability and Statistics for Engineering Problem Solving (CS) (3)
Notes: Students whose major requires IEE 380 Probability and Statistics for Engineering Problem Solving (3) will need to take IEE 220 Business and Industrial Engineering (3) for the engineering management minor.
IEE 300: Economic Analysis for Engineers (3)
IEE 431: Engineering Administration (L) (3)
IEE 458: Project Management or CEE 481: Civil Engineering Project Management (3)
Notes: CEE 481 may not be used for both the civil engineering degree (major) and the engineering management minor.

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours
IEE 369: Work Analysis and Design (L) (3)
IEE 376: Operations Research Deterministic Techniques/Applications (3)
IEE 381: Lean Six Sigma Methodology (3)
IEE 412: Introduction to Financial Engineering (3)
IEE 454: Risk Management (3)
IEE 456: Introduction to Systems Engineering (3)
IEE 474: Quality Control (3)
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: Prior to enrolling in the minor, students must have completed MAT 265 and MAT 266 (or an equivalent calculus sequence) with a grade of " C " or better in each.

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BSE in engineering management and BSE in industrial engineering
Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Interested students should consult with a School of Computing, Informatics and Decision Systems Engineering advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. ## English Minor (ASENGMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in English is an ideal choice for students who enjoy English and desire to become better writers, readers and thinkers. The program requirements ground students in the basics of literary and cultural study, and the distribution area requirement allows for a range of course offerings in linguistics, rhetoric, and literature. With its emphasis on critical reading and writing skills, the English minor is the perfect complement to any major.

Program Requirements:

The minor in English requires a minimum of 21 credit hours, of which 15 credit hours must be upper division. Students must complete a minimum of six upper division credit hours in courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. At least six credit hours of Distribution coursework must be at the 400 level. Students may, once only, use one course to satisfy two distribution requirements. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours
ENG 200: Critical Reading and Writing About Literature (L or HU) (3)

Distribution Cluster Requirement -- 15 credit hours
Select one course from each distribution cluster. Fifteen credits are required, and at least two courses, for six upper-division credits, must be at the 400 level. Students may, once only, use one course to satisfy two distribution requirements.
Special topics courses taken for distribution cluster must focus explicitly on the subject of the cluster in order to satisfy requirements. See academic advisor prior to enrollment.

Environmental and Resource Management Minor (ESERMMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor program in environmental and resource management provides students with a thorough introduction to environmental regulations and key environmental management issues such as the provision of clean, potable water, wastewater treatment, solid and hazardous waste management, as well as remediation technologies for polluted soils, groundwater and air. Students learn to apply basic science and engineering principles to solving problems that significantly impact human health and ecosystems.

The environmental and resource management minor program provides a valuable option to other majors that focus on environmental issues whether from a technical or policy perspective. The courses form a coherent whole and demonstrate the connection between science, engineering, public policy and the law.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires completion of four core courses ( 12 credit hours) and one elective course (three credit hours) for a total of 15 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in residency at ASU.

The following are required courses that must be completed with a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher:

Core Courses -- 12 credit hours
ERM 201: Environmental Management (3)
ERM 203: Environmental Regulations (3)
ERM 302: Water and Wastewater Treatment Technology (3)
ERM 402: Unit Treatment Technologies (3)

Elective Course -- 3 credit hours
ERM 401: Hazardous Waste Management (3)
ERM 406: Environmental Chemistry (3)
ERM 407: Occupational Hygiene (3)
ERM 426: Environmental Issues (3)
ERM 428: International Environmental Management (G) (3)
ERM 432: Sustainable Solid Waste Management (3)
ERM 494: Environmental Health (3)
ERM 494: Environmental Management Leadership (3)
ERM 494: Tribal Environ & Natural Resources Management (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: minimum 2.00 GPA

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in environmental and resource management

Other Enrollment Requirements:

Interested students must have at least sophomore status. Students should consult with a Polytechnic School advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. ## Fashion Minor (HIFSHMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The fashion minor program offers grounding in the history, social context and economics of the contemporary fashion industry. Students also have the option of pursuing more focused classes designed to introduce students to a variety of roles in this important industry: fashion history, fashion industry business practices, and fashion design and production. Among the subjects that may be related to the students' majors are marketing and merchandising, costuming, wearable technology, sustainability, management and leadership, international experience and fashion and culture. Due to the relationship of these subjects to a wide variety of on-campus disciplines, students from many parts of the university can supplement their major with closely related fashion minor classes, creating a strong foundation for a variety of careers. Opportunities for internships and study abroad could further advance students' professional goals. Through the leadership of well-known fashion industry professionals, the minor in fashion at ASU will be connected globally to leaders in the industry.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

An ASU student who is pursuing a degree at any ASU campus may elect to add a minor offered at any other ASU campus.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Human Systems Engineering Minor (ESHSEMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor program in human systems engineering in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering provides students with an understanding of the science of human performance and with experience, using methods and tools that will enable them to apply their understanding to design and problem-solving. These skills can be used in a wide variety of domains, such as product usability, learning design, sports performance, and workplace and hospital safety.

A broad range of professions need experts in human factors to work on problems that involve an understanding of human performance. Interest areas include user experience, aviation human factors, cognitive performance, consumer psychology, transportation human factors, patient safety, effective teamwork, health psychology, learning optimization, social cognition, threat detection and sports psychology.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 21 credit hours. All required minor courses must be passed with a " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours
HSE 101: Introduction to Human Systems Engineering (SB) (3)
HSE 225: Human Systems Integration (3)
HSE 230: Statistics for Human Systems Research I (CS) (3)
HSE 290: Experimental Methods for Human Systems Research (L) (3)
HSE 323: Perceptual Systems (SB) or HSE 324: Applied Cognitive Science (SB) (3)
HSE 325: Human-Computer Interaction (3)

Elective Course -- 3 credit hours
HSE 422: Human Factors in Sport (3)
HSE 423: Human Factors in Transportation (3)
HSE 424: Human Automation Interaction (3)
HSE 425: Human Factors in Medical Systems (3)
HSE 426: Training and Expertise (3)
HSE 427: Designing for Learning (3)
HSE 428: Judgment and Decision Making (3)
HSE 429: Product Design and Evaluation (3)

Innovation in Society Minor (FIFISMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor program in innovation in society equips students with the tools needed to analyze how science, technology and other social forces shape our present and future. Students cultivate the critical-thinking skills needed to develop creative strategies that steer innovation towards the needs and values of society. Students are trained to synthesize research and theory from the social sciences, humanities, natural sciences and engineering so they can develop proposals for how to build better futures. It will enable students to understand the broader context of their major and help them to bridge those studies with other disciplines to develop more encompassing solutions to important problems.

Integrative Social Science Minor (LSISSMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor program in integrative social science is designed to provide general education in the social sciences for individuals who desire exposure to the variety of theories and methods of social scientists. The minor is useful to engineers, technologists and other professionals whose specialized education may not have given them access to social science research theories and methodologies, although their professional activities demand knowledge of those tools. The minor may also be pursued by any individual for general knowledge.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 18 credit hours. All students must complete the 15 credit hours of required courses and 3 credits from the list of electives.

Because of their specific design for this particular minor, required courses for the 15 credit hours cannot be substituted. All courses used to meet the three-credit hour elective component must be upper-division (numbered 300- to 400-level). Transfer hours cannot be used to meet the requirements for the 15 credit hours of courses required.
Required Courses -- 15 credit hours
ISS 301: Integrated Social Science Research Methods (SB) (3)
ISS 302: Scope of Social Science (SB) (3)
ISS 304: Integrated Theories of Social Science (SB) (3)
ISS 401: Statistics for Integrated Social Science (3)
STS 304: Science, Technology, and Society (SB) (3)

Interior Design History Minor (ARINTMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in interior design history is available to students interested in design and culture. The courses designated for the minor are part of the professional studies in interior design environments and serve to inform students about the evolution of interiors, furnishings and decorative arts from ancient Egypt to the present. The coursework introduces theories informing the profession of interior design, while also examining cultures from around the globe, as they influence human needs and behaviors in the living and working environment.

Program Requirements:

A minimum of 18 credit hours ( 12 credit hours of which must be from the 300 or 400 level) are required for the minor. A minimum grade of " C " ( 2.00 ) is required in all classes for the minor. To enhance the understanding of the subject matter, the selected courses are sequential in nature and require certain prerequisites. Consequently, students should carefully note the semester in which any of these courses are offered. A minimum GPA of 2.50 in minor courses is required to earn the minor in Interior Design History.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
DSC 101: Design Awareness (HU & G) (3)
INT 111: Interior Design Issues and Theories (HU) (3)
INT 310: History of Interior Design I (HU & H) (3)
Notes: INT 310 requires a prerequisite of ARS 102 Art from Renaissance to Modernism with a C or better.
INT 311: History of Interior Design II (HU & H) (3)

Description:

The minor in landscape studies is designed for students who have an interest in landscape architecture but are pursuing a major in another field The course selection is intended to provide greater understanding of landscape architecture issues that may be relevant in related professional disciplines and to broaden knowledge about the landscape in which we live

Program Requirements:

A minimum of 18 credit hours (to include 12 credit hours of upper-division course work) are required for the minor. A minimum grade of " C " ( 2.00 ) is required in all classes for the minor.
A minimum GPA of 2.50 in minor courses is required to earn the minor in landscape studies.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
ALA 102: Landscapes and Sustainability (HU & G) (3)
LAP 254: Plant Materials (3)
LPH 310: History of Landscape Architecture (HU & H) (3)
LPH 311: 20th-Century Landscape Architecture (HU) (3)

Landscape Architectural History and Theory -- 6 credit hours
Six additional upper division credit hours of electives in the landscape architecture history and theory concentration must be selected from the following list:
LAP 352: Ecosystems and Sustainable Design (3)
LAP 485: International Field Studies (1-6)
LAP 494: Special Topics (3)
LDE 494: Applied Landscape Architecture (3)
LPH 394: Special Topics (3)
LPH 411: Landscape Architecture Theory and Criticism (L) (3)
LPH 494: Special Topics (3)
LPH 499: Individualized Instruction (1-3)
Notes: LPH 499 requires a petition to The Design School.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.50

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Latin American Studies Minor (ASLASMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in Latin American studies is designed for students who have an interest in becoming proficient in Spanish and who wish to carry out work and research in areas not related exclusively to literature. This program offers a learner-driven model in which the student's specific interests are deepened through the study of Latin America. It is transdisciplinary and allows for flexibility in course selection, while also instilling a breadth and depth of knowledge about issues surrounding Latin America. Students who pursue this minor are widely marketable upon graduation for fields as diverse as business, arts administration, teaching, nonprofit organizations, health care and the sciences.

