Exercise and Aging: Focused area of study on the impact of physical activity on aging, the management and treatment of chronic disease, geriatric nutrition, and the neuro-motor aspects of aging and exercise. This focus area is a good option for students who are interested in designing and delivering physical activity and exercise programs specifically for older adult populations.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a related field from a regionally accredited institution. Students are expected to have the coursework and undergraduate credit for the basic courses required for a BS degree in exercise and wellness. Students who do not have these course competencies can be admitted with deficiencies. Deficiencies are determined upon admission, and these courses must be completed, usually by the end of the first year of study. These courses are not considered part of the graduate plan of study. A graduate course may be substituted for a deficiency but will be evaluated on a case-by-case basis.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- statement of career or research interests
- three professional letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must submit proof of English proficiency.

BIO 201 and BIO 202 must be completed prior to admission to the master's degree. Other deficiency courses may be taken prior to or during the master's degree program. The corresponding ASU course can be found in parentheses:

Human Anatomy and Laboratory (BIO 201 Human Anatomy and Physiology I)
Human Physiology and Laboratory (BIO 202 Human Anatomy and Physiology II)
Human Nutrition (NTR 241 Human Nutrition)
Exercise Physiology and Laboratory (EXW 315 Physiological Foundations of Movement)
Kinesiology and Laboratory (EXW 330 Kinesiological Foundations of Movement)
Exercise Testing and Laboratory (EXW 420 Exercise Testing)
Exercise Prescription (EXW 425 Exercise Prescription)

An undergraduate course in statistics is strongly recommended.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Program Description:

The MAS degree in health informatics is a flexible program formatted to meet the needs of working professionals. Core courses provide a background in clinical informatics, while electives allow students to specialize in focus areas such as data science or mobile health. The degree program prepares graduates with skills for careers in a wide range of health care settings. Professionals in nonhealth fields can also develop the skills needed to transition into careers in this rapidly expanding field.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (BMI 593).

Required Core (12 credit hours)

BMI 601 Fundamentals of Health Informatics (3)

BMI 603 Health Informatics Database Modeling and Applications (3)

BMI 614 Current Perspectives in Health Informatics (3)

BMI 616 Clinical Decision Support and Evidence-Based Medicine (3)

Electives (15 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

BMI 593 Applied Project

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in a related field such as biology, computer science, medicine, nursing, pharmacy or public health, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Integrated Behavioral Health - Clinical (Certificate), Certificate (NHIBHCGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Integrated Behavioral Health -Clinical (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

This certificate program in integrated behavioral health with a clinical focus provides training for clinicians who aspire to work in integrated primary care behavioral health. Though there is a growing need for behavioral health providers who can promote the physical and mental health of primary care patients, and despite licensed social workers and counselors comprising much of the field's workforce, there remain few opportunities for specific clinical training in the field. Few have received specific clinical training in brief focused interventions delivered in primary care clinics for a wide scope of health concerns.

The curriculum is designed to provide students with a deeper understanding of models of primary care behavioral health and provide training on evidence-based approaches to behavioral health care, population-based health and medical literacy to ensure applicants have a working knowledge of the skills necessary for success in the integrated primary care arena.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (12 credit hours)

IBC 601 Models of Integrated Primary Care (3)

IBC 603 Brief Interventions in Primary Care (3)

IBC 604 Clinical Medicine/Pathophysiology (3)

IBC 611 Population-Based Behavioral Health Management (3)

Electives (3 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic unit for the approved course list of electives. Other coursework may be used with the approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a master's degree in a related field such as social work, counseling, family therapy, clinical psychology or nursing, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official graduate transcripts
- personal statement
- one letter of professional recommendation
- current resume or curriculum vita
- submission of licensure form and copy of license
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

All applicants are required to hold a master's degree that results in behavioral health licensure or license-eligibility. In rare cases, applicants are considered with a master's degree and licensure unrelated to their degree (e.g., applicant with a master's degree in public health and licensure as a registered dietician). Consistent with the current admissions process for the Doctor of Behavioral Health program, licensure and licensure-eligibility is determined by the student's submission of an online form that is part of the supplemental application and a copy of their board-issued license.

The requirements for the personal statement are outlined on the online application.

Integrated Behavioral Health - Management (Certificate), Certificate (NHIBHMGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Integrated Behavioral Health - Management (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

This certificate program in integrated behavioral health - management is designed for health care managers with master's degrees as well as aspiring health care managers and provides training on the integration of medical and behavioral services. Integrated health care has expanded significantly in recent years in conjunction with the expansion of the primary care medical home model and other funding initiatives that reimburse primary care practices for better managing the whole-health care of their patients, including treatment of mental health concerns and enhanced behavior change coaching that result in improved health outcomes. Despite the growing need for such clinics, few individuals have received training on models of primary care integration and business and funding initiatives required for successful integration.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (12 credit hours)

IBC 601 Models of Integrated Primary Care (3)

IBC 614 Quality and Performance Measurement, Improvement and Incentives in Health Care (3)

IBC 626 Behavioral Health Management (3)

International Health Management, MIHM (NHIHMIHM)

Online Degree Search Title: International Health Management, MIHM

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The 100 percent online MIHM degree is offered by Arizona State University in partnership with the University of New South Wales in Sydney, Australia. Ideal for students seeking a career in international health systems management, this degree program advances the core principles of the PLuS Alliance to develop solutions to global challenges and generate social impact in health and health care. The collaborative and international nature of the program provides students access to global academic networks and industry partners.

Students in this international health management program select a track focusing on health informatics, quality improvement in health care, health economics or hospital management. Students will build knowledge necessary for leadership and management, including policy, economics, finance and development, from the combined expertise of faculty at two world-renowned research universities. After courses in health care management, finance and comparative health systems, students choose an area of focus in health informatics, quality improvement in health care, health economics or hospital management.

Major sites of employment for graduates include hospital systems, nursing homes and similar facilities, and outpatient clinics. There is a significant growth market for graduates with skills in international health management given the aging populations and the need for a health care workforce competent in informatics, leadership and finance.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

HCD 532 Health Care Management and Finance (3)

HCD 537 Comparative Health Care Systems (3)

Track Courses (12 credit hours)

Electives or Research (12 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (0 credit hours)

Portfolio (0)

Additional Curriculum Information

Coursework taken for this program is provided through ASU and the University of New South Wales. For the specified core course, students take the equivalent of HCD 537 (PHCM 9471) at the University of New South Wales.

Students select one of the tracks as part of their curriculum. Some track courses are also listed as possible electives. In the event that an elective course is also listed as a specific track course for the track the student has selected, the student must select a different course as the elective.

Students should see the academic unit for an approved list of track and elective courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree (or equivalent) or master's degree from a regionally accredited college or university in a related field such as biology, chemistry, biochemistry, nursing, public health, pharmacy, biomedical informatics, social work, premed, prehealth, nutrition, health promotion or others.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of reference
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Three letters of reference from either academic or professional sources are required; reference letters from friends or relatives are not accepted. Letters demonstrating involvement in health care, community service or leadership are encouraged.

A personal statement must be submitted that explains how the applicant plans to contribute to the health care system after the degree is obtained; how the program will help the applicant achieve their goals; what the applicant's career aspirations are; and what interested the applicant in this degree program.

A phone or video conference interview with the admissions committee may be required.

Medical Nutrition, MS (NHMNTSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Medical Nutrition, MS

Campus: Online

Program Description:

This MS program in medical nutrition is designed for current and future health care professionals, including gap-year students, those who have completed their bachelor's degree but have not yet secured admission to medical, veterinary, dental, osteopathic, physician assistant or similar schools; and for current medical students, residents, fellows and practitioners in the aforementioned fields who seek to develop a strong knowledge base in the nutritional sciences and its application in the health care field.

Students develop competence in nutritional biochemistry and its application in health maintenance, the treatment of disease and disease prevention. Training in therapeutic diets, nutrition guidelines and supplement and functional food usage is integrated into coursework and culminating experiences. Self-directed learning using evidence-based nutrition research and case studies is emphasized, and students develop interpretive expertise and nutritional assessment techniques to use in clinical practice. Proficiency in reading and interpreting nutrition research is a key program goal.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including an applied project course (NTR 593).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

NTR 502 Statistics in Research (3)

NTR 510 Food and Nutrition Across the Lifespan (3)

NTR 511 Medical Nutrition in the Care and Prevention of Disease (3)

Restricted Electives (12 credit hours)

Other Requirement (3 credit hours)

NTR 500 Research Methods (3)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

NTR 593 Applied Project (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

For the approved list of restricted electives, students should see the academic unit. Restricted elective and other requirement coursework may be substituted with the approval of the student's graduate committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- one page personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The letters of recommendation should be from previous instructors or professors.

Nutrition, MS (ECHNUTMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Nutritional Science, MS

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

This program's name has changed effective Fall 2019. The previous name was Nutrition.

Program Description:

The ASU MS program in nutritional science prepares students to translate nutrition science into practical use for human health and wellness. Students learn about nutrition alongside faculty who are immersed in the latest research, and they build practical understanding through internships and their own guided research.

The program is based on the scientific foundations of human nutrition, but also prepares students to have strong writing and problem-solving skills, computer literacy, interpretive expertise, and research experiences. Students who have completed an accredited didactic program in dietetics may also elect to apply to the ASU dietetic internship in order to meet the requirements to become a registered dietitian nutritionist. More information is available at <https://chs.asu.edu/programs/nutrition-dietetics/how-become-registered-dietitian> (<https://chs.asu.edu/programs/nutrition-dietetics/how-become-registered-dietitian>).

The primary objective of the graduate program in nutrition is to provide advanced training in nutrition research. Graduate students are expected to develop competencies in research methods and in advanced practice knowledge relevant to their area of study. The skills and knowledge acquired during the course of training should enable each student to develop professional competencies that can be applied to significant problems and issues within the field of nutrition and dietetics.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required Applied Project course (NTR 593).

Required Core (6 credit hours)

NTR 500 Research Methods (3)

NTR 501 Research Methods in Nutrition II (3)

Concentration (6 credit hours)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Statistics (3 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

NTR 593 Applied Project (6) or
NTR 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

For the concentration, electives and statistics requirements, students should see the academic unit for the approved course lists. Possible approved courses may include nutrition seminars. Graduate-level nutrition seminars vary by semester, in topics and availability. Current topics include:

NTR 503 Designing Health Behavior Change Interventions (3)
NTR 523 Vegetarian Nutrition (3)
NTR 527 Policies, Environment and Obesity Prevention (3)
NTR 529 Pediatric Nutrition (3)
NTR 532 Endocrine Pathophysiology and Nutrition (3)
NTR 535 Nutrigenomics (3)
NTR 537 Evidenced-Based Nutrition (3)
NTR 555 Nutrition and the Athlete (3)
NTR 598 Special Topics (3)

NTR 598 seminars reflect the changing nature of research and cover different subject areas each semester. Recent seminars include Advanced MNT, epidemiology, eating disorders, and sports nutrition.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

These courses are part of the ASU didactic program in dietetics required for ASU's BS degree in dietetics and to be eligible to apply for admission into an accredited dietetic internship to become a registered dietitian. If an applicant has completed a didactic program in dietetics from another university, these prerequisites will be considered complete. Prerequisite courses can be in progress when the student submits the application; however, if the student is accepted into the Master of Science degree program, all prerequisites must be completed before the program begins in the fall semester.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- resume
- personal statement
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

A resume that summarizes the academic, volunteer and employment experiences of the applicant needs to be submitted with the graduate admission application.

A personal statement that includes the following must be submitted with the graduate admission application:

- a description of the applicant's significant professional responsibilities
- the applicant's professional goals and the reasons for the desire to enroll in ASU's program
- the applicant's strengths that will allow the applicant success in the program and in reaching professional goals
- the applicant's personal research interests, described as specifically as possible, including any previous research experience

Three letters of recommendation are required, including at least one from an instructor at the applicant's undergraduate school. Letters of recommendation can be submitted with the graduate admission online application.

There is not a required foreign language examination for this program.

No interview is required.

For the concentration, electives, and statistics requirements, students should see the academic unit for the approved course lists. Possible approved courses may include nutrition seminars. Graduate-level nutrition seminars vary by semester, in topics and availability. Current topics include:

NTR 503 Designing Health Behavior Change Interventions (3)

NTR 523 Vegetarian Nutrition (3)

NTR 527 Policies, Environment and Obesity Prevention (3)

NTR 529 Pediatric Nutrition (3)

NTR 532 Endocrine Pathophysiology and Nutrition (3)

NTR 535 Nutrigenomics (3)

NTR 537 Evidenced-Based Nutrition (3)

NTR 555 Nutrition and the Athlete (3)

NTR 598 Special Topics (3)

NTR 598 seminars reflect the changing nature of research and cover different subject areas each semester. Recent seminars include global nutrition, public health, functional foods and sports nutrition.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are required to have adequate academic preparation which includes a minimum of a BS or BA degree from a regionally accredited institution, current RD credential, and one year of full-time work experience as an RD.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of Registered Dietitian status
- resume
- personal statement
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Applicants should submit proof of registered dietitian status by accessing the Commission on Dietetic Registration's website (<https://www.cdrnet.org>) and complete the verification process using the online credential verification search.

A resume is required that summarizes the applicant's academic, volunteer and employment experiences.

Also required is a one- to two-page, typed, double-spaced, personal statement addressing the following: significant professional responsibilities the applicant has held; professional goals and reasons for desiring to enroll in this program; strengths that will help the applicant succeed in this program and in reaching their professional goals; and, personal interests in research, including, if applicable, studies involving the practice of dietetics.

Three letters of recommendation are to be submitted with the application, including at least one from an employer or work supervisor.

Because passing the registered dietitian exam and gaining work experience in the field of dietetics are required for successful admission to the MS in nutritional science dietetics concentration, the nutrition program graduate committee does not require applicants to take or submit scores from the GRE. In lieu of GRE scores, a telephone interview may be conducted.

There is not a required foreign language examination for this program.

A personal or phone interview may be required.

Applicants to the Master of Science degree program in nutritional science with a concentration in dietetics must have one year of full-time work experience as a registered dietitian nutritionist; however, applicants do not have to be employed at the time they apply to the program nor do students have to be employed to maintain good standing within the program.

Obesity Prevention and Management, MS (NHOBSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Obesity Prevention and Management, MS

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The MS in obesity prevention and management is an innovative degree program that draws on a wide array of expertise at ASU. The curriculum is designed to integrate perspectives from the social, applied, life and health sciences and provides advanced, graduate-level, problem-focused, experiential training that is grounded in evidence and best practices for effective prevention and management of obesity.

This degree program is geared toward postbaccalaureate students and professionals who wish to advance their understanding of the social, cultural, environmental, health and psychological issues associated with obesity. The program emphasizes the complex etiology of obesity and includes courses that will enhance students' ability to work with individuals and populations at risk of obesity to develop effective strategies for prevention and management of the condition across the lifespan.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including a thesis, or 30 credit hours including an applied project (OBS 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

OBS 501 Obesity Prevention and Management: An Introduction (3)

Electives (21 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

OBS 593 Applied Project (6) or

OBS 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose one three-credit hour elective course from each of the following categories: concepts in behavior change, research methods and statistics.

Additional elective course selections will depend upon the student's chosen track. Students will select six credit hours from prescribed categories for each track and six credits from the following categories: cultural aspects of behavior change, general track, public health approaches for behavior change, and technological approaches for behavior change.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's (or equivalent) or master's degree in social or health science-related fields from a regionally accredited institution. The following entry-level competencies are needed for admission to the program: Students should have completed undergraduate-level courses in statistics and psychology and, ideally, have completed one or more courses in nutrition, physiology and chemistry.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores (verbal, quantitative and analytical)
- statement of educational and career goals
- writing sample
- letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students who have an undergraduate GPA of 3.25 or higher in the last 60 hours of their undergrad program may have the GRE requirement waived with approval of the academic unit.

No foreign language examinations are required for admittance to the program.

Writing sample: A two- to three-page application letter is required in which applicants explain why they want to pursue this degree and why they feel well-prepared to succeed in this graduate program.

Science of Health Care Delivery, MS (NHSKCDMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Science of Health Care Delivery, MS

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Program Description:

The MS program in the science of health care delivery focuses on the study and design of the systems, processes, leadership and management used to optimize health care delivery and health for all. This degree program is designed for individuals interested in a career in the health care industry. It provides students with the knowledge and competencies to contribute in a patient-centered, safe and cost-effective health care system.

The curriculum is centered on high-value care, leadership and critical thinking, population health, informatics, systems engineering, management, and health economics and policy. Students apply concepts through case studies and team-based projects to facilitate integration of knowledge and competencies. Participating students work in a cohort through the program and are able to complete the degree in nine months (one academic year).

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (HCD 550).

Required Core (24 credit hours)

BMI 601 Fundamentals of Health Informatics (3)

HCD 501 Biostatistics and Data Management (3)

HCD 502 Health Care Systems and Design (3)

HCD 511 Health Economics, Policy and Payment Models (3)

HCD 520 Population Health (3)

HCD 532 Health Care Management and Finance (3)

HCD 570 Process Engineering (3)

HCD 575 Leadership and Professionalism (3)

Electives (3 credit hours)

Research (2 credit hours)

HCD 592 Research: PART ONE (1)

HCD 592 Research: PART TWO (1)

Culminating Experience (1 credit hour)

HCD 550 Capstone (1)

Additional Curriculum Information

Elective coursework must be 500 level and must be from the HCD course prefix.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited college or university of recognized standing in a related field such as biology, chemistry, biochemistry, nursing, public health, pharmacy, biomedical informatics, social work, premed, prehealth, nutrition, health promotion or others.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 credit hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of reference
- personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Three letters of reference from either academic or professional sources are required; reference letters from friends or relatives will not be accepted.

Letters demonstrating involvement in health care, community service or leadership are encouraged.

A personal statement must be submitted that explains how the applicant plans to contribute to the health care system after the degree is obtained; how the program will help the applicant achieve the applicant's goals; what the applicant's career aspirations are; and what interested the applicant in this degree program.

A phone or video conference interview with the admissions committee may be required.

Science of Health Care Delivery (Certificate), Certificate (NHHCDGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Science of Health Care Delivery (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

Change in the health care system has accelerated in the past five years and continues to do so as the health care system transforms itself to one based on value rather than on volume. The certificate program in the science of health care delivery addresses the current and future needs of the workforce in the health care industry, such as C-suite executives and administrators, health care providers (physicians, physician assistants, nurse practitioners and nurses), front line staff (respiratory therapists, occupational therapists, physical therapists and dietitians) and students in the health-related disciplines.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (9 credit hours)

HCD 502 Health Care Systems and Design (3)

HCD 511 Health Economics, Policy and Payment Models (3)

HCD 520 Population Health (3)

Track (6 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students select one of the following tracks: quality and process improvement, clinical informatics, and leadership.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. The following disciplines are preferred: business or law (health care and business administration, economics, finance or law), engineering (biomedical engineering), general science (biology or physiology), health-related field (nursing, health policy or public health), or math or computer science (statistics or computer science).

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- evidence of work experience
- proof of English language proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

More than two years of work experience in a health-related field is preferred.

Applicants must have basic competencies in college-level math, general biology (or physiology) and statistics. Course equivalencies include:

BIO 181 General Biology I

BIO 182 General Biology II

HCD 300 Biostatistics

MAT 117 College Algebra

or other coursework, with approval of the academic unit.

Speech and Hearing Science, PHD (LAHEARPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Speech and Hearing Science, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The interdisciplinary PhD program in speech and hearing science prepares scholars for careers in basic and applied research in academic, industrial or health care environments.

Students pursue an individualized program with the unifying theme of human communication and disorders. Courses tailored to students' specific interests are taken from a variety of departments. In addition to a self-designed program of study, concentrations are offered in auditory and language neuroscience and in translational genetics of communication abilities. Students should visit the program website for further details about these options.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (2 credit hours)

SHS 701 Scientific Writing and Presentation in Communication Sciences and Disorders I (1)

SHS 702 Scientific Writing and Presentation in Communication Sciences and Disorders II (1)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SHS 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, 28 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree are allowed to be used for the degree.

Students complete content area coursework that may include aspects of neuroscience, methodology, speech and hearing science, and other specialty areas. A student completes their plan of study under the guidance of their faculty mentor and program committee. A programmatic research experience prepares the student for basic or applied research leading to the dissertation.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in a related field and do not wish to earn a clinical master's degree, or if they have earned a master's degree or equivalent in speech and hearing science, psychology, linguistics, or a related discipline from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of undergraduate and graduate study
- application cover letter and personal statement
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Professional letters of recommendation must be from three individuals who are familiar with the applicant's academic record and should contain contact information for the recommenders.

The personal statement must be 300 words or fewer and should include the experiences and qualities the student brings to the program, along with the student's goals for the future.

Speech and Hearing Science (Auditory and Language Neuroscience), PHD (NHSALPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Speech and Hearing Science (Auditory and Language Neuroscience), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The auditory and language neuroscience concentration within the PhD program in speech and hearing science trains scholars in basic and applied research in the fields of auditory and language neuroscience. Students develop a strong foundation to conduct impactful neuroscience research related to healthy auditory and language abilities as well as the neural bases of communication disorders.

This program's faculty are in a unique position to provide this integrated training experience because of the program's focus on innovative approaches to the field of speech, language and hearing science; faculty backgrounds include engineering, neuroscience and psychology in addition to world-class expertise in speech-language pathology and auditory neural prosthetics.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (2 credit hours)

SHS 701 Scientific Writing and Presentation in Communication Sciences and Disorders I (1)

SHS 702 Scientific Writing and Presentation in Communication Sciences and Disorders II (1)

Concentration (12 credit hours)

Research (21 credit hours)

SHS 792 Research (12)

research methods and statistics (9)

Electives or Additional Research (28 credit hours)

Other Requirements (9 credit hours)

SHS 790 Reading and Conference Professional Seminars (9)

preliminary exam (0)

comprehensive exams (0)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SHS 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

The concentration courses focus on issues related to auditory and language neuroscience. These credit hours may be accomplished in regular graduate-level (500+) courses or in special topic seminars and independent studies. The student's program committee guides selection of these courses, which may be focused on a broad base of areas related to auditory and language neuroscience.

Students should see the academic unit for approved concentration courses, professional seminars for SHS 790, research and electives. Other research and electives courses may be used with approval of the academic unit.

The preliminary exam research project is to be in the field of auditory or language neuroscience, or in both. Each student will give a formal presentation of their prospectus to their program committee. The defense for the preliminary exam research project includes a written document of the research project and an oral defense.

The comprehensive exams entail a written examination and an oral examination. The written exam takes one of the following formats: students write responses to questions posed by each committee member or students complete a written paper for each member of the committee.

For the proposed concentration, at least two of the three questions (or, topics for the written papers) posed by the committee members must be focused in the area of auditory or language neuroscience, or in both. The comprehensive examination committee evaluates the written paper and the oral defense during a closed meeting with the student.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 credit hours of coursework is to be made up of electives and research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in a related field and do not wish to earn a clinical master's degree, or if they have earned a master's degree or equivalent in speech and hearing science, psychology, linguistics or a related discipline from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of undergraduate and graduate study
- application cover letter and personal statement
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Typically, applicants will have completed a master's or AuD degree or equivalent in speech and hearing science, psychology, linguistics or a related discipline. Applicants with a bachelor's degree in speech and hearing science, psychology, engineering or another related field, strong research interests, and a strong academic record also are considered.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Professional letters of recommendation must be from three individuals who are familiar with the applicant's academic record and should contain contact information for the recommenders.

Speech and Hearing Science (Translational Genetics of Communication Abilities), PHD (NHSSTGPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Speech and Hearing Science (Translational Genetics of Communication Abilities), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The translational genetics of communication abilities concentration within the PhD program in speech and hearing science provides doctoral students with training in an innovative approach to the clinical sciences (pioneered at ASU) where the concepts of precision medicine are applied to all disciplines within communication sciences and disorders. Training in molecular genetics and bioinformatics equips students to investigate the interactions among genetic, brain-based and behavioral traits. Prior training in genetics is not required.

Knowledge of genotype-phenotype associations provides the foundation for the translational components of this program: early identification and intervention, individualized management and interprofessional approaches. Students have the option of focusing primarily on basic sciences aspects, on clinical translations, or on both.

This program leverages ASU's strong research and clinical expertise across clinical linguistics and its expertise in the biosciences and translational clinical sciences. Collaborating units at ASU include the Biodesign Institute, the School of Life Sciences, the College of Health Solutions with its many subspecialties such as bioinformatics, the Department of Psychology, and many others.

Upon completion of this doctoral concentration, graduates have the skills to discover and understand networks of genotype-phenotype associations and to contribute to more effective clinical management of communication disorders using preventative, targeted and interprofessional methods.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (2 credit hours)

SHS 701 Scientific Writing and Presentation in Communication Sciences and Disorders I (1)

SHS 702 Scientific Writing and Presentation in Communication Sciences and Disorders II (1)

Concentration (12 credit hours)

Research (21 credit hours)

Other Requirements (9 credit hours)

SHS 790 Reading and Conference Professional Seminars (9)

preliminary exam (0)

comprehensive exams (0)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SHS 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

The concentration courses focus on issues related to translational genetics. These credit hours may be accomplished in regular graduate-level courses (500-level and higher) or in special topic seminars and independent studies. The student's program committee will guide selection of these courses, which may be focused on a broad base of areas related to translational genetics. All doctoral graduates with this concentration are required to have foundational knowledge in genetics.

Students should see the academic unit for approved concentration courses, professional seminars for SHS 790, research and electives. Other research and electives courses may be used with approval of the academic unit.

The preliminary exam research project is to be within the field of translational genetics of communication abilities. Each student gives a formal presentation of their prospectus to their program committee. The defense for the preliminary exam research project includes a written document of the research project and an oral defense.

Prior to commencing dissertation research, the student must pass a comprehensive written examination covering their field of study, which must be orally defended.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework is to be made up of electives and research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Health Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in a related field and do not wish to earn a clinical master's degree, or if they have earned a master's degree or equivalent in speech and hearing science, psychology, linguistics or a related discipline from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- application cover letter and personal statement
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants must demonstrate a strong interest in translational genetics as indicated in the applicant's written statement of academic and professional goals

Typically, applicants have completed a master's or AuD degree or equivalent in speech and hearing science, psychology, linguistics or a related discipline. Applicants with a bachelor's degree, strong research interests and a strong academic record also will be considered. Applicants who wish to study the genetics of a certain communication disorder but lack undergraduate or graduate level training in communication disorders are required to take relevant courses in the college.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Integrative Sciences and Arts, College of

Applied Biological Sciences, MS (TSAPBIOSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Biological Sciences, MS

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The MS program in applied biological sciences offers advanced instruction in the ecology and sustainable management of natural and urban ecosystems. Rigorous programs of study involving field and laboratory work are custom-designed to apply ecological or biological principles to problems in species or ecosystem conservation. All programs culminate with the completion of an intensive, research-based thesis or applied project.

The program is supported by faculty members with backgrounds in:

- ecological restoration
- environmental microbiology
- environmental stress physiology
- desert horticulture
- plant-fungal ecology
- plant systematics
- riparian and stream ecology
- urban micrometeorology
- wildlife biology

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Applied Biological Sciences (Applied Biological Sciences), BS
- Applied Biological Sciences (Applied Ecology and Preveterinary Medicine), BS
- Applied Biological Sciences (Natural Resource Ecology), BS
- Applied Biological Sciences (Preveterinary Medicine), BS
- Applied Biological Sciences (Secondary Education in Biology), BS
- Applied Biological Sciences (Sustainable Horticulture), BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (ABS 592 and ABS 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

ABS 550 Vegetation Dynamics (3) or

ABS 555 Wildlife Dynamics (3)

Electives or Research (21 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

ABS 592 Research (3) and ABS 593 Applied Project (3)

ABS 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

The electives coursework is chosen to support the student's educational objectives.

Students choose a thesis or applied project option. A final oral examination covering the thesis and related subject matter is required.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores or Miller Analogies Test scores
- resume
- statement of intent
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Applicants are expected to have completed 18 credit hours in biological sciences and closely related courses. Specific fields of study may have specific expectations regarding courses taken at the undergraduate level. Applicants not meeting these course requirements may be considered for admission with deficiencies.

The statement of intent (maximum 600 words) should explain the applicant's interest in environmental resources, academic background and educational objectives.

The letters of recommendation should be from references who are qualified to comment on the applicant's potential in the selected area of study.

Department faculty evaluate the applications and supporting materials and recommend to Graduate Admission Services whether the applicant should be granted admission (either regular or provisional) or denied admission. If admission is provisional, the Graduate College specifies in its letter of admission the provisions that need to be met to gain regular status. The school informs successful applicants of the procedures for enrollment.

Counseling, MC (EDCOUNMC)

Online Degree Search Title: Counseling, MC

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Master of Counseling program is approved by the Arizona Board of Behavioral Health Examiners (<https://www.azbbhe.us/node/553>) (<https://www.azbbhe.us/node/553>). The mission of the MC program is to prepare students to become professional clinical mental health counselors, culturally competent to work with diverse clientele in a variety of mental health settings including community behavioral health agencies, colleges and universities, and organizational settings. Clinical mental health counselors seek to prevent or treat psychological problems and to promote the health of individuals, families, groups and organizations in a diverse society.

The program also instills in students the importance of research in advancing the counseling profession. One manifestation of the crucial link between practice and research is the three complementary functions of the program's state-of-the-art Counselor Training Center: services delivery, clinical training and research.

Faculty research foci include but are not limited to the following:

- acculturative stress
- career development
- children and adolescents
- counseling process and outcome
- couple and family relationships
- mental health disparities
- microaggressions
- play therapy
- retention in education
- socioeconomic status and financial stress

The faculty of the Master of Counseling program have endorsed the American Counseling Association's Code of Ethics and the following American Counseling Association competencies: ALGBTIC Competencies for Counseling LGBQIQA Individuals (2012), Competencies for Counseling the Multiracial Population (2015), Multicultural and Social Justice Counseling Competencies (2015), Competencies for Addressing Spiritual and Religious Issues in Counseling (2009) and Multicultural Career Counseling Competencies (2009).

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose either a thesis or written comprehensive exam pathway. The thesis option is for students who are focusing their program on research, and they take six credit hours of elective or research coursework plus six credit hours of thesis. The written comprehensive exam is for students in the practitioner pathway, and they take 12 credit hours of elective coursework.

The clinical portion of the program is comprised of CED 680 Practicum Seminar and Clinic and CED 684 Internship. These are required for all students. CED 580 Practicum Clinic and CED 584 Internship may be taken by students needing to log required clinical hours after CED 680 and CED 684 are completed. CED 580 and CED 584 are not required unless additional clinical hours are needed.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- two- to three-page personal statement
- at least two and a maximum of three recommendation forms
- verbal and quantitative GRE scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Admission Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The GRE test must be retaken if scores are more than five years old.

Nonacademic/Professional/Life Experiences:

Applicants are required to submit a two- to three-page personal statement that will indicate the applicant's qualifications and reasons for their interest in the program (e.g., professional experiences and personal attributes). Specifically, applicants are asked to provide a reflection on how their education and training as well as their professional experiences inform why they want to pursue the degree and how this program will help them meet their future goals. Applicants are also expected to discuss and elaborate on their ability to work and be sensitive to the needs of a multicultural and diverse society, including members of diverse racial or ethnic groups and individuals of a sexual minority.

Recommendations:

At least two but no more than three recommendation forms are to be submitted. These should be completed by persons able to evaluate the applicant's academic potential, professional experience and personal attributes.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

For more information, students should visit the school's website.

Counseling Psychology, PHD (EDCPSYPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Counseling Psychology, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This American Psychological Association-accredited PhD program in counseling psychology adheres closely to the scientist-practitioner training model in preparing graduates for employment in academic and service delivery settings. Although faculty interests are diverse, there is a common emphasis on empirical data as the basis for culturally responsive professional practice. The faculty have endorsed the following from the APA: ethical principles of psychologists and code of conduct; guidelines on multicultural education, training, research, practice and organizational change for psychologists; and guidelines for psychological practice with lesbian, gay and bisexual clients.

One manifestation of the program's commitment to the scientist-practitioner model is the three complementary functions of the program's state-of-the-art counselor training center: service delivery, clinical training and research.

Faculty research foci include couple and family relationships, intersections of ethnic and gender identities, counseling process and outcome, mental health disparities, socioeconomic status and financial stress, career development, retention in education, children and adolescents, and play therapy.

Degree Requirements:

113 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The doctoral curriculum typically requires three to four years of full-time graduate study plus a yearlong internship in an American Psychological Association-approved setting. Each of these years involves coursework pertaining to theory, research and practice in counseling psychology. Students are expected to maintain full-time status. Full-time status involves being registered for at least nine credit hours per semester in the coursework years. This requirement applies only to the academic year and not summer sessions. At a minimum, students are required to complete two years of coursework in residence at ASU.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores (which can be no older than five years)
- personal statement
- a completed biographical information form
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

The personal statement should be 600 words or less, and it should describe the applicant's history, academic and professional goals and reasons for selecting the counseling psychology program at ASU.

Applicants must submit a seven-page sample of the applicant's expository writing (e.g., taken from a paper prepared for a course or a report on a project the applicant has completed in this field).

The preference is that two of the recommendation letters be from persons familiar with the applicant's academic work.

Applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Integrative Social Science, MS (LSISSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Integrative Social Science, MS

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The MS in integrative social science is an advanced degree program designed to cross-educate students in the social sciences in order to meet the complex issues that confront human society in the 21st century.

The emphasis of the program lies in bridging traditional disciplinary boundaries to immerse students in the myriad theories and skills available across disciplines, which would elude them in traditional disciplinary social science programs. Thus, graduates of the program are prepared with theory and research skill sets that allow them to draw from the best of the multiple disciplines of the social sciences as they confront a technically sophisticated 21st-century world.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Integrative Social Science, BS

Political Science, BS

Science, Technology and Society, BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including a thesis, or 30 credit hours including an applied project (ISS 593).

Required Core (12 credit hours)

ISS 501 Advanced Integrated Social Research Methods (3)

ISS 502 Advanced Seminar in Integrated Social Science (3)

ISS 504 Advanced Integrated Theories of Social Science (3)

ISS 505 Multivariate Methodologies of Social Science (3)

Electives or Research (12 credit hours)

Other Requirement (3 credit hours)

ISS 584 Internship (3)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)

ISS 593 Applied Project (3) or

ISS 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose either the thesis or applied project option. The internship is only required for students in the applied project option and is a structured practical experience that follows a contract or plan that is supervised by faculty and practitioners.

For the elective and research coursework, students choose from a list of preapproved courses for a total of 12 credit hours. Students should contact the academic unit for a list of possible courses. Other courses may be used with approval from the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in any social science or interdisciplinary field such as political science, sociology, philosophy, economics, psychology, public policy, administration or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

Narrative Studies, MA (LSNRSMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Narrative Studies, MA

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The MA in narrative studies is a comprehensive program that explores narrative and storytelling across a range of cultures and historical periods.

With an emphasis on teaching and research, the program includes coursework that encourages students to pursue transdisciplinary inquiry. The degree program primes graduates for critical and eloquent engagement with the world beyond the university.

Equally suited to prepare candidates for further academic studies or to advance the careers of area educators in the language arts, this program also prepares graduates to begin careers in one of the many professions that value creativity, critical thinking and highly skilled communication, including teaching, writing, online publishing and editing.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including a capstone course (ENG 597).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

ENG 503 History of Narrative (3)

ENG 505 Narrative Research Methods (3)

ENG 509 Studies in Narrative Writing (3)

Electives or Research (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

ENG 597 Graduate Capstone Seminar (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose six courses from a restricted list for a total of 18 credit hours. Students should see the academic unit for the approved course list.

Other courses (ENG,COM, FMS, HST, or appropriate field) may be utilized for up to six credit hours with approval from the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree (or equivalent) or master's degree from a regionally accredited college or university in a related field such as English or any humanities discipline.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants are required to submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- written letter of intent that includes a detailed statement of purpose
- portfolio of at least three documents
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The portfolio must include at least three documents that demonstrate the applicant's ability to write in a variety of genres. Portfolio documents can include both academic and professional writing for a range of audiences and purposes. At least one of the documents must be a sample of academic writing. One of the three documents can be a sample of creative writing. The portfolio should be 15 to 30 total pages in length. The writing samples in the portfolio are evaluated using a rubric that considers several criteria, including intellectual focus, strength of argument and documentation, awareness of audience, organization, clarity, mechanical soundness and overall effectiveness.

The letters of recommendation should be either academic or professional and speak to the background and capabilities of the applicant.

Technical Communication, MS (LSTCCMMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Technical Communication, MS

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The MS degree program in technical communication teaches students how to design, produce and manage print and digital texts using traditional and developing technologies. The curriculum provides students with a comprehensive understanding of the professional, cultural and ethical issues that shape the field; it balances theory and practice to ensure students develop the analytical abilities, technology expertise and hands-on skills necessary for success as a technical communicator.

Students who complete the program will be accomplished writers, editors, designers and researchers who are able to respond effectively to a range of audiences, issues and communication situations. The program prepares students for technical communication positions in the private, public and nonprofit sectors and offers professionals the opportunity to further advance their careers.

Degree Requirements:

36 credit hours including a thesis, or 36 credit hours including the required applied project course (TWC 593), or 36 credit hours including the required capstone course (TWC 596).

Required Core (6 credit hours)

TWC 504 Applied Rhetoric and Technical Communication (3)

TWC 505 Research in Technical and Applied Communication (3)

Restricted Electives (21 or 27 credit hours)

Other Requirement (0 or 3 credit hours)
TWC 506 Research Design and Development (3)

Culminating Experience (3 or 6 credit hours)
TWC 593 Applied Project (6) or TWC 596 Technical Communication Capstone (3) or TWC 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students who do not have previous technical communication coursework or relevant industry experience must take TWC 501 Fundamentals of Technical Communication (3) as a restricted elective. For a full list of the approved elective courses, students should inquire at the academic unit offices.

Students complete an applied project, capstone course or thesis for the culminating experience. Students who choose the capstone will complete an additional three credit hours of elective coursework for a total of 27 elective credit hours.

TWC 506 is a requirement for students completing an applied project or thesis only.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- portfolio
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

All applicants must submit a written letter of application that includes a detailed statement of purpose as well as a portfolio of at least three documents that demonstrate the applicant's ability to write in a variety of genres. Portfolio documents can include both academic and professional writing for a range of audiences and purposes and need not be in the area of technical communication. The portfolio should be 15 to 30 pages in length. The writing samples in the portfolio will be evaluated using a rubric that considers several criteria, including a demonstration of the ability to focus on a specific purpose and to meet audience needs and show organization, clarity, mechanical soundness and overall effectiveness.

All applicants must submit three letters of reference, either academic or professional, that speak to the background and capabilities of the applicant.

User Experience, MS (ESUSEXMS)

Online Degree Search Title: User Experience, MS

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The MS program in user experience combines topics in web, human factors, visual displays and technical communication to make products, systems and services useful, usable and desirable. Students learn how to research user needs, identify criteria for successful products and services, prototype those products and services, and refine them through usability testing and other user-centered methods. User experience skills are increasingly valued by industry, yet are not typically covered in-depth in traditional engineering or technical communication programs. Students with a master's degree in user experience will enhance their employment potential.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including capstone course GIT 560 or HSE 560 or TWC 560.

Required Core (21 credit hours)

GIT 540 Cross-Media Design Solutions (3)

GIT 542 Usability and User Experience (3)

HSE 521 Methods and Tools in Human Systems Engineering (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic units for a complete list of approved electives and research courses. Other courses may be used with approval of the academic units.

Students choose one capstone course as the culminating experience for the program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of the Graduate College, the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering and the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in related fields such as psychology, graphic information technology, graphic design, cognitive science, design or technical communication, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- writing sample
- GRE scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Because this degree requires strong communication skills, the program expects applicants whose native language is not English to have the following TOEFL scores: traditional paper-based score of 600 and internet-based score of 100.

Additional Curriculum Information

Other requirement, elective and research coursework may be substituted with approval of the academic unit. Students should see the academic unit for the approved electives and research course list.

Students choose one culminating experience option based on their emphasis area in biological data science.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a related field such as biology, mathematics, statistics or computing, as well as unrelated fields, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- two letters of recommendation
- professional resume
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

It is preferred that letters of recommendation be from faculty members who know the applicant's work well; if these are not available, letters of recommendation from individuals in supervisory or professional roles will be accepted.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant.

Depending on student's educational background, deficiency courses may be required.

Communication Studies, MA (ASCOMSTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Communication Studies, MA

Campus: West

Program Description:

The MA in communication studies is a cutting-edge degree program designed for students who wish to pursue a wide range of communication professions.

The program provides exposure to a variety of research methods, communication theories and practical applications, with a special emphasis on advocacy. Students use multiple perspectives to explore a variety of topics and issues in communication. These include how individuals and collectives participate effectively in personal relationships, organizational settings and public dialogues across cultural contexts and via social technologies. Students also attend to the impact and effects of media, mediated representations, and new technologies, while learning to use communication strategically to advocate for others.

Although advocacy is a defining theme in the curriculum, students can tailor the program to their personal goals, focusing on topics such as interpersonal, organizational, sport, environmental, global or technology-mediated communication.

Graduates are prepared to pursue doctoral work or careers in a variety of communication-driven fields such as public affairs, public relations, employee development, strategic communication, community relations and grassroots movements.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Program Description:

The MA degree in English offered by the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences is a comprehensive program that delves into the many facets of English: its literatures; its linguistic, social and cultural histories; and its capacities for persuasion, exposition and elucidation.

The program allows students to explore specific subject areas while working across a range of subdisciplines within English such as literary studies, rhetorical studies, composition and linguistics.

With an emphasis on teaching and research, the program includes electives to encourage students to pursue interdisciplinary inquiry and the culminating experience primes graduates for critical and eloquent engagement with the world beyond the university.

Equally suited to prepare candidates for doctoral study or to advance the careers of area educators in the language arts, the degree also prepares graduates to begin careers in one of the many professions that value creativity, critical thinking and highly skilled communication.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (ENG 597).

Required Core Courses (6 credit hours)

ENG 502 Contemporary Critical Theories (3) or MAS 505 Theories of Change, Culture and Mind (3)

ENG 582 Pedagogy (3)

Elective or Research Courses (12 credit hours)

ENG 500 Research Methods (3)

ENG or LIN courses (9)

Open Elective or Research Courses (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

ENG 597 Graduate Capstone Seminar (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

For electives or research, students should see the academic unit for the approved course list from ENG and LIN courses through New College. ENG 500 is a required research course for all students and must be included in the plan of study.

For the open elective or research courses, nine credit hours can be selected from ENG or non-ENG coursework offered by various academic units. The selection of coursework will be in consultation with the student's committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program; or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- three letters of recommendation
- an academic writing sample (preferred) or professional writing sample
- resume or curriculum vitae (optional)
- GRE scores (if applicable)
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant.

It is preferred that the letters of recommendation are from faculty members who know the applicant's work well (if not available, then from individuals in supervisory or professional roles).

If the applicant does not meet the minimum GPA requirements, the application may be considered if accompanied by an official GRE score.

Forensic Psychology, MS (ASFPSYMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Forensic Psychology, MS

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MS program in forensic psychology provides working professionals with an understanding of mental health issues and human behavior with respect to crime and the criminal justice and legal systems.

The curriculum involves specialized coursework in criminal law, criminal behavior, the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders, and legal decision-making. Through these courses, students learn about the various roles for psychologists in the legal system and help them discover which roles they might like to pursue through careers in mental health, criminal justice or through additional graduate training. Graduates will not be license-eligible for clinical practice but will be well prepared to enter advanced degree and continuing education programs in counseling and related fields.

Degree Requirements:

33 credit hours including the required capstone course PSY 549.

Required Core (12 credit hours)

PSY 545 Advanced Legal Psychology (3)

PSY 546 Advanced Forensic Psychology (3)

PSY 547 Advanced Correctional Psychology (3)

PSY 573 Psychopathology (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Statistics and Methods (6 credit hours)

PSY 500 Research Methods (3)

PSY 515 Quantitative Analysis I (3)

Criminal Justice System Courses (6 credit hours)

CRJ 501 Seminar in Criminal Justice (3)

CRJ 513 Seminar in Courts and Sentencing (3)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

PSY 549 Capstone in Forensic Psychology (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Other courses for the statistics and methods and criminal justice system coursework may be used with approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in psychology, criminal justice, social science, or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants must provide evidence of successful completion of an undergraduate or graduate social science statistics and research methods course.

GRE scores are recommended, but not required for all applicants. Applicants with below a 3.30 GPA in the last 60 credit hours of the bachelor's degree are strongly encouraged to provide GRE scores.

Forensic Science, PSM (ASFRSCIPSM)

Online Degree Search Title: Forensic Science, PSM

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The PSM program in forensic science readies students for career advancement by providing them with greater educational depth and breadth in the forensic sciences, and through the development of new competencies related to laboratory supervision. This includes an understanding of how to work with regulatory bodies that provide the framework for oversight in forensic laboratories, consistent with the guiding principles of the National Professional Science Masters Association. Students develop deeper scientific inquiry skills in biology, chemistry, genetics and related topics, as well as critical laboratory leadership skillsets. Successful graduates are armed with the tools and experiences required for administrative and other advancement opportunities both within and beyond the forensic science laboratory, in both governmental and private sectors.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (9 credit hours)

FOR 525 Forensic Science and Governance (3)

FOR 550 Ethics in Forensic Science (3)

FOR 565 Laboratory Leadership, Policy, and Practice (3)

Other Requirement (15 credit hours)

FOR 501 Forensic Toxicology (3) or FOR 532 Principles of Pharmacology (3)

FOR 502 Forensic Botany (3) or FOR 503 Forensic Entomology (3)

FOR 540 Advanced Topics in Human Forensic DNA Typing (3)

FOR 560 Quantitative Methods in Forensic Science Research (3), BMI 515 Applied Biostatistics in Medicine and Informatics (3) or HCD 501 Biostatistics and Data Management (3)

PSY 546 Advanced Forensic Psychology (3) or CRJ 537 Criminal Procedure of Investigations for Social and Forensic Scientists (3)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

FOR 593 Applied Project (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Other requirement courses may be substituted with approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in an appropriate physical, biological, computer science or a related field from a regionally-accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants are required to submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- two letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant. Specifically, the applicant should address their qualifications for pursuing a professional science master's degree.

It is preferred that the letters of recommendation be from individuals in supervisory or professional roles.

Interdisciplinary Studies, MA (ASINTERMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Interdisciplinary Studies, MA

Campus: West

Program Description:

The MA degree in interdisciplinary studies offered by the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences is an innovative program that allows students to combine the study of two or more disciplines.

Founded on the conviction that solving problems in the 21st century often requires an interdisciplinary approach, this flexible program provides exposure to a variety of research methods, historical perspectives and modes of inquiry.

The program offers access to faculty members who are active practitioners of interdisciplinary inquiry. Working with the faculty, students may define their own area of emphasis or adopt an existing area within the humanities and social sciences.

The skills and knowledge that students acquire can be directed toward doctoral study or professional goals in any enterprise that engages in research or education, ranging from advertising and marketing, nonprofit leadership, and media production to museum curatorship, community college teaching, and leading-edge entrepreneurship.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- American Studies, BA
- Applied Science, BAS
- Communication, BA
- Communication, BS
- English, BA
- Ethnicity, Race and First Nations Studies, BA
- History, BA
- Interdisciplinary Arts and Performance, BA
- Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences, BA

- Psychology, BA
- Psychology, BS
- Social and Behavioral Sciences, BS
- Social and Behavioral Sciences, BA
- Sociology, BS
- Sociology, BA
- Women and Gender Studies, BS
- Women and Gender Studies, BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (MAS 585).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

MAS 501 Methods for Interdisciplinary Inquiry (3)

MAS 502 Perspectives in Interdisciplinary Studies (3)

MAS 505 Theories of Change, Culture, and Mind (3)

Electives (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

MAS 585 Capstone Course (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

The core courses are designed as a sequence and are meant to guide students through the program, from learning about interdisciplinarity to practicing interdisciplinary research. Therefore, students are required to take each of the core courses the first time that they are available while the student is enrolled in the program.

For electives, students work with a faculty mentor to select 18 credit hours of graduate-level coursework that helps prepare them for their capstone or reflects particular areas of specialty or interest.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- two letters of recommendation
- an academic writing sample (preferred) or professional writing sample
- resume or curriculum vitae (optional)
- GRE scores (if applicable)
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant.

It is preferred that the letters of recommendation are from faculty members who know the applicant's work well, but if faculty are not available, then from individuals in supervisory or professional roles.

If the applicant does not meet the minimum GPA requirements, the application may be considered if accompanied by an official GRE score.

Psychology, MS (ASPGSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Psychology, MS

Campus: West, Online

Program Description:

The MS program in psychology offered by the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences has two main options. One is an intensive, research-oriented program culminating in a thesis or applied project. Students receive training in advanced research methodology and statistical analysis, grant proposal writing, laboratory instrumentation, data collection and manuscript development. Students gain first-hand exposure to designing and conducting research, analyzing data and developing presentations and manuscripts. Students are encouraged to present research reports at professional meetings and conferences and to publish as co-authors in faculty-guided research. This option is ideal for students who plan to pursue doctoral work or careers that involve psychological research methods such as marketing research, education research analysis, public policy analysis, research project management or program evaluation.

The program option offered online is designed to give students and working professionals an understanding of psychological theory and empirical research findings as they relate to human behavior, cognition, emotion, and attitudes. The coursework is designed to help students learn about the various roles of psychologists in society today and discover which they might like to pursue through careers in education, social service, for-profit and nonprofit organizations, management, or through additional graduate training.

Elective courses in all options are offered in several areas, including abnormal psychology, affective science, behavior analysis, cognitive psychology, developmental psychology, health psychology, legal psychology, psychophysiology and social psychology.

Degree Requirements:

36 credit hours and a thesis, or 36 credit hours including the required applied project course (PSY 593), or 36 credit hours including the required capstone course (PSY 553).

Required Core (6 credit hours)

PSY 502 Professional Issues in Psychology (3)

PSY 515 Quantitative Analysis I (3)

IN-PERSON DELIVERY OPTIONS:

Research (9 credit hours)

PSY 500 Research Methods (3)

PSY 592 Research (6)

THESIS OPTION:

Other Requirement (6 credit hours)

PSY 516 Quantitative Analysis II (3)

PSY 517 Quantitative Analysis III (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

PSY 599 Thesis (6)

APPLIED PROJECT OPTION:

Other Requirement (3 credit hours)

PSY 516 Quantitative Analysis II (3)

Electives (12 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

PSY 593 Applied Project (6)

ONLINE DELIVERY OPTION:

Research (3 credit hours)

PSY 500 Research Methods (3)

Electives (24 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

PSY 553 Capstone in General Psychology (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose one of three program options culminating in a thesis, applied project or capstone course. The capstone course option is only for students in the online program. Thesis and applied project options are for in-person program students.

Students completing a thesis or applied project must complete PSY 516 Quantitative Analysis II. In addition, thesis students will take PSY 517 Quantitative Analysis III and only nine credit hours of electives.

Students completing the capstone course (PSY 553) must take 24 credit hours of elective coursework and will not complete PSY 516 Quantitative Analysis II nor any PSY 592 coursework.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program. Priority is given to applicants who have achieved a 3.25 GPA or higher.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- GRE scores (combined minimum verbal and quantitative score of 300)
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

At the time of application, students must identify the culminating experience that they wish to pursue. Students applying to the capstone course option will only be considered for the online program. Students applying to the thesis or applied project option will only be considered for the in-person program.

Applicants must provide evidence of successful completion of an undergraduate (or graduate) social science statistics and research methods course.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant.

It is preferred that the letters of recommendation are from faculty members who know the applicant's work well; if these are not available, then recommendations should be from individuals in supervisory or professional roles. Three letters of recommendation are required for applications to the ground option and two letters of recommendation are required for applicants to the online option.

Applicants for the applied project or thesis program option (offered face to face) are required to submit a GRE score. Priority is given to applicants who have achieved a 305 or higher on the GRE.

For students applying to the capstone course option offered in the online delivery of the program, submission of GRE scores are recommended but not required.

Social Justice and Human Rights, MA (ASJHRMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Justice and Human Rights, MA

Campus: West

Program Description:

The MA program in social justice and human rights addresses urgent social issues related to human security, labor, migration, children, family, education and the environment.

The coursework in this theoretically and methodologically rigorous program examines social issues in contexts defined by multiple and intersecting forms of social identity and disadvantage, including gender, race, ethnicity, class, sexuality and nationality.

The program requires an internship to be completed domestically or internationally, in which students typically work alongside other advocates for social justice to help refugees, migrants, workers and survivors of violence or human trafficking.

Students may select from three degree tracks: research, advocacy, or critical trauma studies and social work. The research track prepares students for positions as researchers, analysts and advocates in governmental, intergovernmental and nongovernmental agencies. The advocacy track prepares students to be leaders in nonprofit, social movement, governmental and intergovernmental organizations. The critical trauma studies and social work track prepares students to assist vulnerable people, especially survivors of extreme violence, poverty, war, sex trafficking, human trafficking, gender-based violence and various forms of marginalization.

Graduates are also prepared to enter doctoral programs.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Additional Curriculum Information

This program has three tracks: social justice and human rights research, social justice and human rights advocacy, and critical trauma studies and social work. Students select one of the three tracks and select courses for the track and electives requirements in consultation with faculty.

Students completing an applied project for their culminating experience select an additional electives course for three credit hours to meet the program's 33 credit hour requirement.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate application application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- two letters of recommendation
- an academic writing sample (preferred) or professional writing sample
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The statement of purpose should describe the educational background, scholarly interests, and academic and professional goals of the applicant.

It is preferred that letters of recommendation be from faculty members who know the applicant's work well; if these are not available, letters of recommendation from individuals in supervisory or professional roles will be accepted. If letters of recommendation from two faculty members are not available, then it is strongly preferred that at least one letter be from a faculty member.

If the applicant does not meet the minimum GPA requirements, the application may still be considered.

Applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Social Technologies, MA (ASSTCMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Technologies, MA

Campus: West

Program Description:

ASU's West campus offers an MA in social technologies for those interested in researching social media and other technologies that affect social and organizational change. The program engages the theory of social technologies through its application and it prepares graduates to be leaders in the field of social media; work with the social and human dimensions of emerging technologies; consult on broader uses of technology by for-profit, non-profit and governmental organizations; or, continue on to doctoral work.

The social technologies program provides a grounding in social, behavioral, cultural and design approaches to critically interrogating the social uses of data, the ethics and politics of social computing, and algorithmic culture more broadly.

The flexible curriculum consists of three required courses in the theory, research and application of social technologies as well as a range of in-person and online elective courses from across the university and it culminates in a six credit hour capstone project.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Digital Audience Strategy, MS (CSDASMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Digital Audience Strategy, MS

Campus: Online

Admission to this program is limited to students who do not have an undergraduate degree or minor in digital audiences.

Program Description:

The MS program in digital audience strategy prepares students to design and execute large-scale strategies for connecting digital audiences through a data-driven, multidisciplinary, hands-on curriculum.

Students learn to measure and analyze how consumers interact with content online, on social media and on mobile devices. Using those measurement skills, students develop strategies and tactics to grow audiences through search engine optimization, search engine marketing, paid and organic social media campaigns, and digital content creation. They work with real-world clients to develop, test and execute audience growth strategies in real time.

Through required coursework in ethics, media law and entrepreneurship, students learn to make ethical business decisions regarding consumer privacy, digital data security and community engagement. Through elective courses, students develop additional expertise in areas such as management and intellectual property.

Students graduate from the program ready to drive innovation and business development in the digital age.

Journalism and Mass Communication, PHD (CSJMCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Journalism and Mass Communication, PhD

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The PhD program at the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication is a highly individualized program designed for industry thought leaders and the educators of tomorrow. The doctorate in journalism and mass communication attracts seasoned media professionals transitioning to academia as well as recent graduates of master's degree-level journalism and communication programs.

At the journalism school, students access resources needed to answer critical questions that challenge the fields of journalism, social media, public relations and international mass communication.

Students engage with world-class faculty who challenge them to think differently about all forms of nonfiction storytelling across every platform marketed to digital audiences.

Students develop lasting relationships with a doctoral cohort and faculty mentors from across North America and the world, researching together to create ethical, entrepreneurial and innovative pathways for the media industry to follow.

This doctoral program in journalism and mass communication is designed to be small, student-centered and scholarly research-oriented. It is based on the following priorities: a journalism and mass communication focus, a transdisciplinary approach that requires coursework outside of the journalism school, one-on-one faculty-student mentoring, and program flexibility.

The emphasis of this degree program is the creation of scholarly, peer-reviewed articles and presentations based on journalism and mass communication philosophy, theory and methods. The program prepares students for research-oriented careers in journalism and mass communication education and related fields.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (18 credit hours)

Electives (18 credit hours)

Other Requirements (24 credit hours)

previous master's degree or additional hours approved by the supervisory committee (24)

Research (12 credit hours)

Dissertation (12 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic unit for an approved course list.

Students entering the program with a master's degree in journalism or mass communication, or a related field, must complete 60 credit hours of coursework. Students who are admitted to the program without a master's degree will be required to complete an additional 24 credit hours of coursework.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- personal statement of interest
- resume
- samples of scholarly work
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Scores on the quantitative and verbal sections of the GRE are required, with the verbal score being particularly important to the Cronkite School's graduate committee.

The personal statement of interest should be 350 to 500 words in length.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines and admission terms. Applicants must meet all deadlines and application requirements to be considered.

The Cronkite School's doctoral committee reviews complete and on-time applications. Recommendations for admission are made to Graduate Admission Services, where the final admission decisions are made.

Mass Communication, MMC (CSMCOMMMC)

Online Degree Search Title: Master of Mass Communication, MMC

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication's 12-month MMC degree program uses the teaching hospital model to immerse students in the practice of journalism and prepare them for careers in today's rapidly evolving media industry.

This 36-credit hour program begins with a multimedia boot camp in which students learn to report and produce content for digital and broadcast platforms. Students learn how to navigate a rapidly evolving media environment through classes and a symposium specifically focused on the future of journalism. The program culminates in a professional immersion experience in one of the Cronkite School's news bureaus in Los Angeles, Phoenix or Washington, D.C. Working under the guidance of award-winning journalists, these capstone programs offer real-world experience in a professional news environment.

The Cronkite School is housed in a world-class facility in the heart of downtown Phoenix, the nation's fifth largest city and 11th largest media market. The school is also home to Arizona PBS. Student journalists can walk to the state's largest newspaper, to the NBC and Fox television affiliates and to major events at city hall, government agencies and sporting and cultural venues.

The cornerstone of the graduate program is the journalism school's professional programs:

- Cronkite News Phoenix: Students produce a daily newscast on Arizona PBS (reaching 1.9 million households) and digital content for cronkitenews.azpbs.org (<https://cronkitenews.azpbs.org/>), Cronkite News social platforms and partner sites across Arizona. <https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism> (<https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism>)
- Cronkite News Washington: Students cover Congress, the White House and the U.S. Supreme Court for Cronkite News and partner newsrooms. <https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism> (<https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism>)
- Cronkite Noticias: Students produce Spanish-language news for digital and broadcast platforms in collaboration with Univision Arizona. <https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism> (<https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism>)
- Carnegie-Knight News21: Students produce major national investigations in partnership with newsrooms such as The Washington Post and NBCNews.com. <https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism> (<https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism>)
- New Media Innovation and Entrepreneurship Lab: Journalism, engineering, design and business students work together to create cutting-edge digital products and launch new businesses. <https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism> (<https://cronkite.asu.edu/content/masters-degree-journalism>)
- Public Relations Lab: Students work in a strategic communications agency environment to develop campaigns for clients ranging from Fortune 500 companies to startups. <https://cronkite.asu.edu/real-world-experiences/professional-programs/public-relations-lab> (<https://cronkite.asu.edu/real-world-experiences/professional-programs/public-relations-lab>)

This program is also offered as a dual degree with the Mayo Clinic. For more information, students should visit <https://mayo.asu.edu/dualdegrees#MMC> (<https://mayo.asu.edu/dualdegrees#MMC>).

Law, Sandra Day O'Connor College of

Biotechnology and Genomics, LL.M. (LWGENOMLLM)

Online Degree Search Title: Biotechnology and Genomics, LLM

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The LLM in biotechnology and genomics is offered through the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law's Center for Law, Science and Innovation, the nation's oldest, largest and most comprehensive research center focusing on the intersection of law and science. Through classroom instruction and guided independent study, Master of Laws candidates will examine the legal issues surrounding genetic applications such as:

- cloning
- forensic evidence
- gene testing
- gene therapy
- genetically modified organisms
- stem cells and behavioral genetics

The issues relate to:

- business planning
- confidentiality
- evidentiary standards
- intellectual property
- international trade
- liability
- licensing
- privacy
- regulation

Students in the Master of Laws program in biotechnology and genomics explore and examine the law that enables and constrains the development, control and application of biotechnology and genomics. Relevant legal fields include:

- agricultural law and policy
- health law, particularly public health law
- intellectual property

Forensic science and ethical constraints upon the various contemplated uses are also important elements of the program. Because the legal, ethical and policy aspects of genomics and biotechnology are of global significance, this program is also beneficial for non-U.S. lawyers. Candidates for a Master of Laws degree must have received their JD or comparable terminal law degree from another country.

Degree Requirements:

The program is designed to be completed in nine months on a full-time basis but also may be pursued on a part-time basis. A degree candidate must complete 24 credit hours of coursework to obtain the Master of Laws degree in biotechnology and genomics. A candidate may elect to write a graduate thesis for either three or six credit hours or can elect not to write a thesis and fulfill the equivalent credits with other coursework. Two required courses are: genetics and the law, and biotechnology: science, law and policy.

The remaining credit hours generally will be obtained from the list of elective courses. With faculty advisor approval, a candidate may satisfy up to six credit hours with courses offered by other ASU departments or by law courses that are not included on the approved elective list.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Admission to the program is competitive. In order to be admitted, an applicant must have completed a Juris Doctor degree program or a law degree program at a foreign institution that would qualify the applicant to practice law or pursue license to practice in that country and have submitted a complete application to the program. Selection will be based on:

- academic background and potential
- career experience and ambitions
- diversity of experience and background
- space and resource limitations in the law school
- strength of experience related to the program sought and other factors

For an application to be considered complete, it must include the following:

- completed Law School Admissions Council electronic application form, available at <https://law.asu.edu/admissions/apply/llm> (<https://law.asu.edu/admissions/apply/llm>)
- completed LLM Credential Assembly Service report: <https://www.lsac.org/llm/application-process/checklist-for-the-llm-application-process> (<https://www.lsac.org/llm/application-process/checklist-for-the-llm-application-process>)
- required application fee
- resume that does not exceed three typed pages
- personal statement that does not exceed 1,250 words (double-spaced typed pages)
- transcripts from all institutions attended, including the transcript showing that the bachelor's degree and law degree were conferred
- two letters of recommendation
- writing sample

Additional Application Information

Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the ASU College of Law by LSAC.

Applicants with degrees from foreign institutions must meet ASU Graduate College and College of Law English proficiency requirements.

Additional Curriculum Information

A minimum of 64 units must be obtained from courses that involve attendance at regularly scheduled class sessions. The following do not count toward these required 64 units: all externships; independent studies; courses taken outside the law school under section IX A; credits received for working for a journal under section X F; credits received for Moot Court under section X G; credits received for being a teaching assistant; credits received from any clinic other than Civil Justice Clinic, Immigration Law and Policy Clinic, Indian Legal Clinic, Innovation Advancement Legal Clinic, Mediation Clinic, Post-Conviction Clinic; and credit from courses without regularly scheduled meetings.

Students should see the College of Law's Statement of Student Policies for additional Juris Doctor degree requirements.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants with degrees from foreign institutions must meet the Graduate College and College of Law English proficiency requirements.

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University enrolls only one first-year Juris Doctor class per year, and it enters in the fall semester. The Juris Doctor degree is a three-year program, and almost all students study on a full-time basis. The college does offer a flexible scheduling option for students with circumstances that make full-time enrollment impossible. Each year, far more applications are submitted to the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law than the college's facilities and programs can accommodate. Thus, admission is competitive. The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law makes its admission decisions based upon all information contained in the applicant's file.

To be considered for admission to the program, an applicant must have taken the LSAT and have earned, or expect to have earned by the time of enrollment in law school, a bachelor's degree from an accredited four-year college or university. Further, a candidate must complete the application for admission and submit all mandatory attachments. Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the College of Law by LSAC with the applicant's LSAT record. Applicants must apply electronically through <https://www.lsac.org> (<https://www.lsac.org/>).

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law will provide full file review to 100 percent of the completed applications to the Juris Doctor program. While the applicant's undergraduate record and LSAT score are important predictors, no decision will be made on objective criteria alone. Among the other factors considered by the admission committee are:

- ability to communicate
- demonstrated commitment to public service
- diversity of experience and background
- exceptional personal talents
- extracurricular or community activities
- foreign language proficiency
- geographic diversity
- graduate study
- history of overcoming economic or other disadvantage
- honors and awards
- leadership experience
- maturity
- overcoming disability
- personal experiences with discrimination
- publications

- service in the Armed Forces
- the rigor of the undergraduate course of study
- work experience

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

For an application to be considered complete, it must include the following:

- a complete Credential Assembly Service report, with all transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations
- the completed application, including explanations for affirmative answers to conduct, character and fitness questions
- LSAT scores from Law School Admissions Council
- a personal statement that does not exceed two double-spaced, typed pages
- the required application fee
- a resume that does not exceed three typed pages

The Credential Assembly Service report must be from the current application year.

Law and Sustainability (Certificate), Certificate (LWLSUSGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Law and Sustainability (Graduate Certificate)

Campus:

Program Description:

The law and sustainability graduate certificate within ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law is instrumental in propelling ASU Law students into environmental sustainability-related legal careers. Environmental sustainability is a primary emphasis at ASU, and this certificate program leverages that emphasis by recognizing those law students who have successively immersed themselves in the study of sustainability-related law courses during their time at the law school.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (6 credit hours)

- LAW 619 Energy Law and Policy (3)
- LAW 631 Environmental Law (3)
- LAW 639 Natural Resource Law (3)
- LAW 643 Water Law (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience

writing requirement and active participation in sustainability law

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must select two of the required core courses from the above list.

Each student must earn a cumulative average grade point average of at least 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") for the courses taken to satisfy the substantive coursework requirement of the law and sustainability certificate program. A student also must earn a minimum grade of "B" for any course taken outside of ASU Law, if permitted.

Each student must participate in at least two different activities from the following list:

- active participation on the board of the law school's Environmental Law Society student chapter
- extramural environmental or sustainability moot court competitions, upon approval from the program director or faculty director
- law and sustainability-based externships, upon approval from the program faculty director or director
- Sustainability Law Research Seminar
- the Mentorship Initiative in Sustainability Law

Each student must write a substantial paper on a topic related to law and sustainability. The paper must be at least 15 pages in length and written under the guidance of a member of the College of Law faculty. A paper written to satisfy the College of Law's graduate writing requirement or flexible writing requirement can fulfill this writing requirement, including a paper written as part of a seminar course included on the list of elective courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants must be existing JD or LLM students who are currently enrolled in coursework and in good academic standing with the ASU College of Law.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- admission application for the certificate program through Law Interactive. Students should refer to the College of Law website.
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Online Degree Search Title: Law, Science, and Technology (Graduate Certificate)

Campus:

Program Description:

The law, science and technology certificate program is for students with science and technology interests and is limited to students in good standing pursuing a JD degree at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

Students can choose to earn a general LST certificate or focus in one or more of the following areas:

- data, privacy and security
- environmental and sustainability law
- genomics and biotechnology
- health law
- intellectual property

Degree Requirements:

Students must satisfy their graduation writing requirement on a topic related to law, science and technology. The paper must meet all of the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law requirements for a graduation writing requirement and must be supervised by a center fellow.

A minimum cumulative GPA of at least 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") is required for those courses that satisfy the substantive coursework requirements of the certificate. Courses used to satisfy the core or focus area requirements may not be taken for pass or fail credit. A student may take one elective course on a pass or fail basis.

Substantive coursework is required in law, science and technology subjects for a minimum of seven courses, earning at least 16 credit hours, at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law. Two courses are chosen from the designated core courses and five courses are chosen from a list of elective courses.

Each student is encouraged to actively participate in the events (speakers, conferences, symposia) sponsored by the Center for Law, Science and Innovation and to participate in at least one approved activity for two semesters.

Additional details of the program requirements for the law, science and technology certificate can be found in the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law Statement of Student Policies.

Degree Requirements:

The program requires 24 credit hours. Required courses will depend on the student's particular concentration in the degree. International students will be required to take LAW 596 Professional Legal Writing. A candidate may elect either to write a master's degree portfolio paper or complete an applied project. The remaining credit hours generally will be obtained from the list of elective courses. With faculty advisor approval, a candidate may satisfy up to six credit hours with courses offered by other ASU departments or by law courses that are not included on the approved elective list.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a Juris Doctor degree in the U.S. or a law degree at a foreign institution that would qualify the applicant to practice law or pursue license to practice in that country.

All applicants must submit:

- completed LLM application form and application fee
- official transcripts
- resume, not exceeding three typed pages
- statement of interest, not exceeding 1,250 words (double-spaced, typed pages)
- two letters of recommendation
- writing sample
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Applicants are encouraged to apply electronically through <https://www.lsac.org>. (<https://www.lsac.org>)

Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the ASU College of Law by LSAC. Transcripts are required from all institutions attended, and transcripts showing that the bachelor's degree and law degree were conferred must be included.

Admission to the program is competitive. Selection will be based on academic background and potential, diversity of experience and background, career experience and ambitions, strength of experience related to the program sought, space and resource limitations in the law school and other factors.

Potential applicants should see the program website for application deadlines.

Laws (Global Legal Studies), LL.M. (LAWLGLPLLM)

Online Degree Search Title: Laws (Global Legal Studies), LLM

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The LLM program allows one year of post-JD study tailored to the scholarly and practice interests of participating students.

The concentration in global legal studies is designed in coordination with the College of Law's Center for Law and Global Affairs. The program draws on the unique focus of the center and the faculty's international and transnational legal expertise in global health, the environment, human rights, trade and emerging technologies. The program emphasizes transdisciplinary study and links rigorous legal training with the research and scholarship drawn from political science, policy studies, anthropology and sustainability.

Students can take a wide variety of courses on international topics, ranging from international environmental law to international human rights law to international institutions. These include business-related courses such as international contracts, international taxation, international commercial arbitration and international business transactions.

Students who participate in externships gain practical experience that makes them more competitive for jobs at home and abroad. ASU Law can place every eligible enrolled student into an externship at organizations in Arizona (<https://law.asu.edu/about/new-building>) or Washington, D.C., like the U.S. State Department, World Bank, International Rescue Committee, Department of Homeland Security and Human Rights First. ASU Law DC-based externship opportunities are available to view here: <https://law.asu.edu/experiences/externships/washington>. The opportunity for students to network with international decision-makers, opinion leaders and top practitioners is further amplified through ASU's large presence in Washington, D.C. (<https://washingtondc.asu.edu/#why-is-asu-in-washington-dc>).

Students can develop professionally by engaging with globally minded leaders in the legal, government and business communities. For instance, the Phoenix Committee on Foreign Relations hosts events and other forums for select students to engage with prominent leaders and practitioners on trending international issues. Each year, LGA holds a workshop with the American Red Cross on international humanitarian law that brings students, members of the military, and community leaders together to learn more about the principles governing armed conflict.

Degree Requirements:

The program is designed to be completed in one academic year (nine months) on a full-time basis but may also be pursued on a part-time basis. A degree program candidate must complete 24 credit hours of coursework. A candidate may elect to write a master's degree portfolio paper or, instead, can elect to complete an applied project. Required coursework includes two of the following courses:

LAW 615 Public International Law (3)

LAW 691 Seminar: International Institutions (2)

LAW 709 International Human Rights (2-3)

LAW 768 International Business Transactions (2-4)

An international student whose initial law degree is not from a U.S. law school is required to take the following course:

LAW 596 Professional Legal Writing (2)

The remaining credit hours are generally obtained from the list of elective courses in international law.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a Juris Doctor degree in the U.S. or a law degree at a foreign institution that would qualify the applicant to practice law or pursue license to practice in that country.

Legal Studies (Patent Practice), MLS (LWLPPMLEGS)

Online Degree Search Title: Legal Studies (Patent Practice), MLS

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The concentration in patent practice within the MLS degree program prepares students for the practice of patent law as registered patent agents with the United States Patent and Trademark Office. The program focuses on providing students with substantial doctrinal knowledge about patent law as well as practical skills training that includes a capstone clinical course, relevant in the patent law field.

Undergraduates with a degree in engineering or hard science can draft and submit patent applications on behalf of themselves and others after passing the patent bar exam and becoming a registered patent agent with the USPTO. Additionally, many law firms, corporations, entrepreneurial ventures and others hire nonlawyers to draft patents.

At ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, the patent practice focus provides students with a detailed understanding of patent law and a general understanding of intellectual property and the U.S. legal system. Skills gained enable students to successfully assist clients in securing their patentable invention rights.

Patent Agent: Trends show an increase in the hiring of patent agents by many law firms, large corporations and other companies that rely on patent prosecution expertise provided by these nonlawyers who are approved by the USPTO to represent individuals and companies in the patent prosecution process.

Clinical Experience

Students in the Lisa Foundation Patent Law Clinic (<https://law.asu.edu/experiences/clinics/lisa-foundation> (<https://law.asu.edu/experiences/clinics/lisa-foundation>)) receive hands-on experience in real-world patent prosecution and learn skills needed to recognize and obtain valuable and enforceable patents for clients that later may be successfully licensed or litigated. Regardless of whether students plan to practice transactional patent law or work in patent litigation, the clinic gives students insight into both areas of practice so they may understand the impact that actions taken during the patent procurement process have during a subsequent patent litigation.

Through their clinical experience, students work with independent inventors and start-up companies to draft and prosecute patent applications in the USPTO under the supervision of licensed patent attorneys. Additionally, students learn to conduct validity and infringement analyses while gaining valuable skills such as patent due diligence, valuation and licensing strategies.

The clinic focuses on providing students with hands-on experience in the most commonly encountered practical areas such as inventor interviewing, patentability searching and opinion drafting, patent application and office action response drafting, and examiner interviewing.

Additional Application Information

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University enrolls only one first-year Juris Doctor class per year, and it enters in the fall semester. The Juris Doctor degree is a three-year program, and almost all students study on a full-time basis. The college does offer a flexible scheduling option for students with circumstances that make full-time enrollment impossible. Each year, far more applications are submitted to the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law than the college's facilities and programs can accommodate. Thus, admission is competitive. The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law makes its admission decisions based upon all information contained in the applicant's file.

To be considered for admission to the program, a candidate must complete the application for admission and submit all mandatory attachments. Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and will be provided to the College of Law by LSAC with the applicant's LSAT record. Applicants must apply electronically through <https://www.lsac.org> (<https://www.lsac.org>).

The Credential Assembly Service report must be from the current application year.

Students should refer to the program website for application deadlines.

Sports Law and Business, MSLB (LWSLBMSLB)

Online Degree Search Title: Sports Law and Business, MSLB

Campus:

Program Description:

The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law at Arizona State University offers a master's degree in sports law and business, in partnership with the W.P. Carey School of Business and in full cooperation with ASU's athletics department.

The MSLB program provides students with the training to understand the regulatory and revenue forces that drive the increasingly global sports industry: legal, policy, business, branding and marketing. The program uses a small class environment to deliver a problem- and project-based legal and business curriculum taught by recognized academic and professional leaders. That curriculum, together with an applied project, prepares students with the skills necessary to address the difficult issues present in the sports industry.

This unique graduate program can be completed on a full-time basis in a 12-month period or in two or fewer years for part-time students working in the field.

Degree Requirements:

36 credit hours including the required applied project course (SLB 593).

Required Core (24 credit hours)

Tribal Policy, Law and Government, LL.M. (LWTBLMLAWS)

Online Degree Search Title: Tribal Policy, Law, and Government, LLM

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The LLM program in tribal policy, law and government is designed for lawyers and law school graduates who desire to work on issues related to tribal law and federal Indian law at the professional and academic levels. The Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law is a leading institution in producing graduates specializing in Indian law. The College of Law is also home to the nationally known Indian Legal Program, established in 1988.

The program provides students with a detailed understanding of the nature of tribal government and of law and policy development within the domestic federal structure. Candidates benefit from the extensive resources committed to the Indian legal program, including a director and staff and an Indian law clinic with its own full-time director and staff.

The core curricular offerings focus on domestic tribal law, federal Indian law and American institutions of law and government. The program explores the expression of domestic law within contemporary administrative, governmental and judicial institutions.

ASU is located in the heart of the southwestern U.S., home to roughly one-third of the native population in the U.S. and where many of the largest Indian nations in the country are located. The university is the academic home for several nationally known scholars who do research on American Indian issues, and it houses many unique resources for such scholarship, including the Labriola Collection at Hayden Library.

Degree Requirements:

The program is administered by the Indian Legal Program and is oriented toward students who seek practical experience in tribal law and federal Indian law. It provides intensive instruction to students who graduated from a law school that had few or no courses in Indian law and who now seek to practice in these areas at a professional level. This degree program requires a minimum of 24 credit hours of study. A thesis is not required.

Students immerse themselves in the study of tribal law and federal Indian law and apply the knowledge and experience they gain through the practical component of the degree program which may consist of research projects for tribal courts and governments; state, tribal and federal court practice; and tribal code drafting.

Graduates are well-equipped for professional positions that require knowledge and expertise in tribal law and federal Indian law. Students have the option of pursuing the degree on a part-time basis.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and College of Law English proficiency requirements.

Admission to the program is competitive. In order to be admitted, an applicant must have completed a JD degree or law degree at a foreign institution that would qualify the applicant to practice law or pursue license to practice in that country and have submitted a complete application to the program.

Selection will be based on academic background and potential, career experience and ambitions, diversity of experience and background, space and resource limitations in the law school, and the applicant's strength of experience related to the program sought, as well as other factors.

Applicants are encouraged to apply electronically through <https://www.lsac.org> (<https://www.lsac.org>). For an application to be considered complete, it must include the following:

- the completed LLM application form
- the required application fee
- a resume that does not exceed three, typed pages
- a statement of interest that does not exceed 1,250 words, typed and double-spaced
- transcripts from all institutions attended, including the transcript showing that the bachelor's degree and law degree were conferred
- two letters of recommendation
- a writing sample

Transcripts and letters of recommendation or evaluations must be submitted through the Law School Admissions Council's Credential Assembly Service and are provided to the ASU College of Law by LSAC.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Actuarial Science, MS (LAACTMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Actuarial Science, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MS program in actuarial science is designed to allow students to advance their knowledge base by applying mathematical and statistical concepts and data analytics to the disciplines of risk management, finance and insurance. It also includes a new focused set of professional learning outcomes aligned with the needs of the ever-evolving insurance industry, while keeping the core technical learning outcomes in place. These guide students' development of professional competencies through coursework, independent projects and opportunities outside of the classroom, while remaining firmly based on a strong foundation of scholarly technical work in actuarial science. The program emphasizes broad awareness and appreciation of current issues faced by insurance industry practitioners as well as innovative resolutions provided by actuaries.

Actuaries must pass a series of intensive professional exams to become credentialed. This degree program not only prepares graduates for the examinations required to become credentialed professionals by the Society of Actuaries or Casualty Actuarial Society, but also will make them competitive employees in the insurance and finance industries.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Actuarial Science, BS

American Studies, MA (LAAMSTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: American Studies, MA

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

American studies is constituted by a multi- and transdisciplinary inquiry into the communities and cultures, values and ideologies, and social formations and institutions of the United States. American studies scholars seek to evaluate the processes and ideas that inform this country and its influences upon other cultures and communities, domestically and abroad.

While the array of disciplines spans the arts, humanities and social sciences, the expertise of our faculty at ASU covers a broad range of historical, literary and media studies, as well as interdisciplinary and community-based approaches. The master's degree students are trained to expand their understanding of the history of American cultures and social conditions while learning the critical contexts for understanding contemporary trends in North America. The master's degree provides students with an advanced analytic foundation in American culture and society in all its variety and complexity.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (AMS 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

AMS 502 American Studies: Theory and Method (3)

Electives or Research (21 - 24 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 or 6 credit hours)

AMS 593 Applied Project (3) or

AMS 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

For electives or research, students should see the academic unit for the approved course list. Students choose 21 credit hours for the thesis option or 24 for the applied project option.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants holding a bachelor's or master's degree in American studies or a closely related field are preferred.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- writing sample
- curriculum vitae
- two letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The writing sample may be an article (published or unpublished), a research paper, a seminar paper, or any other extended sample of expository skill. A minimum of 4,000 to 5,000 words is required. The document should not be password protected.

The statement of purpose should be addressed to the American Studies Graduate Studies Committee. It must explain the applicant's scholarly background and training, career goals, the area of study the applicant wishes to pursue, and why the applicant wants to pursue graduate study at ASU. It must be about 500 words in length.

Two references are required. Applicants should contact faculty or professional supervisors they intend to use for references prior to listing them on the application, and inform the intended recommenders that they will be receiving an email from the ASU American studies program asking them to complete a questionnaire and provide comments on the applicant's suitability for graduate study. Updated email addresses for references should be confirmed before submitting them on the application. References from family members or relations are not recommended.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee, and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate.

All students must maintain a 3.20 (scale is 4.00 = "A") average GPA in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

For the concentration in urbanism, 15 credit hours will be selected from an approved list of applicable courses related to urbanism. These courses will include the core urbanism course, GCU 516, as well as one course from each of the four urbanism clusters. These clusters are:

- built form
- culture and society
- institutions and governance
- natural environment

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Undergraduate coursework in anthropology is not a prerequisite for admission, but is generally advisable. Students may be admitted without such a background and may be required to acquire knowledge of general anthropology in a manner to be specified at the time of admission.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20-30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Applied Behavior Analysis, MS (LAAPBAMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Behavior Analysis, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Offered by the Department of Psychology, this MS program in applied behavior analysis is a full-time, scientifically based, two-year program that meets the Behavior Analyst Certification Board fourth edition task list for coursework with more than 270 classroom hours and 1,500 hours of supervised practicum fieldwork. Successful graduates are able to sit for BACB certification and once certified, they will be eligible for state-licensure. The program's learning outcomes include mastery across three major areas as identified by the BACB: basic behavior-analytic skills, client-centered responsibilities and foundational knowledge.

Applied behavior analysis training in the Department of Psychology at ASU includes supervised experience and instruction in:
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

- behavior analytic attitudes such as determinism, empiricism and parsimony
- fundamental elements of behavior change and behavior change procedures
- identification, assessments and interventions for behavioral excesses, deficiencies and challenging behavior
- professional ethics and conduct of ABA
- training others in the science and practice of ABA
- use of different behavioral measurement types and systems
- use of experimental designs to determine relationships among and between measurement, relevant variables and behavior

Degree Requirements:

42 Credit hours including the required applied project course (PSB 593).

Required Core (24 credit hours)

PSB 501 Basic Principles of Applied Behavior Analysis (3)

PSB 510 Basic Principles of Experimental Analysis of Behavior (2)

PSB 511 Advanced Research Methods (2)

PSB 520 Ethical Issues and Professional Standards in Applied Behavior Analysis (3)

PSB 530 Behavioral Observation and Functional Assessment (3)

PSB 540 Development of Applied Behavioral Intervention Programs (3)

PSB 563 Basic Principles of Organizational Behavior Management (2)

PSB 573 Advanced Principles of Learning and Analysis of Behavior (3)

PSB 578 Applied Behavior Analysis in Developmental Disorders (3)

Electives or Research (4 credit hours)

PSB 591 Seminar (2)

PSB 598 Special Topics (2)

Other Requirements (9 credit hours)

PSB 580 Practicum: Applied Behavior Analysis (4)

PSB 583 Fieldwork: Applied Behavior Analysis (5)

Culminating Experience (5 credit hours)

PSB 593 Applied Project (5)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in psychology, human development, sociology or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- SlideRoom application and fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose form
- applicant response form
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- two academic letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The Department of Psychology application process is completed online through ASU's Graduate Admission Services which includes the application form and official transcripts. Application to the Department of Psychology Master of Science program in applied behavioral analysis is also completed via SlideRoom to process supplemental application materials. The SlideRoom account requires an additional fee. To apply to the program, students must follow the instructions on the applied behavioral analysis admission checklist.

It is strongly recommended that applicants download and print the Master of Science in applied behavioral analysis admission checklist to ensure completion of the application process and inclusion of all the required supplemental forms.

The statement of purpose form should describe professional and academic aspirations.

Applicants must submit two academic letters of recommendation, one of which should be from a tenure-track faculty member associated with the applicant's most recent degree program. If the applicant's graduation year is greater than five years from the application date, then a letter from a recent or current employer may be substituted.

Applied Linguistics, PHD (EDAPLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Linguistics, PhD

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

Applied linguistics combines research topics in the linguistics sciences and education to pursue principled approaches to language-related concerns. The applied linguistics PhD program is focused on simultaneous and developmental bilingualism in children and adolescents. Faculty participate in the program from within multiple curricular units across the institution's four campuses. The program encourages transdisciplinary study, and its flexible requirements enable students to pursue those aspects of the disciplines that interest them the most. The program prepares students for entrance into the field as teachers, scholars and professionals.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Foundation Coursework (18 credit hours)

Overview of the Field: A three-credit course providing a survey of the field of applied linguistics is required. (3)

Linguistics: Coursework in theoretical linguistics, including one approved linguistics elective, is required. (15)

Teaching Internship (1 credit hour)*Colloquia (8 credit hours)

A four-semester sequence of two-credit colloquium meetings is required for students in the first two years.

Research Methods (6 credit hours)

Students must take two courses in research methods, selected in consultation with the advisor.

Research Specialization (33 credit hours)

In consultation with the program director, students take 11 three-credit courses in their field of specialization.

Breadth (6 credit hours)

Two courses in a secondary concentration area are required.

Dissertation (12 credit hours)*Additional Curriculum Information

An oral defense of the dissertation is required.

There must be a minimum of 54 credit hours beyond the master's degree level, including a minimum of 12 units of dissertation credit. All students in the program must satisfy 18 credit hours of foundation coursework.

Because applied linguistics is transdisciplinary in nature, applicants may differ from one another with regard to their prior experience and preparation. For instance, while some applicants may have substantial prior training in core theoretical linguistics (foundations) others may have considerable preparation in an area related to a supported concentration. Students should consult the program director for assistance in planning their degree programs. The program director may address potential redundancies in a student's program requirements with prior academic preparation by allocating a maximum of 30 credit hours from an awarded and approved graduate degree toward the applied linguistics program requirements, or the director may permit the student to take additional elective courses in lieu of introductory courses covered in an undergraduate program.

Language Requirement: Students in the applied linguistics doctoral program must demonstrate proficiency in a second language equivalent to two years of study. A language appropriate to the student's area of interest is selected in consultation with the advisor. The language requirement must be satisfied, by examination or coursework, prior to advancement to candidacy. Computer or other nonhuman languages may not be used to satisfy this requirement. Students for whom English is a second language may use their first language to satisfy the requirement by examination. Course credit used to satisfy the language requirement cannot be used to satisfy other program requirements and cannot be counted toward the total required 84 credit hours.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- academic writing sample relevant to the field
- GRE general test scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Applied Mathematics, PHD (LAAPMPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Mathematics, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This PhD program in applied mathematics is intended for students with superior computational and mathematical modeling ability. It emphasizes a solid mathematical foundation and promotes creative scholarship in an application discipline. The School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences at Arizona State University has faculty in applied mathematics with outstanding transdisciplinary research programs with strong external funding.

Current research interests include mathematical epidemiology and mathematical ecology, mathematical neuroscience, environmental fluid dynamics and high performance computing, imaging and inverse problems, supply chain dynamics, control and optimization, computational methods for ordinary and partial differential equations, analysis of differential equations, and geophysical and environmental fluid dynamics.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

five core courses (15)
MAT 591 Seminar (3)
MAT 799 Dissertation (12)

Students must pass a written comprehensive examination and an oral dissertation prospectus. Each student must write a dissertation and defend it orally in front of five dissertation committee members. Students should see the department website for examination information.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics, applied mathematics, economics, engineering or a natural science from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of education and career goals
- resume
- GRE (general) scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Additional eligibility requirements include:

- be competitive in an applicant pool as evidenced by coursework in linear algebra (equivalent to ASU course MAT 342 or MAT 343) and advanced calculus (equivalent to ASU course MAT 371)
- have scientific programming skills (desirable)

Applied Mathematics for the Life & Social Sciences, PHD (LAAMPLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Mathematics for the Life and Social Sciences, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in applied mathematics for the life and social sciences focuses on training researchers to analyze scientific questions at the intersection of the mathematical, life and social sciences. Graduates of the program make innovative and far-reaching scientific contributions that rely on cutting-edge computational mathematical and modeling approaches.

This program focuses on producing quantitative scientists and applied mathematicians conducting high-level, transdisciplinary research. The faculty include mathematicians, statisticians, theoretical biologists and social scientists from five different schools at Arizona State University.

There is a high demand for first-rate scientists, researchers and faculty interested in meeting the challenges faced by communities in the 21st century. Institutional research and planning programs create space and opportunity to address such challenges on a global scale. The health, environmental and natural resource challenges in Arizona and the nation are urgently in need of a large pool of researchers with these transdisciplinary skills.

There are three tracks a student can follow. Applied mathematics is a more in-depth focus on the tools applied to the life and social sciences, such as dynamical systems, computational and numerical methods, simulation and mathematical analysis. Life sciences focuses on understanding the tools for representing the structure and operation of complex biological and ecological processes. Social sciences focuses on understanding the tools for representing the structure and operation of complex social systems and processes.

By offering courses that enhance transdisciplinary exchanges and collaboration among faculty and students interested in addressing questions of social relevance, the program builds upon foundations already established in:

- bioinformatics
- computational sciences
- ecology
- genomics
- mathematical analysis
- mathematical epidemiology
- nonlinear dynamics
- population dynamics
- social science fields

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

AML 610 Topics in Applied Mathematics for the Life and Social Sciences (3)

AML 612 Applied Mathematics for the Life and Social Sciences Modeling Seminar (3)

Other Requirements (15 credit hours)

ASM, AML or BIO: courses in evolution, ecology or social sciences (400 level or above) (3)*

one graduate-level course in biostatistics (3)*

one graduate-level School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences course approved by graduate chair (3)

APM, AML, MAT 590 or 790 Reading and Conference (6)

*Substitution courses may be acceptable with approval of director.

Electives (39 credit hours)

See the Additional Curriculum Information section below.

Research (12 credit hours)
AML 592 or 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
AML 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

Electives must include six credit hours of life science and six credit hours of social sciences.

Courses (beyond the 15 credit hour requirement) from the Other Requirements section may be used as electives.

Students must register for research credit (AML 592 or 792) supported by their participation in one of two summer programs, Mathematical and Theoretical Biology Institute or J. Bustoz Math-Science Honors Program, sponsored by the Simon A. Levin Mathematical, Computational and Modeling Sciences Center. Up to three credit hours of research per summer may be applied based on hours and level of participation with approval from the graduate chair and the summer program director.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework will be made up of electives to reach the required 84 credit hours.

All students must maintain a 3.20 (scale is 4.00 = "A") average GPA in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. A master's degree in the social sciences (e.g., anthropology, gender studies, geography, sociology), life sciences or related fields (e.g., biology, ecology, genomics), applied mathematics, mathematics or statistics is preferred.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample of 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Prior to admission, students should have completed, at the undergraduate junior or senior level, a minimum of the following:

- 15 credit hours of mathematics or statistics
- nine credit hours of life sciences and social sciences coursework at the senior or college graduate level
- no fewer than three credit hours each of life sciences and social sciences coursework

Applied Prevention Science (Certificate), Certificate (LAAPSGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Applied Prevention Science (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

There is growing demand for professionals who understand the challenges, opportunities and the service approaches that can promote healthy development, including in the social, emotional and interpersonal domains. Relatedly, there is a pressing need to train individuals as professionals who can prevent mental illness and their sequelae. The certificate program in applied prevention science is valuable for those aspiring to work in fields that provide services to children and families across diverse settings such as schools, courts, community health centers and mental health agencies, child welfare, home visiting programs, foster care services, and tribal behavioral health.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (15 credit hours)

PSY 569 Professional Ethics, Growth and Responsibility in Prevention (3)

PSY 678 Preventive Psychosocial Interventions that Work (3)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in psychology or in any health, mental health, or counseling-related field, from a regionally accredited institution or an equivalent degree from an international institution that is officially recognized by that country.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

International students who need an F1 or J1 visa will need first to apply to and be accepted into a graduate degree program prior to being considered for the certificate program. International students residing in the USA on other types of visas must adhere to all Graduate College policies and procedures regarding admission to be considered for admission to this certificate program.

Asian Languages and Civilizations (Chinese), MA (LACHINAMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Asian Languages/Civilizations (Chinese), MA
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Chinese graduate program in the School of International Letters and Cultures offers an MA degree with a focus in one of two areas: either literature, linguistics, religion and culture; or pedagogy.

A focus on literature, linguistics, religion and culture prepares students for further academic training, for entrance to professional schools in such fields as law, business, journalism and translation, and for a general level of knowledge about the languages and cultures of China as an asset to a professional career. The pedagogy focus is intended for students whose major interest is in teaching modern Chinese in K-16 environments.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (CHI 593).

The plan of study for the master's degree includes a minimum of 30 credit hours of graduate-level work as approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, a thesis or an applied project option. The plan must include a 500-level bibliography and research methods course offered by the department. When approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, nine credit hours of advanced-level work in another language or in closely related courses may be included in the plan. Students who are primarily interested in teaching at the secondary or community college levels may select a plan of study with a focus in language pedagogy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in Chinese or a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- resume
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking and writing skills on a topic connected with Chinese culture.

Candidates for the master's degree should present the equivalent of an undergraduate major in Chinese upon entrance to the program. Those who lack this background but show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements, including those with regard to English proficiency, may be admitted to a graduate program on a provisional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular plan of study for the master's degree.

Asian Languages and Civilizations (Japanese), MA (LAJAPANMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Asian Languages/Civilizations (Japanese), MA

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The Asian languages faculty in the School of International Letters and Cultures offer a graduate program leading to an MA in Asian languages and civilizations with a concentration in Japanese.

In addition to preparing students for further academic training, the program helps to prepare students for jobs relating to Japan, in fields such as law, business, journalism and translation, and for entrance into professional schools.

Students who see higher-level understanding of the language and culture Japan as a valuable asset to a professional career are an ideal fit for this program as are students who want to pursue doctoral studies in the same or a closely related field.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (JPN 593).

The plan of study for the Master of Arts includes a minimum of 30 credit hours of graduate-level work and a thesis, as approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, or 27 credit hours of coursework and three credit hours of applied project. The plan must include a 500-level bibliography and research methods course offered by the department. When approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, nine hours of advanced-level work in another language or in closely related courses may be included in the plan.

Students who are primarily interested in teaching at the secondary or community college levels may select a plan of study with an area of study in language pedagogy. Students seeking a master's degree in Asian languages and civilization should consult their Graduate College representative. In keeping with the idea of in-situ experience as a key ingredient for advanced intellectual understanding, all degree candidates must have spent at least nine continuous months in a Japanese language environment within four years of entering the program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in Japanese or a related field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking and writing skills on a topic connected with Japanese culture. The personal statement should highlight the applicant's motivations and skills and indicate why they are interested in the Japanese graduate program. Candidates for the program should present the equivalent of an undergraduate major in Japanese upon entrance to the program. Those who lack this background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements may be admitted to a graduate program on a conditional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular plan of study for the master's degree.

Students should see the School of International Letters and Cultures website for more information.

Online Degree Search Title: Asian Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate in Asian studies offers graduate students a transdisciplinary specialization in Asian language and area studies. The certificate program is available in two tracks: the East Asia track that includes China, Japan and Korea; and the Southeast Asia track that includes Burma, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines, Brunei and Timor Leste.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

two courses at the 500 level or above dealing with Asian content from a single discipline

Electives (6 credit hours)

two courses at the 500 level or above dealing with Asian content from a discipline other than that chosen for the core courses

Other Requirements (6 credit hours)

language proficiency requirement: two courses at the 400 level or above in one Asian language (Chinese, Indonesian, Japanese, Korean, Thai, Vietnamese)

Culminating Experience (0 credit hours)

a thesis or capstone project on a topic related to the student's region of emphasis and selected in consultation with the student's faculty mentor

Additional Curricular Information

Students work closely with a faculty advisor from the Center for Asian Research to develop a cohesive curriculum tailored to their individual goals and interests.

Some of the coursework from the discipline in which the student is earning a graduate degree may be used to satisfy these requirements.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Graduate students currently enrolled in any discipline may pursue a certificate in Asian studies in conjunction with their degree program.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Atmospheric Science (certificate), Certificate (LAATMOSCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Atmospheric Science (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

This program is not currently accepting applications.

Program Description:

The transdisciplinary certificate in atmospheric science is administered by an executive committee composed of faculty from the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The objective of this program is to recognize Arizona State University graduate students who complete a dissertation on a topic related to the atmospheric or oceanic sciences under the supervision of a faculty member from one of the cooperating departments.

Degree Requirements:

16 credit hours.

A minimum of 16 credit hours will be required in order to qualify for the atmospheric science certificate, consisting of:

- three three-credit-hour courses from a list of courses in the core disciplines (9)
- two three-credit-hour courses from a list of electives at the 400 level or above (6)
- a capstone seminar (1)

Considering the diversity of courses and in order to ensure a transdisciplinary flavor, all prospective recipients will have their certificate program approved by the certificate executive committee. Certificates will only be awarded to students who are enrolled in an MA, MS, MNS or PhD program at ASU. The student's thesis or dissertation must also be related to some aspect of atmospheric science.

The core courses are offered at least once every other year, so the certificate may be completed within two years.

Specific requirements are:

- approval by the certificate committee of the student's proposed course selection
- completion of one course from each of the core disciplines with a grade of "B" (3.00) or better
- completion of two courses from the list of electives with a grade of "B" (3.00) or better
- completion of the capstone seminar, which is one credit hour
- completion of a dissertation on a topic related to the atmospheric or oceanic sciences

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

Biochemistry, MS (LABIOCHMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Biochemistry, MS

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

Students earning an MS degree in biochemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences are trained in the fundamental aspects of the discipline, but most also will choose to learn by joining transdisciplinary teams that work on larger, mission-based contemporary problems in areas such as:

- biogeochemistry
- energy and sustainability
- fundamental chemical biology
- materials and nanoscience
- medicine and health
- structure function and dynamics

The master's degree program in biochemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences provides students with the training they need to solve biological problems at the molecular scale and to contribute to research in current challenging societal issues.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

500-level or above courses as approved by the school (12)

BCH 501 or CHM 501 Seminar or other seminar course as approved by the school (4)

BCH 592 Research courses (8)

BCH 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curricular Information

The program consists of coursework and seminars selected by the student in consultation with the student's supervisory committee and based on the student's area of research. A written thesis is required and must be successfully defended during a public final oral defense. Students must maintain a minimum GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") or better.

A program fee in the amount of $300 per semester is required in addition to the normal tuition costs.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in chemistry, biochemistry, or closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee

Biochemistry, PHD (LABIOCHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Biochemistry, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in biochemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences provides students with the training they need to solve biological problems at the molecular scale and to be successful independent scientists who can contribute to current challenging societal issues. Students earning a doctoral degree in biochemistry from the school are fully trained in all fundamental aspects of the discipline, but most also will choose to learn by joining transdisciplinary teams that work on larger, mission-based contemporary problems in areas such as biogeochemistry, energy and sustainability, fundamental chemical biology, materials and nanoscience, medicine and health, and structure function and dynamics.

Students should visit the prospective student page (<https://sms.asu.edu/graduate-study>) to learn more about this doctoral program and the graduate research page (<https://sms.asu.edu/graduate-study/research>) to learn more about the cutting-edge, transdisciplinary research being conducted in the school. The doctoral program in biochemistry prepares students for professional careers in industry, government and academia.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Six graduate-level courses (12-18)
enrollment in a BCH 501/CHM 501 seminar each semester (8)
BCH 792 Research (46-52)
BCH 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

The program consists of coursework and seminars selected by the student in consultation with the student's supervisory committee and based on the student's area of research. Qualifying exams consisting of a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam and a prospectus are required to advance to candidacy. Students must successfully defend their dissertation during a public final oral defense. Students must also maintain a minimum GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") or better.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in chemistry, biochemistry, or closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

- personal statement
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

In addition to the admission application, applicants must complete an online supplemental application to the School of Molecular Sciences. The supplemental application will be available 24 to 48 hours after submission of the admission application. The personal statement and contact information for the letters of recommendation will be submitted as part of the supplemental application. Information about the supplemental application can be found on the department's website. Applications lacking a supplemental application will not be reviewed.

Biochemistry (Medicinal Biochemistry), MS (LABCHMCMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Biochemistry (Medicinal Chemistry), MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The faculty in the School of Molecular Sciences offer a program leading to the MS in biochemistry with a concentration in medicinal chemistry. This program is intended for students who plan to continue their educational training in pharmacy or medical school or in a related field and want to expand their background knowledge in biochemistry before beginning their professional education.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Biochemistry, BS
- Biochemistry (Medicinal Chemistry), BS
- Chemistry, BS
- Molecular Biosciences and Biotechnology, BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project (research paper) course (CHM 593 or BCH 593).

A minimum of 30 credit hours are required, including coursework, seminars, research and an applied project consisting of a written research paper. Courses are selected by students in consultation with their supervisory committee based on the research area.

The Master of Science in biochemistry is awarded when the student has obtained a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in coursework, demonstrated quality performance in the laboratory and completion of the research project, completed and presented an approved research paper at an oral defense to the student's supervisory committee, and met all deadline dates and requirements set by the Graduate College.

A program fee in the amount of $300 per semester is required in addition to the normal tuition.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in chemistry, biochemistry, or closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

Biology, MS (LABIOMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Biology, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This MS in biology is a program based in research and around a student's individual research interests. It is flexible, allowing students to explore areas of biology that thrive outside of traditional boundaries. This master's program is designed to prepare students for careers in teaching and research in educational, medical, industrial and governmental institutions.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Biological Sciences, BS

Biological Sciences (Biology and Society), BS

Biological Sciences (Biomedical Sciences), BS

Biological Sciences (Conservation Biology and Ecology), BS

Biological Sciences (Genetics, Cell and Developmental Biology), BS

Biological Sciences (Neurobiology, Physiology and Behavior), BS

Microbiology, BS

Microbiology (Medical Microbiology), BS

Molecular Biosciences and Biotechnology, BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

Each student's plan is prepared in consultation with the supervisory committee, consisting of a professor in the major and two additional faculty members. A typical plan of study consists of:

research credit (8-14 credit hours) coursework and additional seminars (9-15 credit hours)

seminar (1 credit hour)

thesis (6 credit hours)

The remainder of the plan of study usually consists of a mixture of coursework, readings, conferences and seminars in the student's primary and related fields, and research credits.

Courses and research credits can be distributed in any combination appropriate to the student's individual educational goals. A final oral examination covering the thesis and related subject matter is administered by the supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in biology or a related discipline, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must submit the following:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores

- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Biology, PHD (LABIOPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Biology, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in biology offers individualized courses of study tailored to students interests that include laboratory, field and theoretical work. Flexibility in the program is achieved by requiring only one core class, which is a choice between two topics that cover the breadth of the research directions in this program.

Electives are also as flexible as possible and include areas outside of biology. The major goal is to provide opportunities to create an adaptable and general degree program that allows both traditional and interdisciplinary approaches in any area of biology.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3-4 credit hours)

BIO 614 Biometry (4) or

BIO 620 Research Prospectus Writing (3)

Electives (68-69 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

BIO 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

The program is tailored to the needs of the individual student. The plan of study is developed by the student and a supervisory committee consisting of a major professor and three additional faculty members. The electives credit hours are comprised of coursework showing breadth in biology subdisciplines, seminars and research.

An oral comprehensive examination is required in order to advance to candidacy and a formal defense of the final written dissertation is required prior to graduation.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in biology or a related discipline from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must submit the following:

- graduate admission application and application fee

- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Desired Qualifications:

- GRE scores: We encourage you to apply even if your GRE results do not meet the desired scores. We consider all components of your application package before making a decision.
- research experience

Biology (Biology and Society), MS (LABIOSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Biology (Biology and Society), MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

In the biology and society concentration of the MS program in biology, students examine topics where biology intersects with society. The concentration tailors individual plans of study to individual needs and interests, with a solid grounding in life and related sciences and with a rigorous analytical and interdisciplinary education. The program offers suggested courses for those wishing to focus on these areas: bioethics, policy and law; biology education research; ecology, economics and ethics of the environment; and history and philosophy of science.

The bioethics, policy and law area trains students in the pressing moral, policy and legal issues raised by the biosciences and biomedicine and in the disciplinary methods necessary to address these issues. The biology education research area focuses on using education research to identify ways to improve undergraduate biology education broadly. Ecology, economics and ethics of the environment trains students in the theory and empirical methods for understanding, analyzing and shaping policy for coupled human-natural systems. The history and philosophy of science area trains students in the conceptual foundations of science, especially the epistemological and methodological assumptions that shape science and its progress.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Biological Sciences, BS
- Biological Sciences (Biology and Society), BS
- Biological Sciences (Conservation Biology and Ecology), BS
- Biological Sciences (Genetics, Cell and Developmental Biology), BS
- Biological Sciences (Neurobiology, Physiology and Behavior), BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

An individual student plan is developed in consultation with the student's advisor and committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- writing sample
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Students are expected to have completed the equivalent of core requirements for an undergraduate major in biology or a related discipline (typically evolution, genetics and other courses appropriate to the student's particular interests). Students without an undergraduate-level competency in the sciences may be considered for conditional admission to the biology and society concentration.

Biology (Biology and Society), PHD (LABIOSPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Biology (Biology and Society), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

In the biology and society concentration of the PhD program in biology, students examine topics with biological and social dimensions that are best understood together, rather than in isolation. The concentration provides plans of study tailored to individual needs and interests. It encompasses a solid foundation in life sciences and related sciences and provides a rigorous analytical and interdisciplinary education. Students may further specialize in one of four tracks:

Bioethics, policy and law -- This track focuses on pressing moral, policy and legal issues raised by biosciences and biomedicine and on the methods needed to address them.

History and philosophy of science -- This track focuses on the conceptual foundations of science, especially the epistemological and methodological assumptions that shape science and its progress.

Ecology, economics and ethics of the environment -- This track focuses on the theory and empirical methods for understanding, analyzing and shaping policy that steer society toward a more productive, equitable and sustainable ecological future.

Biology education research -- This track focuses on using education research to identify ways to broadly improve undergraduate biology education.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3-4 credit hours)

Biology (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PHD (LABIOCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Biology (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in biology with a concentration in complex adaptive systems science trains the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing university-wide research on complex adaptive system science at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive perspective to give better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing our society today. Students become fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Student doctoral dissertations should include the application of complex adaptive systems concepts and methods in their field of study, and candidates typically will have a member of the complex adaptive systems science graduate faculty as a member of the doctoral supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit the following:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Only students admitted to participating doctoral programs may apply for a complex adaptive systems concentration. A letter of application from the student must be sent to the chair of the complex adaptive systems science graduate faculty. The application will be reviewed by members of the graduate faculty who will make final admission recommendations to the Graduate College.

Biomimicry, MS (LABMYMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Biomimicry, MS

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MS in biomimicry, the practice of emulating nature's strategies for human designs, is offered at ASU in conjunction with Biomimicry 3.8. Designed to empower change agents passionate about a world mentored by life's genius, graduates work toward innovative and sustainable solutions to pressing global challenges, exploring the way business is conducted, buildings and products are designed, governments are run, health care is provided, and goods are manufactured to how future generations will be educated ---all inspired by nature's time-tested sustainable solutions developed over the last 3.8 billion years.

The Master of Science program in biomimicry is designed to prepare students to facilitate the practice of biomimicry across corporate, government, education and nongovernment organization sectors. In addition to core content and electives, students will gain biomimicry experience in biome-based applications, business case studies, biological strategy research and in each participant's self-designed biomimicry project in the student's chosen career field. For more information, prospective students should visit <http://biomimicry.asu.edu/> (<http://biomimicry.asu.edu/>).

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio.