Program Requirements:

The minor in Latin American studies consists of 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper division. A minimum of six upper division courses must be taken from the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies and a minimum of 12 credit hours must be completed at ASU. Students must demonstrate Spanish language proficiency by meeting the prerequisites of the upper division Latin American elective courses, one of which must be taught in Spanish, or by taking Spanish language classes up through SPA 325. All courses used to satisfy the requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Core Requirements -- 9 credit hours
LAS 205: Deep Roots: Latin America (HU & G) (3)
LAS 206: Locating Latin America:Interdisciplinary Methods (3)
LAS 330: From the Inside: The Latin American Journey (HU) (3)

Latin American Studies Electives -- 9 credit hours
Choose three upper-division courses from Latin American elective courses below, one of which must be taught in Spanish (courses with a SPA prefix are taught in Spanish). Special topics courses require academic approval prior to enrollment to ensure the course is taught in Spanish.
AMS 330: American Lives (HU & C) (3)
AMS 428: Chicano Cultures in the Southwest (SB) (3)
AMS 450 / ETH 450 / LAS 450: Latina/os, Schooling and Social Inequality (C) (3)
ASB 342 / SBS 342 / SOC 342: Mexico-U.S. Borderlands (SB & C) (3)
ETH 430 / LAS 430 / WST 430: Gender on the Borderlands (SB & G) (3)
ETH 473 / LAS 473 / WST 473: Indigenous and Latina/Chicana Representation (SB & C) (3)
HST 305: Studies in Latin American History (SB & H) (3)
HST 375: Colonial Latin America (SB & H) (3)
HST 376: Modern Latin America (SB & H) (3)
HST 404: Conquest and Encounters in Colonial Latin America (L & G) (3)
HST 441: Latin America and the World Economy (L & G & H) (3)
IAP 305: 20th and 21st Century Art, Performance, and Media (L or HU) (3)
IAP 473: Aesthetic Research (L or HU) (3)
IAP 474: Art and Film (L or HU) (3)
IAS 406 / PHI 406: Moral Dilemmas (L or HU) (3)
LAS 340 / WST 341: Latin American Women Writers (3)
LAS 350: The Construction of a Nation: Chile in the 20th/21st Century (3)
LAS 351: Cityscapes: Urban Mexican Literature and Culture (3)
LAS 355: Contemporary Mexican Cinema: Changing Cartographies (3)
LAS 471: Treaties and Cultural Production in Spain and the Americas (3)

LAS 480: Current Trends in Theatre and New Media in Latin America and Spain (HU) (3)
LAS 481: Dictatorships and Dirty Wars: Latin American Cinema from Resistance to Reconciliation (HU & G) (3)
PHI 306: Applied Ethics (HU) (3)
PHI 360: Business and Professional Ethics (HU) (3)
POS 354: Central American Studies (SB & G) (3)
POS 454: Mexico (SB & G) (3)
POS 456: Latin American Cities (SB & G) (3)
POS 464: Border Cities: Action Research on Globalization (SB & G) (3)

Materials Science and Engineering Minor (ESMSEMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The materials science and engineering minor is designed to give science and engineering majors an in-depth understanding of materials, including their structure, processing, properties and performance.

Program Requirements:

Students are required to take five courses and one lab (minimum of 16 credits), listed below:

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
MSE 250: Structure and Properties of Materials (3)
MSE 355: Structure and Defects (3)
MSE 356: Structures, Properties, and Defects Lab (https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=MSE&I=300-399&t=2187&hon=F" > MSE 3

Materials-related Lab Course -- 1 credit hours
MSE 421: Physical Metallurgy Laboratory (1)
MSE 451: Introduction to Materials Characterization Lab (1)

Materials-related Course -- 3 credit hours
BME 318: Biomaterials (4)
CEE 353: Civil Engineering Materials (4)
CHM 471: Solid-State Chemistry (3)
EEE 352: Properties of Electronic Materials (4)
EEE 436: Fundamentals of Solid-State Devices (3)
PHY 481: Materials Physics I (https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=MSE&l=300-399&t=2187&hon=F" > MSE 3 Elective (3)
MSE 4 Elective (3)
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.75 GPA

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BA in interdisciplinary studies with a concentration in materials science and engineering

Other Enrollment Requirements: Students need sophomore status and a minimum of a 2.75 ASU and transfer GPA to enroll in the materials science and engineering minor. To earn the minor, students must receive a 2.50 GPA in all minor courses. Students adding the minor will also need to complete MAT 265 (MAT 270), MAT 242 (MAT 342 or 343), and CHM 114 or CHM 113 and 116.

Interested students should consult with a School for Engineering of Matter, Transport and Energy advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. To schedule an advising appointment, students should contact the SEMTE advising office at (480) 965-2335 or semte@asu.edu (mailto:semte@asu.edu).

Mathematics Minor (ASMATHMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in mathematics, offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences, explores the study of higher mathematics. It is designed to enable the student to understand the mathematics most commonly used in business, economics and science. It is expected that students in the minor will be able to reason and to find creative solutions to problems that are either presented to them or meaningfully formulated by them. The minor is recommended for students who plan to major in interdisciplinary arts and sciences, biology or business and for those who are preparing for further graduate study.

Program Requirements:

The minor in mathematics consists of a minimum of 23 credit hours ( a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken from the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. Elective courses not on list should be approved by an academic advisor prior to enrollment. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

MAT 271: Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (MA) (4)
MAT 272: Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (MA) (4)
MAT 300: Mathematical Structures (L) (3)
MAT 342: Linear Algebra or MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours
Choose three electives from the following, for a total of nine credits.
MAT 310: Introduction to Geometry (3)
MAT 371: Advanced Calculus I (3)
MAT 411: History and Philosophy of Mathematics (HU & H) (3)
MAT 443: Introduction to Abstract Algebra (3)
MAT 445: Theory of Numbers (3)
STP 280: Probability and Statistics for Researchers (CS) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Mathematics Minor (LAMATMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in mathematics is designed for students who want to further their knowledge of mathematics. It is beneficial for students majoring in such disciplines as physics, engineering, business, economics, the life and social sciences or any field where there is a need for quantification in the analysis of phenomena.

Program Requirements:

The minor in mathematics consists of a minimum of 18 credit hours, of which at least 12 must be upper-division. A grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for courses used in the minor.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours
A minimum of 9 credit hours is required. Students completing MAT 271 and MAT 272 will complete a total of 11 credit hours.
MAT 271: Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (MA) or MAT 266: Calculus for Engineers II (MA) (3-4)
MAT 272: Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (MA) or MAT 267: Calculus for Engineers III (MA) (3-4)
MAT 342: Linear Algebra or MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)

Electives -- 9 credit hours
Upper Division Electives - In consultation with an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences, students choose nine

Students may not apply ACT 491, MAT 411 or MAT 485 or any course not offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences to the minor, unless approved by an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences prior to registration.
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in actuarial science; BS in applied mathematics; BS in computational mathematical science; BS in statistics; BA and BS in mathematics (including all concentrations); BAE in secondary education (mathematics)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Students should confer with an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences before declaring the minor.

Media Analysis Minor (CSCMOMINA)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Description:

The mass media, more than ever before, play vital roles in how information is disseminated and how societies are shaped and function. As traditional forms of media and information dissemination change rapidly in an increasingly technological world, it is more important than ever for students to understand the way that media work as well as learn to evaluate the messages that are sent.

In the media analysis minor, students learn to understand the roles that media play, how they are changing and their impact. Students are given the tools they need to critically evaluate, analyze and interpret media messages in order to become wise consumers of media.

Program Requirements:

The minor of media analysis consists of 18 credit hours of course work. This is a requirement consistent with many other minor programs at Arizona State University and at other colleges and universities. The focus of the program is on media analysis. Students in the minor will concentrate on evaluating the impact of information dissemination rather than on topics that focus on the practice of gathering and distributing messages. Students in the minor may not register for courses in the professional journalism major.
To take upper-division courses, students must be at least sophomores ( 25 credit hours). To pursue the minor in media analysis, they must maintain a minimum 2.00 overall GPA, obtain a minimum grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) in each course in the minor and have a major other than journalism and mass communication, sports journalism, or mass communication and media studies.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours
MCO 120: Media and Society (SB) (3)
MCO 240: Media Issues in American Pop Culture (3)
MCO 418: History of Mass Communication (SB & H) (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours
MCO 302: Media Research Methods (3)
MCO 430: International Mass Communication (G) (3)
MCO 435: Social Media (3)

MCO 450: Visual Communication (HU) (3)
MCO 455: War and Mass Media (3)
MCO 456: Political Communication (SB) (3)
MCO 460: Race, Gender, and Media (C) (3)
MCO 465: Sports and Media (3)
MCO 473: Sex, Love, and Romance in the Mass Media (SB) (3)
MCO 494: Special Topics (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BA in journalism and mass communication; BA in sports journalism and mass communication; BA in media studies

Medical Studies Minor (NHMESTMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, West

Description:

The minor program in medical studies focuses on preparing students for work in clinical medicine, to include both direct and indirect patient care. Students take coursework in historical aspects of medicine and in the impact of violence upon health, health disparities, as well as leadership and professionalism. Students have the option of selecting an internship course that will enhance application of core concepts. The School for the Science of Health Care Delivery serves as a connection between the business of medicine and clinical practice.

Program Requirements:

Students must earn a 'C' or better in courses used for the minor.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours
HCD 330: Health Care Systems in the U.S. (3)
MED 300: Historical and Contemporary Issues in Health (L) (3)
MED 417: Impact of Violence on Health (3)
MED 445: Science of Helping in Health (3)
MED 450: Leadership and Professionalism (3)

Elective Course (choose one course) -- 3 credit hours
HCD 303: Global Health Care Systems (G) (3)
IBC 420: Population Health Management (3)
MED 484: Internship (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in medical studies; BS in science of health care delivery; BS in health sciences

Other Enrollment Requirements: Students must complete a minimum of 30 credit hours prior to adding the minor.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. ## Military Leadership Minor (LAMISMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in military leadership is designed to enhance students' learning experience by providing tools that prepare them for leadership roles in various organizations. Students complete courses that cover academic and practical skills in many areas, including:

- effective communication
- leadership ethos
- negotiation
- problem-solving
- staff motivation and empowerment
- team-building

Program Requirements:

The minor in military leadership requires a minimum of 18 credit hours, 12 of which must be at the 300 - or 400 -level. Twelve credit hours must be taken in residence on an ASU campus. Each course must completed with a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.
Students choose the option befitting their chosen branch of the military. An option is also provided for non-ROTC students wishing to benefit from the skills and knowledge developed in the minor.

Branch Specific Options -- 18 credit hours
The branch-specific options for Army, Air Force, and Navy require a minimum of 12 credit hours specific to the option and six credit hours chosen from a list of approved electives. Students choosing the Marine option will complete nine credit hours within the branch option courses and nine credit hours from the list of approved electives.

Army Option
MIS 301: Training Management and the Warfighting Functions (L) (4)
MIS 302: Applied Leadership in Small-Unit Operations (L) (4)
MIS 401: The Army Officer (4)
MIS 402: Company Grade Leadership (4)
Choose two courses from the list of approved electives
Air Force Option
AES 301: Air Force Leadership Studies I (L) AND AES 302: Leadership Laboratory (3)
AES 303: Air Force Leadership Studies II (L) AND AES 304: Leadership Laboratory (0)

AES 401: National Security Affairs (L) AND AES 402: Leadership Laboratory (3)
AES 403: Preparation for Active Duty II AND AES 404: Leadership Lab (3)
Choose two courses from the list of approved electives

Navy Option
NAV 301: Naval Ship Systems I (3)
NAV 302: Naval Ship Systems: Weapons (3)
NAV 401: Naval Operations and Seamanship (3)
NAV 402: Leadership and Ethics (3)
Choose two courses from the list of approved electives

Marine Option
NAV 303: Evolution of Warfare (3)
NAV 402: Leadership and Ethics (3)
NAV 403: Amphibious Warfare (3)
Choose three courses from the list of approved electives

Non-ROTC Option -- 18 credit hours
The minor also offers an option designed for non-ROTC students desiring the training provided by the minor. Student in the non-ROTC option complete three courses from a list of approved core courses and three courses selected from the list of approved electives.

Choose three courses from the following:
AES 301: Air Force Leadership Studies I (L) (3)
AES 303: Air Force Leadership Studies II (L) (3)
AES 401: National Security Affairs (L) (3)
AES 403: Preparation for Active Duty II (3)
MIS 301: Training Management and the Warfighting Functions (L) (4)
MIS 303: National Advanced Leadership Camp (4)
MIS 401: The Army Officer (4)
MIS 402: Company Grade Leadership (4)
NAV 301: Naval Ship Systems I (3)
NAV 302: Naval Ship Systems: Weapons (3)
NAV 303: Evolution of Warfare (3)
NAV 401: Naval Operations and Seamanship (3)
NAV 402: Leadership and Ethics (3)
NAV 403: Amphibious Warfare (3)
Choose three courses from the list of approved electives.