Required Core (13 credit hours)

BMY 501 Essentials of Biomimicry (1)

BMY 502 Life's Principles (4)

BMY 503 Biology Taught Functionally (4)

BMY 504 Biomimicry Thinking (4)

Electives or Research (11 credit hours)

Other Requirements (6 credit hours; choose 3)

BMY 530 Virtual Design Lab Practicum (2)

BMY 580 Topic: BioBrainstorm Practicum (2)

BMY 580 Topic: Biomimicry Case Study Practicum (2)

Biomimicry (Certificate), Certificate (LABMYGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Biomimicry (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in biomimicry, the practice of emulating nature's strategies for human designs, is offered at ASU in conjunction with Biomimicry 3.8.

The program is designed to introduce and delve into the core fundamentals of biomimicry, such as Biomimicry Thinking and Life's Principles with the intention to apply the knowledge and tools to one's specific interests or discipline. It is best suited for individuals with an established career who wish to bring biomimicry to that career. Participants will have the opportunity including mentorship to explore the application of these core fundamentals in their own discipline, field or area of interest during the biomimicry Virtual Design Lab as their culminating project.

Graduates will have the ability to work toward innovative and sustainable solutions within their discipline, emulating nature's time-tested sustainable solutions evolved over the last 3.8 billion years.

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

Students earning an MS degree in chemistry in the School of Molecular Sciences are trained in the foundation disciplines of analytical, organic, physical, inorganic, and environmental chemistry and geochemistry, but most will also choose to learn by joining transdisciplinary research teams that work on larger, mission-based contemporary problems in areas such as:

- energy and sustainability
- frontiers of chemical measurement
- fundamental molecular science
- geologic and biospheric science
- materials and nanoscience
- medicine and health
- structure function and dynamics

The master's degree program in chemistry provides students with the training they need to solve molecular scale problems and to contribute to research in current challenging societal issues.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

Computer-Assisted Language Learning (Certificate), Certificate (LACALLGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Computer-Assisted Language Learning (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in computer-assisted language learning focuses on the application of technology in foreign language teaching and research. It teaches the practical, hands-on skills needed to create and evaluate learning and teaching materials with new computer-based technologies. The certificate program teaches students how to use technology effectively to facilitate instructed second-language acquisition and how to develop, manage and maintain a cutting-edge language computing facility. It also provides students with a solid theoretical and pedagogical framework for the integration of technology into the foreign language curriculum and provides them with the tools necessary to teach language courses in either a hybrid or distance-learning environment.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours including a capstone course (ENG 597).

Required Core (6 credit hours)

ENG 557 Computer-Assisted Language Learning (3)

SLC 510 Computer-Assisted Language Learning Praxis (3)

Restricted Electives (3 credit hours)

LIN 520 Second-Language Acquisition Theories (3) OR

SLC 515 Second-Language Acquisition (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

For restricted electives, students may select an approved second language acquisition course equivalent to LIN 520 or SLC 515 with department approval.

Admission Requirements:

All applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned from a regionally accredited institution a bachelor's or master's degree with a major or minor in foreign language study, English or English education.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Students may apply for admission to the certificate program once they have been accepted into a graduate degree program in the School of International Letters and Cultures or other school or department at ASU.

Applicants must have an undergraduate major in the language they will teach or be native speakers of the language they will teach, or they must have a minor or ASU minor equivalency as determined by SILC policies (18 upper-division credit hours, including at least three credit hours from the 400 level in their undergraduate program). Current graduate student applicants who do not meet the language requirements must be enrolled in a foreign language graduate program, the Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages program, an applied linguistics graduate program, or a closely related field (determined by the directors). A teaching certification is not required as this certificate program is open to graduate students with an interest in computer-assisted language learning and who meet the admission requirements.

Applicants must have completed an introduction to linguistics or applied linguistics course at the time of application (to be verified by the certificate directors). The course does not count toward the 15 credit hours required for the certificate.

Applicants must complete a language teaching methods course, to be verified by the certificate directors. This course also may be taken at ASU prior to completion of the certificate program. The course does not count toward the 15 credit hours required for the certificate.

Creative Writing, MFA (LACWRITMFA)

Online Degree Search Title: Creative Writing, MFA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MFA in creative writing at ASU has always been an unswervingly student-first program. Through small classes, intimate workshops or one-to-one mentoring, the centuries-old apprenticeship model thrives within the New American University. Poets and fiction writers work with outstanding faculty that have published more than 80 books and garnered national and international attention through awards that include:

- Guggenheim, Howard Foundation, and National Endowment for the Arts fellowships
- International Griffin Poetry Prize
- Pulitzer Prize
- two Medals of Achievement from the National Society of Arts and Letters
- Walt Whitman Award from the Academy of American Poets

Additionally, in concert with the Master of Fine Arts program, the Virginia G. Piper Center for Creative Writing offers students a variety of creative and global fellowship opportunities each year, including two teaching fellowships in Singapore; two creative research fellowships to provide support for summer writing projects; and other generous forms of support that include graduate assistantships, travel scholarships, professional development support, and other teaching and leadership opportunities.

Furthermore, students have access to a variety of professional development opportunities, including serving on the editorial board of an international literary journal, Hayden's Ferry Review and internships with Four Way Books.

Degree Requirements:

48 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, and an applied project (ENG 593).

Coursework (39 credit hours)

Other Requirement (6 credit hours)

ENG 592 Research (6)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

ENG 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

The creative writing program requires 48 credit hours of study evenly divided between writing courses and literature courses designed to inform that writing.

While students are expected to satisfy these requirements in the genre in which they were accepted, the program encourages cross-genre study and electives can include courses taken outside of the creative writing program, even outside the English department.

A written comprehensive exam and an applied project are required.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants should have an undergraduate major in English or creative writing; however, exceptional students who do not have either of these undergraduate majors may be admitted on the basis of writing excellence.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose

- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- creative manuscript
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Students applying for funding must submit a statement of teaching philosophy. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details. Applicants for teaching assistantships also must submit an academic writing sample.

The personal statement should include the applicant's writing background, intended area of specialization, a brief self-evaluation of recent work and the applicant's goals. The statement should be single-spaced, up to 1000 words.

Applicants must also submit three copies of the creative manuscript, up to 20 pages of poetry or up to 30 pages of prose.

The three letters of recommendation must consist of one copy of each letter from three recommenders.

The personal statement, the creative manuscript copies, and the letters of recommendation must be sent directly to:

Critical Theory (certificate), Certificate (LACRTGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Critical Theory (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe, West

Program Description:

The certificate in critical theory provides students with historical and thematic approaches to critical theory and promotes the skills required for the interpretation and production of concepts based in continental philosophy and used broadly in the arts, humanities and social sciences. Students learn about key thinkers and movements in critical theory. Such theory offers tools for creating a critical engagement with society and culture, for interpreting social and cultural objects and texts and for the production of new theoretical ideas.

This transdisciplinary certificate program provides opportunities to study theoretical approaches as applied across a wide range of arts, humanities and social science disciplines.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours and a Portfolio.

ENG 502 Contemporary Critical Theories (3)

Electives (12 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (0 credit hours)
portfolio (0)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The graduate certificate in critical theory is available to all ASU graduate students irrespective of their major and to nondegree graduate students and working professionals provided they meet eligibility criteria. Sample majors include English; women and gender studies; art history; and, arts, media and engineering.

Eligible applicants must have taken two courses in critical theory or related field at the upper-division undergraduate level (such as ENG 401 Topics in Critical Theory) or at the graduate level (such as ENG 502 Contemporary Critical Theories).

After submitting the online application, applicants must email unofficial transcripts, a brief statement of purpose explaining the student's areas of interest in critical theory, and a resume to the graduate program manager in the Department of English, with this subject line: Critical Theory Certificate Application.

Digital Humanities (Certificate), Certificate (LACDHGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Digital Humanities (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in digital humanities provides students with methods and skills central to conducting humanities research that employs both qualitative and quantitative approaches.

The program is designed to promote cross-disciplinary study in humanities and social and computational sciences, and it is open to students in all disciplines. The program features training in transdisciplinary collaboration, project-based communication skills, critical theory and the simultaneous application of quantitative and qualitative problem-solving skills.

This certificate highlights an area of excellence within ASU that has emerged across its colleges, schools and departments and is integral to the effort of transforming the humanities at ASU into new transdisciplinary configurations.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours including an applied project course (CDH 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

CDH 501 Digital Humanities: Critical Theory and Methods (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Other Requirement (3 credit hours)

CDH 580 Practicum (3)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Admission is open to all ASU graduate students enrolled in an existing master's or doctoral program and in good standing. Students who are interested in transdisciplinary work are particularly well-suited for this certificate program.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 100 (iBT).

Students will be asked to outline a desired transdisciplinary area of inquiry. For example, a student who works on digital rhetoric and literacy may want to understand how to create and manage social media data sets or how to create a social media application. Alternatively, a student in School of International Letters and Cultures may want to study digital archives of Slavic literature and may need to understand how digital archives are enmeshed in national and capitalist networks.

East Asian Languages and Civilizations (Chinese), PHD (LAEALCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: East Asian Languages and Civilization, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in East Asian languages and civilizations is a research-intensive, transdisciplinary, area-based degree in the study of traditional and modern languages and cultures of China and Japan. Students may focus on:

- comparative cultural studies
- cultural history or linguistics
- literary criticism
- literature
- thoughts

In every case, students will be expected to acquire a solid grounding in the classical and modern versions of the primary language of their area.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, two foreign language exams, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The program requires a minimum of 84 credit hours, of which 30 credit hours from an earned master's degree program that is directly relevant to the doctoral program may be counted toward that requirement. A minimum of 30 credit hours of coursework and 24 credit hours of research are required beyond the master's degree level. If a student already has a master's degree, it will not be necessary to complete the existing School of International Letters and Cultures master's degree program in Asian languages and civilizations. However, the student will be required to satisfy all course requirements for the master's degree.

All students, whether specializing in Chinese or Japanese, must comply with the following requirements:

- complete a minimum of six courses selected from advanced courses in literature, religions or intellectual history

- complete five seminars
- complete SLC 500 Theory and Methodology in East Asian Literature and Culture
- complete 12 credit hours of core requirements
- submit a dissertation and pass an oral defense of that dissertation
- demonstrate reading knowledge of a second pertinent Asian language and one pertinent European language, aside from English
- pass written and oral comprehensive examinations in four fields, three of which must be selected from areas that are well-represented within the East Asian languages and civilizations doctoral graduate curriculum

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants specializing in Chinese should have completed at least three years of modern Chinese and one year of classical Chinese. Applicants specializing in Japanese should have completed at least three years of modern Japanese and one semester of classical Japanese.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- speech sample in Chinese or Japanese
- resume or curriculum vitae
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample, which should be no more than 15 pages, should represent the applicant's thinking as well as writing skills, and it should be on a topic connected with Chinese, Japanese or East Asian culture.

The speech sample is required if the applicant is applying for teaching assistantship funding. The speech sample should be a recorded message approximately four minutes in length, in Chinese or Japanese, on a topic of the applicant's choosing. (Applicants are asked to not read the message. This is to help the committee evaluate the level of proficiency, and the message should realistically reflect the applicant's spoken Chinese or Japanese). Recordings should be emailed to SILC@asu.edu (mailto:SILC@asu.edu).

Applicants should see the department website for more information.

English, MA (LAENGLMA)

Online Degree Search Title: English, MA

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The MA program in English allows for a variety of transdisciplinary studies within four distinct tracks:

Comparative literature --- Students interpret cultural productions in English and at least one other language, and they explore approaches ranging from textual criticism, critical theory and translation to cultural studies and the social sciences.

English studies --- Students in this track learn how to interpret and articulate complex cultural, historical, literary and language related ideas into accessible material for general audiences through a series of courses from across disciplinary areas of study.

Literature --- Students develop and hone skills in oral presentation, writing and critical thinking while exploring social, historical and cultural contexts.

Writing, rhetorics and literacies --- This program offers a wide array of courses encompassing the history, theory and practice of rhetoric and pedagogy of writing.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

English (Creative Writing), BA

English (Literature), BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (ENG 593) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours including the required capstone course (ENG 597) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a foreign language exam.

Culminating Experience (3 or 6 credit hours)

ENG 593 Applied Project (3) or

ENG 597 Graduate Capstone Seminar (3) or

ENG 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic unit for an approved course list.

The capstone culminating experience option is available to students in the English studies track only. Students in this track must take the capstone. Students in one of the other tracks may select an applied project or thesis for the culminating experience.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- academic writing sample relevant to the field
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in comparative literature must prove fluency in a foreign language to a level sufficient for graduate study. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in comparative literature, and plans for the future.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in English studies (online program) are required to submit two academic or professional letters of recommendation (a third is optional). An academic writing sample is not required. The two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should explain how the applicant's academic and professional interests fit with the English studies track of the Master of Arts in English. Applicants with undergraduate majors in English, foreign language, history, philosophy, liberal studies, or other areas in humanities will be considered.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in literature are required to have an undergraduate major in English. Those who do not have a major in English are encouraged to register as nondegree students while they take supplementary courses, as identified by the advisor. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in literature, and plans for the future.

Applicants for the master's degree program in English with a track in writing, rhetorics, and literacies may have undergraduate majors in fields such as, but not limited to anthropology, cognitive science, communication, comparative languages and literatures, education, English literature, history, law, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, rhetoric or composition, sociology, or speech and hearing science. The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should detail the applicant's background, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in writing, rhetorics and literacies, and plans for the future.

English (English Education), PHD (LAENEDPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: English (English Education), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in English with a concentration in English education prepares students to examine the writing and reading practices of secondary students as well as the instructional practices of secondary English language arts teachers by emphasizing the relationship between pedagogy and research methodologies used to study the teaching of secondary English.

Possible areas for research focus within this program include young adult literature, secondary reading and writing practices, new literacies, English language learning, critical literacy and secondary English language arts curriculum and instruction development. The program encourages students to pursue coursework in other sub-disciplines within the Department of English, such as rhetoric and composition, applied linguistics and literature, and coursework in the ASU Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College, such as literacy and educational research methodology.

Students benefit from the program's links to the Central Arizona Writing Project, and this relationship offers opportunities for related coursework, research, community outreach and teacher in-service programs. The doctorate in English education prepares students to become professors of English education or to pursue other relevant opportunities in research and administration.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

ENG 501 Approaches to Research (3)

Foundational Distribution (12 credit hours)

Advanced Studies Distribution (12 credit hours)

Internships (9 credit hours)

ENG 784 Internship (9)

Specialization (6 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

ENG 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must take 12 credit hours at the 500 level, selected from a list of approved courses in education, English, linguistics and applied linguistics for the foundational distribution.

Students must take at least two courses in the area of specialization.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If not approved, the 30 credit hours of coursework will be made up of electives and research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's and master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants with master's degrees in English education and related fields, such as English literature, applied linguistics, education, and rhetoric and composition will be considered. A minimum of three years of full-time teaching or volunteer work in secondary English language arts classrooms or in literate-rich settings is required.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.50 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- academic writing sample
- GRE general test scores

- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Applicants should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

The one- to two-page statement should explain the applicant's interest in the program and how the applicant's background and preparation led to the specific career and research goals. The three letters of recommendation should be from individuals familiar with the applicant's promise in English education, including one letter from a school principal and two letters from university professors. Applicants applying for funding must also submit a statement of teaching philosophy.

Applicants should see the Department of English website for specific details.

English (Literature), PHD (LAENLITPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: English (Literature), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in English with a concentration in literature promotes the study of the production, distribution and reception of texts; of their linguistic, rhetorical and literary structures and functions; and of the internal and external forces shaping literature. The program offers courses that examine chronology and genre while also considering the importance of embodiment. Many courses explore issues relating to gender, class, race and ethnicity. The program prepares students for entrance into the profession as teachers and scholars.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a foreign language exam, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

A student with an appropriate master's degree must complete a minimum of 54 credit hours of approved graduate work, which includes 12 credit hours of dissertation, provided the student's master's degree is accepted by the supervisory committee and the academic unit. Research hours may be used toward coursework in consultation with the advisor.

A student without an appropriate master's degree must complete 84 credit hours of work at ASU. At the advisor's discretion, students may include up to 12 credit hours of appropriate, graduate-level coursework undertaken at another university and not previously counted toward any other degree.

Specifically required are six credit hours in theory courses and ENG 501 Approaches to Research. Students must complete eight graduate courses in any of the following categories:

- cultural studies
- ethnic studies
- gender studies
- genre
- history and structure of the English language
- literature 1500-1660
- literature 1660-1900
- literature since 1900
- literature to 1500
- postcolonial or anglophone literatures

Students must take at least five graduate seminars at the 600 level en route to the doctorate, at least three of which must be taken in the doctoral program. Up to 12 credit hours taken outside the department may be counted toward the degree. Students should consult with their supervisory committees when choosing electives.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.50 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

English (Writing, Rhetorics, and Literacies), PHD (LAENRHTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: English (Writing, Rhetorics and Literacies), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in English with a concentration in writing, rhetorics and literacies promotes the study of rhetorical strategies, production, distribution and interpretation of oral, written, digital, visual, discursive, material and symbolic texts.

Students study the history, theories and methods of inquiry as well as pragmatic and social actions of writing, rhetoric and literacies. With theories and methods from both historical and contemporary contexts, students learn strategies for inquiry; the ways in which communication creates knowledge and action; and how communication is constructed, circulated, reacted to and repurposed over time and across space. Program requirements are designed to encourage a full understanding of theoretical and applied aspects of writing studies, rhetorical studies and literacy studies. Students also will be provided many opportunities to explore the intersections and tensions that exist within and between the three different areas of inquiry.

The program encourages transdisciplinary study, and its flexible requirements enable students to pursue those aspects of the disciplines that interest them the most. The program prepares students for entrance into the field as teachers, scholars and professionals.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a foreign language exam, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation, or 84 credit hours, a foreign language exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

English Education, MA (LAENEDMA)

Online Degree Search Title: English Education, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA in English education is a one-year, intensive program designed to prepare practicing and transitioning teachers for careers as exemplary educators, teacher-researchers and leaders in English language arts instruction. Students in the program develop a deep understanding of the English language arts by learning how to access, analyze and apply research and best practices for teaching secondary students (grades 7-12). This program balances the refining of disciplinary knowledge with pedagogical application of that knowledge in classrooms. Students take a variety of dynamic, cutting-edge methods courses, including advanced methods courses in research in English education, methods of teaching writing and text, teaching postcolonial young adult literature, and teaching writing in an era of standardization.

This innovative course of study culminates with an inquiry project related to English language arts instruction in secondary classrooms. The program empowers students to employ teacher research and inquiry to address questions they have about their own students' learning and their own teaching practice.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (ENG 593).

Required Core (12 credit hours)

ENG 501 Approaches to Research (3)

Environmental Communication and Leadership (Certificate), Certificate (LAECLGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental Communication and Leadership (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

Scientists must go beyond publishing in journals if they want their research to be relevant to society. However, academic training rarely covers how to communicate with the press, the public, policy makers and other relevant stakeholders. This certificate program in environmental communication and leadership gives graduate students in environmental disciplines the important leadership and communication skills needed to increase their influence and reach above and beyond academia.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (3)

BIO 578 Environmental Leadership and Communication (3)

Electives (12)

Policy and Management (3)

Communication (3)

Leadership (3)

Open Elective (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must choose three credit hours from each of the three categories with approval of the School of Life Sciences. If a student takes a course for fewer than three credit hours, the student must take more than one course in that category to meet the three credit hour requirement. Students should contact the School of Life Sciences for a complete list of courses.

Students choose one three credit hour elective course from any of the three categories above. Students should note that only three credit hours of approved 400 level coursework can appear on the plan of study.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Sample related fields include business, education, biology, geosciences, political science and English.

Applicants must have completed 12 undergraduate credit hours of natural science or social science coursework related to the environment at the time of application to the graduate certificate program. They must meet all other graduate admissions requirements. Courses will be reviewed by the School of Life Sciences graduate committee to ensure that they fulfill this requirement.

Environmental Life Sciences, PHD (LAELSPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental Life Sciences, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in environmental life sciences is a novel graduate degree program that provides doctorate-level training in several complementary fields focused on the interactions between organisms (e.g., plant, microbe, people and other animals) and the environment.

This unique program provides opportunities to train across many fields of study, including:

- biology
- biochemistry and chemistry
- conservation science
- ecology
- evolution
- environmental engineering
- geosciences
- mathematics and statistics
- spatial sciences
- social sciences
- sustainability

Graduate students are trained by means of a core class, taught by environmental life science faculty members, hands-on experiences in the lab and field, guidance from committee members across multiple disciplines, and research seminars.

The focus is on collaborative, interdisciplinary and integrative study of the causes and consequences of environmental variation across scales ranging from the organism to the globe. The overall goal is to provide a unique, interdisciplinary doctoral program that encourages students to explore and solve complex problems in the context of natural and anthropogenic environmental change.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

ELS 501 Environmental Life Sciences: Grand Challenge: Global Climate Change (3)

Electives (69 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

ELS 799 Dissertation (12)

Addition Curriculum Information

ELS 501 is required for students to take during their first semester at ASU.

For electives, students should see the academic unit for approved coursework. Students also may take ELS omnibus courses to fulfill some of the elective requirements.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework are made up of electives and research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a related discipline from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must submit the following:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Environmental Social Science, PHD (LAESSPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental Social Science, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in environmental social science is one of the few doctoral degree programs in the U.S. that draws on the premise that reducing human impacts and developing more sustainable environmental practices is difficult, if not impossible, to achieve without a focus on the social dynamics of environmental issues using critical social science perspectives.

The program is organized around theoretically based conceptual domains:

- culture and the environment
- environmental hazards and vulnerability
- environmental justice
- human environment impacts
- political ecology
- science and technology studies

This is the basis for addressing various topical foci, including urban environments, technologies and their consequences, landscapes, institutions, and health and the environment.

Students work with faculty who have expertise in a broad range of fields including:

- archaeology
- community resources
- cultural and medical anthropology
- demography
- environmental history
- geographic information systems
- human and physical geography
- planning
- public affairs
- science and technology studies
- sociology

The program trains students to move into teaching and research positions or to assume leadership roles in government, industry or nongovernmental organizations.

Coursework for the degree is focused on developing real-world skills and a solid grasp of complex social science approaches to environmental issues. Students work closely with their committee to develop a curriculum appropriate to their chosen interests and career goals.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate degree program. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 credit hours of research credit and 12 hours of dissertation credit (54 credit hours total) to be earned post-admission.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate degree program.

All students must maintain a 3.20 average GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Undergraduate coursework in the social sciences (e.g., geography, political science, sociology, anthropology, planning or history) is not a prerequisite for admission but is generally advisable. Students may be admitted without such a background and may be required to acquire knowledge of the social sciences in a manner to be specified at the time of admission.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in the application materials.

Coursework for the degree is focused on developing real-world skills and a solid grasp of complex social science approaches to environmental issues. Students work closely with their committee to develop a curriculum appropriate to their chosen interests and career goals.

The complex adaptive systems science doctoral concentration trains the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing, university-wide research on complex adaptive systems science at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive systems perspective to give better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing our society today. Students will become fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (9 credit hours)

Concentration (12 credit hours)

Electives or Research (21 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework will be made up of electives and research.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 hours of graduate credit, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate.

All students must maintain a 3.20 (scale is 4.00 = "A") average GPA in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

Student doctoral dissertations should include the application of complex adaptive systems concepts and methods in their field of study and typically will have a member of the complex adaptive systems science graduate faculty as a member of their doctoral supervisory committee.

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved electives and concentration courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. The program trains students to move into teaching and research positions or to assume leadership roles in government, industry or in nongovernmental organizations.

Coursework for the degree is focused on developing real-world skills and a solid grasp of complex social science approaches to environmental issues. Students work closely with their committee to develop a curriculum appropriate to their chosen interests and career goals.

The concentration in urbanism leverages the varied interests in urbanism and helps emerging scholars as they attempt to compare, contrast and take stock of urbanism. Working with faculty from across a range of departments and programs at ASU, doctoral students are able to capture the creative tensions that scholarship on urbanism has inspired in order to stimulate a provocative, constructive kind of inquiry.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students entering with a master's degree in a related field may be granted up to 30 credit hours toward the 84 credit hour total required for the doctorate. This leaves 30 credit hours of coursework, 12 credit hours of research and 12 credit hours of dissertation (54 credit hours total) to be earned post admission.

Students entering without a master's degree must earn an additional 30 credit hours of graduate coursework, produce a research portfolio which is formally evaluated by a faculty committee, and present that research in a public forum before continuing on in the later stage of the doctorate degree program.

All students must maintain a 3.20 average GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in their courses and complete degree requirements per the program's satisfactory progress policy.

All students entering the program complete 18 credit hours of core classes in conceptual domains and topical foci. For the concentration in urbanism, 15 credit hours are to be selected from an approved list of applicable courses related to urbanism. Some of the environmental social science core courses also count toward the concentration in urbanism. These courses include the core urbanism course GCU 516 as well as one course from each of the four urbanism clusters:

- built form
- culture and society
- institutions and governance
- natural environment

Additional credit hours come from courses in research design, technical expertise and electives. Students may select from a substantial range of courses to satisfy noncore requirements.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Undergraduate coursework in the social sciences (e.g., geography, political science, sociology, anthropology, planning or history) is not a prerequisite for admission but is generally advisable. All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores

- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Evolutionary Biology, PHD (LAEVOPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Evolutionary Biology, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The evolutionary biology PhD is a transdisciplinary graduate degree program that provides doctorate-level training in the historical, conceptual, empirical and quantitative aspects of biological evolution.

Evolution is a fundamental scientific concept underlying all aspects of modern biological, environmental and health-related research. It cuts across biological sciences in ways that few other foci do and informs the theoretical foundations of subfields like population genetics and ecosystem ecology. It allows integration of information and patterns across levels of organization, informs the theoretical foundations of subfields ranging from population genetics to systematics to ecosystem ecology, and provides bridges between temporal and spatial scales.

Forgoing emphases on particular taxa or methods, the program focuses on understanding the patterns and processes that have and continue to shape life on Earth, training the next generation of scientists to use this knowledge to meet present and future challenges to the biosphere and human health in the face of increasing environmental perturbation.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (9 credit hours)

BIO 614 Biometry (4)

EVO 601 Principles of Evolution (3)

EVO 610 Research Areas of Evolution (2)

Electives (9 credit hours)

The program advisor as well as the student's advisor will determine these courses in conjunction with the student.

Other Requirements (54 credit hours)

research, coursework or 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree

Dissertation (12 credit hours)

EVO 799 Dissertation (12)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in a related discipline, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Exploration Systems Design, PHD (LAESDPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Exploration Systems Design, PhD

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The PhD program in exploration systems design offers students an advanced systems approach for developing scientific exploration technologies in a wide range of demanding environments on the earth, planets, moons and in space. This transdisciplinary degree program provides a unique platform to train systems engineers targeting technological development for exploration science. This collaborative program between the School of Earth and Space Exploration and the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering allows students to specialize in topics related to planetary exploration, astronomical instrumentation, robotics, sensors and sensor networks.

The curriculum integrates the School of Earth and Space Exploration's science, instrumentation and systems engineering core courses with related coursework from the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering. Students must select a concentration as part of this degree program. Concentrations are available in instrumentation, systems engineering and sensor networks.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (1 credit hour)

SES 502 Exploring SESE Research (1)

Electives or Research (70 credit hours)

Other Requirements (1 credit hour)

SES 501 SESE Colloquium (1)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SES 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree in a related field to be used for this degree. Related fields include, but are not limited to, engineering, computer science, geological sciences or physics.

As part of the electives or research, students will take two science courses selected from the SESE graduate catalog (GLG, SES, or AST prefixes). Substitutions may be made per academic unit approval.

Substitutions for Other Requirements may be made per department approval.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admissions application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Instrumentation concentration:

An undergraduate degree in electrical engineering, aerospace engineering or mechanical engineering is preferred.

Systems engineering concentration:

Successful completion of a senior capstone or design project is an admission requirement for this concentration. Students who have not had a design course are required to take SES 405 Systems Engineering as a deficiency course.

Sensor networks concentration:

An undergraduate degree in electrical engineering or computer science is preferred.

Family and Human Development, MS (LAFAMHDMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Family and Human Development, MS

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MS in family and human development provides practitioner-oriented professionals with an understanding of relationships and developmental dynamics. Students learn how to effectively evaluate and consume research, translate research into best practices, and apply these principles at work.

The online format provides easy access to rigorous and valuable information that informs best practices in improving the lives of families and family members. The program also includes a customizable culminating experience that allows students to focus their training in their areas of interest and work.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (FAS 588).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

CDE 531 Theoretical Issues in Child Development (3)

FAS 586 or SOC 586 Capstone I (3)

FAS 587 or SOC 587 Capstone II (3)

Electives or Research (18 credit hours)

FAS 500 Research Methods (3)

CDE 501 Social Statistics (3)

diversity course (3)

other elective coursework (9)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

FAS 588 Capstone III (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students complete the coursework and culminating experience courses in consultation with the assigned faculty advisor. The plan of study should be completed and approved by the faculty advisor once completing 50 percent of the minimum required credit hours for the degree. Acceptance of the proposed plan of study must be verified by the signature of the chair and faculty advisor. After approval from the program or college, the plan of study is submitted to the Graduate College for final approval.

FAS 500 and CDE 501 may be replaced by equivalent courses with approval by the academic advisor.

The diversity course and other elective coursework are chosen with approval by the academic advisor. The remaining elective credits must be from the FAS, CDE or SOC prefixes.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- current resume or curriculum vitae
- personal statement of goals relevant to the master's degree program
- two letters of recommendation from professional or academic backgrounds
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement must be four to five pages, double-spaced, and must address the applicant's professional goals, the applicant's strengths that will enable the applicant to succeed in the program, and relevant professional experience or responsibilities to the program.

Letters of recommendation must be from at least two academic or professional sources. Family members or friends do not meet this criterion. Applicants should see the program website for full application deadlines and admission terms and details.

French (Comparative Literature), MA (LAFRECLMA)

Online Degree Search Title: French Comparative Literature, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of International Letters and Cultures offers a graduate program in French leading to the MA in French with concentration in comparative literature.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (FRE 593) and a written comprehensive exam.

Graduate students may take only 500-level courses for graduate credit. At least nine credit hours must be selected from those courses listed exclusively for graduate students. The program must include:

- FRE 500 Bibliography and Research Methods (3)
- two courses in linguistics, civilization or translation, of which one course must be in linguistics
- one course in critical or cultural theory

It is recommended that the candidate enroll in FRE 500 as early as possible.

A minimum of four core courses offered by the French section must be selected from any combination of the following categories:
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

- Francophone studies courses
- genre courses
- period courses

When approved by the graduate committee, up to six credit hours of related coursework may be taken outside of French.

A student must achieve a GPA of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher in all work specifically included in the plan of study. Grades below a "C" (2.00) cannot be used to meet the requirements of a graduate degree. No student may accumulate more than one incomplete at any one time.

Independent study courses will be given only under exceptional circumstances and will not duplicate courses which are available. The French graduate committee is responsible for authorizing such work in cooperation with the individual professor. No more than three credit hours of independent study will be permitted.

Students must complete an applied project.

The written examination for the concentration in comparative literature will be administered by the interdepartmental committee for comparative literature and will consist of two essay-based components: general concepts of comparative literature and problems of comparative literature.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in French from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking as well as writing skills, and it should be written in French on a topic connected with the language or French culture. The writing sample should be approximately five to 10 pages in length.

Those who lack the appropriate background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements may be admitted to a graduate program on a provisional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular program of study for the master's degree.

Gender Studies, PHD (LAGSTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Gender Studies, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The gender studies PhD program is part of the nation's first School of Social Transformation. The diverse community of scholars takes an innovative approach to the study of social justice by uniting multiple academic disciplines to strategically create social change that is democratic, inclusive and just.

The inclusive gender studies doctoral program empowers tomorrow's community leaders and shapers by immersing them in:

- ASU's on-campus Digital Humanities research lab
- creative and critical knowledge production
- deep fluency in feminist theory and practical applications
- publicly engaged academic research
- socially embedded community partnerships

The connections between social locations, community and lived experience are the foundation of the research, teaching and community engagement. Faculty and students explore these intersections from a holistic perspective that goes beyond the classroom.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (12 credit hours)

WST 601 Critical Concepts of Gender (3)

WST 602 Mapping the Intersections of Gender (3)

WST 603 Engendering Methodology (3)

WST 701 Research Design and Proposal Development in Gender Studies (3)

Elective Coursework in Methodology (6 credit hours)

Elective Coursework in Specialization (12 credit hours)

General Electives (30 credit hours)

Research and Dissertation (24 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework will be made up of electives to reach the required 84 credit hours.

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved electives.

The gender studies doctoral program is designed to provide students with the transdisciplinary training in theory and methods needed to conduct original research and scholarship about gender.

Students also take two research methods courses relevant to their dissertation, plus additional courses chosen from three areas of specialization: gender, justice and social change; health, science and technology; and visual and narrative culture.

Students must maintain a 3.50 average GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in their courses.

Gender, Justice and Social Change --- Courses in this area explore the gender dimension of social structures, institutions and organizations; the processes of social change and community development; and the ways policies and laws can change gender relations. Faculty have expertise in:

- child welfare
- domestic violence
- gender and the biophysical environment
- globalization
- immigration
- labor and employment
- social policy
- sustainability
- transnational feminisms

- women's rights and gender equality in the developing world

Health, Science and Technology --- Courses in this area explore the impact of gender on:

- health care
- health occupations
- science and technology

Faculty have expertise in:

- bioethics
- gender and technology
- health and sexuality
- HIV and AIDS prevention
- the participation of women in math and science in the developing world
- women's roles as healers and caregivers

Visual and Narrative Culture --- Courses in this area explore historical and contemporary representations of gender in all genres, including:

- art
- literature
- popular culture
- scientific, medical, historical and legal discourse
- theater

The faculty focus especially on the intersections of gender representations with representations of race, sexuality and class, and the ways in which representations produce rather than simply mimic gender inequality and polarized identities.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The gender studies program welcomes applications from qualified students without regard to race, creed, color, religion, sex or national origin. Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official copies of all undergraduate and graduate transcripts
- resume or curriculum vitae

- statement of purpose
- three letters of reference, preferably from faculty or other researchers
- writing sample (10-15 pages)
- proof of English language proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students should see the ASU Graduate Admission Services website for mailing addresses and further admission information.

Geographic Information Science (certificate), Certificate (LAGEOGISCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Geographic Information Science (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The geographic information sciences certificate program teaches students the theoretical aspects of GIS, the technical side of the discipline, and applications of the science. Students learn how to analyze policy problems and research questions from a spatial lens, acquire and analyze remotely sensed data, and model spatial phenomenon.

Skills in geographic information science and geospatial data analytics offer students market-ready tools for turning novel sources of spatial data into informed practice and prepare students to address issues such as climate change, population growth and aging and active transportation. The certificate program enables ASU graduate students from all disciplines and GIS professionals to learn how to apply GIS concepts and technology to build invaluable problem-solving skills.

The certificate is intended as either a specialization within an existing master's degree or a stand-alone nondegree program for practicing professionals with a previously earned graduate degree.

Degree Requirements:

16 credit hours including the required capstone course (GPH 591 or GIS 591).

- a capstone seminar (1)
- three required courses (9)
- two elective courses (6)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they are currently pursuing a master's degree at ASU or have earned a master's degree and are currently practicing professionals.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement must be a one-page letter describing the applicant's overall objective for the GIS certificate program. It should clearly state the applicant's interest in GIS and provide evidence that the certificate will enhance the applicant's education or current employment.

For currently practicing professionals, a final transcript from the master's degree-granting institution must be submitted.

Geographic Information Systems, MAS (LAGISMAS)

Online Degree Search Title: Geographic Information Systems, MAS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MAS in geographic information systems is a compact, one-year nonthesis degree program fostering advanced study in the management and use of GIS technology in public and corporate environments. The degree program meets important educational needs of working professionals and recent college graduates seeking to improve their career standing.

The program provides a comprehensive professional degree that balances work in the theoretical aspects of GIS, the technical side of the discipline, and the applications domain. Students are exposed to cutting-edge technology, with a focus on building invaluable problem-solving skills, and the opportunity to work on real-world GIS projects.

Courses are held in the evenings during the week, so the curriculum is highly adaptable to the work environment, and the master's degree is achievable in a one-year time period. A new group of students begins the program each August, attending evening classes during the fall and spring semesters. Upon completion of the spring semester, students select a capstone project they complete during a summer eight-week session. Final presentations take place in mid-July, and in fewer than 11 months the degree program is complete.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (GPH 693 or GIS 693).

Enrolled students must complete three sequential semesters of coursework:

First Semester

Offered during the fall, this semester is composed of six two-credit hour modules that are not transferable.

Spring Semester

Students in this semester must complete four three-credit hour courses.

Final Semester

Students must complete a three-credit hour GIS internship and a three-credit hour applied project course during the final semester, which is offered in the eight-week summer session.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree in a related field from a regionally accredited institution or if they demonstrate a minimum of three years related professional experience with a bachelor's degree in any field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee

- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- two letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants must prepare a formal, written personal statement regarding relevant academic experience, professional experience and overall interest in GIS.

Letters of recommendation must be from two people who can attest to the applicant's academic and professional achievements. Letters can be from any combination of current or former instructors, supervisors or professionals currently employed within the GIS or related discipline.

Geography, MA (LAGEOGMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Geography, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in geography is designed to offer specialized academic and professional training in geography so students may secure a sound graduate background for further specialization or for immediate employment. The program has sufficient flexibility to allow for individual needs and interests, allowing students to create a plan of study that fits their personal and professional goals.

Students in the master's degree program have the ability to build a path of knowledge that reflects their personal interests within the realms of geography. Students work alongside esteemed faculty members to conduct research in one of four broad interdisciplinary themes: computational spatial science; earth systems and climate science; place, identities and culture; or sustainability science and studies.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Geography, BS
- Geography, BA
- Geography (Meteorology-Climatology), BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

GCU 529 Contemporary Geographic Thought (3)

GCU 585 Geographic Research Design and Proposal Writing (3)

Electives or Research (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students select additional elective or research coursework in consultation with their advisory committee.

The School of Geographical Sciences may consider a student for a traditional master's degree program that includes the successful defense of a thesis. Master's degree students must complete the coursework at ASU.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement must address four items:

- What specialty in geography does the applicant wish to pursue, and why?
- What aspects of the applicant's education (a description is needed) will enable the student to pursue this specialty?
- What additional training does the applicant believe can be obtained at Arizona State University to realize the applicant's educational and career goals?
- Applicants should provide any other information they feel should be considered in their application for admission (e.g., research experience or information which might be drawn from the applicant's resume).

Letters of recommendation must be from three faculty members who can attest to the applicant's academic achievements.

Geography, PHD (LAGEOPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Geography, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in geography provides specialized academic and professional training in geographical sciences to enable graduates to secure a sound background for further research and teaching and for immediate employment.

Students in the program have the ability to build a path of knowledge that reflects their personal interests within the realms of geography. Students work alongside esteemed faculty on research in one of four broad interdisciplinary themes: computational spatial science; earth systems and climate science; place, identities and culture; or sustainability science and studies.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

GCU 585 Geographic Research Design and Proposal Writing (3)

Electives or Research (30-60 credit hours)

Other Requirement (9 credit hours)

GCU 529 Contemporary Geographic Thought (3)

GCU 591 Seminar (3)

GPH 591 Seminar (3)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

GCU 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

Doctoral students entering with a bachelor's degree must complete 84 credit hours. These hours include 72 credit hours of coursework and research at ASU and 12 dissertation credit hours.

Doctoral students entering with a master's degree must complete 54 credit hours. These include 42 credit hours of combined coursework and research hours at ASU and 12 dissertation credit hours.

Coursework and research hours are selected by the student in consultation with an advisory committee.

Up to six credit hours of 400-level coursework may be applied toward the plan of study.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- GRE scores

- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Incoming students must demonstrate or attain competence in cartography and quantitative methods and complete other basic coursework that will enable them to pursue graduate studies in their area of specialization.

The personal statement must address four items:

- What specialty in geography does the applicant wish to pursue, and why?
- What aspects of the applicant's education (a description is needed) will enable the student to pursue this specialty?
- What additional training does the applicant believe can be obtained at Arizona State University to realize the applicant's educational and career goals?
- Applicants should provide any other information they feel should be considered in their application for admission (e.g., research experience or information which might be drawn from the applicant's resume).

Letters of recommendation must be from three faculty members who can attest to the applicant's academic achievements.

German, MA (LAGERMMA)

Online Degree Search Title: German, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The faculty in the School of International Letters and Cultures offer graduate programs leading to the MA degree with a major in German. Students admitted to the master's degree program with a major in secondary education may select German as their subject matter field.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (GER 593).

The plan of study for the master's degree includes a minimum of 30 credit hours of graduate-level work and a thesis or an applied project, as approved by the candidate's supervisory committee. The program must include a 500-level bibliography and research methods course offered by the school. When approved by the candidate's supervisory committee, nine credit hours in another language or in closely related courses may be included in the program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in German, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Those who lack this background but who show strong potential and meet the Graduate College admission requirements may be admitted to a graduate program on a provisional basis, pending removal of specified deficiencies. These deficiencies must be completed in addition to the regular program of study for the master's degree.

The writing sample should represent the applicant's thinking as well as their writing skills, and it should be written in German on a topic connected with the language or German culture.

Global Health, MA (LASSHMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Health, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

In this MA program, global health is considered to be much more than and very different from international public health. It emphasizes that major health challenges stem from many factors well beyond disease itself --- factors that are:

- cultural
- ecological
- evolutionary
- historical
- institutional
- social
- technological

Any effective, sustainable solutions to the most pressing global health challenges need to take all of these factors into account, including the complex ways in which they relate to each other. In this manner, this degree program teaches students to understand health as not simply a product of disease, but rather emerging in the contexts of complex and interrelated ecology, politics, history, culture, social institutions and evolutionary biology. It also places primacy on how to address the broader (i.e., structural, cultural) bases of ill health in complicated, ever-changing health challenges in low-resource community settings and a globalizing world. To do this, the program combines both social and life science theories with on-the-ground research and its application. There is a strong emphasis on collaborative action as key to identifying and addressing global health problems in a sustainable and meaningful way.

Students accepted into the program are tied to ongoing transdisciplinary global health projects that address complicated, multifaceted health challenges that defy easy fixes, such as:

- climate change-related diseases
- emerging infectious diseases
- obesity

By applying a collaborative, problem-solving format, the master's degree program in global health is intended to provide those planning to enter health or related fields (i.e., environmental, social) with the transdisciplinary orientation, team skills and social and cultural acuity that the Pew Health Professions Commission inter alia has identified as critical but lacking in current health workforce training. The program also emphasizes experiential learning as a way to gain mastery and requires participation in a global internship program based in one of the international partnering communities.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Global Health, BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 Credit Hours including the required applied project course (SSH 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

ASB 510 Health: Social and Biocultural Theories (3)

Open Electives (6 credit hours)

Restricted Electives (6 credit hours)

ASB 580 Practicum (1-6)

ASB 583 Fieldwork (1-6)

ASB 584 Internship (1-6)

Other Requirements (9 credit hours)

ASB 500 Ethnographic Research Methods (3)

ASB 503 Medical Anthropology (3)

SSH 591 Seminar: Principles of Epidemiology for Global Health (3)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

SSH 593 Applied Project (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

For restricted electives, students complete at least six credit hours from the list above.

Substitutes may be permitted by the graduate director for other requirement and restricted elective coursework. Additional methods-focused courses or graduate-level epidemiology courses can count toward these requirements.

Applied projects are completed in consultation with a faculty advisor. Students may use the fieldwork, internship or practicum experience as part of the research for the applied project.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in the social or life sciences (i.e., anthropology, sociology, gender studies, geography, political science), public health or related fields (i.e., nutrition, human biology) from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages, to be included in their application materials.

Admission is competitive and based on student academic excellence, additional relevant experience, and fit with available faculty. Value will be placed on foreign language skills; practical, cross-cultural and international experiences; and prior social science and life science research.

Global Health, PHD (LASSHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Health , PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in global health draws on the premise that sustainable and satisfying solutions to the most pressing global health challenges require a sophisticated understanding of how cultural context, social and ecological processes and disease are really related.

The transdisciplinary graduate program trains students broadly in cutting-edge health social science research theory and methods. While it leverages the strength in medical anthropology at ASU, including the 15 medical anthropologists on campus, it also takes advantage of a much wider set of skills offered by experts in such fields as medical sociology, demography, human geography and epidemiology. The program is designed to train those who anticipate working in transdisciplinary academic settings, medical schools or nonacademic health settings, such as the commercial sector, government agencies or nongovernmental organizations.

Some particular thematic foci of the program are:

- biocultural approaches to human coping
- computer-based complexity modeling
- culture and health
- health in the Americas
- indigenous and minority health
- mathematical epidemiology
- nutritional anthropology
- social justice and vulnerable populations
- social networks
- urban and environmental health

The program draws some 80 faculty members from throughout the university to consider how cutting-edge social science can be applied to understand and substantively improve the health of populations. The program favors community-based research and runs collaborative projects in which students are encouraged to gain experience and conduct research, from large U.S. cities to hunter-gatherer communities. Students generally enter the program with a master's degree in a relevant field.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

SSH 510 Health: Social and Biocultural Theories (3)

Electives (41 credit hours)

Other Requirements (16 credit hours)

ASB 500 Ethnographic Research Methods (3)

ASB 591 Topic: Professionalism (1)

ASM 579 Proposal Writing (3)

SSH 591 Topic: Principles of Epidemiology for Global Health (3)

systematic methods courses (6)

Research (12 credit hours)

SSH 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SSH 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

For electives, students should see the academic unit for a course list approved by the chair.

Other requirement coursework may be substituted with the approval of the academic unit. At least two systematic methods courses in an area other than epidemiology or biostatistics and ethnography (such as nutrition, survey, archival analysis, demography or geographic information systems) should be selected.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program may allow up to 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this program. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the remaining coursework will be made up of electives.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Suitable backgrounds for admission include a master's degree in the social sciences (such as anthropology or sociology), public health, human biology or related fields. Students entering directly from a bachelor's degree program should have already completed at least 15 credit hours of social science and six hours of human biology (or equivalent) at the senior level, and also should have some background in statistics or epidemiology.

Applicants may submit with their application materials an optional scholarly writing sample of at least 20 but no more than 30 double-spaced pages.

Global Health (Culture and Health), PHD (LASSHCHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Health (Culture and Health), PhD

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The PhD in global health draws on the premise that sustainable and satisfying solutions to the most pressing global health challenges require a sophisticated understanding of how cultural context, social and ecological processes, and disease are really related.

The transdisciplinary graduate program trains students broadly in cutting-edge health social science research theory and methods. The program draws together some 80 faculty members from across the university to consider how cutting-edge social science can be applied not only to understand, but also to substantively improve the health of populations. The program favors community-based research and runs collaborative projects in which students are encouraged to gain experience and conduct research, from large U.S. cities to hunter-gatherer communities. Students generally enter the program with a master's degree in a relevant field.

The concentration in culture and health provides focused, specialized training in theories and methods for researching the relationship between culture and health. This concentration utilizes the perspectives of medical anthropology and sophisticated ethnographic methods to study and interpret the role of cultural and social differences in shaping health. Students investigate these methods in the context of the community-based, participatory approaches that tend to promote the most mutually meaningful and lasting health solutions. Graduates are thus particularly prepared for leadership in addressing health disparities in cross-cultural settings and with the most vulnerable populations. This includes very complex, difficult settings where particularly nuanced and sophisticated (often anthropological) understandings of health-related challenges are needed.

Global Health (Evolutionary Global Health Sciences), PHD (LASSHEPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Health (Evolutionary Global Health Sciences), PhD

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The PhD program in global health draws on the premise that sustainable and satisfying solutions to the most pressing global health challenges require a sophisticated understanding of how cultural context, social and ecological processes, and disease are really related.

The transdisciplinary graduate program trains students broadly in cutting-edge health social science research theory and methods. While it leverages the strength in medical anthropology at ASU (including the 15 medical anthropologists on campus), it also takes advantage of a much wider set of skills offered by such fields as medical sociology, demography, human geography and epidemiology. It is designed to train those who anticipate working in transdisciplinary academic settings, medical schools or nonacademic health settings such as commercial sector, government agencies or nongovernmental organizations.

Some particular thematic foci of the program are:

- biocultural approaches to human coping
- computer-based complexity modeling
- culture and health
- health in the Americas
- indigenous and minority health
- mathematical epidemiology

- nutritional anthropology
- social justice and vulnerable populations
- social networks
- urban and environmental health

The program draws together some 80 faculty members from throughout the university to consider how cutting-edge social science can be applied not only to understand, but also to substantively improve the health of populations. The program favors community-based research and runs collaborative projects in which students are encouraged to gain experience and conduct research, from large U.S. cities to hunter-gatherer communities. Students generally enter the program with a master's degree in a relevant field.

The concentration in evolutionary global health sciences requires training in universal principles of research design (from experiments to systematic qualitative and quantitative description), data analyses, methods (quantitative and qualitative) and anthropological interpretation (or the identification of determinants of the origins and distribution of health phenotypes in past and present human populations). Students choose from a wide range of data collection and inferential tools in order to address specific questions, through a combination of lecture and guided reading courses designed to master the highly diverse literature in evolutionary global health sciences that best pertains to their career goals.

Additional Curriculum Information

For the concentration coursework, students choose one course from ASM 456, ESS 514, SSH 514, or SSH 591 Topic Principles of Epidemiology for Global Health.

For electives, please see the academic unit for a course list approved by the chair.

Other requirement coursework may be substituted with the approval of the academic unit. At least two systematic methods courses in an area other than epidemiology/biostatistics and ethnography (such as nutrition, survey, archival analysis, demography, or geographic information system) should be selected.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program may allow up to 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this program. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the remaining coursework will be made up of electives.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Suitable backgrounds for admission include a master's degree in the social sciences (such as anthropology or sociology), public health, human biology or related fields. Students entering directly from a bachelor's degree program should have already completed at least 15 credit hours of social science and six hours of human biology (or equivalent) at the senior level, and also should have some background in statistics or epidemiology.

Global Security, MA (LAGSCMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Security, MA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MA in global security is an interdisciplinary, fully online program designed to aid professional advancement in government, military, nonprofit and private sector careers. Students are trained to critically engage international security issues in a comprehensive manner.

The program is based on four key pillars: enabling innovative strategic thinking; developing analytic tools; supporting critical interdisciplinary engagement; and encouraging flexible and resilient approaches to the inherently complex challenges of current and future global security.

Students may pursue the master's degree from anywhere in the world, study while working full-time or part-time, and may advance at their own pace. The program assists students in gaining a grounded and relevant understanding of major global trends while developing critical analytic skills to improve their capacity to succeed in multiple career paths related to domestic and international security.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (GSC 550).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

GSC 501 War, Conflict and Security (3)

Electives or Research (24 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

GSC 550 Capstone (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

For electives or research, students take eight courses from a restricted list for a total of 24 credit hours. Students should contact the academic unit for the approved course list. Other coursework may be used with approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in the humanities (English, history, etc.); social sciences (anthropology, sociology, political science, etc.); sciences (biology, chemistry, etc.); policy (public administration, etc.); computer science; engineering (all subfields); or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Global Security (Cybersecurity), MA (LAGSCSECMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Security (Cybersecurity), MA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The cybersecurity concentration is a unique element within the MA program in global security, engaging cyber issues from an interdisciplinary perspective with a focus on global security. The program is practically-oriented, and it provides students with relevant and continually updated understanding of the complex risks, threats and modes of protection and response associated with cybersecurity. Students progress at their own pace; it can be completed in one year or in a six-year period. Students may pursue the degree while working full-time or part-time.

The program is a non-technical degree designed to prepare students for a rapidly expanding field with a focus on the complex relationship between cybersecurity and global politics. Students learn from top faculty including scholars, leaders and skilled practitioners with classes integrating case studies, policy exercises and critical thinking to prepare students for career advancement.

History, MA (LAHISTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: History, MA

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The MA program in history provides students the fundamental training needed for careers in research, teaching, public history, government service and a host of other positions in the public, private and nonprofit sectors. Program graduates serve as first-rate historians, highly qualified teachers at the elementary and secondary level, researchers and consultants, archivists, foreign service officers, management professionals, community organizers and public servants.

The master's degree program offers studies in North American, European, public and global-comparative history, and it provides students with opportunities for professional development through colloquia, internship experiences and conference attendance. Courses emphasize the development of skills in research, writing, critical thinking and communication.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

History, BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (HST 593), or 30 credit hours including the required capstone course (HST 597).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

HST 640 Historical Methods (3)

Pick two from the following:

HST 502 Public History Methodology (3)

HST 641 North American History (3)

HST 642 European History (3)

HST 643 Global History (3)

Electives (12 credit hours)

Other Requirements (3 or 6 credit hours)

HST 591 Seminar (3) or (6)

Culminating Experience (3 or 6 credit hours)

HST 593 Applied Project (3) or

HST 597 Capstone (3) or

HST 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

There are two options for the master's degree program in history, the thesis option (for in-person students only) and the nonthesis option. The thesis option requires 30 total credit hours of coursework, including six credit hours of HST 599 Thesis, three credit hours of HST 591 Seminar and 21 credit hours of coursework. The nonthesis option requires 30 total credit hours, including three credit hours of HST 593 Applied Project or HST 597 Capstone, six credit hours of HST 591 Seminar and an additional 21 credit hours of coursework.

For elective coursework, students should refer to the unit for a list of approved courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program. The most competitive applicants will have a GPA of 3.30 or higher.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The history program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 90 (iBT).

Students are required to submit a minimum of three email addresses from faculty or others qualified to speak to the student's suitability for graduate study in history.

The statement of purpose should be addressed to the history admission committee and should explain the applicant's scholarly background and training, career goals, the primary field the applicant wishes to pursue, and why the applicant wants to pursue graduate study at ASU (about 500 words in length). It is not necessary to specify a research topic, but if an applicant has one in mind, they should include it in the statement of purpose.

The writing sample may be an article (published or unpublished), a research paper or any other extended sample of expository writing no longer than 35 pages in length. Longer writing samples should not be submitted without first consulting the graduate director. Documents and files should not be password protected. Acceptable file types are .rtf, .pdf and .doc.

History, PHD (LAHISTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: History, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in history offers outstanding opportunities for graduate study in North American, European, public and global-comparative history. The School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies' world-class faculty members deliver courses and individualized mentoring in a wide range of historical topics. Moreover, doctoral history students are strongly encouraged to take advantage of the numerous collaborative opportunities that exist throughout the university in ASU's many innovative schools and centers.

Students pursuing the doctorate cultivate a strong background in the historical research methodology and scholarly analysis needed to develop expertise in a chosen historical subject area and receive preparation for competitive careers. By emphasizing foundational skills in research, writing and communication, the doctoral program in history prepares students for diverse career opportunities, including leading academic institutions, private industry and the public sector.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (16 credit hours)

HST 502 Public History Methodology (3)

HST 640 Historical Methods (3)

HST 641 North American History (3)

HST 642 European History (3)

HST 643 Global History (3)

HST 682 Advanced Research Skill (1)

Electives and Research (44 credit hours)

Other Requirement (12 credit hours)

HST 591 Seminar (6)

HST 792 Research (6)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

HST 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

In general, all credit hours must be at the 500 level or above (graduate credit for 400-level courses must be approved in advance and documented in the student's file).

The doctoral program requires a minimum of 84 credit hours and may be completed in four to five years. Students with a master's degree may apply 30 credit hours toward the 84 required credit hours with approval of the academic unit and the Graduate College. If the student does not already have a master's degree in a related field, then the remaining 30 credit hours are made up of electives and research to reach the 84 credit hours required for the doctoral program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program. The most competitive applicants will have a GPA of 3.30 or higher.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- official GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The history program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 90 (iBT). A student whose native language is not English also must submit a copy of an article or research paper in the student's native or principal research language in addition to the English writing sample required of all students.

Students are required to submit a minimum of three email addresses from faculty or others qualified to speak to the student's suitability for graduate study in history. Letters of reference should be submitted by the recommenders in addition to the electronic reference form they are asked to complete.

GRE scores should be no more than five years old. Official scores should be sent by the ETS to ASU using the university code 4007; the department code may be left blank or entered as 0000.

The statement of purpose is to be addressed to the history admission committee and should explain the applicant's scholarly background and training, career goals, the primary field the applicant wishes to pursue, the proposed research specialization, and why the applicant wants to pursue graduate study at ASU (about 500 words in length).

The writing sample may be an article (published or unpublished), a research paper, or any other extended sample of expository skill no longer than 35 pages in length. Longer writing samples should not be submitted without first consulting the graduate director. Documents and files should not be password protected. Acceptable file types are .rtf, .pdf and .doc.

History and Philosophy of Science, PHD (LAHPSCIPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: History and Philosophy of Science, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The history and philosophy of science is an interdisciplinary field that traces its origin to foundational works such as Thomas Kuhn's "Structure of Scientific Revolutions". The field is based on the idea that the best way to understand science is to study how it changes over time, along with careful analysis of its concepts and fundamental principles.

The PhD program in history and philosophy of science combines training in the core areas of history and philosophy of science with an emphasis on interdisciplinary studies of the sciences, including:

- computational history and philosophy of science

- foundations of evolutionary theory
- general philosophy of science and epistemology
- history and philosophy of applied ethics and science policy
- history of 19th and 20th century biology

The program is especially appropriate for students with an undergraduate or master's degree in philosophy history or the sciences and for those who seek to broaden their disciplinary studies. Science students who have not taken relevant undergraduate humanistic core courses can make these up during their first years in the program.

Graduates go on to careers in higher education, including research, teaching and administration; science communication; and other professions related to the life sciences.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

HPS 615 Biology and Society Lab (3)

HPS 620 Research Prospectus Writing (3)

Restricted Program Electives (30 credit hours)

Program Electives (24 credit hours)

Research (12 credit hours)

HPS 792 Research (12)

Dissertation (12 credit hours)

HPS 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

An individual student program is developed in consultation with the student's advisor and committee.

HPS 615 Biology and Society Lab is a one-credit hour course focused on student presentations of works-in-progress. Students must register for it three times during their graduate study.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution of recognized standing in a related field such as history, philosophy, or history and philosophy of science as well as a demonstrated background and interest in one or more sciences.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- writing sample
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Immigration Studies (certificate), Certificate (LAIMMSTUCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Immigration Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The immigration studies graduate certificate program provides students with a holistic understanding of the historical, current and long-term causes and consequences of international migration as well as relevant professional and research training opportunities.

The objective of the certificate program is to offer traditional academic training through coursework, research and the practical experience of working with local immigrant and refugee communities.

The program prepares graduates for future study in graduate and professional schools or for careers as immigration practitioners and advocates in nongovernmental organizations, local and federal government agencies as well as in other private and public institutions serving immigrant and refugee communities.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

All students are required to take one core course, three approved elective courses on immigration, and three hours of a culminating experience (either an internship or a research project). Students are to contact the school for a list of approved courses.

Students may do an internship with Phoenix-based, nongovernmental organizations or government agencies that provide services to immigrants and refugees. Such internships give students professional training and actual experience working with immigrant and refugee communities. Students are required to write a report describing the organization and their experience as interns.

Students may enroll in three credit hours of research with a faculty member in order to do an independent research project. They must write a substantial research paper based on field research in a local immigrant community, on library and archival research or on readings on an immigration topic.

Certificate students may choose to specialize in humanities, Mexican and Latino immigrants in the U.S., or social sciences.

Given the nature of the immigration courses offered at ASU and the preponderance of Latino immigrant communities in the Phoenix area, the program emphasizes Latino immigration. However, students have the opportunity to take broader courses focusing on global migration and other immigrant groups as well as work with local Asian or Southeast Asian immigrants and refugee communities.

For students currently enrolled in an ASU graduate degree program, applicable certificate courses may count toward their degree program with the approval and consent of the degree granting program. For certificate students who are later admitted to an ASU graduate degree program, up to 12 credit hours from the certificate program may count toward their doctoral degree or up to 12 credit hours may count toward their master's degree, with the approval and consent of the degree-granting program.

All requirements for the certificate program should be completed within a three year time limit with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A"). Students who require more time to finish the program, because of their part-time status or lack of desirable or available courses, must obtain approval from the executive committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals

- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants may submit an optional scholarly writing sample, not to exceed 20 to 30 double-spaced pages to be included in their application materials.

Indigenous Education, MA (LAIEDMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Indigenous Education, MA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MA in indigenous education provides students with advanced training in research, theory and practice related to both Indigenous education, as broadly defined, as well as the process of schooling. The main audiences for this degree are those working in Indian education, those working for tribal nations with education programs, and those interested in Indigenous education.

Because the Center for Indian Education is housed in the School of Social Transformation with faculty that collaborate with colleagues nationally, internationally and across ASU campuses, students have access to a wealth of additional resources at the master's degree level, which allow them to develop a final project that best fits their specific professional aspirations.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including a capstone course (IED 585).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

IED 501 Critical Indigenous Research Methodologies (3)

IED 502 Indigenous Knowledges in Education (3)

IED 503 Current Issues in American Indian Education (3)

Other Required Courses (15 credit hours)

IED 510 History of American Indian Education (3)

International Letters and Cultures, PHD (LAILCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: International Letters and Cultures, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in international letters and cultures offers professional training that is linguistically well-grounded, historically and culturally informed, and methodologically transdisciplinary, through courses and supervision of research. Central to the program is the critical inquiry of primary texts, media and cultural expressions, aiming at an original understanding of cultures and social groups in their formations, interactions and transformations throughout history.

The program is attentive to the various roles of language in societies and in the different perspectives through which language can be studied --- among other aspects, its variations, transformations, hybridizations and processes of acquisition. The doctorate in international letters and cultures focuses particularly on research questions and themes that cannot be fully explored within the traditional disciplinary boundaries; instead, it fosters dynamic collaboration across disciplines in order to engage in the production of knowledge that is crucial to understanding transnational and transcultural interactions across time and space.

This degree program provides an innovative intellectual platform that advances transdisciplinary research and teaching. In consultation with their advisor, students arrange their coursework in both a primary and a secondary area of emphasis. Both areas are organized around interdisciplinary study and research in more than one language. Advanced language requirements will vary depending on chosen areas of research. Sample programs of study might include a primary emphasis area in medieval theater and a secondary emphasis area in medieval book culture, with a focus on France and Italy, or students might study multilingualism from a comparative sociolinguistic perspective, comparing trilingual communities like the Yaquis in Arizona and the Uros in Bolivia. Faculty members are drawn from various departments and programs in the humanities and social sciences.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

SLC 602Comparative Cultural Theory (3)

Restricted Electives (36 credit hours)

primary field of study (18)

secondary field of study (18)

Other Requirements (33 credit hours)

elective and research credit hours (21)

foreign language credit hours (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SLC 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The personal statement should describe the questions, issues, or challenges the student plans to explore through the doctoral program in international letters and cultures and explain how previous studies, training, or professional experiences prepare the student for this research. It should include a proposed plan of study based on the current graduate-level offerings at ASU. In a brief statement, the student should indicate how those courses will be preparation for the dissertation, how the plan fits with the description and goals of this doctoral program, and why the proposed program does not fit some other degree program.

Applicants must provide a writing sample of 15 to 20 pages minimum in English; a writing sample in the primary language of interest may also be requested at the discretion of the admissions committee. The writing sample should reflect the student's analytical and critical skills.

Justice Studies, MS (LAJUSSTMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Justice Studies, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MS in justice studies prepares students to pursue careers in law and public policy, community and nonprofit organizations, social work and advocacy, labor relations, criminal justice, education, and research and policy institutes. Many graduates also go on to pursue doctoral degrees in interdisciplinary programs such as justice studies, criminology and law, American studies, ethnic studies, and women and gender studies.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Justice Studies, BS
- Justice Studies, BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (JUS 593).

Required Core (12 credit hours)

JUS 500 Justice Research Methods (3)

JUS 501 Justice Theory (3)

JUS 509 Statistical Problems in Justice Research (3)

JUS 521 Qualitative Data Analysis and Evaluation (3)

Electives (12 credit hours)

Research (0-3 credit hours)

JUS 592 Research (3)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)

JUS 593 Applied Project (3) or

JUS 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Each student's program is developed in concert with the advisory committee. The required foundation courses provide students with a fundamental understanding of the theories, methods and analytic techniques associated with the study of justice.

To satisfy the thesis requirement for the degree, candidates must write a thesis and defend it in an oral examination conducted by the student's advisory committee. Students in this option are not required to take JUS 592 Research.

Students who elect to complete the applied project option will have to enroll in three credit hours of JUS 592 Research prior to enrolling in JUS 593 Applied Project. Candidates pursuing the applied project option must present their applied project and defend it in an oral examination conducted by the faculty member who supervises the project and the graduate programs director or designated representative. The applied project typically includes a brief literature review to identify the nature of the issue or problem and a description of the methodology used and, if relevant, of the program studied, followed by an analysis.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

<https://admission.asu.edu/international/graduate/english-proficiency> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/graduate/english-proficiency>).

Applicants should visit the School of Social Transformation's Master of Science in justice studies webpage for further details on the listed application requirements and application deadlines.

No GRE testing is required for admission.

Mailing addresses and further admission information is available on the ASU Graduate Admission Services website.

Application requirements vary for the accelerated justice studies 4+1 program. Undergraduate students majoring in justice studies who are interested and eligible for this accelerated graduate program should contact the academic unit, to schedule an appointment with a graduate advisor prior to submitting an application. Further details about the accelerated justice studies 4+1 program can be found on the School of Social Transformation webpage.

Linguistics (certificate), Certificate (LALINGUICE)

Online Degree Search Title: Linguistics (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This transdisciplinary graduate certificate program in linguistics offers students in several fields the opportunity to gain an understanding of the way in which languages are structured, how they are acquired and how they vary over time, space, social distance and situational contexts.

The skills acquired through the completion of the core courses for this certificate include analytical abilities, critical thinking, effective communication and problem-solving. In addition, the knowledge acquired in the areas of discourse analysis and pragmatics makes students aware of the necessity to use appropriate registers and styles when creating written documents or oral presentations to different audiences.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours.

Required Core Areas (9 credit hours)

discourse analysis and pragmatics (3)

phonology (3)
syntax (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

The electives may be chosen from fields such as applied linguistics, educational linguistics, natural language processing, second-language acquisition and sociolinguistics. The electives are determined by the student in consultation with a faculty advisor.

Prerequisite: Students must have completed an introductory course in linguistics taken at the upper-division or graduate level. They should consult the certificate program director for advice.

All certificate coursework must be completed with an average grade of "B" or higher (3.00 on a 4.00 scale).

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should visit the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Once the online application has been submitted, the applicant should send a copy of unofficial transcripts, a one- to two-page, well-considered statement of purpose detailing the student's background and reasons for wanting to do the linguistics certificate, and a resume to the department email address with the subject line: Linguistics Certificate Application.

To be considered for admission, an applicant must have taken an introductory course in linguistics at the upper-division or graduate level. Applicants must also show proof of a formal knowledge of a foreign language, equivalent to two years of study at the university level or plans to fulfill the language requirement concurrently with certificate courses. The language requirement may be met by completion of courses through the second-year level (four semesters) at ASU or elsewhere, or by completion of an upper-division language course with an average of "B" or better (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) for all such coursework (200 or 300 level), or through an examination that indicates placement above the 200 level. Language placement tests are available online at the Language Placement Policies and Tests webpage on the School of International Letters and Cultures website. If this requirement is not already fulfilled at the time of application, candidates must demonstrate completion of this requirement at the end of their certificate coursework in order for their certificate to be granted.

Online Degree Search Title: Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in linguistics and applied linguistics addresses the study of human language and the application of that study to the human condition through training in linguistics and applied linguistics. At the master's level, it provides foundational training in several different areas, including discourse analysis, language and cognition, language contact and change, language planning, phonetics, phonology, pragmatics, second language acquisition, second-language teaching and learning, semantics, sociolinguistics, syntax, teaching English to speakers of other languages, and World Englishes.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

English (Linguistics), BA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (3 credit hours)

LIN 515 American English (3) or

LIN 516 Pragmatics and Discourse Analysis (3)

General Linguistics Track (6 credit hours)

LIN 511 Phonetics and Phonology (3)

LIN 514 Syntax (3)

Applied Linguistics Track (6 credit hours)

LIN 511 Phonetics and Phonology (3) or LIN 514 Syntax (3)

LIN 520 Second-Language Acquisition Theories (3) or APL 601 Introduction to Applied Linguistics (3)

Electives (12-15 credit hours)

Research (3 credit hours)

LIN 501 Approaches to Research (3)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)

LIN 599 or APL 599 Thesis (6)

LIN 593 or APL 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose one of the two tracks in either general linguistics or applied linguistics.

Electives are restricted based on the student's chosen track. For the general linguistics track, one of the electives must be a 600-level course from the approved course list.

Students who select the thesis option take 12 credit hours of electives. Applied project students select 15 credit hours of electives.

Students must demonstrate evidence of a competent knowledge of a natural language other than modern English, to be selected by the student, subject to the approval of the chair of the thesis committee or the director of the applied project. This requirement may be met by:

- earning a "B" or better (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) in a 400- or 500-level course in an appropriate (approved) language course
- demonstrating comparable proficiency by taking a language examination, administered by the School of International Letters and Cultures, in a language approved by the student's supervisory committee
- demonstrating native-speaker proficiency, as determined by the School of International Letters and Cultures, in a language approved by the student's supervisory committee
- earning a "B" or better (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) in both ENG 530 Old English and ENG 531 Old English Literature or their equivalent
- holding a bachelor's degree in an approved foreign language
- two years (four semesters) of successfully completed college-level coursework (completed no more than six years prior to admission to the degree program) at least at the 100 and 200 levels with a "C" or better (scale is 4.00 = "A") for languages which the School of International Letters and Cultures does not offer or does not offer above the 200 level

Any course in which all class meetings are conducted in the approved language will satisfy the requirement for a "B" or better in a 400- or 500-level course in an appropriate language course; courses conducted in English will not satisfy the requirement. Also satisfying the requirement are GER 550 German for Reading Knowledge, FRE 550 French for Reading Knowledge, SPA 550 Spanish for Reading Knowledge, and ITA 550 Italian for Reading Knowledge. The Department of English does not require its graduate students to write papers in the approved language.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in such related fields as anthropology, applied linguistics, communication, cognitive science, comparative languages and literatures, literature, education, history, law, linguistics, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religious studies, rhetoric, composition, sociology, speech and hearing science, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Successful completion of (at least) one upper-division course in linguistics, language study, or related topic is required.

The one-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should explain the applicant's background in language study, reasons for wanting to do graduate work in linguistics, and plans for the future.

Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, PHD (LALINPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in linguistics and applied linguistics focuses on the study of human language and the application of that study to the human condition. Students in this program choose a research specialization in formal linguistics, applied linguistics, or some combination of these areas.

The curriculum provides professional training in linguistics and applied linguistics with focused research in several areas, including discourse analysis, language and cognition, language contact and change, language planning, phonetics, phonology, pragmatics, second language acquisition, second language teaching and learning, semantics, sociolinguistics, syntax, teaching English to speakers of other languages, and World Englishes.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a foreign language exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (18 credit hours)

APL 555 Disciplinary Discourses (3)

APL 601 Introduction to Applied Linguistics (3)

LIN 511 Phonetics and Phonology (3)

LIN 514 Syntax (3)

LIN 515 American English (3) or LIN 516 Pragmatics and Discourse Analysis (3)

LIN 655 Disciplinary Discourses (3)

Electives and Research (24 credit hours)

LIN 501 Approaches to Research (3)

specialization (21)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

LIN 799 or APL 799 Dissertation (12)

Other Requirements (30 credit hours)

If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, then 30 credit hours will be made up of additional elective coursework approved by their supervisory committee. If they have not taken the equivalent of LIN 510 in the 30 hours, they will have to take that course.

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must demonstrate evidence of a competent knowledge of a natural language other than modern English, to be selected by the student, subject to the approval of the chair of the dissertation committee. The language requirement must be completed before the student is eligible to take the doctoral examinations. This requirement may be met by any of the following:

- earning a "B" or higher (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) in a 400- or 500-level course in an appropriate (approved) language
- demonstrating comparable proficiency by taking a language examination, administered by the School of International Letters and Cultures, in a language approved by the student's supervisory committee
- demonstrating native-speaker proficiency, as determined by the School of International Letters and Cultures, in a language approved by the student's supervisory committee
- earning a "B" or higher (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) in both ENG 530 Old English and ENG 531 Old English Literature or their equivalent
- holding a bachelor's degree in an approved foreign language
- having fulfilled a foreign language requirement toward a previously awarded master's degree that was completed within five years of the semester for which the student was admitted to the doctoral program
- two years (four semesters) of successfully completed college level coursework (no more than six years prior to admission to the degree program) at least at the 100 and 200 levels with a "C" or better, for languages which the School of International Letters and Cultures does not offer or does not offer above the 200 level

The foreign language requirement must be in a language approved by the student's doctoral supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.50 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- academic writing sample relevant to the field
- GRE general test scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details about English proficiency requirements.

Undergraduate degrees in such related fields as anthropology, applied linguistics, communication, cognitive science, comparative languages and literatures, literature, education, history, law, linguistics, modern languages, philosophy, political science, psychology, religious studies, rhetoric, composition, sociology, or speech and hearing science will be considered.

The one- to two-page, single-spaced statement of purpose should explain how the applicant's experience and training have prepared them for the program. It should also indicate career goals and explain how these goals relate to the graduate program in linguistics and applied linguistics. Applicants applying for funding must also submit a statement of teaching philosophy. Students should see the Department of English website for specific details.

Literary Translation Studies (Certificate), Certificate (LALTSGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Literary Translation Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate in literary translation studies is a transdisciplinary program offering coursework that provides intensive engagement of students in translation practice, investigation of issues related to the cultural role of the translator and translation, studies in the variety of theoretical approaches to translation in the 20th and 21st centuries, and studies in trans-historical and cross-cultural theories of translation.

These areas of emphasis enable students to gain expertise in practical and theoretical knowledge of the field of literary translation and to engage in developing new models for the practice of translation today. The program offers interested students the opportunity to develop an understanding of intercultural intersections and transdisciplinary approaches to the practice of translation and advanced training and mentorship in what is one of the most globally relevant fields in the 21st century.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours including an applied project course (ENG 593 or SLC 593)..

Required Core (6 credit hours)

ENG 550 Translation (3)

SLC 551 Global Approaches to Translation (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

ENG 593 Applied Project (3) or SLC 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

For electives, students should see the academic unit for the approved course list.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- writing sample
- personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The personal statement should be no more than two pages and should summarize past educational experiences and goals in pursuing a graduate certificate.

Applicants should have knowledge of a language other than English, a minimum of six semesters of a second language, or the equivalent (for example, advanced placement in high school). Applicants who have passed a language proficiency exam achieving an advanced level in the target language may also apply.

As a prerequisite for taking SLC 551 Global Approaches to Translation (3), all students must attain an advanced level in reading and writing (equivalent of advanced American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages requirements, approximately equivalent to six semesters of undergraduate study) as measured by a written exam in the target language (i.e., French, German, Italian, Spanish). Students should see ACTFL guidelines (<https://www.actfl.org/publications/guidelines-and-manuals/actfl-proficiency-guidelines-2012> (<https://www.actfl.org/publications/guidelines-and-manuals/actfl-proficiency-guidelines-2012>)).

Marriage and Family Therapy, MAS (LAMFTMAS)

Online Degree Search Title: Marriage and Family Therapy, MAS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The purpose of this self-contained, accelerated MAS program in marriage and family therapy is to provide high-quality coursework and supervised internship experiences that meet the degree requirements for licensure in the State of Arizona to practice marriage and family therapy as determined and laid out by the Arizona Board of Behavioral Health Examiners. The degree requirements are specified by the board, and the program is designed to train practitioners who wish to practice marriage and family therapy.

Degree Requirements:

39 credit hours and a master's research paper.

The master's degree program in marriage and family therapy requires the successful completion of a minimum of 39 credit hours and a project, including required coursework and completion of 300 client-contact hours in a community internship placement approved by the master's degree in marriage and family therapy faculty. Internships are expected to last approximately 12 months. Students must maintain a GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in all coursework and satisfactorily meet the expectations of the agency supervising their internship.

Students are required to have a vehicle and a valid Arizona driver's license for internship placement.

An internship entrance examination will be held at the end of the first 7.5-week semester, to demonstrate readiness for internship placement.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution in a related field, such as counseling, psychology, and family and human development, among others.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- a personal statement
- resume
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

Letters of recommendation must be from three people who know the applicant in a professional or academic capacity. Family members and friends do not meet this criterion.

Students should refer to the program's website for detailed information on admission requirements.

Mathematics, MA (LAMATHMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Mathematics, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in mathematics is designed to increase mathematical knowledge beyond the traditional level of a bachelor's degree in order to prepare students for careers requiring sophisticated mathematical skills. Students may choose to specialize in:

- applied mathematics
- core mathematics
- mathematics education
- statistics

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Computational Mathematical Sciences, BS

Mathematics, BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and 2 written comprehensive exams, or 30 credit hours and a portfolio, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a written comprehensive exam.

Thesis Option

The degree program requires:

- 30 credit hours of math or math-related graduate coursework, of which six credit hours must consist of the thesis (MAT 599)
- one qualifying sequence examination
- a final oral examination in defense of the thesis

Nonthesis Option

The degree program requires:

- 30 credit hours of math or math related graduate coursework
- two qualifying sequence examinations or portfolio with oral presentation

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution as well as coursework in linear algebra (equivalent to ASU course MAT 342 or MAT 343) and advanced calculus (equivalent to ASU course MAT 371).

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of education and career goals
- resume
- GRE (general) scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Mathematics, PHD (LAMATHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Mathematics, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in mathematics is intended for students with superior mathematical ability. The program emphasizes a solid mathematical foundation and promotes creative scholarship in mathematics and its many related disciplines. The School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences has very active research groups in analysis, number theory, geometry and discrete mathematics.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Students must pass two qualifying examinations, a written comprehensive examination and an oral dissertation prospectus, and they should see the school website for examination information.

Students must register for 12 credit hours of dissertation (MAT 799).

Students must write a dissertation and defend it orally in front of five dissertation committee members.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics, or a closely related area from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

Mathematics Education, PHD (LAMTEPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Mathematics Education (Mathematics and Statistics Dept - Grades 9-20), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This transdisciplinary PhD program accommodates students from a variety of academic backgrounds. It provides students with a solid foundation in graduate-level mathematics as well as research skills and perspectives that will allow them to deal broadly with mathematics problems of:

- curriculum
- learning
- teaching
- technology

Conducting individual and collaborative research in the learning and teaching of mathematics is an integral part of the program.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Program requirements include the following:

- 12 credit hours of Research in Undergraduate Mathematics Education (RUME) 1-4, with qualifying exams given in RUME 1 and 2
- four graduate math courses from a list of options
- six credit hours of research (MTE 792)
- a written comprehensive examination
- an oral comprehensive examination
- an oral dissertation prospectus defense
- 12 credit hours of dissertation (MTE 799)

Students should see the school's website for information about qualifier and comprehensive examinations based on math coursework.

Each student must write a dissertation and defend it orally in front of five dissertation committee members.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics or a closely related area, with exceptionally high grades in advanced coursework in mathematics, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of education and career goals
- writing sample
- GRE (general) scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Program Description:

The certificate program in medieval studies prepares students for advanced study or for academic positions by augmenting their skills and knowledge, thereby making them better equipped to meet the demands of their fields.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours, or 27 credit hours.

Medieval Latin:

one semester (three or four credit hours) for students at the master's degree level, two semesters (six to eight credit hours) for doctoral students proficiency attested either by achieving a grade of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better in the Medieval Latin courses or by satisfactory performance on the Medieval/Renaissance Latin examinations offered by the Centre for Medieval Studies at the University of Toronto (the requirement presupposing two years or 12 to 16 credit hours or equivalent of undergraduate training in Latin)

Medieval vernacular language (e.g., Old English, Old Norse, Old French):

two semesters (six credit hours) for students at the master's degree level, three semesters (nine credit hours) for doctoral students

Paleography:

one semester (three credit hours)

Medieval coursework outside the major discipline:

two semesters (six credit hours) for students at the master's degree level, three semesters (nine credit hours) for doctoral students

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Admission is open to all ASU graduate students in good standing who are enrolled in an existing master's or doctoral degree program.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The Graduate College requires a TOEFL score of at least 550 (PBT) or 80 (iBT).

Molecular and Cellular Biology, PHD (LACELLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Molecular/Cellular Biology, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in molecular and cellular biology prepares students for careers that cross traditional disciplinary boundaries.

It provides a diverse range of research and training opportunities for doctoral students interested in pursuing a transdisciplinary approach to their studies that extends beyond the traditional boundaries of biological research. Participating faculty members and researchers are drawn from multiple departments, colleges, centers and institutes across the university, including:

- School of Life Sciences
- Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry
- School of Biological and Health Systems Engineering
- School for Engineering of Matter, Transport and Energy
- School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences
- School of Human Evolution and Social Change
- Department of Psychology
- New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Participating faculty members are also based at partner institutions in the greater Phoenix area, including:

- Translational Genomics Research Institute
- Mayo Clinic in Arizona
- Barrow Neurological Institute
- Carl T. Hayden Veteran's Administration Medical Center
- University of Arizona College of Medicine-Phoenix.

Former graduates are leaders at academic institutions, in government, and in industry.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The plan of study is designed by the student and the supervisory committee. The plan of study includes, core classes in molecular and cellular biology, colloquium, seminars and research for a total of 84 credit hours.

An oral and written comprehensive examination are required in order to advance to candidacy.

A formal defense of the final written dissertation is required prior to graduation.

Twelve credit hours of dissertation are required and the remaining credit hours are comprised of core coursework, seminars and research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in the biological sciences, biochemistry or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must submit the following:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Desired qualifications include GRE scores and research experience.

Museum Studies, MA (LAMUSSTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Museum Studies, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in museum studies examines how museums produce and reflect culture and examines the role museums play worldwide.

Students develop theoretical questions and applied skills that engage the functions, practices and critical analyses of museums. They also gain practical experience while being encouraged to challenge preconceived notions about museums and the way museums affect and are affected by societies and cultures. Designed to be use-inspired, socially embedded and transcultural, the program ensures that students understand the meaning and significance of museums in contemporary society and prepares them for diverse museum careers.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

ASB 579 Critical Issues in Museum Studies (3)

Electives and Research (18)

ASB 592 Research (6)

other electives and research (12)

Other Requirements (9)

ASB 500 Research Methods (3) or ASB 572 Museum Collection Management (3)

ASB 584 Internship (6) OR ASB 584 Internship (3) and ASB 580 Practicum (3)

Culminating Experience (0 credit hours)

portfolio (0)

Additional Curriculum Information

For a complete list of approved elective and research courses, students should contact the school.

Internship (ASB 584) and Practicum (ASB 580) must be approved by their supervisory committees, usually in a museum setting or museum quality collection or archive related to their chosen area of study: anthropology, art history, theory and criticism or public history.

Other courses may be substituted for ASB 500 as an equivalent course with academic unit approval.

On completion of the internship, students must submit a journal or portfolio about the internship and skills acquired.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Suitable backgrounds for admission include disciplines related to museum studies, anthropology, history or art (fine art or art history).

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores

- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Museum Studies (certificate), Certificate (LAMUSEUMCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Museum Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

In the museum studies certificate program, students examine how museums produce and reflect culture and they examine the role museums play worldwide.

Students develop theoretical questions and applied skills that engage the functions, practices and critical analyses of museums. They also gain practical experience while being encouraged to challenge preconceived notions about museums and the way they affect and are affected by societies and cultures. Designed to be use-inspired, socially embedded and transcultural, the program ensures that students understand the meaning and significance of museums in contemporary society and prepares them for diverse museum careers.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

ASB 579 Critical Issues in Museum Studies (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Other Requirements (6 credit hours)

ASB 580 Practicum (3) and ASB 584 Internship (3) OR

ASB 584 Internship (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Certificate students may choose to specialize in areas such as anthropology, art history and public history.

For a complete list of approved elective and research courses, students should contact the school.

Internship (ASB 584) and Practicum (ASB 580) must be approved by their supervisory committees, usually in a museum setting or museum-quality collection or archive related to their chosen area of study: anthropology, art history, theory and criticism or public history.

For students currently enrolled in an ASU graduate degree program, applicable certificate courses may count toward their degree program, with the approval and consent of the degree granting program. For certificate students who are later admitted to an ASU graduate degree program, up to 12 credit hours from the certificate program may count toward their doctoral degree or up to 12 credit hours may count toward their master's degree, with the approval and consent of the degree-granting program.

All requirements for the certificate program should be completed within a three-year time limit with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A"). Students who require more time to finish the program (because of their part-time status or lack of desirable or available courses) must obtain approval from the executive committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Suitable backgrounds for admission include disciplines related to museum studies, anthropology, history or art (fine art or art history).

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement outlining educational and professional goals
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

For information on spring admission, students should contact the School of Human Evolution and Social Change.

Nanoscience, PSM (LANANPSM)

Online Degree Search Title: Nanoscience, PSM

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PSM in nanoscience is a cohesive program of transdisciplinary courses that provide the knowledge base required for research and innovation in nanoscience. The program incorporates courses in:

- chemistry and biochemistry
- electrical engineering
- materials science
- physics

Commercial innovation is a particular target goal of the degree, including applications in:

- biochemistry and sensing technology
- biophysics and biomedical technology
- nanomaterials and nanoscale devices

The professional science master's degree program in nanoscience is suitable for working professionals as well as for students who have obtained a traditional bachelor's degree or master's degree in related fields.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Biochemistry, BS
- Biochemistry (Medicinal Chemistry), BS
- Chemistry, BS
- Materials Science and Engineering, BSE
- Physics, BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

32 credit hours including the required applied project course (NAN 593).

Required Core (5 credit hours)

NAN 505 Nanoscience and Society (2) or NAN 506 Innovation and IP Management (2)

NAN 571 Quantum Physics (3) or NAN 544 Introduction to Nanoscience (3)

Electives or Research (15 credit hours)

Other Requirements (6 credit hours)

NAN 591 Professional Seminar (6)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

NAN 593 Applied Project (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must take either NAN 505 or NAN 506. Students may also take the other course as an elective.

Students with a physical science or engineering background should take NAN 571 Quantum Physics and students with a biochemistry or life sciences background should take NAN 544 Introduction to Nanoscience.

The program includes a two-semester, student-centered professional seminar in which emerges the central role of the program as a vehicle for innovation. During the spring semester and summer session, students conduct an individual applied project in association with a research group. Throughout the program, students interact with research faculty and other students in a variety of disciplines related to nanoscience. Students also meet with visiting speakers and industrialists in the professional seminar as well as in other seminars.

If taken full time, the PSM in nanoscience can be completed in 12 months (fall semester, spring semester and two eight-week summer sessions). Another option is the two-year, part-time program, which allows prospective students and their employers flexibility in scheduling the program of study.

Students should see the academic unit for a complete list of approved electives. Many of the requisite elective courses are currently offered within the Department of Physics and the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry. Most are cross-listed with other units.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in physics, chemistry or a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- two letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

The personal statement should outline the applicant's research interests and why the applicant wants to apply to the Professional Science Master's degree program.

GRE scores are not required but will be taken into consideration if submitted.

Letters of recommendation should be from individuals familiar with the applicant's work or studies relevant to the program.

Natural Science (Geological Sciences), MNS (LANATSCIMN)

Online Degree Search Title: Geological Sciences, MNS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of Earth and Space Exploration participates in the program leading to the MNS in geological sciences. This transdisciplinary degree program is designed to meet the needs of professionals seeking a graduate-level degree. The program offers the opportunity for transdisciplinary graduate training in the natural sciences (i.e., biological sciences, mathematics and physical sciences) and cognate areas.

The degree program is especially suited for individuals who desire professional training rather than research training. Because of designed flexibility, the program also offers the opportunity for individualized professional graduate programs depending upon the backgrounds and goals of the students. Students are expected to emphasize coursework in two or more areas of specialization. The program must be transdisciplinary.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and an applied project.

The supervisory committee is chosen by the student in conjunction with the advisor. The composition of the supervisory committee must reflect the transdisciplinary nature of the program. The student will develop a suitable applied project with the approval of the supervisory committee.

Students must submit a plan of study after conferring with the supervisory committee. While a minimum of 30 credit hours is required for the degree, more credit hours may be required by the supervisory committee, depending upon the background of the student and the nature of the proposed program. All students admitted to this program are also required to take two seminars:

GLG 500 SESE Colloquium (1)

GLG 591 Faculty Research Seminar (1)

In some cases, undergraduate courses may be required to remove deficiencies.

An applied project is required.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admissions application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Natural Science (Physics), MNS (LAPHYSMNS)

Online Degree Search Title: Physics, MNS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MNS program in physics provides transdisciplinary graduate training in physics, physical science or physics education. The program is especially suited for high school science teachers who desire professional training rather than research training. Designed for flexibility, the curriculum also features individualized professional graduate programs. These programs are well-suited to the backgrounds and goals of students. Students are expected to emphasize coursework in two or more areas of concentration. The program must be transdisciplinary.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (PHS 593).

The graduate advisor and the student suggest three faculty members who reflect the transdisciplinary nature of the program to serve on the supervisory committee, which upon the recommendation of the chair of the Department of Physics is appointed by the vice provost for the Graduate College soon after the student has been admitted to the degree program.

After conferring with the student, the supervisory committee will recommend the plan of study. The committee may require additional coursework to ensure proficiency, depending upon the student's background and the nature of the proposed program. In some cases, undergraduate courses may be required to overcome deficiencies.

Teachers may enroll in these courses in order to earn credit toward recertification or to pursue a Master of Natural Science degree. These courses are held during the summer. Depending on teacher interest, they may be offered at other times. For some courses, the prerequisites are two semesters of trigonometry-based college physics and an introductory calculus course.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited institution. The program is open to in-service high school teachers who have completed two semesters of college physics and an introductory calculus course. Under-prepared teachers can make up deficiencies in regularly scheduled courses. Students must be able to attend classes in-person at the Tempe campus.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- two letters of recommendation
- personal statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The letters of recommendation should be from individuals familiar with the applicant's work or studies relevant to the natural science program.

Conditions for admission are the availability of resources for the proposed program and a Department of Physics faculty member designated to serve as a graduate advisor.

Neuroscience, PHD (GCBMENPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Neuroscience, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Neuroscience involves the study of the nervous system and its relation to an organism's function. It encompasses how gene and nerve networks interact with the environment throughout an organism.

The PhD program in neuroscience integrates aspects of graduate-level training from many different units on campus as well as from the program's partner institutions distributed across the greater Phoenix area. Partner institutions include Barrow Neurological Institute, Translational Genomics Research Institute, University of Arizona College of Medicine and Sun Health Research Institute.

Among other employment opportunities, this degree is appropriate for a teaching or research career in academia or a science career with a biotech, medical or pharmaceutical company.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The program requires the completion of 84 credit hours of which only 12 hours are dissertation credits. At least 18 credit hours of formal coursework are required. In consultation with their committee and their supervisor or mentor, students will be able to customize their plan of study to suit their particular interests and goals.

Each student completes six credit hours of core course credits. The core course sequence must be completed before the oral and written evaluation examinations are taken. Additional credit hours are comprised of specialized disciplinary courses or research credits chosen in consultation with the mentor and advisory committee. A one credit hour journal club seminar will be required each semester.

Advancement to candidacy will be dependent on successfully passing a formal comprehensive examination that includes a written proposal of the dissertation research and an oral examination in the broader areas that pertain to that research study. When the research is completed, the dissertation must be written and presented in a public seminar and successfully defended before the supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution. Regular admission may be granted to applicants who have achieved a GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") or better in the last two years of work leading to a bachelor's degree and who are competitive in the applicant pool as evidenced by GRE verbal, quantitative and analytical scores, the statement of educational and career goals (personal statement) and the letters of recommendation. Particular attention is paid to research experience and overall preparation in problem-solving abilities as evidenced by previous coursework, research experiences and GRE scores.

Because this program draws on an extremely broad range of disciplinary backgrounds in recruiting students, there is no specific set of undergraduate course requirements other than those implied by the degree requirements described above. Most students will be expected to have had coursework in biology, chemistry and math or demonstrated ability through a subject test GRE.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- academic record form
- personal statement
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Desired qualifications:

- GRE scores
- research experience

Philosophy, MA (LAPHILMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Philosophy, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies offers an MA degree program in traditional and contemporary philosophy. General areas of research include ethics, political philosophy, metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of law, philosophy of science, feminist philosophy, philosophy of language, experimental philosophy and the history of philosophy. Members of the faculty are involved in interdisciplinary work in a variety of fields and enjoy close ties with the Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics, the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, and a number of other graduate programs at ASU. The philosophy program sponsors an active colloquium series and regular philosophical conferences on diverse topics. The Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics also sponsors a wide range of activities, including large-scale conferences, distinguished visitors and support for graduate study.

The master's degree program in philosophy is designed to prepare students to:

- enter doctoral programs
- teach philosophy at the community college level
- work in any area that requires critical, analytical thinking, such as medicine, law, government or publishing

The program seeks to maintain a balance between course offerings in the traditional areas of philosophy and opportunities for study of current philosophical developments.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio, or 30 credit hours and a thesis.

There are two options for the master's degree program in philosophy: the thesis option and the nonthesis portfolio option.

The thesis options requires 30 credit hours of coursework, including six credit hours of PHI 599 Thesis.

The nonthesis portfolio option requires 30 credit hours of coursework, including three credit hours of PHI 592 Research.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- official GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

philosophy program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 90 (iBT).

GRE Scores should be no more than five years old. Official scores should be sent by the ETS to ASU using the university code 4007. The department code may be left blank or entered as 0000.

The statement of purpose should explain the applicant's specific intent and be no more than 600 words in length.

The writing sample must be a piece of philosophical writing, preferably a seminar paper or published article (no more than 20 pages) and not a thesis or dissertation.

Philosophy, PHD (LAPHILPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Philosophy, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies offers a newly redesigned PhD program that focuses on practical and applied philosophy. General areas of research include ethics, political philosophy, metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of law, philosophy of science, philosophy of language, philosophy of religion and the history of philosophy. Members of the faculty are involved in interdisciplinary work in a variety of fields and enjoy close ties with the Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics, the College of Law and a number of other graduate programs at the university. The ASU philosophy faculty group sponsors an active colloquium series and regular philosophical conferences on diverse topics. The Lincoln Center for Applied Ethics also sponsors a wide range of activities, including large-scale conferences, distinguished visitors and support for graduate study.

The doctoral program in philosophy features a focus on practical and applied philosophy and an interdisciplinary coursework component related to the student's research topic. Practical philosophy includes the fields of ethics, philosophy of law, social and political philosophy, feminist ethics and political philosophy. Applied philosophy includes both the application of theories developed within any of the subdisciplines of philosophy to everyday problems or phenomena (for example, the application of the philosophy of language in relation to hate speech or the philosophy of mind in relation to computing and artificial intelligence). Applied philosophy also includes the application of research produced by methods used in other disciplines in order to understand and address philosophical questions (for example, the application of data-gathering instruments used in psychology to answer questions in experimental philosophy).

Students may design dissertation projects in any of the major subfields of philosophy. For their interdisciplinary coursework supporting the dissertation project, students might, for example, pursue a certificate in social transformation, gender studies, responsible innovation in sciences, or engineering and society, etc. The program is designed to prepare students for careers as philosophers, as teachers of philosophy and in areas in which they may benefit from advanced training in philosophy, such as law, civil service and publishing.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core Areas (18 credit hours)

applied philosophy (3)
epistemology (3)
formal methods (3)
history of philosophy (3)
metaphysics (3)
value theory (3)

Electives (42 credit hours)

Research (12 credit hours)
PHI 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
PHI 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic unit for the list of courses approved for each required core area.

In completing the electives requirements, at least nine credit hours and no more than 18 credit hours must be from other disciplines supporting the student's proposed dissertation area. Thirty credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree may apply toward this requirement with approval by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College.

To ensure breadth in the traditional areas of philosophy, students must pass with a grade of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- official GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency as well as a copy of an article or research paper in their native or principal research language in addition to the English writing sample required of all students. The philosophy program requires a TOEFL score of at least 600 (PBT) or 90 (iBT).

GRE scores should be no more than five years old. Official scores should be sent by the ETS to ASU using the university code 4007. The department code may be left blank or entered as 0000.

The statement of purpose should explain the applicant's scholarly background and training, career goals, the primary field the applicant wishes to pursue, and the proposed research specialization (no more than 600 words in length).

The writing sample must be a piece of philosophical writing, preferably a seminar paper or published article (no more than 20 pages).

Online Degree Search Title: Philosophy (History and Philosophy of Science), MA

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

Nationally, there is great interest in science and in understanding the nature of science and the forces that change scientific research. The job market in philosophy is strong for philosophers of science (and especially in the life sciences) with some positions remaining unfilled even when the market is intensely competitive in other areas. In addition, the history and philosophy of science is becoming a strong disciplinary emphasis within growing professional societies.

Some programs, elsewhere, focus primarily on philosophy or primarily on history, but those that bring the two together are regarded among the strongest in each area. The objective here is to provide a program for students who come to history and philosophy of science from the humanities and who seek a career based in philosophical analysis of the sciences. ASU's MA program in philosophy with a concentration in the history and philosophy of science has the research strength competitive with any international program.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours, including the required capstone course (HPS 551) and a thesis.

Graduate coursework includes:

history of science (3)
philosophy of science (3)
topics in the history of science (3)
topics in the philosophy of science (3)
research methods in the history and philosophy of science (3)
prospectus writing (3)
research and thesis (12)

Philosophy (History and Philosophy of Science), PHD (LAHPSPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Philosophy (History and Philosophy of Science), PhD

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications to this program.

Program Description:

The strength of ASU's PhD program in philosophy with a concentration in the history and philosophy of science is to bring philosophy, history and the study of science together. This degree program combines solid training in the core areas of philosophy with an emphasis on transdisciplinary studies of the sciences and their:

- conceptual structure
- epistemology
- history
- impacts on society

The program is especially appropriate for students with a background in philosophy who seek to broaden their disciplinary studies with a historical perspective. Applicants will typically come from undergraduate programs that have included philosophical, historical or history and philosophy of science training, or with a master's degree in one of those fields. Science students are eligible as well and will make up relevant undergraduate humanistic core courses during their first years.

Most graduates will seek a career based in philosophical or historical analyses of the sciences.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Concentration (18 credit hours)
history of science (3)
philosophy of science (3)
prospectus writing (3)
research methods in the history and philosophy of science (3)

topics in the history of science (3)
topics in the philosophy of science (3)

Other Requirements (21 credit hours)
advanced logic or approved equivalent (3) approved philosophy or other relevant courses (9)
a course in history of philosophy (3)
a course in value theory (3)
HPS 615 Biology and Society Lab (3 hours, one credit each)

Electives or Research (33 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)
HPS 799 Dissertation (12)

Physics, MS (LAPHYSIMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Physics, MS

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The MS program in physics provides graduate instruction and research experience appropriate to many physics-related careers. The structure of the program is flexible enough to allow a wide range of programs of study and a wide range of student backgrounds. It is also suitable for part-time study.

Completion of the program requires a minimum of two years, with students typically taking courses for the first three semesters and completing a research project in their final semester. Each student defends a master's degree thesis at the end of the program.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis.

The master's degree in physics can emphasize either physics or physics in combination with other fields.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in physics or a closely related field, from a regionally accredited institution. To be admitted to the master's degree program in physics without deficiencies, applicants should have adequate undergraduate preparation equivalent to an undergraduate major of 30 credit hours in physics and 20 credit hours in mathematics. Courses in analytic mechanics, electromagnetism and modern physics, including quantum mechanics, are particularly important.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- test scores for the verbal, quantitative and analytical sections of the GRE

- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency in the form of a TOEFL or equivalent score.

Submission of scores for the physics GRE subject test is recommended, although not mandatory.

Financial support in the form of teaching or research assistantships is contingent upon satisfactory performance in coursework, timely completion of the final examination for the master's degree, and need and availability of such support.

Students on probation are offered financial support only under exceptional circumstances.

Physics, PHD (LAPHYSIPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Physics, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in physics is intended for highly capable students having the interest and ability to follow a career in independent research. Graduates find positions in a variety of settings, such as academic faculty, administration, government labs, industrial labs, and management.

The recent advent of the graduate faculty initiative at ASU extends the spectrum of potential physics doctoral topics and advisors to include highly transdisciplinary projects that draw upon:

- biochemistry
- biology
- chemistry
- electrical engineering
- materials science
- other related fields

Consequently, students and doctoral advisors can craft novel doctoral projects that transcend the classical palette of physics subjects. Transdisciplinary expertise of this nature is increasingly vital to modern science and technology.

Current areas of particular emphasis within the department include:

- biological physics
- cosmology
- electron diffraction and imaging
- nanoscale and materials physics
- particle physics and astrophysics

The department has more than 90 doctoral students and more than 40 faculty members.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Coursework (18 credit hours)

PHY 500 Research Rotation I (3)

PHY 500 Research Rotation II (3)

PHY 521 Classical and Continuum Mechanics (3)

PHY 531 Electrodynamics (3)

PHY 541 Statistical Physics (3)

PHY 576 Quantum Theory (3)

Electives or Research (54 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

PHY 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

Of particular note within the core courses are the PHY 500 Research Rotations, which are specifically designed to engage doctoral students in genuine, faculty-guided research starting in their first semester at ASU. Students take PHY 500 in the first and second year of study.

Coursework beyond the core courses is established by the student's doctoral advisor and supervisory committee, working in partnership with the student. The intent is to tailor the doctoral training to the specific research interests and aptitudes of the student while ensuring that each graduating student emerges with the expertise, core knowledge and problem-solving skills that define a successful doctoral degree in physics.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 credit hours of coursework are made up of electives to reach the required 84 credit hours.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in physics or a closely related area, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants must have had adequate undergraduate preparation equivalent to an undergraduate major of 30 credit hours in physics and 20 credit hours in mathematics. Courses in analytic mechanics, electromagnetism and modern physics, including quantum mechanics, are particularly important.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume
- GRE scores (general GRE and physics GRE)
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Scores from the verbal, quantitative and analytical sections of the GRE are required. The subject GRE test scores are also required.

Applicants requesting credit for prior graduate courses, taken either at ASU or elsewhere, must demonstrate mastery of the relevant course material to the graduate-level standards of the Department of Physics.

Plant Biology and Conservation, MS (LAPLBIOMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Plant Biology and Conservation, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Conservation addresses a growing need for botanists and conservation biologists in academic institutions, government agencies and nongovernmental organizations. The MS program in plant biology and conservation provides students with advanced training in plant ecology, evolution and floristics as well as in theory and practice of conservation biology. Students have the opportunity to work with faculty and researchers from ASU and the Desert Botanical Garden, which is located near ASU's Tempe campus.

Political Science, MA (LAPOLSCMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Political Science, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in political science offers a variety of areas of specialization within and between the four main sub-fields of political science --- American politics, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory --- with particular strengths in ethno-religious dynamics, women and politics, conflict and human rights, and Latino politics.*

Faculty also conduct research and teach in the areas of political psychology and political economy, and many are active in collaborative interdisciplinary research at ASU and with scholars at other universities; many have won major grants and awards. The school is host to the Center on the Future of War and to an experimental lab and is developing a Center on Latino politics.

This Master of Arts program may be taken as a terminal program or as a step toward eventual fulfillment of the requirements for the doctorate. Students who plan to obtain the doctorate at ASU should apply directly to the doctoral program.

*Students interested in a political theory specialization should consult with the academic unit prior to application.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Global Studies, BA
- Political Science, BA
- Political Science, BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a portfolio, or 30 credit hours and a thesis.

Required Core Course (3 credit hours)

POS 503 Empirical Political Inquiry (3)

Other Requirements (6 credit hours)

Focus area course (3)

POS 603 Polimetrics I or second focus area course for political theory (3)

Electives (15 - 21 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (0 - 6 credit hours)

POS 599 Thesis (6) or

Portfolio (0)

Additional Curriculum Information:

Students selecting the thesis option must submit a written thesis and hold an oral defense. Students selecting the portfolio option must submit a written paper and hold an oral defense.

The course POS 603 Polimetrics I (3) may be substituted with permission of both the director of Graduate Studies and the faculty advisor. Students in the political theory focus area will take a second focus area course instead of POS 603.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in any field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- list of political science courses taken
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

To assist in evaluating all candidates, the applicant should list titles and related information for all previous undergraduate and graduate courses or coursework in political science or related fields. The file must be saved in a .pdf, .doc, .rtf or .txt format and uploaded with the online graduate admission application. The information should be in a table with the following column headings: Course Title, Undergrad Credit Hours, Graduate Credit Hours, Grade, Institution, Year.

Undergraduate coursework in political science is not a prerequisite for admission. However, master's degree students should have a basic understanding of elementary statistics and the undergraduate content of the political science fields of concentration that they wish to study. Students should allow sufficient time to acquire such a background.

Political Science, PHD (LAPOLSCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Political Science, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in political science is intended to develop scholars who demonstrate a high level of excellence in teaching and research as professional political scientists. It offers a variety of areas of specialization within and between the four main sub-fields of political science: American politics, comparative politics, international relations, and political theory. Students interested in a political theory specialization should consult with the academic unit prior to application.

Program faculty have particular strengths in ethno-religious dynamics, women and politics, conflict and human rights, and Latino politics. Faculty also conduct research and teach in the areas of political psychology and political economy.

Psychology, PHD (LAPSYCHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Psychology, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Department of Psychology offers PhD programs designed to provide outstanding training in innovative research, methodology and the application of psychological principles to a wide variety of human conditions. The department is organized into six major areas of interest:

- behavioral neuroscience
- clinical psychology
- cognitive science
- developmental psychology
- quantitative (must apply to the Quantitative Research Methods PhD)
- social psychology

Students pursue their graduate studies within one of these six areas, and each area determines the basic curriculum for their graduate program. There is, however, substantial opportunity to integrate courses of study across areas in the department.

Further specialized emphases are available that integrate across programs in the university (e.g., integrating psychology and law).

At the core of doctoral training in psychology is an emphasis on the development of skill in research and quantitative methods. Faculty in all six areas are actively engaged in major research programs. These theoretically grounded research programs address the breadth of psychological processes:

- cognitive processes (e.g., attention, language, memory) as they occur within the context of perception and action, personality and issues of stigma and prejudice
- cultural influences on psychological processes
- evolution and behavior
- individual resilience
- lifespan developmental aspects of emotion and cognition
- neurobiological and psychosocial processes that underlie behavior and health (e.g., drug abuse, stress, heart disease)
- prevention of child mental health problems

A unique strength of the Department of Psychology is the wealth of outstanding faculty members whose specialization is quantitative methods. A breadth of courses and experiences in quantitative methods are available that are well-integrated into the areas of research that characterize the department and offer students the distinctive opportunity to develop expertise in this critical domain.

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with Juris Doctor, JD

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

PSY 502 Professional Issues in Psychology (3) or

PSY 531 Multiple Regression in Psychological Research (3)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

PSY 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

In addition to required coursework pertaining to the training area, students take courses related to their area of interest as determined in consultation with their supervisory committees. All doctoral students complete 12 dissertation credit hours. Requirements vary across training areas.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in psychology or a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- SlideRoom application and fee

- statement of purpose form
- applicant response form
- graduate assistantship application
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

To apply to the doctoral programs, applicants must follow the instructions on the doctoral program admissions instructions and checklist. It is strongly recommended that applicants download and print this form to ensure completion of the application process and include all of the required supplemental forms.

The Department of Psychology application process is completed online through ASU's Graduate Admission Services which includes the application form and official transcripts. Application to Department of Psychology doctoral programs is also completed via SlideRoom to process supplemental application materials. The SlideRoom account requires an additional fee.

Applicants must submit three academic letters of recommendation from faculty members who know the student well. Three letters are required but four letters of recommendation may be submitted.

Psychology (Quantitative Research Methods), PHD (LAPSYQUPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Psychology (Quantitative Research Methods), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The quantitative research methods concentration of the PhD in psychology focuses on the broad class of quantitative and methodological issues that arise in the conduct of both basic and applied psychological research.

There are six core faculty members in the quantitative concentration who, in addition to their quantitative research, collaborate with colleagues in substantive research areas. These collaborations help to support the training of students in quantitative methods against a backdrop of methodological issues associated with the substance of psychological science.

The quantitative concentration program is committed to training the next generation of psychological methodologists who will make contributions in developing methods in the areas of measurement, study design and analysis, modeling, and in evaluating the utility of new and existing methods in psychological research.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

PSY 502 Professional Issues in Psychology (3) or

PSY 531 Multiple Regression in Psychological Research (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

The quantitative curriculum is structured as a series of progressively more advanced courses. New quantitative courses may be implemented under an omnibus number (PSY 591) at the interest of the faculty.