Approved Electives
Courses can only satisfy one requirement. No course used toward the branch-specific courses or the core courses for the non-ROTC option cannot be repeated as an elective.
AES 101: Air Force Today I (2)
AES 103: Air Force Today II (2)
AES 201: The Evolution of USAF Air and Space Power I (2)
AES 203: The Evolution of USAF Air and Space Power II (2)
AES 499: Individualized Instruction (3)
FAS 101: Personal Growth in Human Relationships (SB) (3)
FAS 331: Marriage and Family Relationships (SB) (3)

PHY 150: Physics I (SQ) (4)
In consultation with an academic advisor in the physics department, students choose either PHY 131 and its corresponding lab, PHY 132, or the single course alternative PHY 151 for a total of four credit hours.
PHY 131: University Physics II: Electricity and Magnetism (SQ) (3)
PHY 132: University Physics Laboratory II (SQ) (1)
PHY 151: Physics II (SQ) (4)
The following three courses are required.
PHY 252: Physics III (SQ) (4)
PHY 333: Electronic Circuits and Measurements or PHY 334: Advanced Laboratory I (L) (3)
Notes: One of these courses may be used in the required courses area and the other toward elective credit hours in the minor, but neither course may be repeated for credit.
PHY 361: Introductory Modern Physics (3)

Electives (choose two courses) -- 6 credit hours
PHY 302: Mathematical Methods in Physics II (3)
PHY 310: Classical Particles, Fields, and Matter I (3)
PHY 314: Quantum Physics I (3)
PHY 333: Electronic Circuits and Measurements (3)
PHY 334: Advanced Laboratory I (L) (3)
PHY 465: Advanced Laboratory II (3)
PHY 333: Electronic Circuits and Measurements or PHY 334: Advanced Laboratory I (L) (3)
Notes: Students may choose PHY 333 or PHY 334 if not already taken to satisfy the required courses for the minor.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: BS in biophysics; BA and BS in physics; BS in physics (secondary education)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Physics Minor (LSPHYMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The physics minor in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts at the Polytechnic campus provides a rigorous foundation in physics with an emphasis on fundamental concepts and applied hands-on experience. The program broadens and deepens a student's understanding and increases options for employment and graduate study. The primary emphasis of the physics minor is to give students experience through applied and computational physics projects. The projects are guided by faculty with expertise in the physics of semiconductors and graphene, quantum nano-optics, laser physics and materials science.

Program Requirements:

The minor in physics requires 23 credit hours, as follows:

1. A minimum of six upper-division credit hours in the minor must be taken in courses offered through the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.
2. Courses that count toward the minor must have a grade of " C " (2.00 on a scale of 4.00 ) or higher.
3. Twelve credit hours of upper-division physics courses are required.

Political Science Minor (ASPOLMIN)
Campus: West

Description:

The minor program in political science offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is designed to help students gain an understanding of theory, practice and policy underlying political processes locally, nationally and internationally and to train students with the research skills necessary for the analysis of complex sociopolitical issues locally and globally.

The program strives to meet these goals by offering students learner-centered coursework in political theory, American political institutions, and international relations and world affairs. These goals are accomplished by offering a flexible program of coursework focusing on international urban, race or ethnic sociopolitical areas, internships and service-learning or action research opportunities. Under the direction of faculty, students focus on intellectual and concrete policy issues in the greater Phoenix metropolitan area, Arizona, the Arizona-Mexico borderlands, the Americas and the world.

Program Requirements:

The minor in political science consists of 18 credit hours. A minimum of 12 upper division credit hours are required. A minimum of six upper division credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences. A maximum of three credit hours of internship and three credit hours of individualized instruction may be used to fulfill requirements. Students wishing to pursue the minor must meet with an academic advisor to construct a set of courses that reflect a particular area of specialty and interest. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a " C " (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

Psychology Minor (LAPGSMIN)

Description:

The minor program in psychology focuses on appreciating and understanding the human condition from a scientific, psychological point of view. Students completing the minor in psychology should possess breadth of knowledge pertaining to the major principles, theoretical approaches and findings in psychology. Students should also understand and be able to use basic research and quantitative methods in psychology and be able to gather and synthesize psychological findings. Finally, students should be able to understand the relevance and applicability of psychological principles, approaches and findings to individual, group and social issues. In doing so, they are prepared as educated citizens to pursue productive careers and engage on a daily basis with the increasingly complex, information-rich world.

Program Requirements:

The minor in psychology consists of completing 22 credit hours of course work in the foundations of psychology and the breadth within psychology categories described below. Twelve credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level, at least six credit hours of which must be completed in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Department of Psychology. All courses for the minor must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better

Required Courses -- 10 credit hours
PSY 101: Introduction to Psychology (SB) (3)
PSY 230: Introduction to Statistics (CS) (3)
PSY 290: Research Methods (L or SG) (4)

Minor Electives -- 12 credit hours
Take one course each from four of the following five breadth areas: Biological, Personality/Mental Health, Cognitive/Learning, Developmental, and Social.
Breadth Elective (12)

Biological Breadth
PSY 325: Physiological Psychology (3)

Cognitive/Learning Breadth
PSY 320: Learning and Motivation (3)
PSY 323: Sensation and Perception (3)
PSY 324: Memory and Cognition (3)

Developmental Breadth
PSY 341: Developmental Psychology (SB) (3)

Sociocultural Anthropology Minor (ASASBMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in sociocultural anthropology, offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, is designed to provide students with a substantive understanding of the theoretical assumptions and methodological techniques underlying the field of sociocultural anthropology. Courses provide students with knowledge about and theoretical approaches to cross-cultural studies and transnational research, emphasizing culture and political economy in historical context. Specifically, students minoring in sociocultural anthropology are expected to demonstrate knowledge and skill in the following areas:

- anthropological approaches to and explanatory frameworks for the study of social issues in culture and political economy
- application of theoretical knowledge to understanding sociocultural practices across local and global contexts
- awareness of cultural, ethnic, gender, sexual, class and age differences and commonalities across world social formations
- critical thinking and analytical reasoning
- development of their own anthropological perspective for use in their everyday lives and future studies or employment
- effective oral presentation and written communication
- interpretation of cultural practices, social theory and social texts
- qualitative research methods in anthropology and other social sciences and interpretive humanities including ethnographic field research and library research

Program Requirements:

Sociology Minor (ASSOCMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor program in sociology offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences provides students with an understanding of the theory, practice and policy underlying issues of social change, inequality and diversity. These issues are approached from multiple perspectives, including race or ethnicity, gender, economic position, age, geographic location and position in the global political economy.

The student minoring in sociology learns how it enhances one's understanding of social realities and institutions at local, national and international levels and how sociology contributes to the other social sciences and to the humanities.

Students gain a basic understanding of the assumptions underlying the discipline of sociology and develop the research skills necessary for analysis of complex social issues. These objectives are met by offering a flexible program and by providing the student with individual and group experiences in working with faculty members on concrete intellectual and policy issues.

Program Requirements:

The minor in sociology consists of 18 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). Students wishing to pursue this minor must meet with an academic advisor in the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences to construct a minor that reflects a particular area of specialty and interest. A minimum of 12 upper division credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences. A maximum of 3 credit hours of SOC 484 or SOC 499 may be used to fulfill the requirements of this minor. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" or better.

Studio Art Minor (HISTARTMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The studio art minor is designed for students who have an interest in studio arts but are pursuing another major. The program includes foundation art courses that address formal issues in art and upper-division courses that develop a conceptual basis for the student while increasing technical proficiency in one or more studio areas. Coursework in art history, both lower and upper division, helps foster critical understanding of aesthetics and the production of art. The designated coursework is flexible enough for students to concentrate in a single area of the studio arts or explore several mediums.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 21 credit hours (12 upper-division) in studio art and art history, art education or a related area of study.

Studio Core -- 6 credit hours
ART 110: Drawing as Seeing and Thinking (HU) (3)
ART 112: 2-D Design or ART 113: Color or ART 115: 3-D Design or ART 116: Introduction to Digital Media (3)

Studio Courses -- 9 credit hours
All students must meet art studio prerequisites. The upper division studio course is determined based on the lower division art course taken. See advisor to determine eligible courses based on lower division art class.

Sustainable Tourism Minor (PPTDMSMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

As sustainability expands in popularity as a discipline, students are looking to find ways to better understand how they can apply the principles of sustainability to specific areas of interest. A minor in sustainable tourism allows students from any major to learn the basic concepts and theories of tourism development and management. This program helps students identify ways in which tourism can contribute to sustainable development, locally and globally.

The minor allows students enrolled in other undergraduate programs at ASU to broaden their educational experiences. Students from such various disciplines as sustainability, business and many others find this program a beneficial supplement to their existing program. Students may also choose to complete a study abroad program.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires a total of 15 credit hours, 12 credit hours of required courses and one three credit hour course from the list of electives.

Required Core Courses -- 12 credit hours
TDM 205: Introduction to Travel and Tourism (G) (3)
TDM 372: Tourism Planning (L) (3)
TDM 458: International Tourism (G) (3)
TDM 480: Sustainable Tourism (3)

Elective Course (choose one) -- 3 credit hours
TDM 448: Heritage and Cultural Tourism (3)
TDM 475: Entrepreneurial Recreation and Tourism (3)
TDM 481: Sustainable Food Management in Tourism (3)
Notes: Offered Spring only
TDM 482: Sustainable Revenue Management (3)
Notes: Offered Spring only
TDM 494: Special Topics (3)

Standards

1. 15 hours of graded classroom course work (no internship, no independent study)
2. minimum "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) grade required for all classes in the minor
3. minimum GPA of 2.00 for those pursuing the minor; a major other than tourism development and management
4. should be a junior or higher to take 400 -level courses

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Undergraduate Certificates (Program Descriptions and Requirements)

Actuarial Science Certificate (LAACTCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Actuarial science is an area of mathematical and statistical science that requires expertise in specializations of probability and interest theory, coupled with a strong foundation in accounting, finance and economics. This certificate provides students with preparation for professional actuarial credentialing exams offered by the Society of Actuaries and the Casualty Actuarial Society.

Program Requirements:

Students must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours from the courses listed below. At least 12 credit hours must be upper-division work. At least six elective credit hours must be chosen from courses with the ACT prefix. In order to enroll in ACT courses, a minimum grade of "B" ( 3.00 on a 4.00 scale) is required for all prerequisite math, statistics and computer programming or applications coursework. A course grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all upper-division coursework.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours
ACT 201: Introduction to Elements and Techniques of Actuarial Science (3)

Electives (Choose four) -- 12 credit hours
A minimum of six credit hours must be ACT courses.
ACT 301: Risk Management and Insurance (SB) (3)
ACT 310: Mathematics of Finance (4)
ACT 415: Probability for Risk Management (3)
ACT 420: Ratemaking and Reserving (3)
ACT 430: Mathematics of Financial Derivatives (3)
ACT 435: Statistics for Risk Modeling (3)
ACT 440: Long-Term Actuarial Mathematics I (3)
ACT 441: Long-Term Actuarial Mathematics II (3)

CIS 308: Advanced Excel in Business (3)
CIS 355: Business Data Warehouses and Dimensional Modeling (3)
STP 425: Stochastic Processes (3)
STP 427: Mathematical Statistics (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Although no specific degree is required for admission to the actuarial science certificate, a strong mathematical background is essential (found in majors such as mathematics, statistics, engineering and natural sciences). Students with a major or degree other than those listed will require additional preparation beyond the certificate. Students are required to have a minimum 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is $4.00=$ "A") and grades of "B" or better in courses of multivariate calculus, linear algebra and introductory statistics at ASU or an equivalent institution.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Applied Social Sciences Certificate (ASAPSSCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in applied social sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences' School of Social and Behavioral Sciences at the West campus prepares students to apply social science tools to real-world problems.