Students complete the following coursework:

PSY 530 Intermed Statistics (3)

PSY 532 Analysis of Multivariate Data (3)

PSY 533 Structural Equation Modeling (3)

PSY 534 Psychometric Methods (3)

PSY 555 Experimental and Quasi-Experimental Designs for Research (3)

PSY 591 Quantitative Seminar (3 credit hours annually)

During the course of training, students also complete these requirements:

psychological methodology electives (12)

substantive coursework (6)

additional substantive or psychological methodology electives (6)

PSY 599 Master's Thesis (6)

PSY 792 Post-Master's Research (12)

PSY 799 Dissertation (12)

Religious Studies, MA (LARELIGMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Religious Studies, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The faculty in religious studies offer a graduate program leading to the MA in religious studies. Candidates are offered an opportunity to develop knowledge of various religious traditions in their historical and cultural contexts and to learn research methods. Although students often concentrate upon a single religious tradition for their thesis work, the program seeks to provide a broadly comparative understanding of religions, not simply a specialist's training in a single tradition.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (REL 593) and a foreign language exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a foreign language exam.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

REL 501 Research Methods in Religious Studies (3)

REL 502 Research Methods in Religious Studies (3)

Electives or Research (18-21 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)

REL 599 Thesis (6) or

REL 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

There are two options for the culminating experience: a thesis or an applied project. An oral defense of the final written work is required for both options.

The thesis option is recommended for students intending to seek admission to a doctoral program upon completion of the master's degree or planning to teach in the discipline at community colleges. Thesis students must have reading knowledge of all languages relevant to the proposed thesis topic and take 18 credit hours of electives or research coursework.

The applied project option is recommended for students intending to augment their primary area of expertise and professional training in fields such as counseling, journalism, K-12 education, law, social work and the ministry. The applied project requires submission of three publishable papers: one on theory and method, one on the student's minor area of study, and one on the major area of study. The student's chosen areas of study determine the coursework taken as electives, with applied project students taking 21 credit hours of electives coursework, four courses being in a major area of study and two courses being in a minor area. Reading knowledge of a foreign language relevant to the proposed area of study is required.

The student's plan of study may include up to six credit hours of 400-level course work or one REL 690: Reading and Conference (3) course with department approval.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Transcripts must show evidence of having completed the equivalent of 15 credit hours of undergraduate work in the study of religions, including advanced courses in both western and Asian or other nonwestern religions. Applicants who have not met this requirement may be required to take additional coursework beyond program requirements to remedy this deficiency.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program. The most competitive applicants have a GPA of 3.50 or higher.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- contact information for three references
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Religious Studies, PHD (LARELIGPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Religious Studies, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The academic study of religion is a central component of the humanities and has become increasingly recognized as a critical tool in understanding society and politics in a globalized world.

The PhD program in religious studies is designed for graduate students who would benefit from greater expertise regarding the nature and role of religion around the world. The program provides supplementary training that includes history, anthropology, political science, journalism, secondary education and justice studies. Through this program, graduate students are trained for careers as scholars and teachers in the academic study of religion.

Doctoral tracks in the study of religion approach the study in a variety of contexts. Specifically offered are tracks in:

- anthropology of religion
- global Christianity
- Islam in global contexts
- religion in Asia
- religion in the Americas

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, foreign language exams, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The plan of study must contain a minimum of 84 credit hours, including 12 hours of dissertation. Courses and research hours are approved by the student's supervisory committee.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Transcripts must show evidence of having completed the equivalent of 15 credit hours of undergraduate work in the study of religions, including advanced courses in both western and Asian or other nonwestern religions. Applicants who have not met this requirement may be required to take additional coursework beyond program requirements to remedy this deficiency.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.30 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program. The most competitive applicants will have a GPA of 3.50 or higher.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- statement of purpose
- curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- contact information for three references
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. The Graduate College requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (PBT) or 80 (iBT).

The statement of purpose should be approximately 1,000 words describing the applicant's academic background, the reasons for wishing to pursue a doctorate in religious studies, the proposed area of specialization, and specific research topics the student plans to engage in at Arizona State University.

The writing sample should be a work of original scholarly writing, approximately 15 to 30 pages in length. It should represent the student's best academic writing.

Students are required to submit contact information for three academic references who are qualified to provide detailed, accurate evaluations of the applicant's potential as a graduate student in religious studies. Professors, particularly faculty advisors, are preferred. Recommenders are contacted by the Graduate College with a request to complete a reference questionnaire. Letters of recommendation can be submitted in addition to answering these questions online.

GRE scores should be no more than five years old. Official scores should be sent by the ETS to ASU using the university code 4007. The department code can be left blank or entered as 0000.

Online Degree Search Title: Scholarly Publishing (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The scholarly publishing certificate program offers training in publishing studies to graduate students from any discipline. The program focuses on publishing wherever it occurs: museums, corporations, cultural institutions, university presses, commercial houses, digital startups, libraries, journal and textbook publishers, and learned societies. Students create the future world of publishing as it is expressed in the digital world of e-books, apps, blogs, websites, interactive media, online scholarship and popular writing. Graduates work for publishing houses, museums, corporations, cultural institutions, government agencies and libraries.

Degree Requirements:

20 credit hours.

Coursework includes four required core courses and electives from a variety of disciplines. The certificate requirement includes a summer internship. Some courses may be applied to both the certificate and the student's degree program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- a resume or curriculum vitae
- a letter of intent
- three reference letters
- official transcripts
- writing sample
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Graduate students in any discipline may pursue a certificate in scholarly publishing in conjunction with their degree programs. The program is also open to students who already hold graduate degrees.

The resume or curriculum vitae is required, and it must be uploaded into the online application.

The letter of intent should be addressed to the history review committee explaining the applicant's scholarly background and training, career goals and why the applicant wants to pursue graduate study at ASU (about 500 words in length).

Students should contact their references and inform them that they will be contacted by Graduate Admission Services and asked to submit an electronic recommendation. Students are required to submit a minimum of three email addresses from faculty or others qualified to speak to the student's suitability for graduate study in scholarly publishing.

For the writing sample, applicants are to submit a sample of their written work electronically. The writing sample may be an article (published or unpublished), a research paper or any other extended example of expository skill no longer than 35 double-spaced pages in length. Longer writing samples should not be submitted without first consulting the graduate director. Documents should not be password protected. Acceptable file types are .rtf, .pdf and .doc.

Sexuality Studies (Certificate), Certificate (LASXSGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Sexuality Studies (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in sexuality studies addresses the social construction of sexualities, sexual identities and cultures. This program interrogates heterosexuality and institutionalized heterosexism, and addresses lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer and two-spirit identities and expressions as well as non-normative sexual identities that are not captured by LGBTQ-TS categories. This program allows students the flexibility to work with courses in sexuality studies offered across disciplines and units at ASU. Students gain theoretical and analytic tools to examine gender and sexual formations and how social issues and state institutions impact and are impacted by sexuality as a social norm. In addition, coursework allows students to further investigate sexualities in relation to sexual stratification, reproductive rights and justice, sexual health and justice, carceral genders and sexualities, sex work, the state and legal system, and transnational and diasporic formations.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

SST 604 Sexuality Studies (3)

Electives (12 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Online Degree Search Title: Social and Cultural Pedagogy, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA in social and cultural pedagogy is a two-year program designed for educators with professional experience who seek to develop real-world skills and practical knowledge that will help them accomplish specific career goals.

The first of its kind in North America, the program focuses on the study of learning beyond schooling, delving into research, theory and practice for nonformal education across cultures, ages and education levels. This is an interdisciplinary program in social and cultural pedagogy in which students work with communities to address and solve complex societal problems by analyzing social structures and cultural dynamics and by planning, implementing and evaluating social and educational strategies in a variety of areas, with a focus on nonformal and informal education. Each student creates a highly individualized and transdisciplinary path of study, taking classes tailored to meet their specific goals.

A master's degree in social and cultural pedagogy provides educators with the skills they need to create positive change in nontraditional educational settings, including early childhood education, museums, nongovernmental organizations, and adult and community education, among others.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (SST 593).

Required Core (9 credit hours)

JUS 500 Research Methods (3)

SST 501 Foundations of Social Transformation (3)

SST 510 Social and Cultural Pedagogy: Theoretical and Practical Issues (3)

Social Science Research Methods (Certificate), Certificate (LASSRMGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Science Research Methods (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The graduate certificate program in social science research methods prepares students to acquire, manage and analyze a broad range of data on human thought and human behavior. Data can be qualitative (e.g., text, images or sound) or quantitative (e.g., direct observation, surveys or geospatial). Data acquisition skills may include the downloading and managing of information from online sources or the primary collection of data in surveys or in direct observation. A key feature of this program is a focus on data analysis, so students and professionals will be able to analyze and interpret any data that they can collect. All students in this program demonstrate skills in statistical analysis plus skills in a selection of methods related to their interests.

Degree Requirements:

18 credit hours including an applied project course (GCU 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)

SOC 508 Structural Equation Analysis for the Social Sciences (3) or

STP 533 Applied Multivariate Analysis (3) or

POS 604 Polimetrics II (3)

Electives or Research (12 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

GCU 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students select one of the multivariate data analysis core courses for a total of three credit hours.

Students select four three-credit hour elective and research methods courses for a total of 12 credit hours in consultation with the program directors. The program recognizes that other graduate-level courses on research methods are offered at ASU. Advanced courses on methods are often taught in omnibus courses, courses that have rotating content and whose content is not reflected in their titles. Students may include these courses in their certificate curriculum with approval of the program directors.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution in a field such as human development, sustainability, geography or political science. Other subject areas may be accepted with approval from the academic unit.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants must have completed an introductory statistics course before admission to the program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of interest
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Examples of introductory statistics courses include:

CRJ 504 Statistical Tools for Criminology and Criminal Justice

NUR 617 Foundational Concepts in Science and Statistics

POS 603 Polimetrics I

STP 530 Applied Regression Analysis

or equivalent with approval of the academic unit

A statement of interest should include how the certificate program will enhance the applicant's graduate studies or professional work.

Social Transformation Certificate, Certificate (LASOTGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Transformation (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The graduate certificate in social transformation is designed for graduate and postbaccalaureate students interested in how change is catalyzed by social movements, protest, law, social entrepreneurship, activism and community organizing. Through the exploration of theories and research related to social change, students are able to augment their disciplinary degrees and be prepared to contribute as leaders and change-makers in their communities.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours and a practicum.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

SST 501 Foundations of Social Transformation (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

SST 580 Practicum (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

The electives taken are selected with the faculty advisor. The faculty advisor helps to directionalize the electives to ensure they have a common theme. This helps to ensure students' experiences in the courses align with the learning goals outlined for the certificate.

The culminating experience is a community-based practicum experience and a paper that synthesizes students' interests with their implications for social transformation. The practicum placement will be with a local nonprofit or governmental organization working toward social innovation and social change. Students are assisted in identifying a practicum placement by the program advisor. At the end of the practicum, students produce a paper which analyzes the social and political dimensions of some issue within social transformation or some aspect of it. The paper also should identify the implications of this aspect or issue for social policy and social justice. The paper should begin within the context of the practicum experience and will be presented to the designated subset of the certificate executive board for final approval. Students take SST 580 Practicum to complete the practicum and then revise, improve and finalize the paper with a certificate faculty member.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of purpose
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Students must submit a statement of purpose to the School of Social Transformation that is no longer than 250 words. The statement should indicate any demonstrated interest in the study of social transformation (e.g., previous coursework, professional experience, internships, career plans).

Applicants must meet the above criteria as judged by the School of Social Transformation graduate committee to have strong academic credentials, undergraduate or graduate GPA, as well as demonstrated interest in the area of social transformation. The committee reviews applications for the certificate program in the fall and spring semesters of each year and make its admission recommendations to Graduate Admission Services.

Socio-Economic Justice (certificate), Certificate (LAECJUGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Socio-Economic Justice (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate in socioeconomic justice addresses the social and political implications of global and local economies for economic inequality and social justice. This transdisciplinary program fuses interests in political economy, socioeconomic inequality and analysis of related policies and their consequences for social welfare in areas of income, housing, employment and education.

This program complements the current graduate curriculum at ASU and is structured to allow students to draw upon a combination of core courses in justice and social inquiry and coursework from units from throughout the university. The approach is transdisciplinary (i.e., inclusive of courses in a variety of disciplines but transcending disciplinary boundaries through an integrative core curriculum), intersectional (i.e., considering gender, race, class, nation and sexual relations) and transnational (courses that examine global and local concerns). It will strengthen student understanding of the justice implications of the convergence of social and economic inequalities in the global economy.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

Students must select one course from each of the following two areas of study:

Economic Justice (3 credit hours)

JUS 550 Gender, Race and Economic Justice (3) or

JUS 660 Globalization and Economic Justice (3)
Conducting Research in Communities (3 credit hours)

JHR 525 Action Research in Social Justice and Human Rights (3) or

JUS 633 Community Research (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must select three elective courses on socioeconomic justice from a restricted list, and they should see the academic unit for the full list of possible courses.

Only one 400-level course may be listed on the plan of study. Students must have prior approval from the director of the certificate program for use of any 400-level course.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- at least one letter of recommendation
- a statement of purpose for pursuing the certificate
- a writing sample demonstrating excellent writing and analytical skills
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The letter of recommendation, statement of purpose and writing sample should be submitted to the justice and social inquiry program office.

Spanish, PHD (LASPANPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Spanish, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The Spanish PhD program consists of two specializations in Spanish literature or culture and four tracks: early modern, linguistics, Mexican-American studies and visual cultures.

The specializations in Spanish literature or cultural studies, which are intended to be as flexible as possible, establish broad areas of competence through an individualized program of study set with the supportive guidance of the student's advisor.

In addition, the tracks in literature consist of five courses that allow for a specialization in early modern, Mexican-American studies, or visual cultures.

Graduate courses in literature and cultural studies focus on the production, distribution and reception of texts and their linguistics, either written or visual (photographs, films, visual narratives, etc.), their linguistic, rhetorical and literary structure and functions, with an emphasis on literary theories and aesthetics. Many literature courses explore issues relating to gender, class, race, ethnicity, globalization, environmental humanities, disability theories, post-human theories and digital humanities.

The Spanish linguistics track offers advanced interdisciplinary graduate training that combines key areas in second language acquisition and teaching, applied linguistics, heritage language research and pedagogy, sociolinguistics, and bilingualism, with an emphasis on U.S. Spanish. In addition to taking core courses in Spanish linguistics, students can opt to specialize in one of the three following options: second language acquisition and teaching methodologies, heritage language research and pedagogy, and sociolinguistics and bilingualism. Students receive training in state of the art quantitative and qualitative research methods on the study of language from diverse perspectives.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a foreign language exams, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

Track (18 credit hours)

Focus Area (0 or 12 credit hours)

Electives (27 or 39 credit hours)

Research (12 credit hours)

SPA 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SPA 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

The doctoral program in Spanish has four available tracks: early-modern Iberian studies, Spanish linguistics, Mexican American studies, and visual studies.

Students in the Spanish linguistics track are required to complete 12 credit hours in a focus area. Available focus areas are: second-language acquisition and teaching methodologies; heritage language research and pedagogy; and sociolinguistics, bilingualism and Spanish in the U.S. Students in this track will complete a minimum of 27 credit hours of elective coursework.

Students in the early-modern Iberian studies, Mexican American studies, and visual studies tracks complete 39 credit hours of elective coursework and do not select a focus area.

The candidate must present an acceptable dissertation based on original investigation. The dissertation must represent a significant contribution to knowledge and demonstrate the candidate's ability to do independent, scholarly research.

Each candidate is expected to demonstrate a reading knowledge of one language other than English and Spanish. This language requirement must be satisfied before the candidate is eligible to take the comprehensive examination.

The written and oral comprehensive examination, designed to ascertain the candidate's knowledge and orientation in the field of study and competency to proceed with the dissertation, is required at or near the end of coursework.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in Spanish or equivalent, from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants from other academic backgrounds with relevant coursework in Spanish language and cultural studies also may be evaluated by the admissions committee.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.75 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.75 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- writing sample
- personal statement
- resume
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

It is recommended but not required that students applying for admission to the program submit GRE scores; this is especially advisable for applicants for the Spanish Graduate Fellowship Award.

Candidates for the program will be required to demonstrate a near-native oral proficiency in Spanish and to show that they have developed a high order of expository prose in English and Spanish by presenting a term paper or a chapter of the master's degree thesis as their writing sample.

Statistics, MS (GCSTATMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Statistics, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MS program in statistics draws upon a wide spectrum of faculty research and teaching interests, including from faculty outside of the school. As a result, plans of study can be transdisciplinary and tailored to reflect students' individual needs and goals.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Mathematics (Statistics), BS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (STP 593 or IEE 593 or ECN 593) and an oral comprehensive exam, or 30 credit hours, a thesis and an oral comprehensive exam, or 30 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam and an oral comprehensive exam.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

STP 540 Computational Statistics (3)

Theory Courses (6 credit hours)

STP 421 Probability (3) and STP 427 Mathematical Statistics (3), or

STP 501 Theory of Statistics I: Distribution Theory 3 (3) and STP 502 Theory of Statistics II: Inference (3)

Applied Linear Statistical Model Courses (3 credit hours)

ECN 525 Applied Regression Models (3), IEE 578 Regression Analysis (3) or STP 530 Applied Regression Analysis (3)

Electives and Research (12-18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (0-6 credit hours)

ECN 599 or IEE 599 or STP 599 Thesis (6)

Oral and written comprehensive exam (0)

Portfolio (0)

Additional Curriculum Information

Prerequisites may not be used to complete the 30 credit hours.

The theory courses are fundamental to the education of statisticians and are necessary for more advanced graduate study. Students choose STP 421 and STP 427, or STP 501 and STP 502. Other courses may be used with approval of the academic unit.

For the applied linear statistical model courses, students must choose from ECN 525, IEE 578 or STP 530. Other courses may be used with approval of the academic unit.

The thesis must be defended at an oral examination. The thesis must conform to the Graduate College format requirements.

The remaining credit hours come from elective and research courses chosen by the student with the approval of supervising faculty. A maximum of six credit hours may be chosen from a related field on which statistics relies or in which statistics is an essential tool. A maximum of six research credit hours can be used. Students may also include internship coursework as part of their electives.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in mathematics, statistics or a closely related area from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

Transborder Studies, MAS (LATCLMAS)

Online Degree Search Title: Transborder Studies, MAS

Campus: Tempe

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The MAS program in transborder studies is designed for the postbaccalaureate professional who seeks training in an integrated program that also provides for differentiation via three thematic options. The course of study is designed to provide a cohesive and holistic program of learning that focuses on the complex economic, political, ecological, social and cultural issues of a coevolving border region of the U.S. Southwest and Mexico. Students will be required to engage in an intensive internship process in which they will apply their learning. The program will also provide a choice to explore one of the following three areas more deeply:

Transborder culture, language and learning --- This area focuses on the interrelated processes of cultural emergence, language development and learning as they interact with each other in conjunction with the development of mathematical and scientific reasoning skills, literacy skills and critical thinking in the transborder context.

Transborder media and expressive culture --- This area provides students with a transdisciplinary understanding of how representation, interpretation and language shape and are shaped by Chicana/o, Mexican and Latina/o culture in a transborder context.

Transborder migration, health and applied social policy --- This area provides students with theoretical and applied frameworks for understanding border communities in the areas of migration, health, education, environment and other areas affecting social development.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone course (TCL 608), a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam and a foreign language exam.

Required Core (12 credit hours)

Transborder Studies, PHD (LATCLPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Transborder Studies, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This PhD program in transborder studies is intended for graduate students who seek rigorous study of transborder and transnational economic, political, artistic, social, psychological, ecological and cultural dynamics, with implications not only for the Mexican-origin and Latina/o communities in the U.S. or the U.S.-Mexico border region but also for other border communities around the world. This transdisciplinary degree program is designed for students with serious interest in the many ways border processes affect society; study addresses the past, present and future.

Due to the focus on transborder experiences in people's everyday lives, both regionally and globally, this program equips students with the knowledge, skills and competencies for transborder research, scholarship and innovation --- all of which are highly needed by current and future scholars in order to better grasp the complexity of contemporary societies in the 21st century.

Students gain the ability to communicate findings, creations or productions to an academic and community public; the ability to create pedagogical models, learning units and assessment protocols for the transmission of learned concepts, theories and methods; and the ability to design and develop transdisciplinary research. They learn how to display and apply concepts, methods and theories in courses and research projects; gain competency in the most pertinent theoretical and methodological approaches to the study of transborder and transnational contexts; and acquire historical understanding of the development of transborder ecologies, economies, social relations, migration and health, culture, power, language and expressive culture, and media.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a foreign language exam, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (6 credit hours)

TSS 502 Foundations of Transborder Studies (3)

TSS 503 Epistemologies and Transborder Thought (3) or TSS 504 Tools for Transborder Research (3)

Electives and Research (36 credit hours)

Dissertation (12 credit hours)

TSS 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curricular Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not already have a master's degree in a related field, then the remaining 30 credit hours are made up of electives and research that equal the 84 credit hours required for the doctoral program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a related field such as anthropology, economics, education, sociology, literature or psychology from a regionally accredited institution. Applicants who have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in another discipline must align their scholarly interests with the program's mission.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- writing sample
- resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation (from academicians)
- GRE scores
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

Transportation Systems (certificate), Certificate (GCTRANSCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Transportation Systems (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Transportation has emerged as one of the highest priority issues for policymakers, planners, employers and citizens. To respond to this challenging environment, the transportation systems certificate program enhances the education of current and future transportation professionals by building upon existing programs in a variety of disciplines offered in five colleges and two campuses in the ASU system.

The certificate program offers current ASU graduate students and transportation professionals the opportunity to pursue a wide range of transportation-related issues from a multimodal, interdisciplinary perspective. It is intended to be either a specialization within an existing master's degree or as a stand-alone nondegree program.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours including the required applied project course (PUP 593).

Required Core (3 credit hours)
a seminar course (3)

Electives (9 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)
PUP 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Three electives must be taken from an approved list of transportation-related courses including at least one from a field outside the student's major; students should see the academic unit. Students are strongly encouraged to include a course in methods or techniques applicable to transportation systems planning as one of the three elective courses.

In the applied project course, students are encouraged to work with transportation professionals in their area of interest to identify a project that is of interest to the broader public.

All decisions related to program offerings and departmental participation are made in cooperation with the transportation systems certificate admissions and advisory committee, which includes a member from each participating department.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- letter of interest
- resume
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants who wish to seek a graduate degree in any of the cooperating departments and who are not currently enrolled at ASU must complete the full graduate school application process as specified by the department of interest in addition to the online application for the transportation certificate. The applications are evaluated independent of each other.

Applicants are asked to explain in their letter of interest what they expect to gain from the transportation certificate program and the types of courses in the program that would be the most helpful in meeting their objective.

Urban and Environmental Planning, MUEP (ARURBMUEP)

Online Degree Search Title: Urban and Environmental Planning, MUEP

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MUEP program prepares students to help solve complex social, economic and environmental issues and create healthier, safer and more vibrant communities. Alumni of the Master of Urban and Environmental Planning program work as professional planners in a variety of public, private and nonprofit settings. The program emphasizes theories of planning, methods of analysis, effective public engagement, planning processes and creative implementation of planning tools, strategies and approaches. The master's degree program is accredited by the Planning Accreditation Board. Students who join the program are eligible for certification by the American Institute of Certified Planners after two years of professional practice.

The Master of Urban and Environmental Planning program offers a unique opportunity to integrate urban and environmental aspects of planning in a rapidly developing metropolitan area. Small classes, one-on-one advising and a common core of courses that translate knowledge into practice provide students opportunities to build technical skills and grow their professional network. As a part of the School of Geographical Sciences and Urban Planning, the master's degree program is enriched by school faculty whose research and teaching is grounded in geography, GIS, and meteorology and climatology. Students have access to a wide selection of electives within the school, electives that explore issues such as population and migration, environmental and landscape dynamics, and urban climate systems. The master's degree program is also complemented by the participation of faculty from other disciplines within the university, leading planning practitioners in the Phoenix area, and the NEURUS international research exchange program.

Faculty research and teaching interests focus especially on the following broad interdisciplinary themes:

- city building and urban structure
- environmental and resiliency planning
- housing, neighborhoods and community development
- spatial analytics and smart cities
- transportation planning and policy

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with:

- Public Administration - Downtown Phoenix, MPA
- Public Policy, MPP
- Sustainability Solutions, MSUS

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Urban Planning, BSP

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

47 credit hours and a thesis, or 47 credit hours including the required applied project course (PUP 593), or 47 credit hours including the required capstone course (PUP 580).

Required Core (24 credit hours)

- PUP 501 Planning, History and Theory (3)
- PUP 520 Planning Practice, Ethics and Processes (3)
- PUP 531 Planning and Development Control Law (3)

Women and Gender Studies, MA (LAWSTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Women and Gender Studies, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in women and gender studies is designed for students who wish to gain research skills and knowledge about gender analysis and to apply those tools to real-world problems and solutions. Graduates may seek careers in a broad range of settings, from schools and hospitals to city governments, nonprofits and large corporations. The program is not a good fit for those who seek to become professors.

This flexible, 30-credit hour master's degree program provides advanced training in feminist research, theory and methodologies. All students can take an internship and all must complete an applied project in which students conduct research that addresses practical, site-specific problems linked to gender. Final projects may take a variety of forms, including program assessments, grant proposals, tests of new interventions or curricula, and so on. These projects may help lead students to careers in human services, program evaluation, policy development and other fields.

Full-time students can complete the degree program within two years while part-time students take longer but can combine work with study.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours and a thesis, or 30 credit hours including the required applied project course (WST 593).

Required Core (6 credit hours)

WST 501 Foundations of Feminist Thought (3)

WST 502 Interdisciplinary Gender Research Methodologies (3)

Electives (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (6 credit hours)

WST 593 Applied Project (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students must successfully provide an oral defense of the applied project.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. Students may be admitted with a BA or BS in any field as long as they have completed two courses in women and gender studies or have equivalent experience. Appropriate majors may include women, gender and sexuality studies; history; English; sociology; religious studies; social work; psychology; communication or ethnic studies. Students who have previously majored in a science, technology, engineering or mathematics field and have interests in gender and education or gender and science may also apply for this program.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts from all college and universities where the applicant earned a bachelor's or master's degree
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- writing sample
- two or three letters of recommendation

- relevant coursework
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement should be approximately 1,000 words and describe any prior research experience and training, professional goals and research interests, and the fit between interests and the program's emphases. The statement should be uploaded.

The writing sample should be seven to 10 pages. This can include a research brief or report, a white paper, a policy paper or a paper for a recent academic course. The writing sample should reflect the applicant's writing ability and critical-thinking skills.

The letters of recommendation should be from a recommender who can speak to the applicant's strengths and weaknesses for graduate study; critical-thinking, writing, speaking and presentation skills; intellectual ability; leadership potential; interpersonal skills and ability to work with others; or other relevant accomplishments that best highlight the applicant's ability to complete a graduate degree in women and gender studies.

The list of relevant coursework should include at least two courses, undergraduate or graduate, the applicant has taken that focus on gender or women. In addition, the applicant should list any research methods or social justice courses.

GRE scores are not required for admission.

Further details about application requirements and application deadlines are available on the School of Social Transformation's webpage.

World War II Studies, MA (LAWWSMA)

Online Degree Search Title: World War II Studies, MA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

Through advanced interdisciplinary study of World War II, students in the MA program in World War II studies explore the causes and effects of World War II, the global nature of the conflict, the evolution of governance and political systems, and human responses to conflict, violence and genocide. Program coursework also helps students contextualize current events through study of the war's historical, political and cultural legacies.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including an capstone course (WWS 597).

Required Core (12 credit hours)

WWS 561 Decision Points I (3)

WWS 562 Decision Points II (3)

WWS 563 The Lived Experience of World War II (3)

WWS 566 World War II Today(3)

Electives or Research (9 credit hours)

Other Requirements (6 credit hours)

HST 454 History of Genocide (3) or WWS 564 The Global War (3)

WWS 460 World War II (3) or HST 460 World War II (3)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

WWS 597 Capstone (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should refer to the academic unit for the approved electives and research course list.

For the other requirements section, students must take either HST 454 or WWS 564. If a student chooses to take HST 454 to fulfill the requirement, they may take WWS 564 as an elective. Likewise, if a student chooses to take WWS 564 to fulfill a requirement, they may take HST 454 as an elective. Other coursework may be used with approval of the academic unit.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree (or equivalent) or master's degree from a regionally accredited college or university. Students from any field who demonstrate potential will be considered for admission.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of recommendation
- letter of intent or written statement
- written responses to unit-developed prompts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

An applicant's potential for success is determined by the quality of writing and clarity of thought demonstrated in the letter of intent and responses to the application questions. Letters of recommendation that point to a student's ability to deliver high-quality academic work and persist to an academic goal receive priority. An applicant's GPA and academic performance, particularly in humanities coursework, also indicate potential.

During the application process, applicants are prompted to write short written responses to World War II-related questions. These responses serve to demonstrate to the committee a student's writing ability and potential for thoughtful participation in degree coursework.

Additional Curriculum Information

Completion of an evidence-based doctoral applied project focused on a clinical issue relevant to advanced practice nursing is required.

The American Nurses Credentialing Center has recommended a minimum of 1,000 postbaccalaureate practicum hours for all students completing a nurse practitioner doctoral program. This program includes 1,125 practicum hours, exceeding the ANCC requirement.

For electives or research, students should see the academic unit for the approved course list. Other coursework may be used with the approval of the academic unit.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows up to 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this program.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Edson College of Nursing and Health Innovation.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's and a master's degree in nursing from a nationally recognized, regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three professional letters of recommendation
- resume
- goal statement
- admission essay

- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency per the Graduate College requirement and all requirements for the Commission on Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools.

A current unencumbered RN license in the state in which the student plans to do clinical practicums is required. All students are also required to have an unencumbered Arizona RN license or an unencumbered compact state RN license as mandated by the Arizona State Board of Nursing. The RN license must remain unencumbered throughout enrollment in any nursing program.

An interview with program faculty is required.

Health and safety requirements include passing disposition on a background clearance and satisfactory completion of a substance screen.

No admission examination is required.

Applicants will be reviewed on a space-available basis after the priority deadline. Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Advanced Nursing Practice (Neonatal Nurse Practitioner), DNP (NUANPNDNP)

Online Degree Search Title: Neonatal Nurse Practitioner, DNP

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

This program is designed for nurses seeking to become advanced practical nurses as neonatal nurse practitioners. Providing a foundation for this specialty are graduate courses in application of theory to advanced practice; application of evidence to advanced practice; advanced pathophysiology; advanced pharmacology and advanced health assessment. Advanced neonatal nursing theory and clinical courses focus on the development of a framework for developmentally supportive, family-centered, culturally appropriate advanced nursing practice with infants, children and families.

Focused clinical experiences are arranged with appropriate preceptors and administrators. Every attempt will be made to arrange this in the student's geographical area. In the event that clinical sites are unavailable in that area or if the faculty determine the student needs additional faculty supervision of skills, the student will be required to complete the clinical experience in the Phoenix area. Experiences with disadvantaged and multicultural populations are encouraged as are experiences in rural areas, and sites are available for these experiences.

Biospecimen Repository Administration (certificate), Certificate (NUBRAGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Biospecimen Repository Administration (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Online

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Please explore Degree Search for other similar program options.

Program Description:

The biospecimen repository administration certificate program prepares students to oversee the business and administrative operations of a biospecimen repository. The collection, storage and distribution of biological samples such as blood and tissue for research and personalized medicine is changing how researchers and doctors look at health, disease and treatments. Biobanks, or biospecimen repositories, found in hospitals, research institutions, laboratories, academic sites and pharmaceutical companies, need trained and capable leaders who can oversee the business, technical and operational aspects of the site including regulatory and informatics pieces. Leaders also need to apply best practices, existing regulations, and current methods and standards for the proper management of biospecimen repositories.

Focusing on collection, storage and disbursement of samples, the program includes ethical and practical considerations of biospecimen resource management and operations, resource evaluation and implementation, and project management. Related business concepts such as cost-benefit analytics, personnel and sustainability of the repository are also covered in the program. Emphasizing principles of ethical and quality practices, this program will prepare students to work in this highly regulated field.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (15 credit hours)

HCR 545 Foundations of Biospecimen Repository Administration (3)

HCR 546 Management of Biospecimen Repository Operations (3)

HCR 547 Biospecimen Resource and Technology Management (3)

HCR 548 Regulation and Ethics in Biospecimen Repository Administration (3)

HCR 549 Scientific Innovation and Biospecimen Repository Administration (3)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Edson College of Nursing and Health Innovation.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in any business, science, engineering, nursing, medicine, math, technology or health-related field or a bachelor's degree in any other field not mentioned above with more than six months vocational experience in the biospecimen repository administration field.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00= "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Women's Health Nurse Practitioner (Certificate), Certificate (NUWHNPGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Women's Health Nurse Practitioner (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

This certificate program, accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, is designed for nurses with a master's degree in nursing who seek to become women's health nurse practitioners or for nurse practitioners with a master's degree or DNP who seek additional certification as women's health nurse practitioners.

This women's health nurse practitioner certificate program is offered in a hybrid iCourse and in-person format that requires students to travel to campus for orientation and then two or three times per semester. Women's health care theory and clinical courses include theories, principles and clinical skills in the care of women and their families. Courses focus on critical thinking, diagnosis, problem-solving and nursing management of women throughout the maternity cycle and with common gynecological problems. Client education, communication and collaboration are emphasized.

Focused clinical experiences are arranged with appropriate preceptors and administrators. Every attempt is made to arrange this in the student's geographical area. In the event that clinical sites are unavailable in that area or if faculty determine the student needs additional faculty supervision of skills, the student is required to complete the clinical experience in the Phoenix area. Rural health and experiences with disadvantaged and multicultural populations are encouraged, and sites are available for these experiences.

Community Resources and Development, PHD (PPCRDPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Community Resources and Development, PhD
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The School of Community Resources and Development offers a graduate program leading to the PhD in community resources and development.

This is a research-intensive doctoral degree program grounded in theory and designed to prepare graduates for research-oriented careers in higher education, governmental agencies, nonprofit organizations and private-sector businesses. The program is based on the concept of building sustainable and healthy communities as the unifying principle in the established focus areas of:

- community studies
- nonprofit leadership and management
- parks, recreation and leisure
- tourism development and management

The theoretical and methodological approaches embedded in this program serve to integrate scholarship in these areas, in order for students to gain a more meaningful understanding of and impact on community life and dynamics.

The program is transdisciplinary in nature. The core faculty engaged in this program are housed in the School of Community Resources and Development. In addition, the program builds on current collaborations with faculty with related research interests from many ASU departments, schools and centers.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (24 credit hours)

CRD 610 Sustainable Communities (3)

CRD 620 Community Research Methods (3)

CRD 640 Research Seminar in Community Resources and Development I (3)

CRD 650 Research Seminar II (3)

CRD 683 Fieldwork (3)

REC 502 Statistical and Data Analysis (3)

REC 555 Theoretical Perspectives in Community Development (3)

advanced statistics or methods (3)

Electives or Research (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

CRD 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curricular Information

Up to 30 hours from a previously awarded master's degree can count toward the doctoral requirements.

All students are advised as a cohort initially by the doctoral program director. Students are required to take 24 credit hours of core coursework, 15 hours of which are with the cohort during the first year and six hours of which are with the cohort during the second year. Students are assigned an individual advisor or mentor at the end of the first year of study. A supervisory committee is also formed at the end of the first year which reflects the interests of the student and faculty.

Each student develops a plan of study in consultation with the doctoral program coordinator, advisor and supervisory committee. Students complete elective coursework, including courses from contributing disciplines, selected in consultation with their advisor to foster the transdisciplinary nature of the degree program. Students also complete at least six credit hours of CRD 792 Research and 12 credit hours of CRD 799 Dissertation. When the majority of coursework has been completed and before dissertation research is started, students must complete a written examination followed by an oral examination. These examinations must be completed within five years of admission.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- current and professional resume
- statement of academic and professional goals
- GRE test scores
- three letters of recommendation
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. International applicants are also required to submit TOEFL or IELTS scores and a financial guarantee statement.

The statement of academic and professional goals should be in sufficient detail to indicate compatibility with the educational objectives and capabilities of the doctoral program

The recommendation letters may be a mix of academic and professional references, but each must address the applicant's capacity to successfully complete the doctoral program.

Students applying to the program are expected to have from an accredited institution a master's degree which included a master's degree-level research methods and statistics class or classes. If deficiencies exist in community resource and development-related coursework at the master's degree level, appropriate classes are suggested.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines and admission terms.

Applications are reviewed by the admission committee and recommendations for admission are then made by the graduate program director to the dean for the Graduate College.

Criminal Sentencing and Sentencing Advocacy (Certificate), Certificate (PPCSAGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Criminal Sentencing and Sentencing Advocacy (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

Social workers, criminal justice professionals and recent graduates of psychology and other social and behavioral sciences perform a number of roles in the disposition and sentencing of public offenders. They also provide support for victims of crime during the criminal justice process.

The certificate program in criminal sentencing and sentencing advocacy assumes that in order for any professional to function effectively they must have a fundamental knowledge of the respective roles sentencing professionals play during various phases of the criminal justice process.

In keeping with this viewpoint, all students are required to take courses for practice as both a presentence investigator and a sentencing advocate. Those courses are seminars in courts and sentencing, in presentence investigations, and in alternatives to penal sanctions. After taking these required courses, they select an area of specialization that will further their expertise as either a probation professional, mitigation specialist or victim advocate. They take these courses from a range of electives available in the schools of Criminology and Criminal Justice and Social Work.

This interprofessional certificate program also provides participants with content on the relationship between mental disorder and crime and the way in which differential sentencing frameworks affect the sentencing of offenders suffering from mental disorders. This course is highly recommended for social workers desiring to practice as mitigation specialists and in criminal justice professions responsible for making recommendations about the appropriateness of sentencing alternatives.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (9 credit hours)

CRJ 513 Seminar in Courts and Sentencing (3)

SWG 528 Presentence Investigations (3)

SWG 529 Alternatives Penal Sanctions (3)

Criminology and Criminal Justice, PHD (PPCRJPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Criminology and Criminal Justice, PhD

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The School of Criminology and Criminal Justice at Arizona State University offers an on-campus program of coursework and research leading to the PhD in criminology and criminal justice.

This program emphasizes criminal justice theory, research and policy and is designed to produce highly skilled criminology and criminal justice faculty and agency researchers and administrators.

The doctoral program is organized around five components: a comprehensive examination, a core of required courses in research methods and analytical techniques, a core of required courses in theory and research on crime and the criminal justice system, a dissertation, and elective courses in criminology, criminal justice and related fields.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

The doctoral program in criminology and criminal justice includes a minimum of 72 credit hours of coursework and 12 credit hours (and only 12) of dissertation. A maximum of 30 credit hours of coursework from a previously awarded master's degree or JD may, with the approval of the supervisory committee, be applied toward the doctoral plan of study.

Each student is required to complete coursework in two core areas. This includes six credit hours of coursework in theory and research on crime and the criminal justice system and nine credit hours of coursework on research methods and analytical techniques. Elective courses comprise the remainder of the coursework required for the doctorate. All students must demonstrate proficiency in research design as well as quantitative and qualitative methods.

Required Core (15 credit hours)

CRJ 601 Seminar on Criminological Theory (3)

CRJ 602 Seminar on Criminal Justice Policies and Practices (3)

CRJ 603 Advanced Research Design (3)

CRJ 604 Advanced Statistical Analysis (3)

CRJ 605 Topics in Quantitative Methods (3)

Electives (27 credit hours)

Students choose a minimum of nine courses in consultation with the supervisory committee (27).

Other Requirements (30 credit hours)

credit hours for coursework from master's degree or JD (30)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

dissertation (12)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

An applicant should hold a master's degree from an accredited institution; it may be in criminal justice, criminology or another field (e.g., sociology, political science, history, social work, public administration, psychology or philosophy). In exceptional cases, the admission committee will consider applicants who hold only a bachelor's degree.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00="A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- GRE scores
- two letters of recommendation
- current curriculum vitae or resume
- personal statement
- sample of the applicant's written work
- proof of English proficiency.

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency, which can be found at <https://admission.asu.edu/international/graduate/english-proficiency> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/graduate/english-proficiency>).

Official transcripts must be submitted from every university or institution in which a degree was awarded.

GRE scores must be from within the last five years.

The letters of recommendation must be from faculty members or others qualified to evaluate the applicant's academic potential for doctoral study.

The personal statement should not exceed five pages, and it should describe the applicant's prior education, relevant professional experience and career goals. The statement must explain how the doctorate in criminology and criminal justice will help the applicant attain his or her career goals. The statement should explicitly explain how the student's plans are consistent with the role and mission of the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice at ASU.

The applicant's sample of written work should be submitted electronically. The writing sample may be an article (published or unpublished), a research paper, or any other extended sample of expository skill, and the sample must be no longer than 35 pages in length. Longer writing samples should not be submitted without first consulting the graduate director. Documents should not be password protected. Acceptable file types are .rtf, .pdf, and .doc.

Students should see the unit website for application deadlines.

Domestic Violence and Evidence-Based Practice (Certificate), Certificate (PPDVEPGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Domestic Violence and Evidence-based Practice (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The certificate program in domestic violence and evidence-based practice provides graduate students with the experience and knowledge to intervene safely and effectively on behalf of the survivors of gender-based violence. Those knowledgeable about the dynamics of intimate partner violence are better equipped to assist those suffering its negative physical and mental health consequences. Students in the certificate program engage in service-based and classroom learning to understand the role of evidence-based interventions in promoting survivor safety and client empowerment. The certificate program prepares students to become Arizona state-certified advocates for victims of domestic violence.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

SWG 545 Domestic Violence and National AmeriCorps Service (3)

Restricted Electives (6 credit hours)

SWG 546 Approaches to Teen Dating Violence Prevention (3) or

SWG 618 Advanced Practice in Domestic Violence (3) or

SWG 647 The Domestic Violence Movement: An Intersectional Framework (3) or

SWG 648 Intimate Partner Violence Risk Assessment (3)

Other Requirement (6 credit hours)

SWG 541 Field Practicum I (3) or SWG 641 Advanced Practicum: Direct Practice I (3) or SWG 643 Advanced Practicum: Planning, Social Work Administration and Community Practice I (3)

SWG 542 Field Practicum II (3) or SWG 642 Advanced Practicum: Direct Practice II (3) or SWG 644 Advanced Practicum: Planning, Social Work Administration and Community Practice II (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

For restricted electives, students select two courses from the approved course list. Other coursework may be used with the approval of the academic unit.

For the other requirement section, students must select one course from SWG 541, SWG 641 or SWG 643 and one course from SWG 542, SWG 642 or SWG 643. Other coursework may be used with approval of the academic unit.

The student's department-specific field experience practicum credits may be substituted for the other requirement section with department approval.

All students are required to complete 300 hours (minimum) of domestic violence service through a field experience practicum. Students should work with the academic unit in coordinating the field experience practicum. Concurrent to the beginning of their field experience practicum, students will take the Domestic Violence and National AmeriCorps Service core course (SWG 545) in order to learn about the foundations for working with domestic violence victims. The coursework and field experience practicum experience maximize experiential learning opportunities.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution and are degree-seeking graduate students. Experience in social work, social services or a related field is required.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

International students who need an F1 or J1 visa will first need to apply to and be accepted into a graduate degree program prior to being considered for the certificate program. International students residing in the U.S. on other types of visas must adhere to all Graduate College policies and procedures regarding admission be considered for admission to this certificate program.

Applicants interested in the domestic violence and evidence-based practice certificate will be asked to attend an interview. The interview is a chance to help the student find an appropriate field experience or practicum to match the certificate requirements.

Emergency Management and Homeland Security (Cybersecurity Policy and Management), MA (PPEHSCPMMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Emergency Management and Homeland Security (Cybersecurity Policy and Management), MA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The cybersecurity policy and management concentration under the MA program in emergency management and homeland security degree provides motivated students with knowledge, skills and abilities to assume leadership, key management and other key operational positions with public sector agencies (or related private sector organizations) with responsibilities related to managing cybersecurity hazards in the area of homeland security, emergency management, critical infrastructure protection, risk management, and other related fields. Cybersecurity is an important threat and vulnerability issue that cuts across multiple domains.

This concentration is uniquely geared toward professionals in emergency management, homeland security, critical infrastructure protection, hazard mitigation, planning and emergency preparedness who do not seek nor require highly technical training in cybersecurity (beyond a basic competency level) but, instead, have major operational responsibilities that pertain to cyber-related vulnerabilities. This concentration is a unique contribution: It provides education and training on cyber policy and management issues for general administrators, and further, it leverages the PLuS Alliance for shared international course offerings.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Latino Cultural Competency in Social Work (certificate), Certificate (PPSWGGRCL)

Online Degree Search Title: Latino Cultural Competency in Social Work (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

In response to need, ASU offers a graduate certificate in Latino cultural competency through the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions School of Social Work. The School of Social Work offers Latino-oriented courses with an emphasis on Spanish language development for professional social workers.

The goal of the program is to enhance a social work professional's capacity for engaging in culturally grounded practice with Latino clients and their families.

The program is intended for professionals who want to expand their employment potential by adding an expertise in professional services with Latinos and who want to learn the critical, cross-cultural factors that influence a worker's competency in forming professional helping relationships with Latinos as well as the social and cultural context and theoretical principles of social work practice with Latinos and learn the social service delivery issues involved in providing services for bilingual and limited- or non-English-speaking Latino populations.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

The following is required for students enrolled in the Master of Social Work program:

- completion of 480 hours of field practicum with Latino clients and communities (60 percent of case load to be Spanish-speaking)
- field practice consisting of six credit hours of field practicum
- six credit hours of Latino-oriented coursework
- SWG 533 Diversity and Oppression in a Social Work Context (3)

At least three credit hours are required to be taken from within the School of Social Work.

Requirements for those already working in the field of social work as a community professional social worker and community worker are as follows:
 Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020 1027

- six credit hours of independent study field practice consisting of the completion of 480 hours with Latino clients and communities (60 percent of client caseload to be Spanish-speaking)
- six credit hours of Latino-oriented coursework
- SWG 533 Diversity and Oppression in a Social Work Context (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

At least three credit hours of the Latino-oriented coursework are required to be taken from within the School of Social Work.

Students already working in the field of social work may petition to use their place of employment for the six credit hours of independent study field practice.

Students with a Master of Social Work or BSW degree who have completed SWG 533 in the past five years may substitute another Latino-oriented course.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- the School of Social Work Latino cultural competency application form and the required $50 application fee
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

No more than two certificate courses may be completed before applying for admission to the certificate program.

Social work graduate students must have graduate status in the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions School of Social Work and must demonstrate proficiency in the Spanish language.

Nonprofit Leadership and Management, MNLM (PPNPSMNS)

Online Degree Search Title: Nonprofit Leadership and Management, MNLM

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Program Description:

Offered through the School of Community Resources and Development, the MNLM program is intended for mid-level professionals who work in or desire to work in the nonprofit sector at senior leadership and management levels. The program provides an opportunity to obtain an advanced degree that addresses the unique character of nonprofit organizations and the social sector.

Students explore both theory and the practice of leadership and management in the nonprofit sector. The degree allows graduates enhanced recognition and credentials similar to students who have graduate degrees in administration or management.

Degree Requirements:

33 credit hours including the required capstone course (NLM 620).

Required Core (18 credit hours)

NLM 510 The Nonprofit Sector (3)

NLM 520 Financial and Resource Management (3)

NLM 530 Program Evaluation and Information Management (3)

NLM 540 Strategic Human Resources Management (3) or NLM 545 Volunteer Resource Management (3)

NLM 550 Philanthropy (3)

NLM 620 Capstone: Critical Issues in Nonprofit Management (3)

Electives (15 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students are required to take 18 credit hours of core coursework, of which three credit hours are a capstone course that is completed at the end of the program of study. The capstone course is integrative and case-based, allowing students to synthesize material from prior coursework. Successful completion of this course is required in place of a thesis or applied project.

Students complete 15 credit hours of related elective coursework. Courses are selected from two contributing disciplines (public affairs and social work) to foster the transdisciplinary nature of the degree. Students may petition for one three credit hour course not listed as an approved elective in their program of study as long as students can establish an intellectual and professional development objective that substantiates the course selection. The petition should be submitted prior to enrollment in an elective.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- curriculum vitae or resume
- statement of educational and career goals
- three reference letters
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency. International applicants are also required to submit TOEFL or IELTS scores and a financial guarantee statement.

The statement of educational and career goals should be written in sufficient detail to indicate compatibility with the educational objectives and capabilities of the school.

Reference letters should be from a combination of academic and professional references. References from friends and family members are not accepted.

Students currently pursuing the nonprofit leadership and management certificate who are interested in applying for the master's program must apply to the degree program before the completion of nine credit hours in their certificate program.

Participatory Governance (certificate), Certificate (PPPGORCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Participatory Governance (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe

Program Description:

This certificate program in participatory governance provides students with the knowledge and skills to develop, implement and evaluate participatory governance programs and public engagement activities.

This transdisciplinary program combines academic rigor with practical skills. Students examine the main theories and research findings on participatory governance and public engagement and familiarize themselves with past and current democratic innovations in the U.S. and around the world. Students also develop the capacity to design, carry out and examine processes of participatory governance and public engagement.

The certificate program, administered by the School of Public Affairs, may be pursued as a specialization within an existing ASU graduate program or as a stand-alone program.

Degree Requirements:

15 credit hours.

Required Core (9 credit hours)

PAF 531 Community Conflict Resolution (3)

PAF 565 Theories and Practices of Democracy (3)

PAF 566 Participatory Governance and Civic Engagement (3)

Electives (6 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information Electives are chosen from a list of preapproved courses and are selected with the faculty advisor. The faculty advisor directs the selection of the electives to ensure that they focus on a common theme and to see that the student's experiences in the courses align with the learning goals outlined for the certificate.

Students are required to maintain at least a 3.00 GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") and to have no more than one grade below a "B-" in courses taken to complete the certificate program.

Admission Requirements:

Policy Informatics (Certificate), Certificate (PPPOIGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Policy Informatics (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The policy informatics certificate program provides knowledge and skills to students seeking careers in which they will use informatics tools, models and simulations to help individuals and groups deliberate and evaluate policy decisions as well as explore new governance infrastructures. Emphasis is placed on theories and research concerning decision-making, complexity theory and visualization of quantitative and qualitative information, collective intelligence, behavioral economics and persuasive technologies.

Policy informatics helps to advance evidence-driven policy design, wherein scientific models and analyses drive decision-making for resolution of complex policy challenges, dilemmas and problems. This is both an emerging field of research and a community of practice focusing on advancing decision-making in the public sector through information-centric analysis of evidence that leverages computational and technological advances. Professionals who use policy informatics are involved in designing, managing and evaluating information systems and infrastructures for policy construction, analysis and implementation.

Policy informatics advances the transdisciplinary nature of the public administration discipline by infusing it with the advances of information technology, management of information systems, and computational and informational science perspectives.

Program Evaluation and Data Analytics, MS (PPPGEMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Program Evaluation and Data Analytics, MS

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Program Description:

The MS in program evaluation and data analytics is a professional degree program that emphasizes skills needed to leverage data to improve organizational performance in the public, nonprofit and private sectors. It combines courses in program evaluation that provide tools to assess policy or program impact with data science classes that empower students to utilize a diverse array of data sources in new and exciting ways.

Students receive training in data programming, visualization, dashboard design, open data, project management and impact analysis. Through this, students build the technical skills necessary to implement evidence-based approaches to policy and management.

Unlike other data scientist degrees, this program is built using public sector and nonprofit examples. Students do not need a background in computer programming before starting the degree. Through individualized attention and a project-based curriculum, students develop expertise in performance and evaluation frameworks for social change.

Graduates are prepared to work as policy analysts, managers, chief data officers, or evaluation specialists.

Public Administration, EMPA (PPPUAEMPA)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Administration - Executive, EMPA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The EMPA is a 19-month, online graduate degree program which also features three-day face-to-face executive sessions in both Phoenix and Washington, D.C. The program is a collaboration between the School of Public Affairs and the McCain Institute for International Leadership.

The Executive Master of Public Administration program is designed for public sector leaders throughout the world. Students participate in the program as part of a learning cohort, and the one-course-at-a-time online structure enables them to maintain a work and life balance as they immerse in each topic. The learning experience begins with an orientation and executive session in Phoenix. Approximately one year later, the class reconvenes in Washington, D.C., for a second executive session. The executive master's degree program ends in Phoenix, where students present their applied projects.

The ASU Executive Master of Public Administration program enables students to expand the breadth and depth of their professional network. The online curriculum attracts a more geographically diverse pool of applicants from around the world. The executive sessions in Phoenix and Washington, D.C., further enable students to develop deeper relationships with their classmates.

Executive Master of Public Administration students are selected based on their ability to demonstrate the value they would add to the learning experience of the entire class, and a new cohort begins each year.

Public Administration, MPA (PPPADTMPA)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Administration - Downtown Phoenix, MPA

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The MPA is a transdisciplinary, professional degree program designed to prepare students for public service, public management and policy analysis at the local, state and national levels of government.

Students may elect to specialize in one of the four approved Master of Public Administration concentrations: urban management, nonprofit administration, emergency management or public finance.

The urban management concentration provides knowledge and skills for students seeking careers in local urban government management and enables students to develop the skills and techniques used by city and urban leaders and managers.

The concentration in nonprofit administration is intended for professionals who work in or desire to work in the nonprofit sector and who wish to explore research, theory and the practice of management and leadership in the nonprofit sector.

The concentration in emergency management prepares graduates for a challenging career as a professional emergency manager. This program allows students to focus on concerns related to emergency management within the larger field of public administration.

The concentration in public finance provides knowledge and skills for students seeking or advancing careers in areas in which financial management plays an integral role in governance. This concentration emphasizes theories and research concerning urban economics and public finance, managing money in the public sector, public budgeting and finance, and capital budgeting and financing.

In addition, the school offers concurrent programs in planning, sustainability, criminology and criminal justice, and social work. For admission and program requirements, students should see <https://spa.asu.edu/content/concurrent-degrees> (<https://spa.asu.edu/content/concurrent-degrees>).

Additional Curriculum Information

To meet the electives or research requirement, students choose one course from NLM 520, PAF 590 and PAF 584 for three credit hours. Students also choose any PAF 500-level course for three credit hours.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution in a related field. Related fields include social science degrees, although the department may accept applicants with degrees from all educational backgrounds provided the minimum requirements for the degree program are met.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of recommendation
- GRE scores
- written statement
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

At least two of the three letters of recommendation should be from faculty or other academic staff who can evaluate the applicant's academic performance.

The written statement should be one to two pages in length and describe the applicant's educational and career goals. This statement is also used as a sample of the applicant's writing abilities.

Students enrolling in Master of Public Administration core courses must demonstrate minimum competency in statistics and American government. Courses taken to fulfill the competency do not count toward the total credit hours required for the degree program. Completion of prerequisite courses is not a requirement for admission but must be completed within one semester after starting the program.

Competency in statistics is met with a grade of "B" (scale is 4.00 = "A") or higher in one of the approved courses (PAF 301 or PAF 401, POS 401, PSY 230, ECN 221, QBA 221, SWU 321, STP 226 or SOC 390) within the past two years or passing a diagnostic test approved by the MPA committee. Other courses taken within the last two years may be substituted upon approval of the Master of Public Administration director.

Competency in American government is a demonstrated understanding of American government institutions and processes. Students may be required to take an undergraduate class in American government (PAF 300, PAF 340, POS 110 or POS 310) with a grade of "B" or higher. The College-Level Examination Program can also be used to demonstrate competency in American government.

Public Administration (Urbanism), PHD (PPPAURBPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Administration and Policy (Urbanism), PhD

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The PhD in public administration and policy is a theoretically grounded research degree program designed to prepare students for an academic career. The program is also appropriate for individuals who want to conduct high-level research and policy development in public and nonprofit agencies, foundations and research institutes. It is designed for students who seek full-time study.

The goal is to develop well-rounded, independent scholars who are grounded in the classic and current literatures of public administration and public policy, skilled in research methods, and ready to make a positive and important contribution to the field through teaching and research.

The doctoral program in public administration and policy with an urbanism concentration permits students to draw upon the extensive resources in urban affairs at ASU. As a result, these students are poised for success as productive and active scholars, researchers and teachers upon graduation.

The concentration in urbanism is a mechanism for organizing varied perspectives on urbanism into a collective body of scholarship. The study of public administration is enriched by grounding it in a comprehensive understanding of the characteristics of urban context and the dynamic forces that shape them. The concentration in urbanism leverages the varied interests in urbanism and helps emerging scholars as they attempt to compare, contrast and take stock of urbanism. Working with faculty from across a range of departments and programs at ASU, doctoral students will be able to capture the creative tensions that scholarship on urbanism has inspired in order to stimulate a provocative, constructive kind of inquiry.

Degree Requirements:

90 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (24 credit hours)

PAF 601 Advanced Public Policy Seminar (3)

PAF 602 Advanced Research Design for Public Policy and Management (3)

PAF 603 Advanced Economics for Public Administration and Public Policy (3)

PAF 604 Intellectual Foundations of Public Administration (3)

PAF 605 Organization Theory and Behavior Seminar (3)

PAF 609 Advanced Quantitative Methods Seminar (3)

PAF 610 Advanced Qualitative Methods for Public Affairs Research (3)

PAF 620 Public Administration Professional Development Workshop (3)

Concentration (3 credit hours)

GCU 516 Principles of Urbanism (3)

Urbanism Electives (12 credit hours)

Research (3 credit hours)

PAF 792 Research (3)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

PAF 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a master's degree, in a related field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate coursework
- completed checklist
- written statement
- current resume or curriculum vitae
- three letters of recommendation
- samples of research reports or papers
- scores on the GRE (verbal, quantitative, analytical)
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must submit TOEFL scores to be considered for admission (institution code: 4007). This is true even for those who have a master's degree from a United States university. To be considered for admission to the doctoral program in public administration and policy, the applicant's minimum score on a traditional TOEFL test must be 600; the minimum score for a TOEFL iBT must be 100. Applicants with scores below the minimum will not be considered. More on the English proficiency requirement is available at <https://admission.asu.edu/international/graduate/english-proficiency> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/graduate/english-proficiency>).

The written statement of educational and career goals must include a discussion of research interests.

The letters of recommendation should be primarily from faculty members. All letters should address the candidate's capacity to successfully complete the doctoral program. They should assess the student's capacity for critical and analytic thought, ability to communicate effectively both orally and in writing, and commitment to completion of the program.

Only GRE test scores from within the past five years will be accepted, and analytical scores will be considered in admission decisions.

All applicants are expected to have completed graduate level statistics and research methods classes before admission. Applicants also are expected to have sufficient formal coursework in public administration to pursue doctoral study in the field. Admitted students are required to take PAF 501, PAF 502, PAF 503, PAF 504, PAF 508 (or their equivalents) and statistics prior to beginning the doctoral core courses. Applicants who are not pursuing an MPA should not take these courses until they consult with the doctoral program director.

Applicants are admitted for fall only. Admission is competitive; a limited number of well-qualified applicants will be admitted each year. Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

ASU's School of Public Affairs expects applicants for the doctorate to have demonstrated competency in the following subject areas at the time of application: organizational theory, public policy analysis, economics and quantitative analysis.
Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020

Applicants who have obtained a master's degree accredited by the Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration in public affairs, public administration or public policy will not be required to complete prerequisites for admission to ASU's School of Public Affairs. In some cases, applicants from allied fields (i.e., political science, economics, sociology, business) will not be required to complete prerequisites, depending upon the extent to which previous training aligns with the competencies described above.

As is the case with all applicants, the doctoral program director or advisors may require or recommend completion of courses when there is a perceived deficit, especially if the deficit relates to graduate-level quantitative analysis and economics (PAF 502 and PAF 504, respectively, or equivalent courses). However, these requirements or recommendations, if any, are not a barrier to admission.

In cases where the doctoral student applicant has graduated from a public affairs, public administration or public policy program from another nation, or from a program not accredited by NASPAA, the applicant may be admitted and required to meet prerequisites after a review by the doctoral committee and doctoral program director.

Students applying with master's degrees from programs not closely related to public affairs (e.g., engineering, modern languages, chemistry) will be required to meet prerequisites equivalent to the courses required for either ASU's Master of Public Administration or Master of Public Policy: <https://spa.asu.edu/content/graduate-programs> (<https://spa.asu.edu/content/graduate-programs>).

Prior to enrolling in any of the school's core classes, all students are expected to be familiar with the foundational competency readings related to organizational theory, public policy analysis, economics and quantitative analysis.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program and have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Public Policy, MPP (PPPUBPMPP)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Policy, MPP

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The MPP program allows students to approach the study of public policy with a focus on public policy in the urban setting. The master's degree program in public policy prepares students for professional careers as policy analysts and leaders in public service involved in the formulation, approval, implementation and evaluation of public policy at all levels of government and in the private and nonprofit sectors. The program can also serve as a platform for preparation for doctoral studies in public policy, public administration, urban studies and other related programs. Students learn analytical techniques and conceptual frameworks for understanding policy issues and identifying potential solutions, and about applying these skills to real-world issues --- especially to the needs of cities in the region. Students also gain an understanding of policies addressing issues such as poverty, education, the environment and public safety

The program trains people to lead by making positive policy decisions, addressing the difficult questions associated with public policy and managing the process of policy creation, approval, implementation and evaluation. At the conclusion of the master's degree program, students will be able to identify, analyze and interpret the challenges and dilemmas of public policies, especially those of urban areas. Students will also be able to approach policy analysis with a variety of quantitative and qualitative methods and be prepared to develop innovative processes and tools to deal with changing realities of public policy and address issues on a global, regional and local scale.

Public Policy (Policy Informatics), MPP (PPPUPPIMPP)

Online Degree Search Title: Public Policy (Policy Informatics), MPP

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The MPP program allows students to approach the study of public policy with a focus on public policy in the urban setting. The master's degree program in public policy prepares students for professional careers as policy analysts and leaders in public service involved in the formulation, approval, implementation and evaluation of public policy at all levels of government and in the private and nonprofit sectors. The program can also serve as a platform for preparation for doctoral studies in public policy, public administration, urban studies and other related programs. Students learn analytical techniques and conceptual frameworks for understanding policy issues and identifying potential solutions and about applying these skills to real-world issues --- especially to the needs of cities in the region. Students also gain an understanding of policies addressing issues such as poverty, education, the environment and public safety.

The program trains people capable of leading by making positive policy decisions, addressing the difficult questions associated with public policy, and managing the process of policy creation, approval, implementation and evaluation. At the conclusion of the master's degree program, students will be able to identify, analyze and interpret the challenges and dilemmas of public policies, especially those of urban areas. Students will also be able to approach policy analysis with a variety of quantitative and qualitative methods and be prepared to develop innovative processes and tools to deal with changing realities of public policy and address issues on a global, regional and local scale.

The Master of Public Policy program with a concentration in policy informatics provides the knowledge and skills for students who seek careers that will require them to use informatics tools, models and simulations to help individuals and groups deliberate and evaluate policy decisions and explore new governance infrastructures. This concentration emphasizes theories and research concerning decision-making, complexity theory and visualization of quantitative and qualitative information, collective intelligence, behavioral economics and persuasive technologies.

The concentration combines mastery of advanced methods for processing information with domain expertise that will help humans understand complex social phenomena and achieve goals within public and governance applications. The program's design responds to the need for professionals with domain knowledge who can take a problem-driven, system-level, user-oriented perspective in developing and applying informatics systems to address societal and governance needs.

Social Work, MSW (PPSWDMSW)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Work - Standard Program, MSW

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tucson, Online

Program Description:

The professional program leading to the MSW degree prepares social workers for advanced professional social work practice. The program is designed to prepare social workers to be capable of responding effectively to the needs of special populations, particularly in the American Southwest.

The Master of Social Work program is accredited by the Council on Social Work Education.

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with:

Juris Doctor, JD

Public Administration - Downtown Phoenix, MPA

Degree Requirements:

45 credit hours and a portfolio, or 45 credit hours and a thesis, or 45 credit hours and an applied project (SWG 593), or 45 credit hours including the required capstone course (SWG 621), or 60 credit hours and a portfolio (MSW/MPA dual degree), or 60 credit hours and a thesis (MSW/MPA dual degree), or 60 credit hours and an applied project (SWG 593), or 60 credit hours including the required capstone course (SWG 621) (MSW/MPA dual degree).

Students begin the standard Master of Social Work program in the fall and they begin in the fall or spring for the online Master of Social Work program. The program may be completed within four semesters (full time) or six semesters (part time). It is a 45 to 60 credit hour program, including coursework and field instruction. It is divided into a foundation year (30 credit hours of core curriculum) taken by all students and a concentration year (30 credit hours).

The foundation year includes basic courses in direct practice, organizational and community change, social policy, human behavior and research.

In the second year, students pursue a concentration in one of the following:

- advanced direct practice
- advanced generalist
- policy, administration and community practice

Students who pursue the advanced direct practice concentration also select one of the following three specializations: children, youth and families; health, behavioral health; or public child welfare.

Students are required to complete two internships: a foundation field placement (480 hours) and a concentration field placement (480 hours) in a different setting.

Culminating Events: The culminating events available to on-campus students are SWG 599 Thesis, SWG 593 Applied Project, SWG 621 Capstone course and the master's portfolio. The culminating events available to online students are SWG 593 Applied Project, SWG 621 Capstone course and the master's degree portfolio. The academic unit will advise and monitor the online campus students to ensure they choose the appropriate culminating event.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution. All applicants are required to have completed a course in human biology and a course in statistics before enrolling in the graduate program or before registering for SWG 519.

The School of Social Work requires one of the following:

- undergraduate degree with 30 credit hours in liberal arts courses at the undergraduate or graduate level
- Bachelor of Social Work from a Council on Social Work Education-accredited school of social work
- liberal arts undergraduate degree

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work
- three letters of reference
- professional resume that includes volunteer and paid work experience
- statement of educational and career goals
- signed standards of ethical and professional behavior form
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

A combination of academic and professional references is desirable. References from friends, family members or personal therapists are not accepted. At least one of the three required references must be from the applicant's BSW field instructor or, if employed in a social work-related job for two or more years, a recommendation from the applicant's supervisor.

Professional resume should include both work and volunteer experience in social service organizations. In order to be considered for possible admission, applicants who do not have work experience in social service organizations are required to have a minimum of 240 hours of volunteer experience in the social services over a six-month period in the five years immediately preceding application.

Guidelines for writing the statement of educational and career goals can be found at <https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/msw-application-proceduresmaterials> (<https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/msw-application-proceduresmaterials>).

Test scores from either the GRE or the Miller Analogies Test are required only if the applicant's junior and senior GPA was below a 3.20 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students should see the program website for application deadlines. Applicants admitted to the standard Master of Social Work degree program begin classes in the fall, and applicants admitted to the online Master of Social Work degree program begin classes in the fall or the spring.

Part-time Program

Students are admitted each fall to a planned part-time program and for the Master of Social Work online degree program in the fall or spring. Students interested in this option must specifically apply to the part-time program and complete it in accordance with the plan developed to finish the degree in three years.

Transfer Credit

Upon recommendation of the admission committee, the first year of graduate study (up to 30 graduate credit hours) earned at another school of social work that is accredited by the Council on Social Work Education may be transferred and applied toward the Master of Social Work degree program at ASU. Under these circumstances, the student must complete the second full year of graduate study (at least 30 credit hours of graduate work) at ASU. Transfer work must have been completed within three years of the semester and year of admission to the Master of Social Work degree program at ASU with a grade of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Exemption and Waiver Examinations

The number of hours required to complete the standard Master of Social Work program ranges from 45 to 60 credit hours. In addition to transferring in credit, per the recommendation of the School of Social Work director and the Master of Social Work coordinator, admitted students may meet requirements of up to 15 hours of credit toward the degree by exempting up to 15 hours of foundation coursework without examination or successfully completing examinations in SWG 501, SWG 502 or SWG 519. Students should note that, when applicable, the academic unit will provide a rationale for a student's exemption if the student is not from a Bachelor of Social Work program accredited by the Council on Social Work Education.

Concurrent degrees are currently unavailable for the online Master of Social Work degree program.

Students should contact the School of Social Work at (602) 496-0800 with any questions about the application process.

Social Work, PHD (PPSW2PHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Social Work, PhD

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The purpose of the PhD program in social work is to train future social work scholars, a social work professional engaged in research, teaching and service.

Supplementary to the coursework, this doctoral program offers students opportunities to be actively involved in both research and teaching. Students benefit from the close mentorship of the committed faculty and regular partnerships with our many internal research centers and offices. Students also receive valuable opportunities to develop a teaching portfolio, positioning them to succeed in academic careers.

Graduates are prepared to enter careers in applied research that enhance human well-being, particularly among oppressed and vulnerable populations, and to educate the next generation of social workers.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Social Work Courses (12 credit hours)

Research Methods and Statistics (12 credit hours)

Directed Electives (9 credit hours)

Theory (3 credit hours)

Research (12 credit hours)

SWG 792 Research (12)

Culminating Experience (12 credit hours)

SWG 799 Dissertation (12)

Additional Curriculum Information

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. The doctoral program requires students to take a minimum of 36 course credit hours beyond the MSW in addition to the required 24 credit hours of research and dissertation; 84 credit hours are required beyond the bachelor's degree. Students may need to take additional coursework to achieve the competency requirements set by the program or set by their graduate supervisory committees.

Students develop their plan of study in consultation with the graduate supervisory committee. Required social work courses must be 700-level and approved by the doctoral program committee. Students should see the academic unit for approved course lists and other requirements for research methods and statistics courses, electives, and theory coursework.

Once the 36 minimum course credit hours are completed, students are required to register for 12 hours of SWG 792 Research before the defense of the prospectus and 12 hours of SWG 799 Dissertation after the prospectus defense. Students must be registered for at least one credit hour during the semester (including summer) when they do their dissertation proposal defense. At least one of the dissertation hours must be taken in the semester the student expects to defend his or her dissertation.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in social work or a closely related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work
- curriculum vitae or resume
- GRE scores
- personal statement
- three letters of reference
- required writing sample: social problem essay
- optional writing sample
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Admission to the doctoral program in the School of Social Work is based on the following criteria:

- an MSW from an accredited school of social work, preferably with two or more years of post-degree employment in human services
- experience in social work teaching or research and other scholarly activities
- experience with diverse populations
- goodness-of-fit with program goals
- good professional standing
- undergraduate and graduate GPA
- quality and extensiveness of social work experience
- research potential and creativity as demonstrated in requested essays and references
- scores of the GRE, with emphasis on verbal and analytic scores

Though an MSW is preferred, exceptions may be made for students with a BSW from an accredited school of social work and a master's degree in a related field and for students from countries without accreditation.

Guidelines for writing the statement can be found at <https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/application-and-admission> (<https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/application-and-admission>) under "PhD Application and Admission Information."

Applicants have the option of submitting a sample of their written work. Examples include a referred journal article, a class paper and a professional report such as one might write in an agency setting. The writing sample should illustrate the applicant's ability to succeed in the doctoral program. Guidelines for writing the statement can be found at <https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/application-and-admission> (<https://socialwork.asu.edu/content/application-and-admission>).

All required admission materials are submitted directly to Graduate Admission Services at <https://admission.asu.edu/graduate> (<https://admission.asu.edu/graduate>). Students should contact the School of Social Work at 602-496-0800 with any questions about the application process.

Students should see the program website for application deadlines.

Complex Adaptive Systems Science (certificate), Certificate (SUCASGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Complex Adaptive Systems Science (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe

Program Description:

Complex adaptive systems science is the study of interactive and dynamic systems that change over time, producing their own emergent properties. The complex adaptive systems science graduate certificate can be pursued along with any doctoral degree program at Arizona State University. Students in the certificate program pursue their chosen field of study while addressing complex global challenges.

The program aims to train the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing, university-wide research on complex adaptive system science at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive systems perspective to give science better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing our society today. Students become fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

Students pursuing the certificate must have a complex adaptive systems science faculty member on their supervisory committee.

Environmental and Sustainability Economics (Certificate), Certificate (SUESECGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Environmental and Sustainability Economics (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe

Program Description:

The graduate certificate in environmental and sustainability economics provides training in the economic theory and methodological tools of environmental and resource economics. ERE provides an approach to evaluate the consequences, social benefits and costs of changes to markets and environmental policies.

The target audience for this certificate are master's and doctoral degree students in fields with a sustainability, environmental science or policy focus, including sustainability, public affairs, biology, environmental social science, applied mathematics and agribusiness --- where training in ERE may be complementary to research interests or career development.

Graduates of the certificate program are able to identify and evaluate the economic assumptions embedded in policy analyses and recommendations, critically evaluate the validity of publications in environmental and resource economics, apply economic modeling approaches to real-world cases, and utilize econometric techniques to generate predictions and test hypotheses using applied economic models.

Degree Requirements:

17 credit hours.

Required Core (5 credit hours)

SOS 512 Environmental and Resource Economics (3)

SOS 529 Research Seminar in Environmental and Sustainability Economics (2)

Electives (12 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose one elective course in each of the following categories: microeconomic theory, statistical and econometric modeling, environmental and resource economics, and modeling and empirical methods.

Students should see the academic unit for a list of approved electives.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Food Policy and Sustainability Leadership (certificate), Certificate (SUFPSLGRCT)

Online Degree Search Title: Food Policy and Sustainability Leadership (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The certificate program in food policy and sustainability leadership trains students in food policy, from understanding policy-making broadly to developing specific, master-level skills that allow them to effectively navigate legislative, budgetary and administrative governmental processes. This empowers students to grapple with real-life complexities and become effective agents of change. Students are exposed to contemporary food policy issues and are required to choose a food policy issue in which, with faculty assistance, they become an expert.

This certificate program allows students to self-schedule work with the exception of weekly calls with their professor, and also requires students to spend a week meeting with food producers in Arizona and a week meeting with policymakers in Washington D.C. Students will participate in research projects and professional presentations that contribute to food policy knowledge among sustainable food system advocates.

Degree Requirements:

Required Core (12 credit hours)

SFS 560 Tools and Tactics for Food Policy Change (3)

SFS 561 Food and Farm Immersion Experience (2)

SFS 562 Managing Natural Resources for Food Production (3)

SFS 563 Applied Food Policy Immersion Experience (2)

SFS 564 American Agriculture in the Global Context (2)

Culminating Experience ( credit hours)

SFS 565 Organizational Leadership (3)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree in a related field from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of a student's first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants are required to submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee

- official transcripts
- two letters of recommendation
- professional resume
- personal statement
- two years professional experience in food and agriculture
- Interview (in-person or virtual)
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The personal statement should not exceed 1,500 words, and it should describe a food policy issue of interest to the applicant and why the applicant thinks that engaging in policy is important as it relates to this issue.

Global Sustainability Science, MS (SUGSUSMS)

Online Degree Search Title: Global Sustainability Science, MS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MS in global sustainability science is a two-year collaborative degree program offered jointly by Arizona State University and Leuphana University of Luneburg, Germany. Students who participate in the program earn a Master of Science in global sustainability science from ASU and a Master of Science in global sustainability science from Leuphana University. Students from both universities collaborate throughout the program and spend one semester together at Leuphana in Luneburg as well as one semester together at ASU in Tempe, Arizona. The program culminates with a capstone project resulting in a publishable scientific journal article. Students have the opportunity to engage with sustainability problems and solutions in an international setting.

The program focuses on value-oriented and transformational aspects of sustainability, linking research with practical implementation of sustainability solutions. Project-based learning offers students opportunities to conduct their research on real-world sustainability solutions in collaboration with stakeholders and professionals. In addition, the program facilitates intercultural collaboration, which prepares graduates for working in internationally operating institutions and organizations.

Sustainability, MA (SUSUSTMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA in sustainability is a research-oriented degree program that culminates with research writing, either a thesis or capstone in the form of a publishable scientific paper.

The program focuses on knowledge generation and designing new ways to address sustainability challenges and prepares students for designing and conducting transdisciplinary research. Although the graduate degree programs emphasize the integration of a broad range of expertise in student training, this master's degree program is best suited to students inclined toward social sciences, humanities, planning or related fields and who are interested in a career in research or academia.

Students learn how different disciplines view and approach the challenges of sustainability in theory, research and practice. They develop the academic and technical skills as well as the ethical insights that will help them understand, research and provide solutions to complex sustainability challenges at the local, regional, national and global levels.

All program graduates possess an understanding of the need for a transdisciplinary approach to solving sustainability challenges, the ability to communicate their work to professionals in other disciplines and to policymakers and the general public, and the breadth of vision to recognize the interconnectedness of social, economic, environmental and technical systems. They have the critical-thinking skills necessary for approaching sustainability challenges from a systems perspective, the skills needed to work effectively in interdisciplinary teams, and the technical skills required to formulate and solve problems at the appropriate scale.

Students can learn more about careers in sustainability and where graduates with a master's degree in sustainability are now employed by visiting <https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/careers-in-sustainability/> (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/careers-in-sustainability/>).

Sustainability, PHD (SUSUSTPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in sustainability prepares students to become scientists and leaders in research and to investigate the urgent sustainability challenges of this century. The flexible, transdisciplinary nature of the program allows students to focus on problems of interest to them, drawing upon relevant knowledge from a variety of disciplines.

In addition to the common learning outcomes, students are able to conduct research on particular sustainability challenges using standard skills, including the capacity to identify problems; formulate and test hypotheses; use statistical, econometric and geographical information-system techniques to construct and analyze datasets; and build and apply models. They are able to lead others in the analysis and design of the built environment and institutions' policies, regulations and technologies to support sustainable development, and they are able to lead others in applying these concepts and methods to the development of sustainable strategies for water, land, air and urban management at the local and global levels. Students are able to understand the concepts and methods of a number of critical disciplines bearing on the sustainability of systems at different spatial and temporal scales.

Graduates possess an advanced understanding of the dynamics of coupled socioecological systems and are able to lead others in research providing adaptive solutions to specific sustainability challenges. All sustainability graduate students possess an understanding of the need for a transdisciplinary approach to solving sustainability challenges, the ability to communicate their work to professionals in other disciplines and to policymakers and the general public, and the breadth of vision to recognize the interconnectedness of social, economic, environmental and technical systems. They apply critical-thinking skills to approach sustainability challenges from a systems perspective, the skills needed to work effectively in transdisciplinary teams, and the technical skills to formulate and solve problems at the appropriate scale.

Additional Curriculum Information

For electives, students should see the academic unit for the approved course list. Other coursework may be used with the approval of the academic unit. Only six credit hours of 400-level coursework can be included in the plan of study.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows up to 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this program. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the remaining coursework is to be made up of appropriate electives.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. The school encourages applicants with diverse educational backgrounds and experiences that are relevant to the school's core objectives.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.25 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.25 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of intent
- GRE scores

- three letters of recommendation
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The statement of intent should not exceed 600 words and should describe how the applicant's background will contribute to success in the program; describe how completion of the degree will support long-term career goals; elaborate on key research questions the applicant wishes to address or problems to solve as part of the plan of study; and, identify potential faculty advisors.

Letters of recommendation must be from three people who can attest to the applicant's academic and professional achievements. At least one letter should be academic in nature.

Sustainability (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PHD (SUSUSTCPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability (Complex Adaptive Systems Science), PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Complex adaptive systems science is the study of interactive and dynamic systems that change over time. The complex adaptive systems science concentration program under the PhD in sustainability trains the next generation of scientists in advanced concepts and methods needed for approaching diverse phenomena in the social and life sciences. The program is tightly integrated with diverse, ongoing, university-wide research on complex adaptive systems science at Arizona State University and emphasizes the value of a complex adaptive systems science perspective, to give better insight and a more active role in seeking solutions to a broad array of critical issues facing society today. Students become fluent in the common language of complexity while also receiving a solid foundation in the domain knowledge of existing academic disciplines.

By broadly embedding an understanding of complex adaptive system-relevant approaches into the practice of normal science, students gain the ability to transform science. The program promotes the development and testing of more robust theories and sophisticated methods in a wider array of research settings. This is needed to develop a deeper understanding of the nature and dynamics of complex adaptive systems, grounded in concrete examples and applications.

The doctoral program in sustainability with a concentration in complex adaptive systems science is offered for students who have completed a bachelor's or master's degree program. The program prepares students to become scientists and leaders in research and to investigate the urgent sustainability challenges of this century.

Graduates will possess an understanding of the need for a transdisciplinary approach to solving sustainability challenges; the ability to communicate their work to professionals in other disciplines, to policymakers and to the general public; and the breadth of vision to recognize the interconnectedness of social, economic, environmental and technical systems. Their critical-thinking skills will enable them to approach sustainability challenges from a systems perspective; they also will have the skills needed to work effectively in interdisciplinary teams and the technical skills to formulate and solve problems at the appropriate scale.

In addition to the common learning outcomes, graduates will be able to conduct research on particular sustainability challenges using standard skills, including the capacity to identify problems; formulate and test hypotheses; use statistical, econometric and geographical information system techniques to construct and analyze datasets; and build and apply models. They will be prepared to lead others in the analysis and design of the built environment and institutions' policies, regulations and technologies to support sustainable development and lead others in applying these concepts and methods to the development of sustainable strategies for water, land, air and urban management at the local and global levels. Graduates will understand the concepts and methods of a number of critical disciplines bearing on the sustainability of systems at different spatial and temporal scales.

Sustainability Leadership, EMSL (SUEMSLEMSL)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability Leadership - Executive, EMSL

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The EMSL program prepares experienced professionals to significantly advance sustainability practices in the workplace. The Executive Master of Sustainability Leadership program equips graduates to lead institutional and cultural change.

The accelerated curriculum is designed specifically for the working professional and can be completed in one year through a combination of unique in-person experiences, including an international immersive; online course content; and a capstone project.

The degree program, which includes focus areas in leadership, strategy, communications and global context, is uniquely powerful because it is backed by the extensive knowledge base of the Julie Ann Wrigley Global Institute of Sustainability at ASU and the institute's more than 400 sustainability scientists and scholars and a host of world-class sustainability and leadership professionals.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required capstone courses (EMS 515 and EMS 516).

Required Core (27 credit hours)

EMS 501 First Workshop and Orientation (1)

EMS 502 Global Context I (2)

EMS 503 Strategic Sustainability I (2)

EMS 504 Communications and Sustainability I (2)

EMS 505 Sustainability Leadership I (2)

EMS 506 Global Context II (2)

EMS 507 Strategic Sustainability II (2)

EMS 508 International Immersive (2)

EMS 509 Communications and Sustainability II (2)

EMS 510 Sustainability Leadership II (2)

EMS 511 Global Context III (2)

EMS 512 Strategic Sustainability III (2)

EMS 513 Communications and Sustainability III (2)

EMS 514 Sustainability Leadership III (2)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

EMS 515 Capstone I (2)

EMS 516 Capstone II - Sustainability Leadership Workshop II (1)

Additional Curriculum Information

The curriculum for this program is focused around four principal themes: global context, strategy, communications and leadership. Students attend three in-person sessions --- two sessions at the ASU campus and one abroad (EMS 508).

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements for both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- personal statement
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Applicants to the program should be interested in and passionate about advancing sustainability in their organizations, either directly or indirectly. Successful candidates are expected to draw from and apply solutions to actual professional challenges and opportunities. Applicants should contact the program for more details if they are currently not employed.

Because this is an executive master's degree for experienced professionals, work and life experience may be taken into account in lieu of deficiencies from past bachelor's degree program experience. Applicants with GPAs less than 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") may be admitted on a provisional status. Applicants should contact the program for more details if their GPA falls below the 3.00 requirement.

Sustainability Leadership, MSL (SUSUSLMSL)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability Leadership, MSL

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MSL program prepares professionals to advance social and environmental responsibility. The program teaches organizational leadership skills through the lens of sustainability. The Master of Sustainability Leadership program equips graduates to drive high-impact global sustainability results for their companies, organizations and communities.

The curriculum includes four synergistic thematic areas:

- communications and change management
- global context of sustainability
- leadership for sustainability
- and sustainability and strategy.

The program also includes opportunities for students to include electives that are related to their specific area of interest. Elective courses are offered that focus on the military, cities, climate, food systems and other thematic areas. Students also may choose to go on an approved study abroad trip to fulfill elective credits.

A sustainable future requires leaders who are able to integrate sustainability into existing institutions and new enterprises. A particular knowledge base and skill set is required to drive this kind of transformational change. Professionals with tools and skills learned in sustainability leadership, as opposed to other degree programs, are in a prime position to establish sustainability practices in any type of organization. Because sustainability is a relatively new field of study, professionals who are interested in this emerging field have often migrated into sustainability roles without formal training and education in sustainability practice.

This program is designed and delivered by people who have worked in and with companies making sustainability transitions and continue to be on the cutting edge of global sustainability leadership.

Degree Requirements:

35 credit hours including the required Capstone Course Course (EMS 588).

Required Core (27 credit hours)

EMS 502 Global Context I (2)

EMS 503 Strategic Sustainability I (2)

EMS 504 Communications and Sustainability I (2)

EMS 505 Sustainability Leadership I (2)

EMS 587 MSL Capstone Preparation (1)

SOS 501 Foundations of Sustainability (1)

Focus Area Electives (6 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (2 credit hours)

EMS 588 MSL Capstone (2)

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements for both the Graduate College and the School of Sustainability.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution. They should also have a minimum of three years of professional or organizational experience or the equivalent.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program. Applicants who have a GPA less than 3.00 may submit a statement describing contributing circumstances and reference personal experience to be considered for admission.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- statement of intent
- resume or curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

Because sustainability explores ways to improve human well-being globally without threatening earth's life-supporting systems and because this program is designed to prepare decision-makers for the challenges ahead, for the statement of intent, applicants must explain in their own words (no more than 300 words per question) why sustainability is important to them, and they must describe a time in which they demonstrated leadership to enact positive change. Applicants must explain how they plan to apply the lessons they learn from this degree in the short term and long term. And, lastly, applicants must explain how they have prepared to manage and accommodate family, work and life balance while completing this program in two years.

Sustainability Solutions, MSUS (SUSUSOMSUS)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainability Solutions, MSUS

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MSUS program focuses on the application of established knowledge in sustainability and prepares students to develop solutions by working with stakeholders on sustainability challenges using a sustainability framework. The program is also designed to prepare students to apply sustainability principles and approaches to careers in a variety of fields, addressing complex human and environmental challenges. Graduates will have a knowledge base and skill set to bring sustainability solutions to corporate, government and NGO sectors. Students begin the program with a foundation in sustainability theory and methods, then are allowed to take electives in an area of interest.

A distinguishing element of the Master of Sustainability Solutions program is its applied approach and emphasis on solutions. This includes a course on managing sustainability projects as well as the capstone experience, in which students do an applied project in lieu of a thesis. Students are encouraged to apply sustainability principles and approaches to their chosen career field. They team up with a company, a government agency or a nongovernmental organization to develop a real-world sustainability solution. This practical experience perfectly positions graduates for today's competitive, knowledge-intensive job market.

Student can learn more about careers in sustainability and where Master of Sustainability Solutions graduates are now employed by visiting <https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/careers-in-sustainability/> (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/careers-in-sustainability/>).

Sustainable Energy, PHD (SUSUEPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Sustainable Energy, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

American society struggles under the weight of its dependence on fossil fuels. As the global energy system is a complex, socio-technical system in which the technical and societal elements of producing and consuming energy have co-evolved into humanity's largest enterprise, educating the next generation of leaders in guiding society toward a sustainable energy future requires that future energy leaders can seamlessly navigate this very transdisciplinary landscape.

The PhD program in sustainable energy integrates perspectives from physical, biological, social and sustainability sciences in preparing students to address challenges in global energy systems. The core classes provide students from diverse backgrounds with foundational knowledge and skills related to current and emerging energy technologies and systems, economic analysis of energy systems, and social and policy dynamics of energy transitions. Elective classes allow students to develop more specialized methodological skills or topical knowledge.

Students can learn more about careers in sustainability and where graduates of sustainability doctoral programs are now employed by visiting <https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/careers-in-sustainability/>. (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/careers-in-sustainability/>)

Curriculum and Instruction (Early Childhood Education), MEd (TEECDMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Curriculum and Instruction (Early Childhood Education), MEd

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MEd program in curriculum and instruction, early childhood education concentration, prepares individuals to meet the educational, social and emotional needs of children from birth through age eight.

Through online coursework, applied activities and in-person clinical experiences, the program equips students with specialized skills and advanced knowledge in early childhood pedagogy, community collaboration, technology, administration, policy analysis and advocacy.

The master's degree is appropriate for students interested in learning about early childhood education research and working with infants and children in grades K-3. This track may be of interest to students who already have a teaching certificate and are interested in furthering their knowledge and skills or pursuing doctoral studies in the future.

A second option is the master's degree and Arizona certification in early childhood education track, which provides students with the coursework and practical experiences necessary to become licensed to teach children birth through grade three in the public schools. The track provides participants an institutional recommendation for a state of Arizona early childhood education certification (birth through age eight or through grade three) and the master's degree.

All courses are online, but clinical experiences are completed in person.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (ECD 593).

Curriculum and Instruction (English as a Second Language), MA (EDESLMA)

Online Degree Search Title: English as a Second Language, MA

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MA in curriculum and instruction with an English as a second language concentration prepares students to teach English language learners in a variety of settings, including U.S. schools. The program caters to professionals with a wide range of roles, including both new and experienced teachers, administrators, policymakers and community workers. Graduate students gain strategies to assist their students in developing ESL skills in reading, writing and listening, and they learn how to involve community and families as partners.

The program covers topics such as assessing learners' language development and related strengths and challenges, different frameworks for understanding language acquisition, social aspects of language use, linguistics, literacies and supporting students and their families. Students leave the program with a historical perspective of English learners in the U.S. and on past and current policy toward ESL. Program faculty have worked with English learner students, have a good mix of elementary- and secondary-level foci and are advocates for ESL students.

The program provides coursework in English as a second language required for the endorsement from the Arizona Department of Education, but the content is not Arizona-specific. While the program is an excellent choice for teachers seeking to improve their preparation to work with English learners, it does not lead to teacher certification. There is no requirement that students entering the program hold a teaching certificate or seek to obtain one.

Note: This degree is not the same as the Master of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages that is offered through the English department.

Curriculum and Instruction (Gifted Education), MEd (TEGEDMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Gifted Education, MEd

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The MEd program in curriculum and instruction with a concentration in gifted education prepares teachers, school administrators, school psychologists, early interventionists and family members to work effectively with gifted children. Students gain the theory and pedagogy needed to identify and serve gifted children as well as the knowledge and skills required to develop and provide the most current instructional methods and services for their gifted students.

Graduates understand how to identify learning potential and address specific needs of gifted and talented students. They have an understanding of gifted students' unique affective and academic needs and know how to design and provide appropriately challenging, differentiated curriculum and instruction so that gifted students may develop their full potential. Graduates know how to develop a continuum of gifted programs and services, work with school administrators, teachers, school boards and parents and be able to advocate for gifted students at local and national levels.

The program is designed for public and private teachers in regular classrooms, honors classrooms and gifted programs and for school administrators and gifted program coordinators.

The program also provides the 12 credit hours of coursework in gifted education required for the gifted education (K-12) endorsement from the Arizona Department of Education. Students should refer to the Arizona Department of Education website for additional requirements.

Curriculum and Instruction (Literacy Education), MA (EDLANGMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Literacy Education, MA

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

ASU is not currently accepting application for this program.

Program Description:

Graduates from the literacy education program are leaders in literacy in a broad array of educational contexts --- wherever reading, writing, oral language and the visual arts are at play in both creation and use. Through the program, graduates learn how to think deeply about literacy theories, pedagogies and resources, through both a solid theoretical foundation of literacy and a foundational knowledge base addressing pedagogical and content knowledge.

Graduates learn how to support inclusive educational practices, critical-thinking skills and multiliteracies to face the challenges of a diverse and global society. Through the program, literacy leaders will learn how to use technology to encourage critical thinking and as a resource for teaching, assessment and inquiry. By the end of the program, graduates are literacy leaders who inquire into their own instructional approaches, analyze resources available for literacy instruction, and critically examine the environments and learning experiences constructed in their context.

Additional Curriculum Information

The 15-month, standards-based leadership development program begins with a three-week summer intensive that immerses the cohort in a simulated school experience during which students engage in required coursework in a hybrid format. Learning continues during the school year with a blend of web-based and face-to-face courses taken at an ASU campus, including set meetings each semester wherein students visit schools and participate in instructional rounds. All students participate in a two-semester, school-based internship that provides the opportunity to apply new learning and research in a K-12 setting. The program concludes with a two-week summer intensive during which the cohort meets together and engages with coursework in a hybrid format.

Students must be employed in a school-based position or have access to an ASU- and district-approved school placement that will serve as the laboratory of practice for applying the concepts, principles and leadership approaches learned through the coursework.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution and have at least two years of pre-K through grade 12 teaching experience as a teacher of record.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Educational Policy, MA (EDSPFMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Educational Policy, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA program in educational policy provides graduates with skills in education policy and applied data analysis. It is particularly well-suited for individuals whose current or prospective careers require the use and interpretation of data, such as overseeing assessments or conducting program evaluations. Classroom teachers and practicing educators in other contexts will gain a new perspective on their schools, classrooms and teaching with the skills they develop in this master's degree program.

The coursework will deepen students' understanding of research and policymaking, allow them to critically assess education programs and policies, and develop the skills they need to engage in data-driven decision-making. Courses address key issues in contemporary education policy, evaluating and synthesizing research literature, analyzing and interpreting data and conducting applied research projects. With the assistance of a faculty or academic advisor, students will also customize their elective courses in educational policy, research methods and areas of interest to enhance their knowledge and skills.

In the culminating experience in the final semester, students will design and execute an individual or group project that will utilize their new knowledge and research skills.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Educational Studies, BAE

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including an applied project (EPA 593).

Required Core (15 credit hours)

EPA 532 Becoming an Informed Consumer of Education Research (3)

EPA 555 Translating Research for Education Change (3)

Educational Policy and Evaluation, PHD (EDLDRSHPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Educational Policy and Evaluation, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD program in educational policy and evaluation prepares scholars to conduct rigorous, high-impact and transdisciplinary research on education policy that advances the collective understanding of preK-20 and other educational environments.

Doctoral students in the educational policy and evaluation program engage in systematic analyses of education policies in a variety of settings, including schools, universities, research centers, government agencies and nongovernmental organizations.

The program emphasizes intensive training in the theory, methods and practice of education policy research and evaluation and an area of specialization supported by current faculty expertise.

Educational policy and evaluation students work closely with nationally and internationally recognized faculty members on collaborative and independent research projects that result in policy briefs, reports, scholarly articles and engagement in education policy. The program also provides opportunities for internships in applied settings and varied experiences in scholarly publishing.

Students are expected to engage in the doctoral program full time and are supported by Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College with funding renewable for four years with continued progress.

Degree Requirements:

84 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Of the 84 credit hours required for the degree, 54 must be earned at ASU and 24 of the ASU credit hours must be earned in research and dissertation courses. The coursework includes classes in policy analysis, research methods and an area of specialization. Students entering the doctoral program with a master's degree in a related discipline may count up to 30 credit hours from the master's degree toward the 84 credit hours. In addition, a student may use up to 12 additional credit hours toward the doctorate if documentation is provided showing that those credit hours were not part of the master's degree. Students without a master's degree in a related discipline may transfer no more than 12 credit hours toward the degree.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of recommendation
- personal statement
- GRE scores
- an academic writing sample
- curriculum vitae
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The letters of recommendation should be from individuals who can speak to the applicant's potential for success in a graduate program and the personal statement should describe the applicant's interests and reason for seeking this degree.

Elementary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd (TEEEACLMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Elementary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, West

Program Description:

This program is for those who already have a bachelor's degree in any field and want to become licensed to teach grades 1-8.

The elementary education program builds strong connections between theory and practice through quality classroom instruction paired with extensive clinical experiences.

Students gain a strong foundation in teaching and content knowledge from experts in the field of education. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty actively engage in the educational research community and embed this vital knowledge throughout the program. This connection further empowers our students to engage in their own research through the applied project coursework.

A series of clinical experiences or field placements are designed to assist our students in developing a thorough understanding of teaching and learning as they apply knowledge from their coursework in varied school settings. Individualized guidance through our clinical framework provides our students with the support they need to become effective educators.

The MEd program in elementary education offers the following three options for students to earn a master's degree and Arizona teacher certification.

Master's and Arizona Certification (MAC): In this program, students take classes at an ASU campus two nights a week and are required to do a field experience one day per week for at least two semesters. During the last semester of the MAC program, students complete a full-time student teaching experience.

Induction, Master's and Arizona Certification (InMAC): This program features a partnership with Teach For America, various school districts and charter schools. The InMAC program provides an alternative pathway to teacher certification for full-time teachers on an intern teaching certificate. To qualify, individuals must secure a full-time teaching position. Participants take classes one night per week and must be continuously enrolled in apprentice teaching coursework.

In a limited number of cases, students take classes and complete all field experiences in a partner school district. This is a daytime program in which students take classes two to three days per week and complete three days of field experience. In their next-to-last semester, students complete a full-time student teaching experience.

Degree Requirements:

33 credit hours including the required applied project course (EED 593).

Required Core (27 credit hours)

Higher and Postsecondary Education, MEd (EDPOSTMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Higher and Postsecondary Education, MEd

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe

Program Description:

The MEd program in higher and postsecondary education is designed to facilitate the professional development of those who work in colleges and universities in administrative roles as well as academic or student support positions.

The higher and postsecondary education program develops leaders who have a strong understanding of the theory and practice of higher education administration, possess the capacity to analyze issues confronting contemporary colleges and universities and apply expertise in designing innovative solutions in administrative decision-making. The goal of this program is to provide graduates with a better understanding of the challenges that face contemporary colleges and universities and to prepare them to succeed in environments that demand innovation, excellence, inclusion and collaboration. Students have the opportunity to make a local impact to support the success of higher education in the state of Arizona.

Coursework addresses a range of practice-focused topics in the field, including the following: the history of higher education in the United States; organizational characteristics of colleges and universities; important laws and policies pertaining to administrative practice in higher education; how colleges and universities are funded; how to successfully work with the diverse stakeholders in contemporary higher education; and how to collect and use data to improve decision-making.

This 30-credit hour, 10-course program is offered on a 7.5-week calendar in fall and spring semesters (six weeks in summer). Students may enroll part time or full time.

Most courses are offered in a hybrid format with 50 percent of the content delivered face-to-face (weekday evenings) and 50 percent delivered through independent or technology-supported learning experiences and fieldwork.

This program culminates with the creation and presentation of an applied project that demonstrates students' understanding of critical issues in higher education and how to collect and use data to improve their professional practice. The project is also designed to promote graduates' career advancement in higher and postsecondary education-related settings.

Degree Requirements:

Institutional Research and Policy Analysis (certificate), Certificate (EDINSRESCE)

Online Degree Search Title: Institutional Research and Policy Analysis (Graduate Certificate)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

People working in or with schools are increasingly being asked to interpret and make decisions based on data. The graduate certificate in institutional research and policy analysis provides participants with the training and skills in education policy and applied data analysis that allow them to critically assess education programs and policies and engage in data-driven decision-making. The program consists of courses in which students analyze data from real-world settings, including their own schools or organizations.

This certificate program allows students to glean insights from data that help them make effective decisions in classrooms, schools, districts and other organizations; present reliable and pertinent data to their colleagues and administrators; and develop analyses that can help them identify instructional changes aimed at improving student achievement.

Leadership and Innovation, EdD (TELINEDD)

Online Degree Search Title: Leadership and Innovation, EdD

Campus: West, Online

Program Description:

The EdD program in leadership and innovation prepares scholarly practitioners and is designed for practicing educator-leaders who work in a range of settings who want to transform their practice and create better learning opportunities for students of all ages.

Students in the program begin as accomplished teachers, teacher leaders, principals, superintendents, higher education professionals or leaders in other educational contexts. Through coursework, students deepen their abilities to lead change and implement innovation in their local educational organizations. The program is not designed to prepare students for academic research-oriented tenure-track positions.

The cohort-based program focuses on research in action and includes required coursework and several options for advanced professional studies with a research core that deepens students' abilities to reflectively and critically think about problems of practice in one of the following contexts: preK-12 change leadership; higher education change leadership; or systems, professional and reimagined change leadership.

Differentiation among these contexts and students' interests occurs within the required coursework.

Students conduct multiple cycles of inquiry throughout the program and learn research within their own workplace and share their research at the end of each academic year through presentations in a public doctoral research conference.

Leader-scholar communities, formed at the end of the first year and consisting of five to seven students and one faculty member, meet regularly for the second and third years of the program to supply academic and personal support. Through LSCs, students support each other, under faculty guidance, in the conceptualization, implementation and study of change initiatives. Each student's LSC leader serves as the dissertation chair, along with two additional committee members who ultimately make up the doctoral committee.

Successful graduates make a commitment to continuing systematic study of their professional practice and sustaining innovation and leadership by making a positive difference in their local settings. The program aims to enable more thoughtful, intentional and informed leaders who are willing and able to implement and study continuous improvement.

The program makes a difference in the way a student thinks and works as a leader in education, for the immediate and local benefit of school children, adult learners, schools or other organizations, and local communities.

Degree Requirements:

90 credit hours, a written comprehensive exam, an oral comprehensive exam, a prospectus and a dissertation.

Required Core (24 credit hours)

Research (9 credit hours)

Advanced Professional Studies (6 credit hours)

Directed Field-based Study (3 credit hours)

Participation in Leader-Scholar Communities (6 credit hours)

Dissertation (12 credit hours)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students should see the academic unit for an approved course list.

Students register for required research and dissertation hours as part of the Leader-Scholar Communities requirement.

When approved by the student's supervisory committee and the Graduate College, this program allows 30 credit hours from a previously awarded master's degree to be used for this degree. If students do not have a previously awarded master's degree, the 30 hours of coursework will be made up of electives to reach the required 84 credit hours.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's and master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program.

Program Description:

The EdD in leadership and innovation program is designed for practicing educator-leaders who want to participate in creating better learning opportunities for students of all ages in a range of settings with the ultimate goal of transforming the practice of education.

The focus of the program is research in action. Students conduct multiple studies throughout the program to learn by doing and to influence change based on scholarship applied in their workplace.

Students in the program begin as accomplished teachers, teacher leaders, principals and superintendents, and "edupreneurs" or higher education professionals. Through their learning, they deepen their abilities to lead and innovate in educational organizations. The program is not designed to prepare students for academic tenure-track positions.

The cohort-based program begins in summer with an introduction to doctoral studies and the formation of a professional learning community that draws on the strengths of all group members.

Required courses are team-taught by faculty and require students to conduct research in their workplace, laying the foundation for the culminating project: the action research study documented in the dissertation.

Leader-Scholar Communities, formed at the end of the first year and consisting of five to seven students and two faculty members, meet regularly for the second and third years of the program. Students register for required research and dissertation hours as part of the LSC requirement.

Through these LSCs, students support each other, under faculty guidance, in the conceptualization, implementation and study of change initiatives. Students share their research at the end of each semester through roundtables, posters and symposia in a public research day.

Learning Sciences, MA (EDPSYCHMA)

Online Degree Search Title: Learning Sciences, MA

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The MA in learning sciences proceeds from an understanding that learning happens in many places, not just in schools.

This program focuses on the power of design thinking to improve educational systems and provides students with a blend of theoretical insights and practical tools that will prepare them to shape learning environments and experiences. The systems-level approach includes cognitive, social and contextual factors and the interactions among them.

Graduates of the program will be equipped to design effective learning and teaching systems in a broad range of formal and informal settings that include museums, libraries, workplaces and schools and will be well-prepared to become leaders in the development, integration and improvement of these systems.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Educational Studies, BAE

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Degree Requirements:

30 credit hours including the required applied project course (LSE 593), or 30 credit hours, a thesis and a written comprehensive exam.

Required Core (3 credit hours)

LSE 540 Theoretical Views of Learning in the Learning Sciences (3)

Electives or Research (21-24 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3-6 credit hours)

LSE 593 Applied Project (3) or

LSE 599 Thesis (6)

Additional Curriculum Information

With advisor approval, EDP 540 may be taken in place of LSE 540 for the core requirement.

Students completing an applied project for their culminating experience will take 24 credit hours of electives or research courses.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Learning, Literacies and Technologies, PHD (EDCIPHD)

Online Degree Search Title: Learning, Literacies and Technologies, PhD

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The PhD in learning, literacies and technologies is designed to prepare scholars who will address socially significant educational programs and transform preK-20 educational programs through rigorous research and educational interventions. Graduates rely on transdisciplinary theoretical and methodological perspectives to engage, influence and transform educational institutions and their practices.

The program graduates educational researchers who serve as scholars, leaders and teacher educators engaged in the design, development and use of literacies and technologies that promote learning. Graduates are stewards of their educational field, working across disciplinary boundaries to address the learning challenges of the new millennium.

Students will begin engaging in research studies during their first semester and continue throughout the four-year program. Faculty with diverse disciplinary backgrounds collaborate with doctoral students, individually and in teams, to design powerful studies, implement them in authentic settings, collect and analyze data, write research reports, and present and publish the results.

Academic study and research in the learning, literacies and technologies program focuses on the nature of human learning and literacies across diverse learners and contexts, the use of technologies to support learning, the design of learning environments, and the conditions under which learning occurs.

As a future scholar, teacher educator or researcher, students will develop areas of emphasis with their faculty advisor and doctoral committee members to work at the cutting edges of educational science, leading the way to innovation and exploration of new technologies and literacies for learning.

Students are expected to engage in the doctoral program full time and are supported by Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College with funding renewable for four years with continued satisfactory progress.

Degree Requirements:

Physical Education, MPE (ECPHYEDMPE)

Online Degree Search Title: Physical Education, MPE

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The MPE program offers three options for students interested in gaining knowledge of current curriculum and instructional and administrative practices and procedures in physical education.

Emphasis is placed on improving instructional effectiveness and developing quality physical education programs in school settings as well as expanded physical activity programming beyond the physical education lessons within school environments. Students learn about designing, implementing and assessing Comprehensive School Physical Activity Programs. This type of programming reflects current global trends in promoting physical activity for children, youth, school staff and families in communities surrounding school campuses.

The Master of Physical Education degree program gives candidates the flexibility to design a plan of study that enhances their interests and professional specialization.

The Master of Physical Education pedagogy research track is appropriate for students interested in learning more about research on teaching in physical education settings. This track may be of interest to students who already have a teacher certificate in physical education and are interested in pursuing doctoral studies in the future.

The Master of Physical Education with a physical education endorsement (grades K-12) familiarizes students with the most current trends and issues in school physical education. Students can focus on numerous topics within elementary physical education, secondary physical education and adapted physical education. This track may be of interest to students with a teaching certificate in a different subject matter who are interested in a K-12 physical education endorsement.

The Master of Physical Education and Arizona certification in physical education program provides students with the coursework and practical experiences necessary to become certified to teach physical education in the public schools. The program provides participants an institutional recommendation for an Arizona secondary education (grades 6-12) certification with a physical education endorsement (grades K-12) and the Master of Physical Education degree.

Degree Requirements:

33 credit hours including the required applied project course (PPE 593) and a written comprehensive exam.

The Master of Physical Education degree program has three tracks.

Secondary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd (TESCERTMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Secondary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

This program is for those who want to become certified to teach grades 6-12 in the public schools and already have a bachelor's degree in any field.

ASU's secondary education program builds strong connections between theory and practice through quality classroom instruction paired with extensive clinical experiences.

Students gain a strong foundation in teaching and content knowledge from experts in the field of education. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty actively engage in the educational research community and embed this vital knowledge throughout the program. This connection further empowers our students to engage in their own research through the culminating action research applied project.

A series of clinical experiences or field placements are designed to assist our students in developing a thorough understanding of teaching and learning as they apply knowledge from their coursework in varied school settings. Individualized guidance through our clinical framework provides our students with the support they need to be successful in today's rapidly evolving educational environment.

The MEd program in secondary education with teacher certification offers two options for students to earn a master's degree and Arizona teacher certification.

In the Master's and Arizona Certification (MAC) program, students take classes at an ASU campus two nights a week and are required to do a field experience one day per week for at least two semesters. During the last semester of the program, students complete a full-time student teaching experience in their content area.