Students collaborate to develop case studies, engage in fieldwork and learn both how to apply expert knowledge and how to communicate evidence. Working with stakeholders, students identify and solve problems, reform managerial structures and organizational systems, and drive social change. The certificate program is recommended for students with academic or career interests in human resources, administration, journalism, social work, business, community and civic work, as well as politics, organizing and advocacy, public policy, education and sustainability.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in applied social sciences requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 must be upper division). Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline.
All 15 credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a New College major.
The certificate requires six core credit hours and nine credit hours of electives. Electives are not limited to the certificate elective list; students should see their academic advisor prior to enrollment. A maximum of three credit hours of individualized instruction or internship may be applied toward the certificate.
Only courses in which a student received a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours
POS 350: Comparative Politics (SB & G) or SOC 331: Environmental Sociology (SB & G) (3)
SBS 304: Social Statistics I (CS) or SBS 404: Social Statistics II: Multivariate Analysis (CS) (3)

Elective Courses (minimum 6 upper-division) -- 9 credit hours
Students will select nine credit hours from courses where an applied project is assigned within a specific context. Selected courses must come from at least two of the following prefixes: ASB, POS, SBS or SOC.
ASB 339 / SBS 339 / POS 339 / SOC 339: Grassroots Social Movements (SB) (3)
ASB 340 / SOC 328: Migration and Culture (SB & G) (3)

Arabic Studies Certificate (LAARBCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate program in Arabic studies provides students with skills that will enable them to communicate effectively in Arabic in the four areas of language acquisition: listening, reading, speaking and writing.

Simultaneously, students gain broad knowledge and understanding of the culture, literature and traditions of the vast Arabic-speaking world. The program provides critically needed educational and cultural diversity that will enrich students' undergraduate experiences and prepare them for life as employees and employers.

Graduate students in the liberal arts, social sciences and humanities seeking academic or professional careers in any of the three disciplines also will benefit from this certificate because of the added advantage the program gives them in the job market, given the demonstrably high need for graduates with knowledge of the Arabic language.

Program Requirements:

The Arabic studies certificate requires students to complete 18 credit hours of upper-division coursework. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for each course. Students must also demonstrate proficiency in Arabic language by completing ARB 202 or above with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better or by taking a language proficiency test.

Arabic Core (Choose three) -- 9 credit hours
ARB 311: Advanced Arabic Skills I or ARB 411: Advanced Arabic Skills II (3)
ARB 321: Arabic Conversation I or ARB 421: Arabic Conversation II (3)
ARB 331: Arabic/Islamic Culture and Literature ( $\mathrm{HU} \& \mathrm{H} \& \mathrm{G}$ ) (3)
ARB 335: Arabic Culture and Islam (G) (3)
ARB 341: Quran Text and Women (HU & H) or ARB 351: Classical Arabic Literature (3)
ARB 352: Modern Arabic Literature in Translation or ARB 422: Advanced Arabic Media (3)

Elective Courses (Choose three) -- 9 credit hours
Some courses can be used either as a core course or as an elective, but no course can be counted more than once toward certificate requirements.

ARB 321: Arabic Conversation I (3)
ARB 335: Arabic Culture and Islam (G) (3)
ARB 336: Introduction to the Qur'an (3)
ARB 337: Hadith and Prophetic Tradition (3)
ARB 341: Quran Text and Women (HU & H) (3)
ARB 351: Classical Arabic Literature (3)
ARB 352: Modern Arabic Literature in Translation (3)
ARB 421: Arabic Conversation II (3)
GCU 328: Geography of Middle East and North Africa (SB & G) (3)
HST 307: Studies in African History (H) (3)

HST 372: Modern Middle East (SB & G & H) (3)
REL 365: Islamic Civilization (HU & H) (3)
REL 366: Islam in the Modern World (HU & G) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Any student accepted into an appropriate degree program at ASU can declare the certificate in Arabic studies. Students should contact an academic advisor in the School of International Letters and Cultures for more information.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Biomedical Research Certificate (ASBMRCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The biomedical research certificate program offered by ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at the West campus combines authentic research experience conducted in laboratories of practicing academic scientists with upper-division coursework, including laboratory courses, that allow for specialization in given subject areas. The program is intended to serve students seeking competency in addressing scientific questions in the laboratory and prepares them to be highly competitive for careers in the research sector or to pursue graduate and professional schools, such as medical school.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in biomedical research requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 must be upper-division). 12 credit hours must be taken at ASU. The certificate requires three core credit hours, 8 credit hours of electives, and four hours of LSC 388 Research Fundamentals or LSC 499 Individualized Instruction. Students who select LSC 499 will register for two consecutive semesters for two credit hours each. Nine credit hours must be counted toward the certificate alone and may not be shared with a student's major requirements. Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet certificate requirements.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

Computer Gaming Certificate (ESSCICERT)
Campus: Tempe

Description:

The computer gaming certificate program is designed to provide a game development skill set that the student can apply to domain-specific applications in the student's major. The skill set includes architecture of game engines, art design and computer graphics for gaming, and game software development.

In this certificate program, students learn to apply gaming technology to the rapidly growing video game industry and to business, medicine, geography, biotechnology and education. Examples of projects include:

- building a game that teaches linear algebra by incorporating trigonometric rules into the game design
- creating a game that teaches correct sentence construction to beginning learners of English
- creating a game to help patients with physical therapy
- creating an interactive virtual world for corporate training
- designing a game platform incorporating geographic information systems
- inventing a surgical simulation to educate medical students

Program Requirements:

Students will complete nine credit hours of core courses, including a final capstone project and nine credit hours of elective courses. The certificate requires 12 credit hours of upper-division coursework. Students need to allow at least three years to complete the certificate program due to the prerequisite structure

Core Courses -- 9 credit hours
CPI 111: Game Development I (CS) (3)
CPI 211: Game Development II (3)
CPI 441: Gaming Capstone (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours
CPI 311: Game Engine Development or SER 332: Introduction to Graphics and Game Development (3)
CPI 321: Fundamentals of Game Art (3)
CPI 411: Graphics for Games or SER 432: Game Engine Architecture (3)
CPI 421: 3-D Modeling and Texturing (3)
CPI 462: Design for Learning in Virtual Worlds (3)
CPI 484: Internship (3)
SER 431: Advanced Graphics (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The computer gaming certificate is open to any student admitted to an undergraduate degree program at ASU and in good academic standing. This certificate can also be used by interdisciplinary studies BA students as part of their degree program

All students are eligible to take CPI courses. Students who want to declare the certificate need to complete the undergraduate certificate form on the Registrar's website and submit it to the School of Computing, Informatics and Decision Systems Engineering Academic Advising Center located in Centerpoint, Room 105. Interdisciplinary studies students need to contact their advisor to add the computer gaming concentration to their degree program.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Convention Sales and Meeting Planning Certificate (PPTDMCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The U.S. meetings, conventions and exhibitions industry generates more than $$ 120$ billion a year, supporting nearly two million jobs. Students can explore this exciting growth industry with the convention sales and meeting planning certificate. The demand for professionals is strong, and this program provides an excellent foundation for enhancing career opportunities nationally, regionally and locally. Phoenix is a major convention and meeting destination.

There is a need for qualified professionals to service conventions and meetings, due in large part to the $$ 600$ million investment in the Phoenix Convention Center expansion; development of new hotels and other visitor-related products; and the steady influx of corporate headquarters relocating to the greater Phoenix area. The certificate, which has been endorsed by the Greater Phoenix Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Arizona Sunbelt Chapter of Meeting Professionals International, will enhance a graduate's career opportunities as a tourism professional.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 15 credit hours: four required core courses (12 credits) and one elective course ( 3 credits). Courses taken as part of a university major may count toward that degree and the certificate. Requirements can be met online. All core classes and some elective classes are taught online at least once a year. To earn the certificate, students must complete a minimum of 12 upper-division credit hours. An application to the program is required.

Required Core Courses -- 12 credit hours
TDM 205: Introduction to Travel and Tourism (G) (3)
TDM 345: Meeting and Convention Planning (3)
Notes: Prerequisite: TDM 205, grade of "C" (2.00) or better
TDM 350: Tourism, Recreation and Sports Marketing (3)
Notes: Prerequisite: TDM 205, grade of "C" (2.00) or better
TDM 386: Convention Sales and Management (3)

Elective (choose one) -- 3 credit hours
TDM 225: Introduction to Resort and Hotel Management (3)
TDM 458: International Tourism (G) (3)
PRM 486: Special Events Management (3)

Standards

1. Fifteen credit hours of graded classroom coursework are required (no internship, no independent study).
2. A minimum " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) grade is required for all classes in the certificate.
3. A minimum GPA of 2.00 is required for those pursuing the certificate.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students wishing to pursue the convention sales and meeting planning certificate should consult an academic advisor in the School of Community Resources and Development. Students seeking additional information are asked to visit the school's website.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Correctional Studies Certificate (PPCRTSCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in correctional studies educates students about a variety of components that make up the corrections system. It is designed to provide students with understanding and knowledge of the histories, philosophies and contemporary practices of both institutional and community corrections. The program emphasizes evidence-based best practices concerning the rehabilitation of correctional clients to reduce recidivism.

Program Requirements:

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours
CRJ 443, 444, and 445 may not be double-counted for major/minor credit.
CRJ 100: Introduction to Criminal Justice (SB) (3)
CRJ 240: Introduction to Corrections (3)
CRJ 443: Community Corrections (3)
CRJ 444: Institutional Corrections (3)
CRJ 445: Tools for Engaging Correctional Populations (3)

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours
Choose at least two from the following elective courses (may not be double-counted for credit toward the major or minor in criminology and criminal justice):
CRJ 394: Special Topics (3)
Notes: Only approved corrections-related topics
CRJ 406: Sex Crimes (3)
CRJ 411: Legal Issues in Corrections (3)
CRJ 434: Drugs of Abuse (3)
CRJ 435: Crime and Forensic Mental Health (3)
CRJ 484: Internship (3)
CRJ 494: Special Topics (3)
Notes: Only approved corrections-related topics

Special Topics courses (CRJ 394 and CRJ 494) will be designated and approved by departments and schools. Students will need to work with an advisor in order to select appropriate special topics courses that are approved for credit in the correctional studies certificate program.

At least 15 credit hours must be taken in-residence at ASU.
Lower-division courses such as CRJ 100 (Introduction to Criminal Justice) and CRJ 240 (Introduction to Corrections) may be used to satisfy the requirements of any major or a minor at ASU, as well as requirements for the certificate program in correctional studies. No upper-division courses in criminology and criminal justice, however, may be used to satisfy the requirements of the certificate program in correctional studies and either the major or minor in criminology and criminal justice. For example, students majoring or minoring in criminology and criminal justice may not use CRJ 394, CRJ 406, CRJ 411, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 443, CRJ 444, CRJ 445, CRJ 484, or CRJ 494 to satisfy the requirements of the certificate in correctional studies and either the major or minor in criminology and criminal justice.
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students must complete CRJ 100 Introduction to Criminal Justice ( 3 credit hours) with a grade of " C " or better (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in order to be admitted to the certificate program. This course may be taken in residence at ASU or may be transferred from other institutions, including community colleges. Because this course is a requirement for the bachelor's degree program and the minor in criminology and criminal justice, its completion satisfies the requirements of the major or minor and satisfies the prerequisite requirement for admission to the certificate program in correctional studies.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Creative City Certificate (PPURBCERC)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The creative city certificate prepares students to engage effectively in revitalizing cities and communities by tapping their inherent potential for cultural innovation, place-making, and social and economic entrepreneurship. Exploring best practices in a global context, students develop assetbased proposals for specific locales including implementation plans. The creative city certificate adds value to other majors as well as work and life experience for students aspiring to assume leadership roles in improving quality of life, specifically by enhancing quality of place.

Cities are centers of human creativity and cultural innovation; they both attract and breed these. Such creativity and innovation are apparent in the vitality of the arts as well as that of businesses (large and small), research (basic and applied) and the everyday life unique to any given locale. These are the ingredients that make our places sustainable, economically, socially and environmentally, by endowing a sense of place along with a sense of community.

This certificate also serves professionals in the community working in the areas of:

- community development
- land-use law
- parks and recreation
- philanthropy
planning
- public art
urban governance and others

Flexible class times and locations make the certificate a viable option for those unable to attend classes during the day.