The Induction, Master's and Arizona Certification (InMAC) program provides an alternative pathway to teacher certification for full-time teachers on a teaching intern certificate. To qualify, individuals must secure a full-time teaching position. The InMAC program also features a partnership with Teach For America. Participants take classes one night per week. The InMAC program supports individuals teaching in elementary, secondary and special education classrooms through coursework and supervised clinical experiences.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Engineering (Automotive Systems), BSE
- Engineering (Electrical Systems), BSE
- Engineering (Humanitarian Engineering), BSE
- Engineering (Mechanical Engineering Systems), BSE
- Engineering (Robotics), BSE

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Special Education (Teacher Certification), MEd (TESECRTMED)

Online Degree Search Title: Special Education (Teacher Certification), MEd

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

This program is for those seeking Arizona teacher certification in special education. The special education program builds strong connections between theory and practice through quality classroom instruction paired with extensive clinical experiences.

Students gain a strong foundation in teaching and content knowledge from experts in the field of education. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty actively engage in the educational research community and embed this vital knowledge throughout the program. This connection further empowers students to engage in their own research through the culminating action research applied project.

A series of clinical experiences or field placements are designed to assist students in developing a thorough understanding of teaching and learning as they apply knowledge from their coursework in varied school settings. Individualized guidance through our clinical framework provides students with the support they need to be successful in today's rapidly evolving educational environment.

The MEd program in special education with Arizona teacher certification offers two options for students to earn a master's degree and Arizona teacher certification.

Master's and Arizona Certification (MAC): In this program, students take classes at an ASU campus two nights a week and are required to complete daytime field experiences for at least two semesters. During the last semester of the program, students complete a full-time split student teaching experience: half the semester in a special education classroom and the other half in an elementary classroom. Students in the MAC program receive dual Arizona teacher certification in the following teaching certificates: Mild-Moderate Disabilities Special Education, K-12 and Elementary Education, grades 1-8. The mild to moderate areas include forms of emotional, behavioral, learning, and orthopedic disabilities as well as intellectual disabilities and other health impairments.

Induction, Master's and Arizona Certification (InMAC) This program provides an alternative pathway to the Arizona teacher certification Mild-Moderate Disabilities Special Education, K-12, for full-time teachers on the teaching intern certificate. To qualify, individuals must secure a full-time teaching position. The InMAC program also features a partnership with Teach For America. Participants take classes one night per week.

Degree Requirements:

33 credit hours including the required applied project course (SPE 593).

Required Core (12 credit hours)

EED 537 Mathematics Methods and Assessment (3)

SPE 501 Introduction to Research and Evaluation in Education (3)

SPE 538 Language and Literacy I (3)

SPE 575 Survey, Issues and Foundations for the Exceptional Student (3)

Track (18 credit hours)

Culminating Experience (3 credit hours)

SPE 593 Applied Project (3)

Additional Curriculum Information

Students choose either the mild-moderate track, which has the options of the Masters and Arizona Certification (MAC) or Induction, Masters and Arizona Certification (InMAC) pathways; or the severe-profound track. Students will take additional coursework for certification.

The applied project is completed during the student teaching or apprentice teaching experience.

Admission Requirements:

Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor's or master's degree, in any field, from a regionally accredited institution.

Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

All applicants must submit:

- graduate admission application and application fee
- official transcripts
- three letters of recommendation
- personal statement
- resume
- proof of English proficiency

Additional Application Information

An applicant whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

The letters of recommendation should be from individuals who can speak to the applicant's potential for success in a graduate program.

The personal statement should describe the applicant's interests and reason for seeking this degree.

GRE scores are not required for admission.

Mastery of fundamental biological principles is emphasized through quality learning in the classroom and hands-on activities in laboratories and in outdoor settings that include the Sonoran Desert, surrounding ecosystems and the landscape of the greater Phoenix area.

Program Requirements:

The applied biological sciences minor consists of 23 credit hours.

Required Courses -- 8 credit hours

BIO 181: General Biology I (SQ) (4)

BIO 182: General Biology II (SG) (4)

Electives -- 15 credit hours

ABS Elective (6)

ABS Upper Division Elective (9)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: All applied biological sciences, biological sciences or biology majors at ASU

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. ## Applied Computing Minor (ASACOMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in applied computing combines technical computing skills with an understanding of the impact of computer science in real-world contexts. Coursework in the applied computing minor provides a depth of knowledge in databases, networks and systems and gives students from other disciplines a computational component to their major field of study. Computational and problem-solving skills are in high demand in a multitude of career fields including cybersecurity, web administration, education and telecommunications.

The program is offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences.

Program Requirements:

The minor in applied computing consists of a minimum of 15 credit hours. At least nine credit hours must be upper division. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

ACO 201: Data Structures and Algorithms (CS) (3)

ACO 240: Introduction to Programming Languages (3)

ACO 320: Database Systems (3)

ACO 330: Computer Networks (3)

ACO 350: Systems Programming (CS) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.50

Incompatible Majors: BS in applied computing; BS in applied computing (cybersecurity)

Other Enrollment Requirements: A "C" or better is required in ACO 102 Object-Oriented Programming and MAT 210 Brief Calculus in order to enroll in the required minor course, ACO 201.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. ## Applied Ethics Minor (ASAPETHMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

Students pursuing the applied ethics minor have the opportunity to develop their critical-thinking, reading, and writing capacities while exploring philosophy and ethical theory. They also have the opportunity to do so in a manner that explicitly complements their major by focusing on one of the minor's track options. This provides students an opportunity to gain a humanistic perspective on a nonhumanities field of study, such as health sciences, business and computer science, thereby adding nuance and depth to their educational experience.

Program Requirements:

The minor in applied ethics consists of 18 credit hours; a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper-division. Program requirements include nine credit hours of required courses and nine credit hours in one chosen track: Bioethics; Environmental Ethics; Business Ethics; Social Sciences and Ethics; Religion and Ethics; or General Ethics. All courses used to fulfill the requirements of this minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

Applied Mathematics Minor (LSAPMMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor in applied mathematics in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts at the Polytechnic campus is designed to enable students to understand and apply mathematics most commonly used in the fields of business, economics, engineering, physics, computer sciences, life sciences, social sciences and sustainability. The minor is recommended for students who plan to major in these diverse fields, are preparing for further graduate study or who wish for increased employment options.

The coursework explores the study of advanced applied mathematical topics with an emphasis on applied sciences. Students with a minor in applied mathematics learn to use theories and techniques, such as mathematical modeling, computational methods and statistics to resolve practical, real-world problems.

Program Requirements:

The applied mathematics minor consists of 21 credit hours, including:

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

MAT 265: Calculus for Engineers I (MA) or MAT 270: Calculus with Analytic Geometry I (MA) (3-4)
MAT 266: Calculus for Engineers II (MA) or MAT 271: Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (MA) (3-4)
MAT 275: Modern Differential Equations (MA) (3)

Electives -- 12 credit hours

MAT 267: Calculus for Engineers III (MA) or MAT 272: Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (MA) (3-4)
MAT 300: Mathematical Structures (L) (3)
MAT 310: Introduction to Geometry (3)
MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)
MAT 495: Supervised research in mathematical sciences (3)
MAT 499: Individualized Instruction (3)
STP 420: Introductory Applied Statistics (CS) (3)

At least six upper-division credit hours in elective courses must be offered by the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

A minimum of 12 credit hours of the minor must be ASU credit.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: None

Other Enrollment Requirements: MAT 170 or 171 with a "C" or better, OR Mathematics Placement Test with a score of 60 percent or higher and the Advanced Math Placement Test with a score of 38 or higher, OR ALEKS score of 76 or higher

The minor in applied mathematics is open to all ASU undergraduate majors. Students should consult an advisor in the department of their major to determine if the minor is consistent with their educational goals and to be recognized in their particular major.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. ## Arabic Studies Minor (LAARBMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor program in Arabic studies provides students with instruction in Modern Standard Arabic as well as Arab culture and literature. Students completing the prescribed coursework are expected to be able to communicate effectively in Arabic and interact with native speakers of the language as well as reading authentic material in Arabic and writing paragraphs in Modern Standard Arabic.

Literature courses expand students' knowledge in Arabic, the Middle East and Islamic culture and civilization. Students of all academic disciplines doing research or seeking employment in areas related to the Middle East or other parts of the Arab world will find the minor in Arabic highly beneficial.

Students are encouraged to participate in a study abroad program to enhance their education and overall minor experience. Students should visit <https://mystudyabroad.asu.edu> (<https://mystudyabroad.asu.edu>) for more information.

Program Requirements:

The minor in Arabic studies requires 26 credit hours of courses detailed below. A minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in each course. Course substitutions are allowed for heritage and advanced speakers of the language.

Required Courses -- 23 credit hours

ARB 201: Intermediate Arabic I (G) (4)

ARB 202: Intermediate Arabic II (G) (4)

ARB 311: Advanced Arabic Skills I (3)

ARB 331: Arabic/Islamic Culture and Literature (HU & H & G) (3)

ARB 341: Quran Text and Women (HU & H) or ARB 351: Classical Arabic Literature (3)

ARB 352: Modern Arabic Literature in Translation or ARB 422: Advanced Arabic Media (3)

ARB 411: Advanced Arabic Skills II (3)

Related Area (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

AFR 372: Islam and Islamic Societies in Africa: Social and Political History (G) (3)

AFR 373: Islam and World Affairs (G) (3)

AFR 480: Different Voices Within Contemporary Islamic Discourse (3)

ARB 321: Arabic Conversation I (3)

ARB 335: Arabic Culture and Islam (G) (3)
ARB 336: Introduction to the Qur'an (3)
ARB 337: Hadith and Prophetic Tradition (3)
ARB 340: Arabic Translation (3)
ARB 341: Quran Text and Women (HU & H) (3)
ARB 351: Classical Arabic Literature (3)
ARB 352: Modern Arabic Literature in Translation (3)
ARB 360: Islamic Philosophical Literature (3)
ARB 421: Arabic Conversation II (3)
ARB 422: Advanced Arabic Media (3)
HST 372: Modern Middle East (SB & G & H) (3)
REL 365: Islamic Civilization (HU & H) (3)
REL 366: Islam in the Modern World (HU & G) (3)

Students may need to complete the sequence of elementary Arabic, ARB 101 and ARB 102, as prerequisite courses.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BA in International letters and cultures (Arabic studies)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Architectural Studies Minor (ARSTDMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The architectural studies minor is available to nonarchitecture majors interested in this field. The courses are designed to provide an overview of architecture throughout history while focusing on architectural design, with the intention to explore the process of design thinking.

Program Requirements:

A minimum of 18 credit hours (to include 12 credit hours of upper-division coursework) are required for the minor. A minimum grade of "C" (2.00) is required in all classes for the minor.

A minimum GPA of 2.50 in minor courses is required to earn the minor in architectural studies.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

ALA 100: Introduction to Environmental Design (HU & H & G) (3)
ALA 102: Landscapes and Sustainability (HU & G) (3)
APH 313: History of Architecture I ((L or HU) & G & H) (3)
APH 314: History of Architecture II ((L or HU) & G & H) (3)

Architectural History and Theory -- 6 credit hours

Six additional upper-division credit hours of electives in the architectural history and theory concentration must be selected from the following list:

ANP 494: Special Topics (3)
APH 394: Special Topics (3)
APH 405: Contemporary Architecture and Urbanism 1970 to the Present (HU & H) (3)
APH 414: Great Cities ((L or HU) & H) (3)
APH 421: First Concepts: What is... The Writing, Philosophy, and Culture of Architecture (L or HU) (3)
APH 441: Ancient Arch (3)
APH 494: Special Topics (3)
APH 499: Individualized Instruction (1-3)
Notes: APH 499 requires a petition to The Design School.
ARP 451: Architecture Field Studies (1-6)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.50

Incompatible Majors: BSD in architectural studies

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Art History Minor (FAARTHMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The art history minor is designed for students who are interested in a broad introduction to the study of the history of art. In giving substantial chronological exposure to the history of art from diverse cultures, the minor program strengthens academic preparation and provides students with many options to select courses based on their individual interests. A minor in art history, especially in conjunction with a major in another field, will enhance opportunities for future graduate study.

Program Requirements:

The School of Art offers a minor in art history consisting of 18 credit hours of coursework, including 12 upper-division electives. A minimum grade of "C" (2.00) is required in all classes for the minor. For those pursuing a minor, a minimum overall GPA of "C" (2.00) is required. Courses may not be double counted in a major and the minor, and a minimum of 12 credit hours of resident credit at ASU are required.

ARS 100 and ARS 300 may not be used toward an art history minor if the student has credit in ARS 101 and ARS 102. If a student has completed ARS 100 or ARS 300, then they must complete ARS 201 and ARS 202 instead of ARS 101 and 102.

Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

ARS 101: Art from Prehistory Through Middle Ages (HU & H) (3)
ARS 102: Art from Renaissance to Modernism (HU & H) (3)

Art History Upper Division Courses -- 12 credit hours

ARS Upper Division Elective (12)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BA in art (art history)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. ## Asian Languages (Chinese) Minor (LACHIMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Students pursuing the minor in Asian languages (Chinese) gain an understanding of the language, literature and cultures of China. Students are encouraged to participate in a study abroad program to enhance their education and overall minor experience. Highly motivated students interested in learning Chinese to professional-level proficiency while simultaneously pursuing the Asian languages (Chinese) minor and undergraduate major of their choice are encouraged to apply to the Chinese Language Flagship Program: <https://silc.asu.edu/chineseflagship> (<https://silc.asu.edu/chineseflagship>).

Program Requirements:

The minor in Asian languages (Chinese) consists of 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper-division. Course substitutions are allowed for heritage and advanced speakers of the language.

Required Courses -- 16 credit hours

CHI 201: Second-Year Chinese I (G) AND CHI 202: Second-Year Chinese II (G) or CHI 210: Intensive Chinese II (6)

Notes: CHI 201 and CHI 202 grant 5 credit hours each. The extra 4 credits earned will be applied to the minimum 120 credit hours needed for graduation. Students may opt to take CHI 210 Intensive Chinese II, an 8 credit hour course equivalent to CHI 201 and CHI 202. The extra 2 credits earned will be applied to the minimum 120 credit hours for graduation.

CHI 301: Third-Year Chinese I (G) (5)

CHI 302: Third-Year Chinese II (G) (5)

Upper-division CHI Coursework -- 2 credit hours

All of the upper-division CHI courses in this list are 3 credit hours. The extra 1 credit earned will be applied to the minimum 45 upper-division credit hours requirement.

CHI 307: Introduction to Literary Chinese I (HU) (3)

CHI 308: Introduction to Literary Chinese II (HU) (3)

Asian Pacific American Studies Minor (LAAPAMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The Asian Pacific American studies minor program focuses on the long history and rich contemporary experiences, cultures and communities of Asian Pacific Americans in the Southwest. This minor will benefit students pursuing careers involving the complex and rapidly changing Asian American and Pacific Islander populations and other culturally diverse populations.

Program Requirements:

The minor in Asian Pacific American studies requires a total of 18 credit hours, including six credit hours of core courses and 12 elective credit hours selected from courses with the APA prefix. A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken in residency at ASU. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

A minimum of nine credit hours must be upper-division coursework.

No course may be used to satisfy more than one requirement in the minor.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

APA 200: Introduction to Asian Pacific American Studies ((HU or SB) & C) (3)

APA 360: Asian Pacific American Experience ((HU or SB) & C) (3)

Elective Courses (Choose four) -- 12 credit hours

APA 210: Introduction to Ethnic Studies in the U.S. (C) (3)

APA 310: Asian Pacific American Arts and Cultures (HU & C) (3)

APA 315: Asian Pacific American Literature (HU & C) (3)
APA 330: Asian Pacific American Genders and Sexualities ((L or SB) & C) (3)
APA 340: Asian Pacific Americans and Media (HU & C) (3)
APA 345: Asian Pacific Americans and Film (HU & C & H) (3)
APA 360: Special Topics (3)
APA 450: Asian Pacific American Contemporary Issues (SB & C) (3)
APA 484: Internship (3)
APA 499: Individualized Instruction (3)

APA 360 Asian Pacific American Experience is required for the core. The course may be repeated for APA elective credit under different topics.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA in Asian Pacific American studies

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Astronomy Minor (LAASTMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The astronomy minor is designed for students interested in developing a basic understanding of astronomy and astrophysics and in analyzing issues through a scientific viewpoint.

Program Requirements:

The minor in astronomy consists of a minimum of 24 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be upper-division courses. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Courses -- 8 credit hours

AST 113: Astronomy Laboratory I (SQ) (1)
AST 114: Astronomy Laboratory II (SQ) (1)
AST 321: Introduction to Planetary and Stellar Astrophysics (SQ) (3)
AST 322: Introduction to Galactic and Extragalactic Astrophysics (SQ) (3)

Physics Core -- 8 credit hours

Student must complete two semesters of physics.

PHY 150: Physics I (SQ) or PHY 121: University Physics I: Mechanics (SQ) AND PHY 122: University Physics Laboratory I (SQ) (4)
PHY 151: Physics II (SQ) or PHY 131: University Physics II: Electricity and Magnetism (SQ) AND PHY 132: University Physics Laboratory II (SQ) or
PHY 252: Physics III (SQ) (4)

Electives -- 8 credit hours

Eight upper division credit hours of electives are chosen in consultation with an academic advisor in the School of Earth and Space Exploration.

AST OR MAT OR PHY OR SES Upper Division Elective (8)

In order to satisfy SQ natural science general studies requirements, both a lecture and its corresponding laboratory section must be completed. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatibles Majors: BS in earth and space exploration (astrophysics); BA in physics; BS in physics

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Astrophysics Minor (LAASTPHMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The astrophysics minor is designed for students interested in developing a background in the theoretical modeling and observational techniques of galactic and stellar astronomy, extragalactic astronomy and cosmology. Students completing the minor will be able to think critically about scientific problems, reducing complex problems to their most important attributes, and to design experiments, observations and theoretical models that address those attributes. Students pursuing an astrophysics minor are expected to have a strong background in physics and mathematics.

Program Requirements:

The minor in astrophysics consists of a minimum of 20 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be upper division. Students complete 12 credit hours of required course work and select one of three eight-credit hour options to complete the minor. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

AST 321: Introduction to Planetary and Stellar Astrophysics (SQ) (3)
AST 322: Introduction to Galactic and Extragalactic Astrophysics (SQ) (3)
AST 421: Astrophysics I (3)
AST 422: Astrophysics II (3)

Electives Options -- 8 credit hours

Choose one of the following options for the additional eight credit hours. (8)

Option 1

SES 121: Earth, Solar System and Universe (SQ) (3)
SES 123: Earth, Solar System and Universe Laboratory (SQ) (1)
SES 126: Exploration of the Universe (3)
SES 128: Exploration of the Universe Lab (1)

Option 2

AST 111: Introduction to Solar Systems Astronomy (SQ) (3)
AST 112: Introduction to Stars, Galaxies, and Cosmology (SQ) (3)
AST 113: Astronomy Laboratory I (SQ) (1)

AST 114: Astronomy Laboratory II (SQ) (1)

Option 3

AST OR MAT OR PHY OR SES Upper Division Elective (8)

In order to satisfy SQ natural science requirements, both a lecture and its corresponding laboratory section must be completed. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Biochemistry Minor (LABCHMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The biochemistry minor is designed to give students majoring in other disciplines a solid grounding in the basics of biochemistry to complement their major degree program. It is especially appropriate for students whose majors are in the various disciplines of life sciences, physics, engineering and geology and for students planning careers in the fields of medicine and health.

Program Requirements:

The minor in biochemistry comprises 28 credit hours of required courses, of which at least 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level. Six of the 12 upper-division credit hours must be from courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 28 credit hours

BCH 341: Physical Chemistry with a Biological Focus (3)

Notes: Prerequisites for BCH 341 include CHM 114, 116 or 118 with "C" or better; CHM 231, 233 or 333 with "C" or better; MAT 251, 265 or 270 with "C" or better; and PHY 101, 112 or 131 with "C" or better.

BCH 461: General Biochemistry (3)

BCH 462: General Biochemistry (3)

BCH 467: Analytical Biochemistry Laboratory (L) (3)

CHM 113: General Chemistry I (SQ) or CHM 117: General Chemistry for Majors I (SQ) AND CHM 111: General Chemistry Laboratory for Majors I (SQ) (4)

Notes: Students completing CHM 117 must also complete its corresponding CHM 111 lab.

Prerequisites for CHM 113 or CHM 117 include CHM 101 with C or better, or ALEKS score of 61 or higher, OR Pre- or corequisite(s): MAT 170, 171, 210, 251, 265 or 270 with C or better if completed.

CHM 116: General Chemistry II (SQ) or CHM 118: General Chemistry for Majors II (SQ) AND CHM 112: General Chemistry Laboratory for Majors II (SQ) (4)

Notes: Students completing CHM 118 must also complete its corresponding CHM 112 lab.

CHM 233: General Organic Chemistry I (3)

CHM 234: General Organic Chemistry II (3)
CHM 237: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory I (1)
CHM 238: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory II (1)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in applied biological sciences (all concentrations); BS in biochemistry (medicinal chemistry); BS in chemistry (environmental chemistry); BS in forensic science; BS in health sciences preprofessional; BS in human nutrition and nutrition; BS in biochemistry; BA in biochemistry; BS in chemistry; BA in chemistry

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Biological Sciences Minor (LABIOMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Biological science encompasses the study of all living things and includes the study of basic organization and function, how organisms evolve, their roles in the natural environment, how hereditary information is transferred and the development of biotechnology. The biological sciences minor is a program designed to provide students with a flexible curriculum that can be tailored to their interests.

Program Requirements:

The minor in biological sciences requires a minimum of 24 credit hours, of which at least 12 credit hours must be upper-division. At least six of the upper-division credit hours must be from courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

The remaining elective credit hours may be chosen from those courses in the life sciences that can be used toward the majors offered by the school. Three credits of undergraduate research or internship (BIO 495 or BIO 484) can be allowed in the minor.

Core Minor Requirement (15-16 credits) -- 15 credit hours

BIO 281: Conceptual Approaches to Biology for Majors I (SQ) (4)

BIO 282: Conceptual Approaches to Biology for Majors II (4)

BIO 340: General Genetics or MBB 347: Molecular Genetics: From Genes to Proteins (4)

BIO 345: Evolution or MIC 206: Microbiology Laboratory (SG) AND MIC 220: Biology of Microorganisms (3-4)

Minor Electives (8-9 credits) -- 9 credit hours

BIO OR MBB OR MIC Upper Division Elective (8-9)

Students will complete 8-9 credit hours in electives selected from the BIO, MBB or MIC prefixes, all of which must be upper division credit hours.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Electives not accepted in the biological sciences minor: lower division biology courses including but not limited to: BIO 100, BIO 201, BIO 202, and MIC 205.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BS in biological sciences (all concentrations); BS in microbiology (all concentrations). This minor is not available to students majoring in the life sciences.

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. ## Biology Minor (ASLSCMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

A minor in biology can be a valuable asset, particularly when paired with an appropriate major. For instance, a minor in biology paired with a major in political science would provide a good background for someone who wanted to practice environmental law.

Program Requirements:

The minor in biology consists of 28 credit hours. A minimum of eight upper division credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. Course work taken to fulfill the requirements of the minor may not be used to fulfill requirements of a student's major. Consult with an academic advisor prior to enrollment. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 28 credit hours

BIO 181: General Biology I (SQ) (4)

BIO 182: General Biology II (SG) (4)

BIO 320: Fundamentals of Ecology AND LSC 322: Fundamentals of Ecology Laboratory (4)

BIO 353: Cell Biology AND BIO 354: Cell Biology Laboratory (4)

CHM 113: General Chemistry I (SQ) (4)

CHM 116: General Chemistry II (SQ) (4)

LSC 347: Fundamentals of Genetics AND LSC 348: Fundamentals of Genetics Laboratory (4)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA and BS in biology; BA and BS in environmental science; BS in biology (environmental science); BS in biology (pharmacology/toxicology); BS in biotechnology and bioenterprise; BS in forensic science; BS in pharmacology and toxicology

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Business Minor (BABUSMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

A minor in business is available to students who are interested in business courses but wish to pursue majors in other colleges. The courses available for the minor are designed to appeal to and inform the nonbusiness student while covering a broad range of topics that are important to managers, such as:

- accounting
- computer information systems
- economics
- finance
- management
- marketing
- supply chain management

Program Requirements:

Students must complete 18 credit hours (12 of which must be upper-division) of the specified business courses with a grade of "C" (2.00) or higher in each course. At least 12 credit hours must be taken at ASU.

No more than six credit hours can be shared between this minor and other business certificates and minors.

Business students are not eligible to apply for the minor.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

- ACC 382: Accounting and Financial Analysis (3)
- ECN 211: Macroeconomic Principles (SB) or ECN 212: Microeconomic Principles (SB) (3)
- FIN 380: Personal Financial Management (3)
- MGT 380: Management and Strategy for Nonmajors (3)
- MKT 390: Essentials of Marketing (3)

Elective (select one) -- 3 credit hours

- AGB 420: Food Advertising and Promotion (3)
- AGB 445: Food Retailing (3)
- AGB 456: Food Product Innovation and Development (3)
- CIS 300: Web Design and Development (3)
- CIS 308: Advanced Excel in Business (3)
- ECN 211: Macroeconomic Principles (SB) or ECN 212: Microeconomic Principles (SB) (3)
- FIN 331: Financial Markets and Institutions (3)
- LES 380: Consumer Perspective of Business Law (3)
- MKT 391: Essentials of Selling (3)
- MKT 395: Essentials of Advertising and Marketing Communication (3)
- REA 380: Real Estate Fundamentals (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

The upper-division courses specified for the minor are restricted to students with 56 earned credit hours and a minimum 2.00 ASU cumulative GPA. College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Economics majors must use ECN 211 and ECN 212 in their degree and will take an additional elective to replace that requirement in the minor.

ACC 231 may substitute for ACC 382, if previously taken.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BA in business

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

This minor is open to non-W. P. Carey majors.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. ## Chemistry Minor (ASCHMMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in chemistry offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences gives students expanded proficiency in the area of chemistry. Many of the growing career fields, such as forensic sciences, medicine and environmental quality, require a greater degree of chemistry than in the past. Therefore, students with a greater chemistry background have a competitive advantage in these fields. The chemistry minor gives students more experience in the advanced and integrative fields of chemistry through additional biochemistry and analytical chemistry courses. The awarding of the chemistry minor highlights the students' expanded chemistry knowledge to future schools and employers.

Program Requirements:

The minor in chemistry consists of 25 credit hours. A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken through the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00).

Required Courses -- 25 credit hours

BCH 371: Modern Concepts in Biochemistry AND BCH 372: Modern Concepts in Biochemistry Laboratory (4)

CHM 113: General Chemistry I (SQ) (4)

CHM 116: General Chemistry II (SQ) (4)

CHM 233: General Organic Chemistry I AND CHM 237: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory I (4)

CHM 234: General Organic Chemistry II AND CHM 238: General Organic Chemistry Laboratory II (4)

LSC 425: Analytical Chemistry for Life Sciences AND LSC 426: Analytical Chemistry for Life Sciences Lab (5)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA and BS in biology; BA and BS in environmental science; BS in biology (pharmacology/toxicology); BS in biology (environmental science); BS in biotechnology and bioenterprise; BS in forensic science; BS in pharmacology and toxicology

Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership Minor (LACELMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

A minor in civic and economic thought and leadership trains students to read and understand influential ideas in philosophy, economics and politics in order to become leaders in any discipline. Students learn to think broadly and talk constructively to unite people with diverse backgrounds and conflicting motivational needs by leading them toward shared goals.

Students interested in careers as lawyers, doctors, journalists, educators, law enforcement officials and political scientists benefit from a liberal arts education that helps them to develop the ethical framework they need to ask informed questions, make sound decisions for the common good and solve the difficult problems that leaders confront in any discipline.

Students in the minor participate in a high-impact curriculum and are eligible for a global intensive experience, leadership seminars, an internship program and special access to prominent scholars and visiting fellows.

Program Requirements:

The minor in civic and economic thought and leadership requires 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper-division courses. At least 12 credit hours must be taken from ASU. All courses must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

CEL 100: Great Ideas of Politics and Ethics (HU) (3)

CEL 200: Great Debates in American Politics and Economics (HU) (3)

CEL 300: Capitalism and Great Economic Debates (3)

CEL 475: Statesmanship and American Grand Strategy (3)

Upper Division Electives -- 6 credit hours

CEL 305: Classical Political Philosophy and Statesmanship: The Greeks (3)

CEL 320: Modern Political Thought: Origins and Debates about Modern Liberty (3)

CEL 345: Classics of Modern Economic Thought: Smith to Hayek and Beyond (3)

CEL 375: Politics and Leadership in the Age of Revolutions, 1776-1826 (3)

CEL 394: Supervised Research (3)

CEL 484: Internship (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=CEL&l=300-399&t=2197&hon=F>) > CEL 3** Elective (3)

Description:

The minor program in communication provides students the opportunity to understand the role and function of communication in cultural, public, organizational and relational contexts. The program offers a flexible set of courses and is designed for students majoring in another field.

Program Requirements:

The minor in communication consists of 18 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences. Students wishing to pursue the minor must meet with an academic advisor to construct a set of courses that reflect a particular area of specialty and interest. All courses must be passed with a minimum grade of "C" (2.00).

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

COM 100: Introduction to Human Communication (SB) (3)

COM 225: Public Speaking (L) (3)

Upper Division Electives -- 12 credit hours

COM Upper Division Elective (12)

Up to three credit hours of COM 382, 383, 483, 484, 498 or 499 may be applied toward the minor.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA and BS in communication

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

The minor in communication is open to all ASU undergraduate majors.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Design Studies Minor (ARDSNMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Students interested in design can earn a minor in design studies through this nonstudio-based program of study that focuses on the design disciplines offered in the ASU Herberger Institute:

- architectural studies

- graphic design
- industrial design
- interior design
- landscape architecture

The courses may also appeal to students who wish to pursue the study of design within the BA in interdisciplinary studies.

Program Requirements:

Courses selected must satisfy the minimum requirement of 18 credit hours for the minor. 12 of the credit hours must be in 300-level or 400-level coursework; the 18 credits may be chosen from any of the categories.

To enhance understanding of the subject matter, some of the designated courses are sequential in nature and require certain prerequisites.

Consequently, students should carefully note the semester in which these particular courses are offered. All designated courses for the minor in design studies are lecture courses.

Lower Division Design Studies -- 6 credit hours

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.50

Incompatible Majors: All majors in The Design School as well as design studies and design studies (design management)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Digital Audiences Minor (CSDAUMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Description:

The minor program in digital audiences aims to answer the following questions: Who are digital consumers? How can we measure them? And how can we use what we know to better engage and grow audiences?

By exploring the users of websites, social networks and apps, and applying skills such as analytics, social media execution, network analysis, search engine optimization and search engine marketing, students who pursue the digital audiences minor gain a rich understanding of how to acquire and engage audiences.

The program uses real cases from real brands and organizations to explore tools from Google Analytics to Facebook Audience Insights and tactics from hashtag analysis to competitive keyword research. Upon completion, students have the skills to strategically grow digital audiences and harness analytics to drive organizational change.

Program Requirements:

Students must complete MCO 307 first. In order to enroll in the course, students must have a 2.00 cumulative GPA.

To be awarded the minor, students must earn a "C" or better in all courses.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

MCO 307: The Digital Audience (3)

MCO 436: Audience Research and Behavior (3)

MCO 437: Audience Acquisition and Engagement (3)

MCO 438: Digital Audience Analysis (3)

MCO 439: Digital Audience Growth (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in digital audiences

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Digital Culture Minor (HIDGCMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The digital culture minor allows students to enhance their program of study with integrated, interdisciplinary training in creative processes and technical skills in new media with cultural applications.

Students develop both the technical skills to create computational media and the cultural skills to know when or why to apply them. Students in the digital culture minor learn to create computational media (computation combined with objects, sound, video, time, space, culture and bodies), breathe behavior into media, objects or systems by programming, and think critically about how computation impacts our lives and how culture makes a difference in how people experience computational media, a critical skill in the dynamic 21st century.

Armed with skills and judgment, digital culture graduates work in cultural communication, marketing, design, social media, health, education, entertainment and creative arts, and all areas in which culture is shaped by technology and computational media. All digital culture students gain techniques to change the world and communicate using contemporary computational media, a vital power in the 21st century. Some students go on to invent fresh techniques.

Program Requirements:

The digital culture minor requires 21 credit hours (12 upper-division) in four areas.

Courses for the minor may not be used as part of a major. A minimum of 12 upper-division credit hours taken at ASU is required.

Disability Studies Minor (ASDISASMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in disability studies explores historical, linguistic, social, artistic and legal dimensions of disability with the goal of improving society in ways that will benefit those with disabilities.

Through curriculum that combines theory and practice, students will be prepared to address injustices, exclusions and misapprehensions regarding disabilities through advocacy and self-advocacy, education, knowledge of the law and historical awareness. The minor's coursework, designed to complement any undergraduate major, utilizes an electronic portfolio tailored to students' professional interests.

Students will be able to apply the knowledge gained in this program toward careers in policy and advocacy, social work, education, government, and with community and nongovernmental organizations.

Program Requirements:

The minor in disability studies consists of 18 credit hours; a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper-division. 12 credit hours must be completed through coursework in the School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies. Program requirements include six credit hours of core coursework, nine credit hours of electives and three credit hours of culminating experience. All courses used to fulfill the requirements of this minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Core Requirements -- 6 credit hours

Early Childhood Education Minor (TEECEDMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Description:

A minor in early childhood education allows students to combine their knowledge of their major discipline with an understanding of educational practices for young children and their families. The ultimate goal of this minor is to produce graduates who understand and apply knowledge of child development and collaboration within educational community contexts. The service learning experience embedded in this minor enables students to apply their knowledge and skills to authentic educational contexts in the community.

Program Requirements:

The minor in early childhood education requires 18 credit hours.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

ECS 310: Foundations in Typical / Atypical Child Development (3)
ECS 312: Social and Emotional Development of the Young Child (SB) (3)
ECS 431: Family, Community and Professional Support Systems (3)
EDP 310: Educational Psychology for Non-Teachers (SB) (3)

Notes: Complete three one-hour courses in EDP 310
TEL 215: Introduction to Child and Adolescent Development (SB) (3)
USL 210: Service Learning: Intro to Diverse Community Issues (L & C) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Economics Minor (LAECNMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Economics is a social science that examines how societies, businesses and individuals deal with scarcity, and this minor in economics offers instruction by world-renowned researchers and award-winning professors. Students study micro- and macroeconomic concepts that are changing the landscape of today's dynamic world.

Students who pursue the minor in economics create a personalized program of study that covers economic theory and applications. Students complete introductory courses (ECN 211 and ECN 212) and choose electives from a large set of upper-division offerings to suit individual interests and goals.

Program Requirements:

The minor in economics consists of 18 credit hours in economics courses, of which 12 credit hours must be upper-division courses. A minimum of six upper-division credit hours must be taken in courses offered by the W. P. Carey School of Business. Only courses completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a scale of 4.00) or better can be used to satisfy minor requirements.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

ECN 211: Macroeconomic Principles (SB) or ECN 213: Honors Macroeconomics (SB) (3)

ECN 212: Microeconomic Principles (SB) or ECN 214: Honors Microeconomics (SB) (3)

Electives -- 12 credit hours

ECN Upper Division Elective (12)

Upper-division economics courses offered by W. P. Carey may require additional prerequisites. In addition to ECN 211 and 212, students must complete MAT 210 and MAT 211 or MAT 270 and 271 prior to enrolling in ECN upper-division courses.

No more than three credit hours of ECN 484 Internship may be applied to the minor.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BS in economics; BS in economics (politics and the economy); BS in politics and the economy

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Educational Studies Minor (TEEDSTMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Description:

Learning happens everywhere and at all ages. The educational studies minor prepares graduates to work with children, youth and adults in nonprofit settings, community institutions, civic organizations and businesses. It provides a foundation for students to shape the role of education in society and the act of learning.

Students interested in career and technical education certificates can use the educational studies minor to meet coursework requirements for the Career and Technical Education certificate. Additional requirements for the CTE certificate, including work experience, are not included in the minor. Students interested in obtaining the CTE certificate should refer to the Arizona Department of Education website for further information.

Program Requirements:

The minor in educational studies requires a minimum of 18 credit hours, including nine lower-division credits and nine upper-division credits. A "C" grade or better is required in all upper-division coursework.

Required Courses (choose two) -- 6 credit hours

EDT 180: Technology Literacy: Problem Solving using Digital Technology Applications (CS) (3)

SPE 222: Orientation to Education of Exceptional Children (SB & C) (3)

TEL 111: Exploration of Education (SB) (3)

TEL 200: Social Embeddedness of Educational Endeavors (3)

TEL 208: Literacy in a Changing World (3)

TEL 215: Introduction to Child and Adolescent Development (SB) (3)

Required Service Learning -- 3 credit hours

USL 210: Service Learning: Intro to Diverse Community Issues (L & C) (3)

General Overview of Education -- 9 credit hours

ECS 312: Social and Emotional Development of the Young Child (SB) (3)

EDP 310: Educational Psychology for Non-Teachers (SB) (1-6)

Notes: Up to six 1-credit EDP 310 topics can be taken.

TEL 430: Learning Outside of School (3)

TEL 431: Learning in Workplaces (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Engineering Management Minor (ESENMMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The minor in engineering management is a program designed to provide students with the skills for effective management and leadership of engineering-driven enterprises. This minor can also be used by interdisciplinary studies BA students as part of their degree program.

The minor curriculum supplements students' majors by adding to the breadth of engineering science and design and equipping the student with additional management and design skills. This knowledge is augmented with an understanding of business practices, organizational behavior and management skills to enable the student to succeed in the management of a scientific or engineering enterprise. Topics such as project and resource management, financial engineering, risk management, configuration management, service plans, product liability, entrepreneurship and operations management are covered, in addition to product design and process development.

Program Requirements:

The program of study for a minor in engineering management requires a minimum of 18 credit hours. Note that industrial engineering or engineering management majors will NOT be eligible for the minor.

The minor requires completion of four core courses (12 credit hours) and two elective courses (six credit hours) for a total of 18 credit hours. All courses must be passed with a "C" or better. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in residency at ASU or through ASU Online.

Core Courses -- 12 credit hours

IEE 220: Business and Industrial Engineering or IEE 380: Probability and Statistics for Engineering Problem Solving (CS) (3)

Notes: Students whose major requires IEE 380 "Probability and Statistics for Engineering Problem Solving" (3) will need to take IEE 220 "Business and Industrial Engineering" (3) for the engineering management minor. Online students are required to complete IEE 380 as part of their core.

IEE 300: Economic Analysis for Engineers (3)

IEE 431: Engineering Administration (L) (3)

IEE 458: Project Management or CEE 481: Civil Engineering Project Management (3)

Notes: CEE 481 may not be used for both the civil engineering degree (major) and the engineering management minor.

Electives -- 6 credit hours

IEE 369: Work Analysis and Design (L) (3)

IEE 376: Operations Research Deterministic Techniques/Applications (3)

IEE 381: Lean Six Sigma Methodology (3)

IEE 412: Introduction to Financial Engineering (3)

IEE 454: Risk Management (3)

IEE 456: Introduction to Systems Engineering (3)

IEE 474: Quality Control (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BSE in engineering management and BSE in industrial engineering

Other Enrollment Requirements: Prior to enrolling in the minor, students must have completed MAT 265 and MAT 266 (or an equivalent calculus sequence) with a grade of "C" or better in each.

Interested students should consult with a School of Computing, Informatics and Decision Systems Engineering advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. To schedule a CIDSE advising appointment, students should visit <https://fultonapps.asu.edu/advising> (<https://fultonapps.asu.edu/advising>).

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. ## English Minor (ASENGMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in English is an ideal choice for students who enjoy English and desire to become better writers, readers and thinkers. The program requirements ground students in the basics of literary and cultural study, and the distribution area requirement allows for a range of course offerings in linguistics, rhetoric and literature. With its emphasis on critical reading and writing skills, the English minor is the perfect complement to any major.

Program Requirements:

The minor in English requires a minimum of 21 credit hours, of which 15 credit hours must be upper division. Students must complete a minimum of six upper division credit hours in courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. At least six credit hours of Distribution coursework must be at the 400 level. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours

ENG 200: Critical Reading and Writing About Literature (L or HU) (3)

Distribution Cluster Requirement -- 15 credit hours

Select one course from each distribution cluster. Fifteen credits are required, and at least two courses, for six upper-division credits, must be at the 400 level.

Identities, Communities and Social Practices -- 3 credit hours

ENG 312: English in its Social Setting (L or HU or SB) (3)

ENG 353: African American Literature: Beginnings through the Harlem Renaissance ((L or HU) & C) (3)

ENG 400: History of Literary Criticism (L or HU) (3)

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA in English

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

The minor in English is open to all ASU undergraduate majors.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

English Minor (LAENGMIN)

Campus: Online

Description:

A minor in English provides students with the strong analytical and communications skills required by many professions, such as those in publishing, journalism, public relations, nonprofit organizations, professional and technical writing, education, business, banking, grassroots activism, law and medicine, as well as numerous others throughout industry and government.

The minor in English is delivered entirely online and serves as a complement to the chosen major of undergraduate students who are pursuing an ASU major online.

Program Requirements:

The online minor in English consists of 24 credit hours. At least 12 of the 24 credit hours must be upper-division and at least 6 credit hours of the upper-division work must be taken at the 400-level. The remaining nine credit hours may be completed with ENG 200-499 courses. At least six of the upper-division credits must be earned from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher is required in all courses taken for the minor.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

ENG 200: Critical Reading and Writing About Literature (L or HU) (3)

Electives -- 21 credit hours

Environmental Science Minor (ASENVMIN)

Campus: West, ASU@Lake Havasu

Description:

The environmental science minor provides students with a fundamental understanding of how the natural world functions as a system, how changes in this system influence organisms and humans, and in turn, how this system is impacted by humans. Students who complete this minor have the foundational knowledge to apply environmental concepts and awareness to their future careers. Many career fields have environmental applications including business and entrepreneurship, the health industry, economics, and academic research careers.

An understanding of human-environment interactions gained through this minor will augment students' major field of study and empower them to leverage their future careers to address environmental issues. To accommodate broad interests for students from a variety of majors, the curriculum is designed to allow students to explore their interests by choosing from categories of scientific coursework and skill-based curricula to provide applied experiences for students from a variety of majors.

Program Requirements:

The minor in environmental science consists of 15 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper-division. A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken through the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Core Requirement -- 6 credit hours

ENV 201: Fundamentals of Environmental Science (3)

IAS 407 / PHI 407: Environmental Philosophy and Policy (L or HU) or IAS 409 / PHI 409: Eco-Community Ethics (HU) or PHI 310: Environmental Ethics (HU) (3)

Upper Division Electives -- 9 credit hours

Choose a minimum of nine credit hours from the following categories. Students may choose freely from among the categories; it is not necessary to take one from each or all from one category.

Global/Ecosystem Focus:

BIO 422: Ecosystem Ecology (3)

CHM 302: Environmental Chemistry (3)

ENV 410: Soil Science (4)

LSC 434: Marine Ecology (3)

MIC 443: The Microbial Universe AND MIC 444: The Microbial Universe Laboratory (4)

Organismal Focus:

BIO 370: Vertebrate Zoology (4)

BIO 385: Comparative Invertebrate Zoology (4)

BIO 410: Techniques in Conservation Biology and Ecology (L) (3)

BIO 412: Conservation in Practice (3)

BIO 474: Herpetology (4)

PLB Upper Division Elective (3-4)

Skills in Environmental Science:

ENV 345: Spatial Analysis in the Environmental Sciences (3)

ENV 385: Environmental Impact Assessment (3)

ENV 388: Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (L) (3)

ENV 499: Individualized Instruction (1-3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS and BA environmental science

Other Enrollment Requirements: This first course in this minor (ENV 201) has prerequisites of BIO 181, BIO 182 and CHM 116.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. ## Environmental and Resource Management Minor (ESERMMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor in environmental and resource management provides students with a thorough introduction to environmental regulations and key environmental management issues such as the provision of clean, potable water, wastewater treatment, and solid and hazardous waste management, as well as remediation technologies for polluted soils, groundwater and air. Students learn to apply basic science and engineering principles to solving problems that significantly impact human health and ecosystems.

The environmental and resource management minor program provides a valuable option to other majors that focus on environmental issues whether from a technical or policy perspective. The courses form a coherent whole and demonstrate the connection between science, engineering, public policy and the law.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires completion of four core courses (12 credit hours) and two elective courses (six credit hours) for a total of 18 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in residency at ASU.

The following are required courses that must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher:

Core Courses -- 12 credit hours

ERM 201: Environmental Management (3)

ERM 203: Environmental Regulations (3)

ERM 302: Water and Wastewater Treatment Technology (3)

ERM 402: Unit Treatment Technologies (3)

Electives -- 6 credit hours

ERM 401: Hazardous Waste Management (3)

ERM 406: Environmental Chemistry (3)

ERM 407: Occupational Hygiene (3)

ERM 426: Environmental Issues (3)

ERM 428: International Environmental Management (G) (3)

ERM 432: Sustainable Solid Waste Management (3)

ERM 494: Algae in Water/Energy/Food Nexus (3)

ERM 494: Environmental Health (3)

ERM 494: Environmental Management Leadership (3)

ERM 494: Tribal Environ & Natural Resources Management (3)

ERM 494: Utilizing Algae Technology for Diverse Products (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in environmental and resource management

Other Enrollment Requirements: Interested students must have at least sophomore status. Students should consult with a Polytechnic School advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. To schedule an advising appointment, students should go to <https://fultonapps.asu.edu/advising> (<https://fultonapps.asu.edu/advising>).

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. ## Fashion Minor (HIFSHMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor program in fashion offers grounding in the history, social context and economics of the contemporary fashion industry. Students also have the option of pursuing more focused classes designed to introduce students to a variety of roles in this important industry: fashion history, fashion industry business practices and fashion production.

Among the subjects that may be related to students' majors are marketing and merchandising, costuming, wearable technology, sustainability, management and leadership, international experience, and fashion and culture. Due to the relationship of these subjects to a wide variety of disciplines taught at ASU, many students throughout the university may supplement their major with closely related fashion minor classes, creating a strong foundation for a variety of careers. Opportunities for study abroad could further advance students' professional goals.

Taught by well-known fashion industry professionals, students enrolled in the minor in fashion at ASU develop connections to leaders in the industry.

Program Requirements:

Courses selected must satisfy the minimum requirement of 18 credit hours for the minor; nine of the credit hours must be upper-division (300 or 400-level) coursework.

Description:

Science and technology shape every facet of modern human life, but all too frequently the underlying histories and ideas go unexamined. The minor program in the history of science, ideas and innovation helps students understand how society reached its present state and helps them reflect on what the future might hold by providing a foundation in the social and intellectual issues central to understanding the intertwined histories of science, technology and ideas.

Program Requirements:

The minor of history of science, ideas and innovation requires 15 credit hours, as follows:

1. A minimum of six upper-division credit hours in the minor must be taken in courses offered through the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.
2. Courses that count toward the minor must have a grade of "C" (2.00 on a scale of 4.00) or higher.
3. 12 credit hours of upper-division history courses are required.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

HST 280: History of Science, Ideas and Innovation (H) (3)

Elective Courses -- 12 credit hours

HST 309: Exploration and Empire ((L or HU) & H) (3)

HST 318: History of Engineering ((L or SB) & G) (3)

HST 319: History of Aviation (H) (3)

HST 345: Environmental History (L) (3)

HST 380: Studies in the History of Science (3)

HST 381: Studies in the History of Ideas (3)

HST 382: Studies in the History of Innovation and Technology (3)

HST 482: Writing and the History of Science, Ideas and Technology (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00 cumulative GPA

Incompatible Majors: BA in history; BA in history of science, ideas and innovation

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Human Nutrition Minor (ECNTRMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The human nutrition minor program is available to any ASU student interested in a strong scientific understanding of human nutrition.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires students to take the following courses, for a total of 19 credit hours. All courses in the minor require a minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Students pursuing the BS in Nutrition (Human Nutrition), Nutrition (Dietetics) or BS Nutrition may not add this minor.

Required minor courses -- 19 credit hours

NTR 241: Human Nutrition (3)

NTR 341: Medical Nutrition Therapy I (3)

NTR 440: Advanced Human Nutrition I (3)

NTR 441: Advanced Human Nutrition II (3)

NTR 444: Medical Nutrition Therapy II (3)

NTR 446: Medical Nutrition Therapy III (4)

Additional prerequisite requirements: CHM 101 or 113, BIO 201, BIO 202 and BCH 361

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BS in nutrition; BS in nutrition (dietetics); BS in nutrition (human nutrition); BS in health sciences (healthy lifestyles coaching); BAS in applied science (food service management)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Human Systems Engineering Minor (ESHSEMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor in human systems engineering in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering provides students with an understanding of the science of human performance and with experience using methods and tools that will enable them to apply their understanding to design and problem-solving. These skills can be used in a wide variety of domains, such as product usability, learning design, sports performance, and workplace and hospital safety.

A broad range of professions need experts in human factors to work on problems that involve an understanding of human performance. Interest areas include user experience, aviation human factors, cognitive performance, consumer psychology, transportation human factors, patient safety, effective teamwork, health psychology, learning optimization, social cognition, threat detection and sports psychology.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 21 credit hours. All required minor courses must be passed with a "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

HSE 101: Introduction to Human Systems Engineering (SB) (3)

HSE 225: Human Systems Integration (3)

HSE 230: Statistics for Human Systems Research I (CS) (3)

HSE 290: Experimental Methods for Human Systems Research (L) (3)

HSE 323: Perceptual Systems (SB) or HSE 324: Applied Cognitive Science (SB) (3)

HSE 325: Human-Computer Interaction (3)

Elective Course -- 3 credit hours

HSE 422: Human Factors in Sport (3)

HSE 423: Human Factors in Transportation (3)

HSE 424: Human Automation Interaction (3)

HSE 425: Human Factors in Medical Systems (3)

HSE 426: Training and Expertise (3)

HSE 427: Designing for Learning (3)

HSE 428: Judgment and Decision Making (3)

HSE 429: Product Design and Evaluation (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in human systems engineering

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Interested students must have at least junior status. Students should consult with a Polytechnic School advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. ## Innovation in Society Minor (FIFISMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor program in innovation in society equips students with the tools needed to analyze how science, technology and other social forces shape our present and future. Students cultivate the critical-thinking skills needed to develop creative strategies that steer innovation towards the needs and values of society. Students are trained to synthesize research and theory from the social sciences, humanities, natural sciences and engineering so they can develop proposals for how to build better futures. It enables students to understand the broader context of their major and helps them mesh those studies with other disciplines to develop more encompassing solutions to important problems.

Program Requirements:

Integrative Social Science Minor (LSISSMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The minor program in integrative social science is designed to provide general education in the social sciences for individuals who desire exposure to the variety of theories and methods of social scientists. Individuals seeking to expand their analytical, problem solving and strategic planning skill sets will benefit from this minor.

The minor is useful to engineers, technologists and other professionals whose specialized education may not have given them access to social science research theories and methodologies, though their professional activities demand knowledge of those tools.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 18 credit hours. All students must complete the 15 credit hours of required courses and three credits from the list of electives. Because of their specific design for this particular minor, required courses for the 15 credit hours cannot be substituted. All courses used to meet the three-credit hour elective component must be upper-division (numbered 300- to 400-level). Transfer hours cannot be used to meet the requirements for the 15 credit hours of courses required.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

ISS 301: Integrated Social Science Research Methods (SB) or POS 301: Empirical Political Inquiry (SB) or STS 301: Research in Science and Technology Studies (SB) (3)

ISS 302: Scope of Social Science (SB) (3)

ISS 304: Integrated Theories of Social Science (SB) (3)

ISS 401: Statistics for Integrated Social Science (MA) or POS 401: Political Statistics (CS) or STS 401: Statistics in Science and Technology Studies (CS) (3)

STS 304: Science, Technology, and Society (SB) (3)

Elective Course -- 3 credit hours

POS 316: American Political Institutions (3)
POS 325: Public Policy Development (SB) (3)
POS 485: Political Economy (SB) (3)
SOC 332: The Modern City (G) (3)
SOC 352: Social Change (SB & G & H) (3)
SOC 420: Sociology of Religion (L or SB) (3)
SOC 421: Education and Society (SB) (3)
STS 306: Social Effects of Science and Technology (SB) (3)
STS 317: Science, Technology, and Global Engagement (SB & G) (3)
STS 329: Technology in Developing Countries (SB & G) (3)
STS 330: Information Technology and Globalization (SB & G) (3)
STS 331: Ethical Issues in Science and Technology (SB) (3)
STS 332: Global Issues in Science and Technology (SB) (3)
STS 364: Science, Technology, and National Security (SB) (3)
WST 300: Women and Gender in Contemporary Society (SB & C) (3)
WST 380: Race, Gender, and Class (SB & C) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Interior Design History Minor (ARINTMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in interior design history is available to students interested in design and culture. The courses designated for the minor are part of the professional studies in interior design environments and serve to inform students about the evolution of interiors, furnishings and decorative arts from ancient Egypt to the present. The coursework introduces theories informing the profession of interior design while also examining cultures from around the globe, as they influence human needs and behaviors in the living and working environment.

Program Requirements:

A minimum of 18 credit hours (12 credit hours of which must be from the 300 or 400 level) are required for the minor. A minimum grade of "C" (2.00) is required in all classes for the minor. To enhance the understanding of the subject matter, the selected courses are sequential in nature and require certain prerequisites. Consequently, students should carefully note the semester in which any of these courses are offered. A minimum GPA of 2.50 in minor courses is required to earn the minor in Interior Design History.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

DSC 101: Design Awareness (HU & G) (3)

INT 111: Interior Design Issues and Theories (HU) (3)

INT 310: History of Interior Design I (HU & H) (3)

Notes: INT 310 requires a prerequisite of ARS 102 "Art from Renaissance to Modernism" with a C or better.

INT 311: History of Interior Design II (HU & H) (3)

Interior Design History Courses -- 6 credit hours

INT 412: History of Decorative Arts in Interiors (HU) (3)

INT 413: History of Textiles in Interior Design (3)

INT 415: Latin American Design (3)

INT 494: Contemporary Design Issues in Europe (3)

INT 494: Design and Context (3)

INT 494 "Contemporary Design Issues in Europe" and INT 494 "Design and Context" are offered as part of a summer study abroad program only.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.50

Incompatible Majors: BSD in interior design

Kinesiology Minor (NHKINMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, ASU@Lake Havasu

Description:

The minor program in kinesiology introduces students to the concepts, theories, research and careers related to the four major subdisciplines of kinesiology (motor behavior, exercise and health psychology, biomechanics, and exercise physiology). Students in the minor select one of these four subdisciplinary areas as the area of emphasis on which to focus in the upper-division requirements for the minor.