Program Requirements:

The five-course sequence comprising the certificate will enable students to build upon their own strengths in order to help cities and communities creatively build upon their capacities. The creative city certificate consists of a maximum of 15 credit hours of coursework. All courses must be taken at ASU.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours
URB 405: Citizen Engagement and Community Building (3)
URB 406: Public Administration & Community Development (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours
GRA 401: Creative Environment (3)
NLM 160: Voluntary Action and Community Leadership (SB) (3)
NLM 220: Introduction to Nonprofit Organizations (3)
NLM 300: Fund Raising and Resource Development (3)
NLM 402: Assessment and Evaluation of Community Services (3)
PAF 420: Public Leadership (3)
PRM 120: Leisure and the Quality of Life (SB) (3)
PRM 210: Leisure Delivery Systems (3)
PRM 301: Sustainable Communities (3)
PRM 302: Inclusive Community Development (C) (3)
TDM 448: Heritage and Cultural Tourism (3)
URB 220: Introduction to Urban America (3)

A "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all upper-division coursework
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Criminal Investigations Certificate (PPCRICERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, West

Description:

The certificate program in criminal investigations educates students about a variety of aspects of criminal investigations and criminalistics. It is designed to provide students of the social sciences, natural sciences, humanities and public services with an understanding of the nature of criminal evidence; the language of forensic science; the scope, probative value and limitations of a variety of investigative specializations and their techniques; and an appreciation of how forensic investigative methods are used in the quest for justice. The certificate program allows students to satisfy at least two of their General Studies requirements (SQ and SB) in a thematic manner, but it is not designed to prepare students to work in a crime laboratory.

Program Requirements:

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
CRJ 100: Introduction to Criminal Justice (SB) (3)
CRJ 210: Introduction to Criminal Investigations (3)
CRJ 211: Documenting the Crime Scene (3)
CRJ 410: Procedural Criminal Law (3)

Elective Courses (choose three) -- 9 credit hours
CRJ 321: Imperatives of Proof (3)
CRJ 433: Death Investigations: Principles of Forensic Medicine (3)
CRJ 434: Drugs of Abuse (3)
CRJ 435: Crime and Forensic Mental Health (3)
CRJ 450: Crime Analysis (3)
CRJ 484: Internship (1-6)
CRJ 494: Special Topics (3)
Notes: only in approved investigations-related topics
FOR 350: Computer Forensics (3)
FOR 394: Special Topics (3)
Notes: only in approved investigations-related topics
FOR 410: Professional Practices in Forensic Science (L) (3)
FOR 484: Internship (1-6)

1. It is the student's responsibility to check the prerequisites required by courses in their discipline. Depending upon a student's program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed to complete the requirements of this certificate.
2. Special Topics courses (FOR 394 and CRJ 494) will be designated and approved by departments and schools. Students will need to work with an advisor in order to select appropriate special topics courses that are approved for credit in the criminal investigations certificate program.
3. At least 12 credit hours must be taken in-residence at ASU.
4. A "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all core and elective course work required for the certificate.
5. Upper-division course work may not be used to satisfy the requirements of both a major and the certificate. Thus, if any elective courses in the certificate program are being used to satisfy the requirements of a major, different elective courses must be taken to satisfy the requirements of the certificate program. For example, students majoring in criminology and criminal justice may not use CRJ 433, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 484 or CRJ 494 to satisfy the requirements of the major and the certificate in criminal investigations. Similarly, students majoring in forensic science may not use FOR 350, FOR 410 or FOR 484 to satisfy the requirements of the major and the certificate in criminal investigations.
Prerequisite Information
CRJ 100 Introduction to Criminal Justice, SB (3) is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in CRJ 210, CRJ 211, CRJ 433, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 484 and CRJ 494.
ACO 100 All About Data: Design, Query, and Visualization, CS (3) is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in FOR 350 Computer Forensics. Either FOR 286 Principles of Forensic Science (3) or the two semester sequence in FOR 105 and FOR 106 is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in FOR 410 Professional Practices in Forensic Science, L (3). ENG 102 or 105 or 108 are also prerequisites for FOR 410.
CRJ 284 Professional Growth in Criminal Justice (3) is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in CRJ 484 Internship.
The completion of at least 45 credit hours is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in FOR 484 Internship.
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students must complete the following prerequisite courses with a grade of " C " of higher ( scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in order to be admitted to the certificate program. These courses may be taken in-residence at ASU or may be transferred in from other institutions, including community colleges.

The following prerequisite courses are required for admission to the certificate program:

For students majoring in the social sciences, humanities or the arts:*
FOR 105 Physical Evidence and the Crime Scene, SQ (4) and
FOR 106 Biology Behind the Crime Scene, SQ (4)

For students majoring in the natural sciences:*
FOR 286 Principles of Forensic Science (4)

* Neither FOR 105 nor FOR 106 have any prerequisites. These courses are designed for students majoring in the social sciences, humanities or arts to meet the natural science requirement of ASU's General Studies program. Thus, students not majoring in the natural sciences who wish to declare the certificate program in criminal investigations must complete the two-course sequence in FOR 105 and FOR 106. In contrast, students majoring in the natural sciences (including forensic science) should not take FOR 105 and FOR 106; they need only complete FOR 286: Principles of Forensic Science, which has prerequisite requirements of BIO 181, BIO 182, CHM 113 and CHM 116.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Cross-Sector Leadership Certificate (PPCSLDCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in cross-sector leadership provides a comprehensive overview of leading solutions to complex social challenges by integrating the public, private, nonprofit and military sectors. Students engage in a systems-thinking approach to real-world challenges faced by local and global communities; explore the diverse characteristics and motives of each sector in engaging in cross-sector collaborations; and master processes to formalize such partnerships. Students gain leadership skills, such as leading change within and between organizations across multiple sectors, and they learn to use human-centered design, social entrepreneurship and other approaches when tackling community challenges. Students study values-based leadership and how individual, organizational and sector values can drive a leader's ability to act. Students end the program with a thesis or applied project that integrates the theories, procedures and concepts learned in the certificate courses with experiences from the students' internships in each sector.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in cross-sector leadership is a requirement for, and is limited to, participants in the Public Service Academy's Next Generation Service Corps, a four-year leadership development track that engages future civilian leaders in the public, private and nonprofit sectors to engage in collaboration and change in the context of social challenges in which they hold interest. Students are required to maintain a 3.00 GPA and demonstrate forward academic progress to maintain enrollment in the certificate as well as the Next Generation Service Corps. ROTC students also may pursue the certificate, but must maintain a 3.00 GPA in certificate courses.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
CPP 101: Foundations of Cross Sector Leadership (1)
Notes: Term 1
CPP 201: NGSC Community Impact Lab (2)
Notes: Term 2
CPP 301: Cross-Sector Collaboration (3)
Notes: Term 4 or 5
NLM 410 / CPP 410: Social Entrepreneurship (3)
Notes: Term 5 or 6
PAF 311: Leadership and Change (SB) (3)
Notes: Term 5 or 6

Elective (Choose one) -- 3 credit hours
CPP 394: NGSC Leadership Instruction (3)

Notes: Term 5, 6, 7 or 8
PAF 421: Leadership Capstone (3)
Notes: Term 7 or 8

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Enrollment in the certificate in cross-sector leadership is offered only to students participating in the Next Generation Service Corps or the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Enrollment requirements for the certificate are the same as admission requirements for the Next Generation Service Corps or Reserve Officer Training Corps (by request). Public Service Academy staff and the College of Public Service and Community Solutions Dean's Office will enroll students.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree.

Cryptology Certificate (LACRYCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate program in cryptology is designed to provide a strong foundation in the mathematical topics that are most applicable to modem cryptosystems. It also provides specialized knowledge required to understand and work in the field of mathematical cryptology.

Program Requirements:

This certificate requires 18 credit hours. Grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for all courses.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
MAT 440: Group Theory or MAT 444: Intermediate Abstract Algebra (3)
MAT 445: Theory of Numbers (3)
MAT 447: Cryptography I (3)
MAT 448: Cryptography II (3)

Electives Courses (select two) -- 6 credit hours
MAT 415: Introduction to Combinatorics (3)
MAT 416: Introduction to Graph Theory (3)
MAT 441: Ring Theory (3)
STP 421: Probability (3)
STP 427: Mathematical Statistics (3)
*Students may substitute an approved cryptography-related internship for 3 credit hours of elective work.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

This program has additional admission requirements; students should see a college advisor for details. Applicants should be in good academic standing with a "B" or better (scale is $4.00=$ "A") in MAT 300 Mathematical Structures (3) or the equivalent.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Desert Food Production Certificate (LSDFPRCERT)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The certificate program in desert food production equips students interested in producing foods locally with the knowledge and skills necessary to grow edible plants and to navigate the challenges unique to desert climates. Coursework in the program emphasizes organic food production, sustainable horticultural technologies, green waste reduction, water conservation, maintaining biodiversity and biological cycles, and enhancing soil quality. Students will gain marketable skills that will enable them to participate in the growing trend of producing and supporting the consumption of local foods.

Program Requirements:

The desert food production certificate requires a minimum of 18 credit hours.
Additional certificate requirements:
Only courses in which a student receives a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.
No more than two credit hours of ABS 484 Internship may be counted toward the certificate requirements.
Four credit hours of certificate electives must be from upper-division courses.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours
ABS 260: Fundamentals of Sustainable Horticulture (SG) (4)
ABS 368: Plant Propagation (3)
ABS 460: Organic Gardening (2)
ABS 464: Desert Horticulture (3)

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours
ABS 225: Soils (SQ) (3)
ABS 226: Soils Laboratory (SQ) (1)
ABS 360: Southwest Home Gardening (2)
ABS 462: Greenhouse/Nursery Management (4)
ABS 484: Internship (2)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00
Majors Ineligible to Add this Certificate: None
Other Enrollment Requirements: None

This certificate is open to students in any major. Students should contact an advisor in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts for more information.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Digital Business Innovation Certificate (BADBICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The transformation of the business landscape in recent years, caused by digital innovations, has been phenomenal. It is increasingly important for all business professionals to understand the nature of digital technologies and platforms. Broad technology skills, familiarity with managing technology projects, and specifying business requirements for technology platforms are essential skills that are valued by all corporations.

This certificate in digital business innovation provides students with a broad overview of modern-day digital information systems, exposes them to studying and transforming business processes, and gives exposure to modern tools for maintaining digital presence and developing analytical insights.

Program Requirements:

The digital innovation certificate requires 18 credit hours to complete and is available to all majors. To earn the certificate, students must complete all courses with a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a scale of 4.00 ) or higher. No more than six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and other degree programs, minors, and/or other certificates.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours
CIS 105: Computer Applications and Information Technology (CS) (3)
CIS 235: Introduction to Information Systems (3)
CIS 300: Web Design and Development (3)
CIS 308: Advanced Excel in Business (3)
CIS 311: Business Project Management (3)
CIS 312: Business Mobile Commerce and Monetization (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Digital Culture Certificate (HIDGCCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The digital culture certificate program in the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts focuses on the creative exploration of how new media is influencing our culture, or rather the way we live, learn, create and communicate. Pursuing the digital culture certificate will allow students to enhance their program of study with integrated, transdisciplinary training in creative processes and technical skills in new media with cultural applications.

Program Requirements:

The digital culture certificate requires 18 credit hours (12 upper-division) in three areas.

A minimum grade of a " C " (2.00) and an overall GPA of 3.00 is required in all classes in the certificate program. Courses in the certificate program may not be used as part of a major. All upper-division certificate course work must be taken at ASU.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours
AME 111: Introduction to Digital Culture (CS) (3)
AME 112: Computational Thinking for Digital Culture or AME 230: Programming for the Media Arts (CS) (3)

Digital Culture Studies -- 3 credit hours
AME 310: Media Literacies and Composition (3)
AME 320: Motion Capture for Integrative Systems (3)
AME 330: Digital-Physical Systems (3)
AME 340: Compositional and Computational Principles for Media Arts (3)
AME 394: Media Theatre (3)
AME 410: Interactive Materials (3)
AME 430: Mac Development for Media Arts (3)
AME 435: Mobile Development (3)
AME 444: Media Installations (3)
AME 470: Programming for Social and Interactive Media (3)
AME 494: Animating Virtual Worlds (3)
AME 494: Rapid Prototyping through Somatic Research (3)
ANP 394: Digital Modeling and Fabrication (3)
PSY 324: Memory and Cognition (3)

Digital Media - Media Arts and Design -- 6 credit hours
ART 494: Visual Prototyping (3)
EEE 307: Signal Processing for Digital Culture (3)
FMP 394: Non-Linear Editing for Film and Media (3)
MDC 311: Composing and Performing for Hybrid Ensembles (3)

Capstone -- 3 credit hours
AME 485: Digital Culture Capstone I (3)

Generous substitution rules allow for course flexibility. Students receiving the digital culture certificate can petition to substitute up to six credit hours. Three credit hours can come from any course related to digital culture through courses offered by any ASU unit on any ASU campus, including the interdisciplinary arts and performance program on the West campus and the film and media studies program on the Tempe campus. Courses may include any on the list of related subjects and substitutions (shown above) or courses with comparable content.

The other three substitution hours can be achieved through the following path:

The three-hour media arts and design course requirement may be substituted with a three-hour course in the digital culture-related category. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Degree-seeking undergraduates or nondegree-seeking graduate students may add the digital culture certificate. To add the certificate, students must meet with the digital culture academic success coordinator to develop a pathway that best meets the proficiences for the work they are interested in pursuing. Students then meet with the academic advisor for their major to add the certificate.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Diversity and Equity Studies Certificate (ASDESCERT)
Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in diversity and equity studies in the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at the West campus, prepares students to understand diversity. Possessing skills to work effectively with diverse colleagues, clients and leaders is fundamental to competitiveness in the increasingly diverse and transnational labor market. This certificate program develops intercultural competence through gaining knowledge related to the histories, practices and perspectives of diverse groups, both local and global. Reflecting on this knowledge permits students to develop strategies to work with and through differences of gender, race, ethnicity, sexuality, age, religion and class. Integrative social sciences perspectives enable bridge-building within and across differences to redress inequalities. This certificate is valuable to those pursuing careers in medicine, law, business and management, public policy, human resources, media, government and community advocacy.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in diversity and equity studies requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 must be upper division).
Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline.
The certificate requires three core credit hours and 12 credit hours of electives. Electives are not limited to the certificate elective list; see academic advisor prior to enrollment.

All 15 credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a New College major.
A maximum of three credit hours of internship or individualized instruction may be applied toward the certificate.
Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet certificate requirements.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours
SBS 301: Cultural Diversity ((L or SB) & C) (3)

Elective Courses (minimum 9 upper-division) -- 12 credit hours
Students will select 12 elective credit hours from course work related to diversity and equity studies. Selected courses must come from at least two of the following prefixes: ASB, POS, SBS or SOC.

ASB 211: Women in Other Cultures ((HU or SB) & G) (3)
ASB 311: Principles of Social Anthropology (SB & G & H) (3)
ASB 339 / POS 339 / SBS 339 / SOC 339: Grassroots Social Movements (SB) (3)
ASB 340 / SOC 328: Migration and Culture (SB & G) (3)
ASB 342 / SBS 342 / SOC 342: Mexico-U.S. Borderlands (SB & C) (3)
ASB 346: Marriage and Family Diversity (SB & C) (3)
ASB 394 / POS 394 / SBS 394 / SOC 394: Special Topics (3)
ASB 442 / SBS 460: Global Cities (SB & G) (3)
ASB 447 / POS 447 / SBS 447: Citizenship, Nationalism, and Identity (SB & C) (3)
ASB 484 / POS 484: Internship or SBS 484: Internship or SOC 484: Internship (3)
ASB 494 / POS 494 / SBS 494 / SOC 494: Special Topics (3)
ASB 499 / POS 499 / SBS 499 / SOC 499: Individualized Instruction (3)
POS 357: South Asia Politics (SB & G) (3)
POS 436: Gender, Sexuality, Nation-States (3)
POS 437: Women, Power, and Politics (G) (3)
POS 438: Latino Politics (SB & C) (3)
SOC 241: Modern Social Problems (SB) (3)
SOC 264: Gender and Society (SB & C) (3)
SOC 270: Racial and Ethnic Relations (SB & C) (3)

Domestic Violence and Evidence-based Practice Certificate (PPDVEPCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in domestic violence and evidence-based practice provides students with the experience and knowledge to intervene safely and effectively on behalf of the survivors of gender-based violence, a vulnerable group that helping professionals are likely to encounter in all areas of practice. Those knowledgeable about the dynamics of intimate partner violence are better equipped to assist those suffering its negative physical and mental health consequences.

Evidence-based care is crucial in domestic violence settings. Students of the certificate program engage in service-based and classroom learning to understand the role of evidence-based interventions in promoting survivor safety and client empowerment. Upon completion of the program, certificate holders become Arizona state-certified advocates for victims of domestic violence.

Program Requirements:

During their first semester in the certificate, students enroll in SWU 416, Domestic Violence and National AmeriCorps Service.
Students must participate in an approved internship for a minimum of 300 hours.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours
SWU 416: Domestic Violence and National AmeriCorps Service (3)
SWU 484: Internship or SWU 412: Field Instruction I (3)
Notes: Other internship credit may be substituted with department approval.
SWU 484: Internship or SWU 414: Field Instruction II (3)
Notes: Other internship credit may be substituted with department approval.

Electives -- 6 credit hours
SWU 417: Technology, Interpersonal Relationships and Abuse (3)
SWU 418: Global Perspectives on Violence Against Women (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

All students seeking the certificate must have 56 credit hours of coursework completed with a minimum GPA of 2.50 . In order to enroll in SWU 416 , students must have a current Arizona fingerprint clearance card, which will be verified through the State of Arizona system.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Energy and Sustainability Certificate (SUESUCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe

Description:

The transdisciplinary certificate examines current energy systems and what would be required to create a sustainable energy future. Students begin with an overview of how energy affects peoples' lives, the basic science and methods of energy production, and a full overview of energy policy options. Students then select additional energy courses from across many disciplines, depending on their specific interests.

An understanding of energy is increasingly important for jobs related to environmental quality, national security and the efficient functioning of cities. This certificate helps students enhance their understanding of the methods by which energy is generated and distributed as well as the associated sustainability issues. Students analyze social and policy dimensions of energy systems and infrastructure, and they may tailor the certificate around their unique interests in energy with a variety of electives, representing a broad array of academic disciplines. The breadth of their energy knowledge is enriched by taking courses outside their primary area of study.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in Energy and Sustainability consists of 15 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be upper-division.
A GPA of 2.50 is required for all courses completed in the certificate.

Required Core Courses -- 9 credit hours

STS 329: Technology in Developing Countries (SB & G) (3)
STS 332: Global Issues in Science and Technology (SB) (3)
TEM 450: Design for the Developing World (3)
HST 306 and any 394, 494 or 498 courses must be taken with the specific course title/topic indicated above.
Energy elective courses are not limited to courses from this list only. Other courses on energy may be offered (special topics, etc.). Students may request to have those approved as an elective for this certificate by submitting a School of Sustainability standards petition: https://students.asu.edu/College_Standards_Petitions . Completed petitions may be submitted directly to sosadvising@asu.edu.

Students must earn a grade of "C" or better in all courses.
Some energy elective courses have prerequisites. Any and all prerequisites must be met in order to select and enroll in those courses. Some energy elective courses are more technical in nature, which may require additional math and science knowledge or prerequisites. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students who wish to declare a certificate in energy and sustainability should make an appointment with a School of Sustainability advisor.
Advising is by appointment only, scheduled through the following website: https://webapp4.asu.edu/advsched/?acad_org=CSS

Ethnic Studies Certificate (ASETHCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in ethnic studies, offered by the School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies, explores the changing political, social, economic and cultural realities of racial, ethnic and indigenous communities in the United States and the Americas. The coursework combines topics and methods in the humanities, arts and social sciences to critically analyze racial, ethnic, gender and sexual identities, transnational movements, and diverse forms of cultural, literary and political expression.

The certificate program in ethnic studies prepares students for careers or graduate school in a variety of fields, including business, health care, criminal justice, social services, education, public relations, community development, public policy and government. The certificate in ethnic studies is recommended for graduate students, nondegree students and students majoring in professional programs.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in ethnic studies consists of 18 credit hours. A minimum of six upper division credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. Up to three credit hours of individualized instruction may be applied toward the certificate. Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline. ## Family Communication Certificate (ASFAMCCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in family communication, offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, focuses on issues affecting communication in the family. This is a valuable certificate for students planning to enter careers or graduate study in fields like psychology, counseling, family studies, social work, medicine or nursing, law, aging, pastoral care, human services, media or communication technology. It complements the current communication program by bringing together an array of courses that have implications for the family unit, such as courses in new media and health. Students also are encouraged to take courses in other disciplines that complement family-related communication courses.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in family communication consists of 19 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). Six credit hours must come from non-communication coursework. A one credit hour exit portfolio is required and may be taken after a minimum of 12 hours toward the certificate has been completed. Twelve of the 19 credit hours must be ASU courses and six credit hours may be shared with major requirements. Four courses must be selected from at least two content areas listed below. The courses listed are suggested and actual courses should be selected in conjunction with an academic advisor. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" or better.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

Film and Video Studies Certificate (ASVIDCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in film and video studies explores film theory and the practice of the moving image. Through this interdisciplinary program, students have an opportunity to develop their interests, skills and understanding of the forms, channels, technologies and histories of the media arts. Coursework helps students become more astute critics of film and media arts. Students learn about the history of film, television and video arts as well as their place in social, cultural and political expression. This program also helps students strengthen their critical-thinking skills through an analysis of the ongoing philosophical, aesthetic, political and technological debates about film, media and video. Through this program, students will gain valuable skills for future careers or graduate study in areas such as video and film production, film studies, media studies or digital design.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in film and video studies consists of 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper division. A minimum of six upper division hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. Students choose a focus in either film studies or media and video studies. The film studies emphasis focuses on the impact of film and video. The media and video studies emphasis is concerned with the rendering of film and video. ## Food System Sustainability Certificate (SUFSUCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Food systems are particularly important for human societies to sustain; however, these systems are particularly vulnerable to multiple threats. Many students from a wide variety of disciplines are interested in food systems, especially as food and sustainability become increasingly relevant issues to employers in fields across the public and private sectors.

This certificate allows ASU students to take advantage of the diversity of courses offered that address challenges to food system sustainability. The certificate encourages students to cover a breadth of topics and perspectives related to food system issues while providing the opportunity to focus on particular skills and approaches suitable for their career paths. Career paths can range from agriculture to marketing and retail to policy or ethics. This certificate offers an innovative and exciting approach to the challenges of food system sustainability. Due to the transdisciplinary nature of the certificate, many courses may be found across all four ASU campuses, allowing students to choose both the focus area and location of study that best fits their needs.

The knowledge, competencies and skills students will have upon completion of this certificate include the ability to identify food system drivers, activities, actors and outcomes at different spatial scales and the capacity to assess the primary social, economic and environmental drivers and outcomes associated with food system sustainability challenges.

Students will also acquire the ability to apply one or more of the following analytical skills or approaches to the development of food system sustainability solutions: cultural and social analysis, alternative agricultural design and practice, analysis of biophysical processes and environmental services, urban planning and policy, marketing and entrepreneurial development, sustainability assessment, and consumer preference and behavior.

Games and Impact Certificate (TEGIMCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate program in games and impact is intended for undergraduates with a desire to become change agents in their current and future areas of interest, study and training. The certificate provides a solid grounding in the theory, design and use of games as tools for effecting change in education, health and social justice, among other fields. For this reason, it is appropriate for students in a wide range of majors, including students interested in design and programming.

Students study the ethics of design and its consequences, both intended and unintended; how games can lead to social change by improving understanding of complex global systems; and, transforming conflict and building skills in problem recognition and creative solution design. Certificate students work on real games, alongside experts and clients, and learn how to design, test and evaluate their impact in real-world environments.

Health and Wellness Coach Certificate (NHHWCCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, West

Description:

The program brings together coursework from the disciplines of exercise and wellness, nutrition, and health sciences in order to give students a strong background, perspective and real-life experience in behavioral change and coaching techniques and methods.

Students experience evidence-based behavior change methodologies and practice coaching communication skills and strategies to influence sustainable healthy lifestyles. They learn to guide groups and individuals through meaningful lifestyle changes by using concepts that emphasize evidence-based coaching and behavioral practices as well as motivational interviewing techniques. Students work with clients using learned health coaching techniques, and they develop the knowledge and skills to work with people who require lifestyle management strategies to improve wellbeing. Faculty consistently monitor and mentor coaching sessions to provide evaluation and feedback on how students may improve their coaching skills, and a final practical skills evaluation is completed to assess a student's coaching abilities. Coaching skills are addressed synchronously over telephone, in person, or via Skype or some other video platform.

Students who complete this certificate program will be eligible for the National Board Certification for Health and Wellness Coaches offered by International Consortium for Health & Wellness Coaches http://www.ichwc.org (http://www.ichwc.org).

History and Philosophy of Science Certificate (LAHPSCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The School of Life Sciences offers an undergraduate certificate in the history and philosophy of science. This program is designed to give students an understanding of both traditional philosophical issues surrounding science and the historical development of concrete scientific theories and ideas.

Philosophical questions about how we understand nature through science and how scientific claims gain authority are enriched when they are considered in a historical context. Such philosophical and historical study also often includes the examination of contemporary sciences and their place within the larger society, including the study of bioethics, policy and law.

This certificate is a valuable addition for students in the sciences or the humanities. It crosses disciplines to help students engage in unfamiliar and familiar paths of inquiry in new and interesting ways.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 18 credit hours from the HPS and PHI prefixes. At least 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level and all courses counting toward the certificate must be completed with a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours
PHI 314: Philosophy of Science (HU) (3)

Elective Courses (choose five from the following) -- 15 credit hours
At least nine credit hours must be taken in upper-division HPS courses. Any upper-division HPS course may be used toward the certificate.
PHI 328: History of Ancient Philosophy (HU & H) (https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=HPS&l=upperdivision&t=2187&hon=F" > HPS
Upper Division Elective (9)
PHI 329: History of Modern Philosophy (HU & H) (3)
PHI 330: Theory of Knowledge (HU) (3)
PHI 403: Contemporary Analytic Philosophy (HU) (3)

Other elective options may be applied with the approval of an academic advisor in the School of Life Sciences.
Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Informatics Certificate (ESCPICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate program in informatics teaches students to use computer technology to gather, synthesize, store, visualize and interpret information.
These skills are critical to a broad range of disciplines. This program provides students with an understanding of the capabilities and technologies of informatics as it applies to domain-specific problems in their field of study.

Students completing this program are able to understand and use methods for the basic computational principles behind the operation of:

- communication, networking and interaction
- decision making and problem solving
- modeling, inference and visualization
- representing, creating and running routine activities
- storing, indexing and retrieving information

Graduates should be in high demand within the software industry, but also in government, education, science, medicine and other fields that make use of computer technology. Students with the applied and user-oriented focus of the certificate will be attractive to such employers.

Program Requirements:

This program requires 21 credit hours of course work. Students will take 15 credit hours of required courses and will select six credit hours of elective course work. The certificate requires at least 12 credit hours of upper-division course work.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours
CPI 101: Introduction to Informatics (CS) (3)
CPI 200: Mathematical Foundations of Informatics (MA) (3)
CPI 220: Applied Data Structures and Algorithms (3)
CPI 350: Evaluation of Informatics Systems (3)
IEE 380: Probability and Statistics for Engineering Problem Solving (CS) or STP 420: Introductory Applied Statistics (CS) (3)

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours
ART 435: Foundry Research Methods (3)
BIO 355: Introduction to Computational Molecular Biology (CS) (3)
CIS 300: Web Design and Development (3)
CPI 310: Web-Based Information Management Systems (3)
CPI 360: Decision Making and Problem Solving (3)
CPI 460: Intelligent Interactive Instructional Systems (3)
CPI 494: Special Topics (3)
ENG 374: Technical Editing (3)
SOC 334: Technology and Society (L or SB) (3)
STS 306: Social Effects of Science and Technology (SB) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The undergraduate certificate in informatics is available to all students who are in good standing at ASU and may be used by interdisciplinary studies BA students as part of their degree program. Students need to submit an undergraduate certificate form to the School of Computing, Informatics and Decision Systems Engineering Academic Advising Center located in Centerpoint, room 105. This form is available on the registrar's website. Interdisciplinary studies students need to contact their advisor to add the informatics concentration to their degree program.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Nonbusiness Global Awareness Course Work (#trackgroup) (9)
Notes: These hours may be satisfied by any combination of the following:

1. Students can choose any of the university-designated nonbusiness global awareness (" G ") courses.
2. One course must be upper-division to meet the 12 upper-division hours requirement.
3. Recommended: It is recommended to choose courses related to the area of study abroad experience. Additional courses may be approved by the international program coordinator.
4. Nonbusiness global awareness hours may also be satisfied by:

* An ASU or W. P. Carey School of Business education abroad program earning six credit hours or more fulfills six of the credit hours of nonbusiness global requirements.
* An ASU or W. P. Carey School of Business education abroad program earning three credit hours fulfills three of the credit hours of nonbusiness global requirements.

C. Foreign Language Proficiency

Completion of one year (two semesters) of the same foreign language at the college level.
Completion of one semester of the equivalent of 101- and 102-level course work.
Completion of two years of the same foreign language in high school with a minimum grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale).
Documentation of a proficiency test confirming preparedness to start at least the second year of a foreign language ( 201 level or above).
A student whose native language is not English may have this requirement waived.
D. International Study Experience

The certificate program requires students to participate in an ASU Study Abroad Office sponsored program. Students cannot use independent nonsponsored programs to fulfill this requirement. Sponsored programs can be found on the Study Abroad Office website at https://mystudyabroad.asu.edu/.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The certificate application is accessed and submitted through Advising SOS: https://wpcarey.asu.edu/SOS (https://wpcarey.asu.edu/SOS). Students should contact the department for more information.

No more than 6 credit hours may be shared between certificate and other degree programs, minors, and/or other certificates.

For disclosure information on the U.S. Department of Education Gainful Employment Program, students should see https://catalog.asu.edu/files/disclosures/BAIBSCERT/Gedt.html (https://catalog.asu.edu/files/disclosures/BAIBSCERT/Gedt.html).

International Cinema Certificate (LAICINCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The power of international cinema lies in its ability to underscore national differences and engage diverse viewpoints.

The certificate program in international cinema provides undergraduates with the means to explore and understand the role that international film plays in highlighting cultural diversity, reflecting the sociocultural, political and economic currents of the period and cultural setting depicted and calling into question an accepted idea of the dominance of Hollywood film.

The certificate provides an integrated pathway through the variety of international film courses already offered in the School of International Letters and Cultures. It explores facets of international film history and production often not covered by American programs in film studies and allows students majoring in a second language the opportunity to explore a particular culture's filmic heritage and avenues for comparative analysis between the filmic heritage of two or more cultures. Students majoring in other areas can encounter visual narratives different from their own and connect international cinema to their own respective experiences.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 18 credit hours of upper-division course work. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours
SLC 340: Approaches to International Cinema (3)

Elective Courses (choose five from the following) -- 15 credit hours
CHI 345: Chinese Film and Civilization (3)
FMP 404: World Cinema (G) (3)
FMS 426: Films of India (3)
FMS 427: Identity and World Film (3)
FMS 430: Artists in Film: Artists' Biopics (3)
FMS 441: Global Cinema (HU & G) (3)
GER 445: The Holocaust in German-Mediated Memory (3)
GER 446: Weimar-Era German Film (3)
GER 455: Multi-Kulti: Multiculturalism Through Film (G) (3)
HEB 349: Israeli Wars in Israeli Movies (HU & G) (3)
ITA 420: Italian Cinema (L & G) (3)
KOR 347: Korean Film and Literature (HU) (3)
RUS 424: Tolstoy and War and Peace in Russian Literature and Cinema (L or HU) (3)
SLC 450: Experimental Narrative (3)
SPA 475: Latin American Film ((L or HU) & G) (3)
THE 422: Latina and Latino Theatre and Film (HU & C) (3)
Additional upper-division elective courses may be approved by the coordinator of the certificate program.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

ASU students in sophomore standing or above, with at least a 2.50 GPA in any degree program will be eligible for the international cinema certificate program. Admission to the certificate program will be approved by the certificate coordinator in consultation with advisors.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Korean Studies Certificate (LAKORCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate in Korean studies aims to train and produce students who are linguistically capable and culturally informed. The program consists of two major components. The first is to build students' Korean language proficiency in the areas of speaking, listening, reading and writing. The second is to offer students a broad range of knowledge of the culture, literature, history, art and religions of Korea. The certificate allows students to focus on Korean studies.

The program will enrich students' perspectives on different cultures and societies at the intellectual level and also equip them with practical knowledge of Korea that will benefit careers in various professions, including academia, government work, international trade, nongovernmental organizations and translation.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in Korean studies requires a minimum of 22 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be completed at the upper-division level. Each course must be completed with a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 22 credit hours
Students must choose one two-course sequence, either KOR 101 and KOR 102 or KOR 201 and KOR 202, for a total of 10 credit hours. Course substitutions may be permitted for heritage speakers and other advanced speakers of the Korean language based on their proficiency level as determined by the Korean Placement Test.
KOR 101: First-Year Korean I (5)
KOR 102: First-Year Korean II (5)
KOR 201: Second-Year Korean I (G) (5)
KOR 202: Second-Year Korean II (G) (5)
KOR 321: Modern Korean Literature (3)
KOR 347: Korean Film and Literature (HU) (3)
KOR 350: Women of Korea (H) (3)
KOR 354: Religions of Korea (HU) (3)

Additional courses may be approved in consultation with an academic advisor in the School of International Letters and Cultures or the coordinator of the certificate. The completion of the requirements will be reviewed both by the students' designated advisors and the coordinator of the program. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

ASU students admitted to a degree program in any field of study are eligible for the Korean studies certificate program. Students should contact the School of International Letters and Cultures for more information about completing the certificate.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Latin American Studies Certificate (LALASCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The Latin American studies certificate program is designed to give students an understanding of the culture, economies, political structures and history of Latin American nations. The program combines six courses across disciplinary boundaries to provide a diverse perspective of the Latin American experience. The Department of Economics, the School of Geographical Sciences and Urban Planning, the School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies, the School of Politics and Global Studies, the School of Human Evolution and Social Change, the School of International Letters and Cultures (Spanish and Portuguese) and the School of Transborder Studies offer courses that comprise the transdisciplinary certificate.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires a minimum of 18 credit hours of Latin American Studies content course work. At least 12 upper-division credit hours must completed from course work offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Language Requirement
Language instruction courses dealing with Spanish and Portuguese conversation and composition cannot be used to satisfy the content course requirement. While students are encouraged to enroll in language instruction courses (i.e., conversation and composition) above the 313 level, they cannot apply such course work to the Latin American studies certificate course requirements.

Students must demonstrate Spanish or Portuguese proficiency through the 313 level of conversation and composition. The language proficiency requirement may be waived for native speakers or those with in-field experience equivalent to SPA 313 or POR 313.

Latin American Content Course Requirements -- 18 credit hours

Law and Human Behavior Certificate (PPLWHBCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, West

Description:

"Law and human behavior" is an umbrella term that encompasses various aspects of forensic psychology, law and justice. This rapidly emerging field examines how the justice system intersects with the mental health professions. This 18-credit hour certificate program focuses on the criminal justice aspects of forensic psychology, emphasizing victimology, offender treatment, criminal incapacity, mental health law, juvenile justice and delinquency, and the dynamics of how the criminal justice system intersects with behavioral science. The program is designed to provide students of social services and social sciences with an understanding of important but understudied areas where justice policy is in desperate need of empirical, psychological research.

Program Requirements:

Required Core -- 12 credit hours
CRJ 260: Substantive Criminal Law (3)
CRJ 410: Procedural Criminal Law (3)
PSY 366: Abnormal Psychology (SB) (3)
PSY 468: Psychology and Law (3)

Electives -- 6 credit hours
Choose at least two courses from outside of one's major:
CRJ 308: Advanced Criminological Theory (3)
CRJ 403: Victims and the Criminal Justice System (3)
CRJ 406: Sex Crimes (3)
CRJ 434: Drugs of Abuse (3)
CRJ 435: Crime and Forensic Mental Health (3)
CRJ 484: Internship (1-6)
Notes: Only those relevant to law and human behavior
CRJ 494: Special Topics (3)
Notes: Only those relevant to law and human behavior
PSY 341: Developmental Psychology (SB) (3)
PSY 368: Forensic Psychology (3)
PSY 443: Abnormal Child Psychology (L or SB) (3)
PSY 472: Clinical Psychology (3)
PSY 474: Correctional Psychology (3)
PSY 494: Special Topics (3)
Notes: Only those relevant to law and human behavior

1. It is the student's responsibility to check the prerequisites required by courses in their discipline.
2. Special Topics courses (CRJ 494 and PSY 494) will be designated and approved by departments and schools. Students will need to work with an advisor in order to select appropriate special topics courses that are approved for credit in the law and human behavior certificate program.
3. At least 12 credit hours must be taken in-residence at ASU.
4. A "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all core and elective course work required for the certificate.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Students must complete the following prerequisite courses with a grade of " C " or higher (scale is $4.00=$ " A ") in order to enroll in the certificate program. These courses may be taken in-residence at ASU or may be transferred in from other institutions, including community colleges. Because these courses are requirements for the bachelor's degree program in psychology or criminology and criminal justice, their completion satisfies not only requirements of these two majors, but also the prerequisite requirements for enrollment in the certificate program in law and human behavior.

Completion of the following prerequisite courses with grades of $C$ or higher are required for enrollment in the certificate program:

- CRJ 100 Introduction to Criminal Justice
- PSY 101 Introduction to Psychology
-First-Year Composition (ENG 102, 105 or 107)
- A course which meets the General Studies MA requirement (MAT 117, 119, 142, 170, 210 or 270)

Either one of the following two-course sequence in statistics and research methods:

- CRJ 302 and 303, or
- PSY 230 and 290.

Leadership and Ethics Certificate (PPLDECERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate in leadership and ethics is designed for undergraduate students who are interested in developing leadership skills or wish to enhance their degree in an existing major at ASU or BA in interdisciplinary students who seek to combine certificates with their degree, and it is also for working adults who may wish to further their education yet may not be looking for a degree program.

The certificate program provides a catalyst for students to become ethical leaders of organizational and community change. This certificate is designed to explore the relationship between leadership and the capacity for individuals to assume responsibility for their actions and to act with a sense of ethics and integrity. It focuses on understanding the broad transdisciplinary field of leadership and its application to various elements of society and community, and it prepares individuals for positions of leadership and responsibility in the university, in student organizations, in their communities and throughout their careers in business, government and society.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in leadership and ethics requires four core courses (12 credit hours), including a leadership capstone experience, plus one elective discipline-based course in leadership or ethics (3 credit hours). The three credit hours of elective course work may be selected from an approved list of elective classes or upon the recommendation of the department.
All courses applied to the certificate must be completed with a grade of " C " ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Core Courses -- 12 credit hours
PAF 311: Leadership and Change (SB) (3)
PAF 410: Building Leadership Skills (SB) (3)
PAF 421: Leadership Capstone (3)
PAF 460: Public Service Ethics (3) discretion of the School of Public Affairs.

Elective Course (choose one) -- 3 credit hours
BUS 497: Honors Colloquium or HON 497: Honors Colloquium (3)

MGT 300: Organization and Management Leadership (3)
NLM 430: Managing Nonprofit Organizations (L) (3)
PAF 420: Public Leadership (3)
POS 314: The American Presidency (SB) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students are also encouraged to schedule an appointment with the undergraduate academic advisor in the School of Public Affairs.

Current students interested in earning the certificate must complete a request to add an undergraduate certificate and return it to the undergraduate academic advisor in the School of Public Affairs at the University Center on the Downtown Phoenix campus. Students may begin taking courses before they formally register for the certificate; however, they are encouraged to complete the paperwork as soon as possible.

Download the request to add an undergraduate certificate at https://students.asu.edu/forms/undergraduate-certificate (https://students.asu.edu/forms/undergraduate-certificate).

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Certificate (PPLGBTCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Lesbians, gay men, bisexuals and transgender people play important roles as colleagues, clients, parents, children, siblings, neighbors, employees, employers, religious leaders and friends. Given the increasing visibility and changing political climate for LGBTQ people in the United States, all students, not only those who identify themselves as gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender, are served well by learning about the histories, communities and contemporary social issues regarding people from LGBTQ backgrounds.

The educational experience is enhanced when students are introduced to complex intersections between and among sexual, racial, ethnic, religious, geographic and national identities. The philosophy of this certificate program is to promote intellectual and pedagogical diversity as one of the university's greatest assets, and this is done, in part, by instilling in students a sensitivity to cultures different from their own and through careful analysis of the self in historical, artistic and sociocultural contexts.

The goals of the certificate program are to give students:

- knowledge about the history, evolution of and current issues facing the LBGTQ community
- practical experience utilizing coursework knowledge in the community through an internship or community service project
- theoretical perspectives on heterosexuality as a presumptive sexual identity
- an understanding of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender studies as an academic area of inquiry
- an understanding of community politics, dynamics and conflicts
- use-inspired education that culminates in a public presentation

\section*{Political Thought and Leadership Certificate (LAPTLCERT)}

Campus: Tempe

\section*{Description:}

The certificate program in political thought and leadership provides students with a strong foundation in the history of politics and political thought with a special emphasis on the role of leadership. The certificate program will prepare students for leadership in their own careers, political or otherwise. Required courses combine academic study and mentoring contact with political, media and business leaders from the wider Phoenix area and Arizona communities, while electives drawn from a variety of disciplines are used to broaden the scope of emphasis.

\section*{Program Requirements:}

The certificate requires 15 credit hours, of which at least 12 must be upper-division. At least six upper-division hours must be completed in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. All courses must be completed in residence at ASU and with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

\section*{Power and Society Certificate (ASPWSOCERT) \\ Campus: West}

\section*{Description:}

The certificate program in power and society offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at the West campus prepares students to think critically and practically about the relationship between power and society. Courses in the program use multiple perspectives to explore the sources, exercise and consequences of power across a variety of social and historical settings. The certificate program is recommended for students with academic or career interests in politics, government, economics, organizing and advocacy, public affairs and public policy, journalism, social work, human rights, social justice, education and sustainability.

\section*{Program Requirements:}

The certificate in power and society requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 credit hours must be upper division). Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline.
All 15 credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a New College major.
The certificate requires three core credit hours and 12 credit hours of electives. Electives are not limited to the certificate elective list; see academic advisor prior to enrollment. A maximum of three credit hours of individualized instruction or internship may be applied toward the certificate.

Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.

Elective Courses (minimum 9 upper-division) -- 12 credit hours
Students will select 12 credit hours from relevant courses on power and society. Selected courses must come from at least two of the following prefixes to develop breadth across disciplines: ASB, POS, SBS or SOC.
ASB 339 / POS 339 / SBS 339 / SOC 339: Grassroots Social Movements (SB) (3)
ASB 342 / SBS 342 / SOC 342: Mexico-U.S. Borderlands (SB & C) (3)

\section*{Public Administration and Public Management Certificate (PPPAFCERT)}

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

\section*{Description:}

The certificate in public administration and public management prepares students for citizenship, leadership and careers in governmental and nonprofit agencies. Students will learn the context and principles of public administration and how to apply these in a practitioner setting; the role of the public administrator in the design, implementation and evaluation of public policy; and how to lead change and address ethical issues in public service.

It is intended for undergraduate students who are interested in developing leadership skills or wish to enhance their degree in an existing major at ASU, for working adults who may wish to further their education yet may not be looking for a degree program or for BA in interdisciplinary studies students who seek to combine certificates with their degree.

The program is designed for students interested in public service who want to learn skills to:
- build and bridge communities
- deliver and manage public programs
- improve the quality of life
- lead change in public policy
- preserve natural resources
- provide public safety
- reform welfare
- strengthen democratic governance

\section*{Program Requirements:}

The certificate in public administration and public management consists of 15 credit hours of course work; students take 12 credit hours of core classes and three credit hours of elective courses.

\section*{Religion and Conflict Certificate (LARELCERT)}

Campus: Tempe

\section*{Description:}

The certificate will be of particular interest to students pursuing careers in journalism, law, policy work, diplomacy, the military, public advocacy, publishing, education, ministry or other fields in which an enhanced understanding of religion and conflict is becoming increasingly vital. A regional component provides students specific regional knowledge of how religion has been implicated in human conflict. Required coursework in at least two different regions fosters a comparative understanding of the dynamics of religion and conflict in historical and global contexts. A political component explores how religion influences or is influenced by matters of state, law, government or other dimensions of political life. A cultural component provides students with an understanding of how religion operates as a powerful force that impacts and intersects with expressions of human identity, thought and culture.

\section*{Program Requirements:}

The certificate requires a minimum of 18 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in upper-division course work and at least 12 credit hours must be completed at ASU. At least six upper-division hours in the certificate must be completed in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. A grade of "C" ( 2.00 on a 4.00 scale ) or higher is required for each course used to fulfill a certificate requirement.

\section*{Risk Communication Certificate (ASRCMCERT)}

Campus: West

\section*{Description:}

The certificate program in risk communication combines the strengths of the three schools within the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences: the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences and the School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies. The rising importance of the field of risk communication stems from the need to name, understand and manage physical and social risks as we are faced with increasingly challenging decisions concerning stressed social and environmental infrastructures. Proficiency in risk communication requires understanding the complex interfaces of physical, biological, psychological and social systems. The program will prepare students for a range of diverse careers in risk management, crisis communications and environmental public affairs. Specifically, students will develop expertise suited to work as risk management specialists and environmental advocates, preparing them to translate complex scientific ideas and analyses into information that can be evaluated meaningfully by all members of society.

\section*{Program Requirements:}

The certificate in risk communication requires 15 credit hours. A minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division. Eight credit hours must be unique credit hours not already being counted toward the students' bachelor degree requirements in communication or environmental science. Other electives can be chosen in consultation with an academic advisor. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a " C " (2.00) or better.

Core Requirements -- 6 credit hours
BIO 130: Introduction to Environmental Science (SQ) or ENV 201: Fundamentals of Environmental Science (3-4)
Notes: ENV 201 is required by Biology or Environmental Science majors.
COM 415: Risk Communication (3)

Elective Courses (choose three courses) -- 9 credit hours
COM 319: Persuasion and Social Influence (SB) (3)
COM 414: Crisis Communication (3)
COM 450: Organizational Communication (SB) (3)
COM 454: Rhetorical and Critical Approaches to Public Relations (3)
COM 463: Intercultural Communication in a Global Context (SB & G) (3)
IAS 340 / PHI 320: Bioethics (HU) (3)
IAS 407 / PHI 407: Environmental Philosophy and Policy (L or HU) (3)
IAS 409 / PHI 409: Eco-Community Ethics (HU) (3)
LSC 362: The Human Environment (3)
PTX 301: Basics of Pharmacology and Toxicology (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

\section*{Enrollment Requirements:}

Students wishing to pursue this certificate should consult an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences or the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences to ensure the appropriate set of courses is taken and the required paperwork is submitted.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

\section*{Risk Management Certificate (BARMGTCERT)}

Campus: Polytechnic

\section*{Description:}

This certificate program is designed to give students a solid foundation in the theory and practice of modern risk management. Upon completion of the certificate, students will be able to identify and measure a variety of business and financial risks, and to design and articulate strategies for managing and communicating risks. The concept of Enterprise Risk Management is emphasized at the onset of the certificate curriculum, emphasizing that risks and risk management strategies must be considered holistically at the firm level, not in isolation.

\section*{Program Requirements:}

The certificate in risk management is available to business majors and non-business majors. This certificate requires 18 credit hours of courses. A "C" or better is required for all upper-division coursework. No more than six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and other degree programs, minors, and/or other certificates.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours
BUS 434: Risk Management and Insurance (3)
BUS 436: Frontiers in Risk Management (3)