Program Requirements:

18 credit hours are required for the minor. Depending upon a student's program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor. There are course prerequisites for a number of courses in the minor.

Students will begin by taking KIN 101 Introduction to Kinesiology and KIN 290 Introduction to Evidence-Based Practice. After this, students will select a track in one of the four subdisciplines.

*All track courses must come from a single track.

Required Core Courses for all Tracks -- 6 credit hours

KIN 101: Introduction to Kinesiology (3)

KIN 290: Introduction to Evidence-Based Practice (L) (3)

Biomechanics Track

Biomechanics Required Course -- 3 credit hours

KIN 335: Biomechanics (3)

Biomechanics Track Elective Courses (choose three courses) -- 9 credit hours

KIN 334: Functional Anatomy and Kinesiology (3)

KIN 412: Biomechanics of the Skeletal System (3)

KIN 415: Theory of Corrective Exercise (3)

KIN 418: Experimental Neuromechanics (3)

KIN 494: Functional Anatomy of Low Back Pain (3)

Exercise Physiology Track

Exercise Physiology Track Required Course -- 3 credit hours

KIN 340: Physiology of Exercise (3)

Exercise Physiology Track Elective Courses (choose three courses) -- 9 credit hours

KIN 334: Functional Anatomy and Kinesiology (3)

KIN 440: Exercise Biochemistry (3)

KIN 441: Physiology of Women in Sport (L) (3)

KIN 442: Fuel Metabolism (3)

KIN 443: Exercise Endocrinology (L) (3)

KIN 444: Metabolic Adaptations to Exercise Training (3)

KIN 446: Pediatric Obesity (3)

KIN 447: ECG Interpretation (3)

KIN 460: Theory of Strength Training (L) (3)

KIN 465: Muscle Physiology (3)

KIN 494: Advanced Exercise Physiology (3)

KIN 494: Cardiovascular Exercise Physiology (3)

Exercise/Health Psychology Track

Exercise/Health Psychology Track Required Course -- 3 credit hours

KIN 352: Psychosocial Aspects of Physical Activity (SB & C) (3)

Exercise/Health Psychology Track Elective Courses (choose three courses) -- 9 credit hours

KIN 334: Functional Anatomy and Kinesiology (3)

KIN 450: Biopsychosocial Perspectives on Physical Activity and Health (3)

KIN 452: Exercise Psychology (SB) (3)

KIN 454: Motivational Theory in Exercise and Health (3)

Motor Behavior Track

Latin American Studies Minor (ASLASMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in Latin American Studies offers a learner-driven model in which the student's specific interests are deepened through the study of Latin America. It is interdisciplinary and allows for flexibility in course selection while also instilling a breadth and depth of knowledge about issues surrounding Latin America.

This minor encourages cross-cultural exploration and students who pursue it are prepared for a global-minded career path, in fields as diverse as business and finance, arts and arts administration, education, nonprofit organizations, health care, the sciences, psychology, social sciences, sports, journalism, diplomacy, law enforcement and forensic science, ministry, technology, architecture and library science.

Program Requirements:

The minor in Latin American studies consists of 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper division. A minimum of six upper division courses must be taken from the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies and a minimum of 12 credit hours must be completed at ASU. All courses used to satisfy the requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Core Requirements -- 6 credit hours

Materials Science and Engineering Minor (ESMSEMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The materials science and engineering minor is a program designed to give science and engineering majors an in-depth understanding of materials, including their structure, processing, properties and performance.

Program Requirements:

Students are required to take five courses and one lab (minimum of 16 credits), listed below:

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

MSE 250: Structure and Properties of Materials (3)

MSE 355: Structure and Defects (3)

MSE 356: Structures, Properties, and Defects Lab (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=MSE&l=300-399&t=2197&hon=F>) > MSE 3**

Elective or MSE 4** Elective (6)

Materials-related Lab Course -- 1 credit hours

(1)

MSE 421: Physical Metallurgy Laboratory (1)

MSE 451: Introduction to Materials Characterization Lab (1)

Materials-related Course -- 3 credit hours

BME 318: Biomaterials (4)

CEE 353: Civil Engineering Materials (4)

CHM 471: Solid-State Chemistry (3)

EEE 352: Properties of Electronic Materials (4)

EEE 436: Fundamentals of Solid-State Devices (3)

PHY 481: Materials Physics I (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=MSE&l=300-399&t=2197&hon=F>) > MSE 3** Elective (3)

MSE 4** Elective (3)

(3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.75

Incompatible Majors: BA in interdisciplinary studies with a concentration in materials science and engineering

Other Enrollment Requirements: Students must hold a sophomore status to enroll in the materials science and engineering minor. To earn the minor, students must receive a 2.50 GPA in all minor courses. Students adding the minor will also need to complete MAT 265 (MAT 270), MAT 242 (MAT 342 or 343), and CHM 114 or CHM 113 and 116.

Interested students should consult with a School for Engineering of Matter, Transport and Energy advisor to verify eligibility and to review all courses required for the minor. To schedule an advising appointment, students should contact the SEMTE advising office at 480-965-2335 or semte@asu.edu (<mailto:semte@asu.edu>).

Mathematics Minor (ASMATHMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor in mathematics explores the study of higher mathematics. It is designed to enable the student to understand the mathematics most commonly used in business, economics and science. It is expected that students in the minor will be able to reason and to find creative solutions to problems that are either presented to them or meaningfully formulated by them. The minor is recommended for students who plan to major in interdisciplinary arts and sciences, biology or business and for those who are preparing for further graduate study.

The program is offered by offered by the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences.

Program Requirements:

The minor in mathematics consists of a minimum of 23 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). A minimum of nine credit hours must be taken from the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences. Elective courses not on list should be approved by an academic advisor prior to enrollment. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 14 credit hours

MAT 271: Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (MA) (4)

MAT 272: Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (MA) (4)

MAT 300: Mathematical Structures (L) (3)

MAT 342: Linear Algebra or MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours

Choose three electives from the following, for a total of nine credits.

MAT 310: Introduction to Geometry (3)

MAT 371: Advanced Calculus I (3)

MAT 411: History and Philosophy of Mathematics (HU & H) (3)

MAT 443: Introduction to Abstract Algebra (3)

MAT 445: Theory of Numbers (3)

STP 280: Probability and Statistics for Researchers (CS) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Mathematics Minor (LAMATMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in mathematics is designed for students who want to further their knowledge of mathematics. It is beneficial for students majoring in any field where there is a need for quantification in the analysis of phenomena.

Program Requirements:

The minor in mathematics consists of a minimum of 18 credit hours, of which at least 12 must be upper-division. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for courses used in the minor.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

A minimum of 9 credit hours is required. Students completing MAT 271 and MAT 272 will complete a total of 11 credit hours.

MAT 271: Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (MA) or MAT 266: Calculus for Engineers II (MA) (3-4)

MAT 272: Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (MA) or MAT 267: Calculus for Engineers III (MA) (3-4)

MAT 342: Linear Algebra or MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)

Electives -- 9 credit hours

In consultation with an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences, students choose nine credit hours of upper division coursework in any combination from ACT, MAT and STP prefixes.

ACT OR MAT OR STP Upper Division Elective (9)

Students may not apply ACT 491, MAT 411 or MAT 485 or any course not offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences to the minor, unless approved by an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences prior to registration.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BS in actuarial science; BS in applied mathematics; BS in computational mathematical science; BS in statistics; BA and BS in mathematics (including all concentrations); BAE in secondary education (mathematics)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Students should confer with an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Statistical Sciences before declaring the minor.

Media Analysis Minor (CSCMOMINA)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Description:

The mass media, more than ever before, play vital roles in how information is disseminated and how societies are shaped and function. As traditional forms of media and information dissemination change rapidly in an increasingly technological world, it is more important than ever for students to understand the way that media work as well as learn to evaluate the messages that are sent.

In the media analysis minor, students learn to understand the roles that media play, how they are changing and what impact they make. Students are given the tools they need to critically evaluate, analyze and interpret media messages in order to become wise consumers of media.

Program Requirements:

The minor of media analysis consists of 18 credit hours of course work. This is a requirement consistent with many other minor programs at Arizona State University and at other colleges and universities. The focus of the program is on media analysis. Students in the minor will concentrate on evaluating the impact of information dissemination rather than on topics that focus on the practice of gathering and distributing messages. Students in the minor may not register for courses in the professional journalism major.

To take upper-division courses, students must be at least sophomores (25 credit hours). To pursue the minor in media analysis, they must maintain a minimum 2.00 overall GPA, obtain a minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) in each course in the minor and have a major other than journalism and mass communication, sports journalism, or mass communication and media studies.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

MCO 120: Media and Society (SB) (3)

MCO 240: Media Issues in American Pop Culture (3)

MCO 418: History of Mass Communication (SB & H) (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours

MCO 302: Media Research Methods (3)

MCO 366: Media Ethics and Diversity (3)
MCO 403: Media Law (3)
MCO 425: Digital Media Literacy I (3)

Medical Studies Minor (NHMESTMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, West

Description:

The minor program in medical studies focuses on preparing students for work in clinical medicine, to include both direct and indirect patient care.

Students take coursework in historical aspects of medicine and in the impact of violence upon health, health disparities, as well as leadership and professionalism. Students have the option of selecting an internship course that will enhance application of core concepts.

Program Requirements:

Students must earn a 'C' or better in courses used for the minor.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

HCD 303: Global Health Care Systems (G) (3)
HCD 320: Applied Medical/Health Care Ethics (HU) (3)
HCD 330: Health Care Systems in the U.S. (3)
MED 300: Historical and Contemporary Issues in Health (L) (3)
MED 450: Leadership and Professionalism (3)

Elective Course (choose one course) -- 3 credit hours

HCD 422: Health Disparities and Access to Health (3)

IBC 420: Population Health Management (3)

MED 484: Internship (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in medical studies; BS in science of health care delivery; BS in health sciences

Other Enrollment Requirements: Students must complete a minimum of 30 credit hours prior to adding the minor.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Military Leadership Minor (LAMISMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor in military leadership is a program designed to enhance students' learning experience by providing tools that prepare them for leadership roles in various organizations. Students complete courses that cover academic and practical skills in many areas, including:

- effective communication
- leadership ethos
- negotiation
- problem-solving
- staff motivation and empowerment
- team-building

Program Requirements:

The minor in military leadership requires a minimum of 18 credit hours, 12 of which must be at the 300- or 400-level. 12 credit hours must be taken in residence on an ASU campus. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Students choose the option befitting their chosen branch of the military. An option is also provided for non-ROTC students wishing to benefit from the skills and knowledge developed in the minor.

Branch Specific Options -- 18 credit hours

The branch-specific options for Army, Air Force, and Navy require a minimum of 12 credit hours specific to the option and six credit hours chosen from a list of approved electives. Students choosing the Marine option will complete nine credit hours within the branch option courses and nine credit hours from the list of approved electives.

Army Option

MIS 301: Training Management and the Warfighting Functions (L) (4)

MIS 302: Applied Leadership in Small-Unit Operations (L) (4)

MIS 401: The Army Officer (4)

MIS 402: Company Grade Leadership (4)

Choose two additional courses from the list of Approved Electives below.

Air Force Option

AES 301: Air Force Leadership Studies I (L) AND AES 302: Leadership Laboratory (3)
AES 303: Air Force Leadership Studies II (L) AND AES 304: Leadership Laboratory (3)
AES 401: National Security Affairs (L) AND AES 402: Leadership Laboratory (3)
AES 403: Preparation for Active Duty II AND AES 404: Leadership Lab (3)

Choose two additional courses from the list of Approved Electives below.

Navy Option

NAV 301: Naval Ship Systems I (3)
NAV 302: Naval Ship Systems: Weapons (3)
NAV 401: Naval Operations and Seamanship (3)
NAV 402: Leadership and Ethics (3)

Choose two additional courses from the list of Approved Electives below.

Marine Option

NAV 303: Evolution of Warfare (3)
NAV 402: Leadership and Ethics (3)
NAV 403: Amphibious Warfare (3)

Choose three additional courses from the list of Approved Electives below.

Non-ROTC Option -- 18 credit hours

The minor also offers an option designed for non-ROTC students desiring the training provided by the minor. Student in the non-ROTC option complete three courses from this list of approved core courses and three courses selected from the list of Approved Electives.

Choose three courses from the following:

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BMUS in performance (music theatre)

Other Enrollment Requirements: An audition is required for entrance into the minor or BIS concentration and MUP 121 and MUP 170 study.

Audition criteria are determined by area faculty.

Two songs (whole songs, not cuttings) total, to be performed with live piano accompaniment (accompanist provided, or students may choose to bring their own). Both songs must be from musicals, and they must contrast one another. One must demonstrate a "legitimate" style of singing utilizing legato line, and the other can be a contrasting style of your choosing (including pop, rock and belting).

Note: Students may elect to perform one classical selection (an art song or an aria from opera or oratorio) instead of two songs from musicals. The classical piece may be in English or in a foreign language. This could be in place of either piece.

- Monologue: One monologue from a musical or a play, not exceeding one minute in length, will be performed separately from the singing and dance audition.

- Dance Assessment: All applicants must perform a dance assessment separate from the singing audition. The purpose of the assessment is to gain a full picture of the complete musical theatre performer. Students should wear comfortable movement or dance attire and character shoes or shoes that are easy to move in. Students will be taught two brief combinations. There will be dressing rooms available in which to change before and after the dance audition. The dance and monologue audition will take place prior to the singing audition.

Advisors should not add the minor until the student presents an acceptance letter from the School of Music Academic Affairs Office confirming that the student has successfully passed the audition.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure they take an appropriate set of courses. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Philosophy Minor (ASPHIMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor program in philosophy provides students with an understanding of central philosophical issues, problems and ideas; a capacity for critical thinking and analytic reasoning; and the ability to present one's positions effectively through oral and written communication.

The program is offered by the School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies.

Program Requirements:

The minor in philosophy consists of 18 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). A minimum of six credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. Students pursuing this minor will work with an academic advisor to choose and complete six courses from the list below or from the PHI prefix. Credit hours may not be shared between major and minor requirements. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Courses are selected from the following list (minimum 12 upper-division) -- 18 credit hours

ENG 401: Topics in Critical Theory (3)
IAS 340 / PHI 320: Bioethics (HU) (3)
IAS 406 / PHI 406: Moral Dilemmas (L or HU) (3)
IAS 407 / PHI 407: Environmental Philosophy and Policy (L or HU) (3)

Philosophy Minor (LAPHIMIN)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The minor in philosophy provides students with an understanding of philosophical inquiry and method. The program offers an introduction to central themes both in the history of philosophy and in the current literature. Students in this minor have the opportunity to sharpen their critical-reasoning skills while addressing profound questions regarding the nature of:

- existence
- knowledge
- law
- morality
- politics
- science

Program Requirements:

A minor in philosophy consists of 18 credit hours, of which at least 12 must be upper-division. At least six upper-division hours must be in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Each course must be completed with a minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher. The minor in philosophy is also available to complement the studies of ASU Online students. Certain course selections below are offered as oCourses to accommodate ASU Online students.

Subdisciplinary Electives -- 18 credit hours

Subdisciplinary Elective (6)

Upper Division Subdisciplinary Elective (12)

Available subdisciplines are epistemology, ethics and political philosophy, history of philosophy, logic and metaphysics. Students choose courses from the philosophical subdiscipline lists, with no more than two courses from any single track. Courses in the "other" list cover multiple subdisciplines and students may apply these courses within the minor without limit. Students should consult with an academic advisor in the School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies about a proposed selection of courses before enrolling.

Physics Minor (LAPHYMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The physics minor provides students with the fundamental concepts of physics beyond the introductory level. Through rigorous hands-on experience, students deepen their understanding of foundational concepts and develop their analytical skills. Students can tailor the minor through upper-division electives to enhance their career outlook.

Program Requirements:

The minor in physics requires a minimum of 24 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be completed at the upper-division level. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

PHY 121: University Physics I: Mechanics (SQ) AND PHY 122: University Physics Laboratory I (SQ) or PHY 150: Physics I (SQ) (4)

PHY 131: University Physics II: Electricity and Magnetism (SQ) AND PHY 132: University Physics Laboratory II (SQ) or PHY 151: Physics II (SQ)

(4)

PHY 252: Physics III (SQ) (4)

PHY 333: Electronic Circuits and Measurements or PHY 334: Advanced Laboratory I (L) (3)

Notes: One of these courses may be used in the required courses area and the other toward elective credit hours in the minor, but neither course may be repeated for credit.

PHY 361: Introductory Modern Physics (3)

Electives (choose two) -- 6 credit hours

PHY 302: Mathematical Methods in Physics II (3)

PHY 310: Classical Particles, Fields, and Matter I (3)

PHY 314: Quantum Physics I (3)

PHY 333: Electronic Circuits and Measurements or PHY 334: Advanced Laboratory I (L) (3)

Notes: Students may choose PHY 333 or PHY 334 if not already taken to satisfy the required courses for the minor.

PHY 465: Advanced Laboratory II (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BS in biophysics; BA and BS in physics; BS in physics (secondary education)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Physics Minor (LSPHYMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The physics minor provides a rigorous foundation in physics with an emphasis on fundamental concepts and applied hands-on experience. The program broadens and deepens a student's understanding of the field and increases options for employment and graduate study.

The primary emphasis of the physics minor is to give students experience through applied and computational physics projects. The projects are guided by faculty with expertise in the physics of semiconductors and graphene, quantum nano-optics, laser physics and materials science.

The program is offered by the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts at the Polytechnic campus.

Program Requirements:

The minor in physics requires 23 credit hours, as follows:

1. A minimum of six upper-division credit hours in the minor must be taken in courses offered through the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.
2. Courses that count toward the minor must have a grade of "C" (2.00 on a scale of 4.00) or higher.
3. 12 credit hours of upper-division physics courses are required.

Required Courses -- 17 credit hours

PHY 121: University Physics I: Mechanics (SQ) (3)

PHY 122: University Physics Laboratory I (SQ) (1)

PHY 131: University Physics II: Electricity and Magnetism (SQ) (3)

Political Science Minor (ASPOLMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor program in political science, offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, is designed to help students gain an understanding of theory, practice and policy underlying political processes locally, nationally and internationally and to train students with the research skills necessary for the analysis of complex sociopolitical issues locally and globally.

The program strives to meet these goals by offering students learner-centered coursework in political theory, American political institutions, and international relations and world affairs. These goals are accomplished by offering a flexible program of coursework focusing on international urban, race or ethnic sociopolitical areas, internships and service-learning or action research opportunities. Under the direction of faculty, students focus on intellectual and concrete policy issues in the greater Phoenix metropolitan area, Arizona, the Arizona-Mexico borderlands, the Americas and the world.

Program Requirements:

The minor in political science consists of 18 credit hours. A minimum of 12 upper division credit hours are required. A minimum of six upper division credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences. A maximum of three credit hours of internship and three credit hours of individualized instruction may be used to fulfill requirements. Students wishing to pursue the minor must meet with an academic advisor to construct a set of courses that reflect a particular area of specialty and interest. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

Select two from the following:

POS 110: American Government and Politics (SB) or POS 310: American National Government (SB) (3)

POS 150: Comparative Government (SB & G) (3)

POS 160: Global Politics (SB & G) (3)

POS 210: Political Ideologies (SB) (3)

Project Management Minor (LSPROMAMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, Online

Description:

The minor program in project management prepares students to manage complex projects and lead project management teams in a variety of professional settings. The project management minor complements many majors at ASU because project management skills enhance and enrich the skills students receive in a great variety of majors. Students learn the skills needed to manage complex projects in fields like engineering, business, health care, information technology, sustainability, computing, public and nonprofit sectors, and many more. Students learn skills in project leadership, project quality management, project risk management, project schedule management, project cost management and project resource management.

Program Requirements:

The minor in project management requires 18 credit hours to be completed, including a minimum of 12 upper-division credits.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

OGL 320: Foundations of Project Management (3)

OGL 321: Project Leadership, Strategy and Scope (3)

Electives (choose 4) -- 12 credit hours

OGL 322: Project Time Management (3)

OGL 323: Project Cost Management (3)

OGL 324: Resources in Project Management (3)

OGL 326: Project Procurement Management (3)

OGL 421: Project Risk Management (3)

OGL 422: Project Quality Management (3)

Please note: OGL 320 is needed as a prerequisite for all 300 level minor courses and OGL 321 is required for all 400 level minor courses.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00 (university minimum)

Incompatible Majors: BA in organizational leadership (project management); BA in interdisciplinary studies concentration area in project management

Psychology Minor (ASPGSMIN)

Campus: West, Online

Description:

The minor in psychology provides the opportunity to study the scientific nature of the behavior and mental processes of individuals and groups. The study of psychology includes basic and applied courses in the subfields of clinical, developmental, organizational, cross-cultural and social psychology, cognitive systems and behavioral neuroscience, and this program emphasizes the development of wide-ranging skills in critical thinking and reasoning, quantitative and qualitative research methods, working collaboratively on teams and presentation of information in oral and written form.

The psychology minor prepares students for more advanced study in psychology at the graduate level, in either graduate or professional schools.

Program Requirements:

The minor in psychology consists of 22 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). A minimum of six credit hours must be taken from the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences. A maximum of three credit hours of research (PSY 399 Supervised Research and PSY 499 Individualized Instruction) may be used to fulfill minor requirements. PSY 484 Internship may be taken for elective credit only. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the minor must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Foundations of Psychological Science -- 10 credit hours

Psychology Minor (LAPGSMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The minor program in psychology focuses on appreciating and understanding the human condition from a scientific, psychological point of view.

Students who complete the minor in psychology will possess a breadth of knowledge across many areas of psychology. They are able to use basic research and quantitative methods to gather and synthesize psychological findings. Ultimately, they come to understand the relevance and applicability of psychological principles, approaches and findings to individual, group and social issues. In doing so, they are prepared to pursue productive careers and engage on a daily basis with the increasingly complex, information-rich world.

Program Requirements:

The minor in psychology consists of completing 22 credit hours of coursework in the foundations of psychology and the breadth within psychology categories described below. 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level, of which at least six credit hours must be completed in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Department of Psychology. All courses for the minor must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Courses -- 10 credit hours
PSY 101: Introduction to Psychology (SB) (3)
PSY 230: Introduction to Statistics (CS) (3)
PSY 290: Research Methods (L or SG) (4)

Minor Electives -- 12 credit hours

Take one course each from four of the following five breadth areas: Biological, Personality/Mental Health, Cognitive/Learning, Developmental, and Social.

Breadth Area Elective (12)

Biological Breadth

PSY 325: Physiological Psychology (3)

Cognitive/Learning Breadth

PSY 320: Learning and Motivation (3)

PSY 323: Sensation and Perception (3)

PSY 324: Memory and Cognition (3)

Developmental Breadth

PSY 341: Developmental Psychology (SB) (3)

Personality/Mental Health Breadth

PSY 315: Personality Theory and Research (SB) (3)

PSY 366: Abnormal Psychology (SB) (3)

Social Breadth

PSY 350: Social Psychology (SB) (3)

PSY 351: Honors Social Psychology (L or SB) (3)

If a non-psychology statistics course is approved by the psychology department to substitute for PSY 230 Introduction to Statistics, an additional psychology course must be taken to complete the 22 credit hours of required psychology course work. Internship credit, research credit, and teaching assistant credit may not be used to satisfy this requirement. For more information, please contact a psychology advisor.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA and BS in psychology (including all concentrations)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Sociology Minor (ASSOCMIN)

Campus: West

Description:

The minor program in sociology, offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, provides students with an understanding of the theory, practice and policy underlying issues of social change, inequality and diversity. These issues are approached from multiple perspectives, including race or ethnicity, gender, economic position, age, geographic location and position in the global political economy.

The student minoring in sociology learns how it enhances one's understanding of social realities and institutions at local, national and international levels and how sociology contributes to the other social sciences and to the humanities.

Students gain a basic understanding of the assumptions underlying the discipline of sociology and develop the research skills necessary for analysis of complex social issues. These objectives are met by offering a flexible program and by providing the student with individual and group experiences in working with faculty members on concrete intellectual and policy issues.

Program Requirements:

The minor in sociology consists of 18 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). Students wishing to pursue this minor must meet with an academic advisor in the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences to construct a minor that reflects a particular area of specialty and interest. See information about Language Placement Testing (<https://silc.asu.edu/student-life/academic-advising/placement-testing>) or consult with an academic advisor in the School of International Letters and Cultures regarding placement into Spanish language classes. Students testing into higher Spanish language courses may need overrides to enroll.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BA in Spanish; BAE in secondary education (Spanish)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Students who wish to add the minor in Spanish to the degree they are currently pursuing may do so by contacting the School of International Letters and Cultures advising office.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Spanish Minor (LSSPAMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Online

Description:

The series of courses in this 18 credit hour minor help students hone Spanish communication skills and cultural knowledge that will help them serve the needs of the U.S. Latino community in professional settings (e.g., criminology, education, health care, journalism, social work). The combination of professionally focused courses and practical experience in this minor enhances students' professional preparation for employment in positions that require advanced proficiency in Spanish and an in-depth understanding of U.S. Latino culture.

Program Requirements:

The Spanish minor requires a total of 18 credit hours.

Prerequisite: SPA 314 or SPA 316 or SPA 317 or permission of instructor.

All courses for this minor will require a minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better to receive credit toward fulfilling minor requirements.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

SPA 317: Spanish for the Professions (3)

SPA 404: Spanish in U. S. Professional Communities (C) (3)

SPA 405: Latino Cultural Perspectives for the Professions ((L or HU) & C & G) (3)

SPA 484: Internship (3)

Notes: Prerequisite: A minimum of 12 credit hours completed in this minor and permission of the director of the Spanish minor is required.

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours

SPA 403: Spanish Grammar and Stylistics for the Professions (3)

SPA Upper Division Elective (3)

Notes: SPA 300- or 400-level Spanish courses focused on the professions (e.g., business, education, engineering and urban planning, health care, journalism, legal and justice studies, medical or legal interpretation, social work, sustainability)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BA in Spanish

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

For additional admission and registration requirements, students should visit the school website.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. ## Special Events Management Minor (HSEVNMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The minor program in special events management is designed to offer students a solid understanding of special events programming and management. In addition to the two-tiered special events course, which provides basic and advanced instruction as well as experiential learning opportunities through event production, students are able to select electives to meet their interests.

The minor allows students enrolled in other undergraduate programs at ASU to broaden their educational experiences. Students from such various disciplines as business, communication and many others find this program a beneficial supplement to their existing program.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 15 credit hours: six credit hours of required courses and nine credit hours of elective courses.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

PRM 486: Special Events Management (3)

PRM 487: Advanced Special Events Management or CSM 485: Sports Events (3)

Notes: Offered Spring only

Electives (choose three courses) -- 9 credit hours

NLM 300: Fund Raising and Resource Development (3)

PRM 203: Program Planning (3)

PRM 304: Recreation Planning and Facility Development (L) (3)

Notes: Offered Fall only

PRM 475: Entrepreneurial Recreation and Tourism (3)

PRM 484: Internship (3)

TDM 205: Introduction to Travel and Tourism (G) (3)

TDM 345: Meeting and Convention Planning (3)

TDM 350: Tourism, Recreation and Sports Marketing (3)

TDM 458: International Tourism (G) (3)

Standards

1. 15 credit hours of graded course work (no independent study)
2. minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) required for all classes in the minor
3. minimum GPA of 2.00 for those pursuing the minor
4. a major other than parks and recreation management or tourism development and management
5. should be a junior to take 400-level courses

6. no double counting of courses for a major and the minor

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in parks and recreation management; BS in tourism development and management (including all concentrations)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Studio Art Minor (HISTARTMIN)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The studio art minor is designed for students who have an interest in studio arts but are pursuing another major.

The program includes foundation art courses on formal issues in art and upper-division courses that develop the conceptual basis students need while increasing their technical proficiency in one or more studio areas. Coursework in art history, both lower and upper division, helps foster critical understanding of aesthetics and the production of art. The designated coursework is flexible enough for students to concentrate in a single area of the studio arts or explore several mediums.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 21 credit hours (12 upper-division) in studio art and historical & developmental art perspectives.

Studio Core -- 6 credit hours

ART 110: Drawing as Seeing and Thinking (HU) (3)

ART 112: 2-D Design or ART 113: Color or ART 115: 3-D Design or ART 116: Introduction to Digital Media or ART 206: Digital Photography I (3)

Upper-Division Studio Courses -- 9 credit hours

ARA 309: Photography Now (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=ART&l=upperdivision&t=2197&hon=F>) > ART Upper Division Elective (9)

ART 394 Topics for "Non-Majors" are encouraged for Upper-Division Studio Courses requirement.

When selecting other 300 & 400 level ART courses for Upper Division Studios, check the prerequisites. In some cases, instructors will approve an override. Please email the School of Art override form to the instructor to request permission if requisites are not met. If no instructor is listed, visit the School of Art office (room 102 in the Art building) for assistance with overrides.

Historical & Developmental Art Perspectives -- 6 credit hours

ARA 311: Art Appreciation and Human Development (HU) or ARA 489: Writing Art and Design Criticism or ARE 301: Studio Art and Human Development or ARS 101: Art from Prehistory Through Middle Ages (HU & H)

(<https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=ARA&l=upperdivision&t=2197&hon=F>) > ARA OR ARE OR ARS Upper Division Elective (3)

ARS 102: Art from Renaissance to Modernism (HU & H) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Majors Ineligible to Add This Minor: All studio art majors

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Upper-Division Sustainability-Related Electives -- 6 credit hours

Upper Division courses that are sustainability-related and ideally make a connection between the student's major and the minor (#trackgroup) (6)

Students should consult with their major advisor for upper division sustainability-related elective course selection. Possible courses for these electives can be explored at <https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/sustainability-courses-at-asu/>, but still need to be approved by the student's major academic advisor.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: None

Incompatible Majors: BA in business (sustainability); BA in interdisciplinary studies with a concentration in sustainability; BA in sustainability; BS in sustainability

Other Enrollment Requirements: Students interested in adding a minor in sustainability should work with their major academic advisor. A student's major advisor will approve the two upper-division electives required for the minor in sustainability.

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Sustainable Tourism Minor (PPTDMSMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

As sustainability expands in popularity as a discipline, students are looking to find ways to better understand how they can apply the principles of sustainability to specific areas of interest. A minor in sustainable tourism allows students from any major to learn the basic concepts and theories of tourism development and management. This program helps students identify ways in which tourism can contribute to sustainable development, locally and globally.

The minor allows students enrolled in other undergraduate programs at ASU to broaden their educational experiences. Students from such various disciplines as sustainability, business and many others find this program a beneficial supplement to their existing program. Students may also choose to complete a study abroad program.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires a total of 15 credit hours, 12 credit hours of required courses and one three-credit hour course from the list of electives.

Required Core Courses -- 12 credit hours

TDM 205: Introduction to Travel and Tourism (G) (3)

TDM 372: Tourism Planning (L) (3)

TDM 458: International Tourism (G) (3)

Elective Course (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

TDM 448: Heritage and Cultural Tourism (3)

TDM 475: Entrepreneurial Recreation and Tourism (3)

TDM 481: Sustainable Food Management in Tourism (3)

Notes: Offered Spring only

TDM 482: Sustainable Revenue Management (3)

Notes: Offered Spring only

TDM 494: Special Topics (3)

Standards

1. 15 hours of graded classroom course work (no internship, no independent study)
2. minimum "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) grade required for all classes in the minor
3. minimum GPA of 2.00 for those pursuing the minor; a major other than tourism development and management
4. should be a junior or higher to take 400-level courses
5. no double counting of courses for a major and the minor

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in tourism development and management; BS in tourism development and management (sustainable tourism); BS in tourism development and management (resort and hotel leadership)

Technical Communication Minor (LSTWCMIN)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Description:

The minor program in technical communication provides students from other degree programs a foundation in workplace-oriented communication skills that will complement many majors, particularly those in engineering and other technical disciplines, and can make students more competitive in their career path. The minor teaches students how to design, produce and manage professional documents, both print and digital; students also strengthen their technology abilities.

Program Requirements:

The undergraduate minor in technical communication requires 18 credit hours. A grade of "C" or better is required for all courses in the minor.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

TWC 301: Fundamentals of Writing for Digital Media (L) (3)
TWC 401: Fundamentals of Technical Communication (L) (3)
TWC 411: Principles of Visual Communication (L) or TWC 421: Principles of Web Authoring (L) (3)
TWC 431: Principles of Technical Editing (3)

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours

TWC 411: Principles of Visual Communication (L) (3)
TWC 414: Visualizing Data and Information (3)
TWC 421: Principles of Web Authoring (L) (3)
TWC 422: Social Media in the Workplace (3)
TWC 435: Global Issues in Technical Communication (G) (3)
TWC 436: Project Management in Technical Communication (3)
TWC 443: Grant & Proposal Writing (3)
TWC 444: User Experience (3)
TWC 445: Content Strategy (3)
TWC 446: Technical and Scientific Reports (L) (3)
TWC 451: Copyright and Intellectual Property in the Electronic Age (3)
TWC 452: Information in the Digital Age (3)
TWC 453: Information and Communications Technology in American History (L & H) (3)
TWC 454: Information Technology and Culture (C) (3)
TWC 494: Special Topics (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: Technical Communication

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. Minor requirements appear on the degree audit once the minor is added. Certain major and minor combinations may be deemed inappropriate by the college or department of either the major program or the minor. Courses taken for the minor may not count toward both the major and the minor. Students should contact their academic advisor for more information.

Youth Services Leadership Minor (HSYSLMIN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The minor program in youth services leadership is designed to explore the area of youth leadership from the perspective of those who work face-to-face with youth in a variety of settings.

The minor allows students enrolled in a variety of undergraduate programs at ASU to broaden their knowledge of youth services. Students from programs such as education, nursing, social work, criminal justice and others may find this program a beneficial supplement to their existing program.

Program Requirements:

The minor requires 15 credit hours, six credit hours of required courses and nine credit hours of elective courses. At least nine credit hours must be upper division.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

PRM 203: Program Planning (3)

PRM 335: Sports and Recreation for Youth Development (3)

Notes: Offered Spring only

Elective Courses (choose three) -- 9 credit hours

CRJ 204: Juvenile Justice (3)

CRD 302: Inclusive Community Development (SB & C) (3)

CRJ 462: Gangs (3)

NLM 220: Introduction to Nonprofit Organizations (3)

NLM 310: Volunteer Management (3)

NLM 451: Grant Writing (3)

Notes: Offered Spring only

PRM 364: Foundations of Recreation Therapy (SB) (3)

PRM 455: Recreational Therapy with Children, Youth and Families (3)

PRM 486: Special Events Management (3)

1. 15 hours of graded classroom course work (no internship, no independent study)
2. minimum "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) grade required for all classes in the minor
3. minimum GPA of 2.00 for those pursuing the minor, a major or premajor, other than tourism development and management
4. should be a junior to take 400-level courses
5. no double counting of courses for a major and the minor

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this minor.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: BS in parks and recreation management; BS in parks and recreation management (therapeutic recreation)

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Current ASU undergraduate students may pursue a minor and have it recognized on their ASU transcript at graduation. Students interested in pursuing a minor should consult their academic advisor to declare the minor and to ensure that an appropriate set of courses is taken. ## Undergraduate Certificates (Program Descriptions and Requirements)

Actuarial Science Certificate (LAACTCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Actuarial science is an area of mathematical and statistical science that requires expertise in specializations of probability and interest theory, coupled with a strong foundation in accounting, finance and economics. This certificate provides students with preparation for professional actuarial credentialing exams offered by the Society of Actuaries and the Casualty Actuarial Society.

Program Requirements:

Students must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours from the courses listed below. At least 12 credit hours must be upper-division work. A course grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all upper-division coursework.

At least six elective credit hours must be chosen from courses with the ACT prefix. In order to enroll in ACT courses, a minimum grade of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) is required for all prerequisite math, statistics and computer programming, or applications coursework.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

ACT 201: Introduction to Elements and Techniques of Actuarial Science (3)

Electives (Choose four) -- 12 credit hours

A minimum of six credit hours must be ACT courses.

ACT 301: Risk Management and Insurance (SB) (3)

ACT 310: Mathematics of Finance (4)

ACT 370: R and Excel for Actuaries (3)

ACT 415: Probability for Risk Management (3)

ACT 420: Ratemaking and Reserving (3)

ACT 430: Mathematics of Financial Derivatives (3)

ACT 435: Statistics for Risk Modeling (3)

ACT 440: Long-Term Actuarial Mathematics I (3)

ACT 441: Long-Term Actuarial Mathematics II (3)

ACT 450: Actuarial Models and Modeling I (3)

ACT 451: Actuarial Models and Modeling II (3)

STP 425: Stochastic Processes (3)

STP 427: Mathematical Statistics (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Although no specific degree is required for admission to the actuarial science certificate, a strong mathematical background is essential (found in majors such as mathematics, statistics, engineering and natural sciences). Students with a major or degree other than those listed will require additional preparation beyond the certificate. Students are required to have a minimum 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") and grades of "B" or better in courses of multivariate calculus, linear algebra and introductory statistics at ASU or an equivalent institution.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Applied Business Data Analytics Certificate (BABDACERT)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The certificate in applied business data analytics is for students who are interested in practical uses for computer-based tool suites that are capable of managing vast amounts of data. This provides sophisticated but easy-to-use means to manage and analyze such data and to leverage the tools for making good decisions about projects, process designs and fundamental decision-making tasks. Exposure to predictive analytics and modeling, big data techniques, and visualization provides significant insight into the advanced uses of the computer-based tools. Critical thinking is an important skill and mindset that is required to establish and evaluate evidence-based benchmarks for making good decisions leading to high-quality outcomes.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in applied business data analytics requires 18 credit hours to complete and is available to all majors. At least 12 credit hours must be upper-division.

To earn the certificate, students must complete all courses with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a scale of 4.00) or higher.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

CIS 105: Computer Applications and Information Technology (CS) (3)

CIS 308: Advanced Excel in Business (3)

CIS 309: Business Process Management (3)

CIS 310: Business Data Visualization (3)

CIS 405: Business Intelligence (3)

Any Statistics Course (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The applied business data analytics certificate is open to all ASU students. The certificate application is accessed and submitted through Advising SOS at <https://wpcarey.asu.edu/SOS> (<https://wpcarey.asu.edu/SOS>).

No more than six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and other degree programs, minors or other certificates.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Applied Cybersecurity Certificate (ASACSCERT)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Description:

The applied cybersecurity certificate program is designed to build competencies in security operations, risk assessment, network security, and governmental and regulatory compliance in an interdisciplinary learning setting.

Building upon core skills that students bring with them from their majors, students practice dealing with cyber threats and resolving issues from multiple perspectives. This certificate is an ideal supplement for students interested in careers in cybersecurity in both the private sector and within government agencies (FBI, Homeland Security, NSA, DOD) in positions such as:

- chief information security officer
- cyber risk analyst
- information security engineer
- network security engineer
- security operations center analyst

The program is offered through a collaboration between the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Science, the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering and the W. P. Carey School of Business.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in applied cybersecurity consists of a minimum of 15 upper-division credit hours earned at ASU. Six credit hours must be unique and not count towards a student's undergraduate degree. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better. Students must select courses from more than one prefix to fulfill certificate requirements.

Students must take CSE 365 or IFT 302 and one course each from groups A, B or C, and D; then one course from Group E for a total of five courses or 15 credit hours. It is recommended that the Group A course be taken concurrently with CSE 365 or IFT 302. The Group B or C and D courses must be taken after successful completion of CSE 365 or IFT 302. Group A through D courses must be completed successfully before enrolling in the Group E required course.

Required Courses -- 3 credit hours

CSE 365: Information Assurance or IFT 302: Foundations of Information and Computer System Security (3)

Electives -- 9 credit hours

Group A - Security Operations and Risk Management -- 3 credit hours

ACO 461: Security Operations (3)

CIS 401: Managing Cyber Risks in Enterprise Business Processes (3)

IFT 481: Information System Security (3)

Group B - Systems and Network Security OR Group C - Forensics/Cyber Crime -- 3 credit hours

Group B - Systems and Network Security:

ACO 431: Network Security (3)

CSE 466: Computer Systems Security (3)

CSE 468: Computer Network Security (3)

IFT 458: Middleware Programming and Database Security (3)

IFT 475: Security Analysis (3)

Group C - Forensics/Cyber Crime:

ACO 350: Systems Programming (CS) (3)

CSE 469: Computer and Network Forensics (3)

IFT 482: Network Forensics (3)

Group D - Policy -- 3 credit hours

ACO 351: Governance, Risk and Compliance (3)

CIS 402: Privacy, Ethics and Compliance Issues (3)

CSE 467: Data and Information Security (3)

IFT 483: Developing Security Policy (3)

Group E - Project -- 3 credit hours

Students may take more than one semester of Applied Project but only three credit hours will count towards the certificate.

ACO 484: Internship or ACO 499: Individualized Instruction (3)

CIS 440: Capstone in Information Systems (L) (3)

CSE 485: Computer Science Capstone Project I (L) or CSE 486: Computer Science Capstone Project II (L) (3)

IFT 401: Information Technology Capstone Project I or IFT 402: Information Technology Capstone Project II (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

To enroll in this certificate program, students should have completed at least 45 credit hours in their declared majors and have a cumulative GPA of 2.00 or better.

Students should pay attention to the prerequisites needed for required certificate courses and make sure to complete prerequisite courses prior to enrolling in the certificate program.

CSE 365 Information Assurance has prerequisites of CIS 235, CSE 220 or CSE 240.

Prerequisites for CIS 235: CIS 105, 200 or 220; MAT 210, 211, 270 or 271

Prerequisites for CSE 220: CSE 205

Prerequisites for CSE 240: ACO 102 or CSE 205 or a GIS major with GIS 222

IFT 302 Foundations of Information and Computer System Security has prerequisites of IFT 259, and HSE 230, PSY 230 or STP 226.

Prerequisites for HSE 230: MAT 117 or higher, and HSE 101 or PSY 101

Prerequisites for PSY 230: PSY 101 and MAT 119 or higher

Prerequisites for STP 226: MAT 117 or higher

Prerequisites for IFT 259: IFT 201

Prerequisites for IFT 201: IFT 101, as well as pre- or co-requisites of MAT 243, and IFT 102 or SER 200

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Applied Social Sciences Certificate (ASAPSSCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in applied social sciences prepares students to apply social science tools to real-world problems. Students collaborate to develop case studies, engage in fieldwork, and learn both how to apply expert knowledge and how to communicate evidence. Working with stakeholders, students identify and solve problems, reform managerial structures and organizational systems, and drive social change.

The certificate program is recommended for students with academic or career interests in human resources, administration, journalism, social work, business, community and civic work, as well as politics, organizing and advocacy, public policy, education and sustainability.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in applied social sciences requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 must be upper division). Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline.

Twelve credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a New College major.

The certificate requires six core credit hours and nine credit hours of electives. Electives are not limited to the certificate elective list; students should see their academic advisor prior to enrollment. A maximum of three credit hours of individualized instruction or internship may be applied toward the certificate.

Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

POS 350: Comparative Politics (SB & G) or SOC 331: Environmental Sociology (SB & G) (3)

SBS 304: Social Statistics I (CS) or SBS 404: Social Statistics II: Multivariate Analysis (CS) (3)

Elective Courses (minimum 6 upper-division) -- 9 credit hours

Students will select nine credit hours from courses where an applied project is assigned within a specific context. Selected courses must come from at least two of the following prefixes: ASB, JHR, POS, SBS or SOC.

ASB 339 / SBS 339 / POS 339 / SOC 339: Grassroots Social Movements (SB) (3)

ASB 340 / SOC 328: Migration and Culture (SB & G) (3)

ASB 394: Special Topics or JHR 394: Special Topics or POS 394 / SBS 394 / SOC 394: Special Topics (3)

ASB 442 / SBS 460: Global Cities (SB & G) (3)

ASB 484 / JHR 484 / POS 484: Internship or SBS 484: Internship or SOC 484: Internship (3)

ASB 494 / JHR 494 / POS 494 / SBS 494: Special Topics (3)
ASB 499 / JHR 499 / POS 499 / SBS 499 / SOC 499: Individualized Instruction (3)
GCU 373: Introduction to Geographic Information Science (SG) (4)
JHR 305: Theory and Practice of Social Justice and Human Rights (SB & G) (3)
POS 150: Comparative Government (SB & G) (3)
POS 350: Comparative Politics (SB & G) (3)
SOC 241: Modern Social Problems (SB) (3)
SOC 331: Environmental Sociology (SB & G) (3)
SOC 371: Inequality and Sustainability (3)
SOS 111: Sustainable Cities ((HU or SB) & G) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Arabic Studies Certificate (LAARBCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate in Arabic studies provides students with skills that will enable them to communicate effectively in Arabic in the four areas of language acquisition: listening, reading, speaking and writing.

Simultaneously, students gain broad knowledge and understanding of the culture, literature and traditions of the vast Arabic-speaking world. The program provides critically needed educational and cultural diversity that will enrich students' undergraduate experiences and prepare them for life as employees and employers.

Graduate students in the liberal arts, social sciences and humanities seeking academic or professional careers in any of the three disciplines also will benefit from this certificate because of the added advantage the program gives them in the job market, given the demonstrably high need for graduates with knowledge of the Arabic language.

Program Requirements:

The Arabic studies certificate requires students to complete 18 credit hours of upper-division coursework. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for each course. Students must also demonstrate proficiency in Arabic language by completing ARB 202 or above with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better, or by taking a language proficiency test.

Arabic Core (Choose three) -- 9 credit hours

ARB 311: Advanced Arabic Skills I or ARB 411: Advanced Arabic Skills II (3)
ARB 321: Arabic Conversation I or ARB 421: Arabic Conversation II (3)
ARB 331: Arabic/Islamic Culture and Literature (HU & H & G) (3)
ARB 335: Arabic Culture and Islam (G) (3)
ARB 341: Quran Text and Women (HU & H) or ARB 351: Classical Arabic Literature (3)
ARB 352: Modern Arabic Literature in Translation or ARB 422: Advanced Arabic Media (3)

Elective Courses (Choose three) -- 9 credit hours

Some courses can be used either as a core course or as an elective, but no course can be counted more than once toward certificate requirements.

ARB 321: Arabic Conversation I (3)
ARB 335: Arabic Culture and Islam (G) (3)

ARB 336: Introduction to the Qur'an (3)
ARB 337: Hadith and Prophetic Tradition (3)
ARB 340: Arabic Translation (3)
ARB 341: Quran Text and Women (HU & H) (3)
ARB 351: Classical Arabic Literature (3)
ARB 352: Modern Arabic Literature in Translation (3)
ARB 360: Islamic Philosophical Literature (3)
ARB 421: Arabic Conversation II (3)
GCU 328: Geography of Middle East and North Africa (SB & G) (3)
HST 307: Studies in African History (H) (3)

Arts Entrepreneurship Certificate (HITHAECERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Arts entrepreneurship is an emerging transdisciplinary field that harnesses the skills and mindset of the entrepreneur to empower artists to create work that is meaningful, sustainable and oriented to community and market need. Students across art, dance, design, film, music and theatre disciplines will benefit from the business, marketing and organizational skills offered by certificate courses as applied specifically to and within the arts.

Program Requirements:

The undergraduate certificate in arts entrepreneurship consists of 15 credits including nine credit hours of required courses. Of the remaining credits, three credits must be taken from each category of electives shown below: arts business; and arts policy, community, or socially engaged arts. A grade of "C" or better is required in all courses.

Core -- 6 credit hours

HDA 252: Foundations Arts and Design Entrepreneurship (3)
HDA 420: Design and the Arts Business Administration (3)

Arts Business Course (select one) -- 3 credit hours

ARA 396: Professional Practices for Design and the Arts (3)
ARA 460: Gallery Exhibitions (3)

THP 482: Theatre for Social Change (C) (3)

URB 405: Citizen Engagement and Community Building (3)

Capstone -- 3 credit hours

THP 452: Arts Entrepreneurship Seminar (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The certificate in arts entrepreneurship, meant to extend the study of an individual arts discipline, is available only to current students with a major within the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts. Students may be admitted to the certificate program upon completion of HDA 252 Foundations Arts and Design Entrepreneurship with a grade of "B" or better (scale is 4.00 = "A") and an overall GPA of 3.00 or higher. Students must submit an application to the Herberger Institute Office of Student Success. Herberger Institute students meeting the course and GPA requirements may enroll in the certificate, and a Herberger Institute advisor will add the certificate plan code to the student's record.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Arts and Humanities in Games Certificate (ASAHGCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in arts and humanities in games trains students who can design, develop, create and analyze games from holistic and interdisciplinary perspectives, and who can understand the utilization, consumption and real world impact of games in a diverse culture and society. The goal is to make students' minds more supple, critical in thinking, and expansive through an interdisciplinary approach that encompasses the design and development of toys and games as well as the qualitative study of them. The interdisciplinary approach helps students understand the impact of play on human mental, emotional and social growth. This program, through foregrounding arts and humanities in the study of games, provides a complementary approach to the technically based study of games offered by the ASU Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in arts and humanities in games consists of 18 credit hours; a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper-division. A minimum of six upper-division credit hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. All courses used to fulfill the requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

The certificate consists of six credit hours of required foundational courses, and nine credit hours from one of the following gaming emphasis areas: Toys and Games as Works of Art; Toy and Game Culture; Game Writing; or Game Sound (Game Design Practitioner); and three credit hours of playworks portfolio.

Asian Studies Certificate (LAASNCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The Asian studies certificate supplements a bachelor's degree and demonstrates knowledge of an Asian language as well as general knowledge of Asian history, art, culture and society. The certificate provides students with official transcript recognition of specialization in Asian studies.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 24 credit hours of approved coursework, in addition to proficiency in an Asian language. 15 credit hours of upper-division area studies coursework must be chosen from at least four different disciplines, e.g., language and cultures, history, religious studies, anthropology, geography, political science, global studies, art and music. Courses from other disciplines may be used by approval. The remaining nine credit hours may be chosen in any combination.

At least six upper-division hours in the certificate must be in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. A minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) is required for each course that is used to fulfill the certificate requirements.

Language Requirement

Students must demonstrate proficiency in an Asian language by completing the 201 and 202 course sequence, one year of study abroad at the intermediate level or satisfactory performance on a proficiency exam. Asian languages include Chinese, Hindi, Indonesian, Japanese, Korean, Thai, Vietnamese.

Disciplinary Electives -- 24 credit hours

Upper Division Disciplinary Electives (15)

At least four different disciplines must be represented within the upper-division disciplinary electives (e.g., history, religious studies, global studies, anthropology). Cross-listed courses will only apply to the certificate under one discipline; students may choose the discipline that is most advantageous.

Disciplinary Electives (9)

Students select the remaining disciplinary electives from the lists below in any combination.

Atmospheric Sciences Certificate (LAATMSCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Students in the atmospheric sciences certificate program gain a focused understanding of weather, climate and the various related methods of measurement and instrumentation. The coursework is designed to give students the knowledge and skillset necessary to approach meteorological-related programs through the lens of their primary field of study.

The curriculum of the certificate program is also associated with the requirements for certification as a meteorologist by the National Weather Service. Through completion of both the atmospheric sciences certificate and the BS program in geography with a concentration in meteorology-climatology, students achieve the skill sets in GIS and meteorological instrumentation required for national-level certification with the National Weather Service.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 21 credit hours with a "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher. At least 12 of the 21 credit hours must be upper-division courses.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

GPH 212: Introduction to Meteorology (SQ) (3)

GPH 213: Climate and Weather (SG) (3)

GPH 412: Physical Meteorology (3)

GPH 413: Meteorological Instruments and Measurement (3)

GPH 414: Climate Change (G) (3)

MAT 275: Modern Differential Equations (MA) (3)

Upper Division Elective Course -- 3 credit hours

GIS 311: Geographic Information Science III (CS) (4)

GIS 341: Cartography and Georepresentation (CS) (3)

GIS 351: Air Photo Interpretation (3)

GPH 314: Global Change (HU & G) (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Applicants must have completed GPH 111 Introduction to Physical Geography, MAT 271 Calculus with Analytic Geometry II, and PHY 121 University Physics I: Mechanics with a grade of "C" or better (scale is 4.00 = "A").

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Biomedical Research Certificate (ASBMRCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The biomedical research certificate combines authentic research experience conducted in laboratories of practicing academic scientists with upper-division coursework, including laboratory courses, that allow for specialization in given subject areas. The program is intended to serve students seeking competency in addressing scientific questions in the laboratory and prepares them to be highly competitive for careers in the research sector or to pursue graduate and professional schools, such as medical school.

The program is offered by ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in biomedical research requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 must be upper-division). Twelve credit hours must be taken at ASU. This certificate requires a minimum 3.00 cumulative GPA in ASU coursework and upper division standing or graduate student status. Nine credit hours must be counted toward the certificate alone and may not be shared with a student's major requirements. Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet certificate requirements.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

STP 280: Probability and Statistics for Researchers (CS) (3)

Elective Courses -- 8 credit hours

BCH 371: Modern Concepts in Biochemistry AND BCH 372: Modern Concepts in Biochemistry Laboratory (4)

BIO 353: Cell Biology AND BIO 354: Cell Biology Laboratory (4)

BIO 360: Animal Physiology AND LSC 359: Animal Physiology Laboratory (4)

BIO 443: Applied Molecular Genetics and Genomics AND LSC 447: Molecular Genetics Laboratory (4)

MIC 443: The Microbial Universe AND MIC 444: The Microbial Universe Laboratory (4)

Other Certificate Requirements (choose one option below) -- 4 credit hours

Option A -- 4 credit hours

If choosing Option A, complete three credit hours of Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (any subject area) and one credit hour of Individualized Instruction or Supervised Research (any subject area).

ENV 388: Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (L) AND ENV 499: Individualized Instruction (4)

FOR 388: Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (L) AND FOR 499: Individualized Instruction (4)

LSC 388: Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (L) AND LSC 499: Individualized Instruction (4)

PLB 388: Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (L) AND PLB 499: Individualized Instruction (4)

PTX 388: Research Fundamentals for the Natural Sciences (L) AND PTX 499: Individualized Instruction (4)

Option B -- 4 credit hours

If choosing Option B, take two credit hours of Individualized Instruction or Supervised Research (any subject area) in each of two consecutive semesters.

Biomimicry Certificate (SUBMYCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The undergraduate biomimicry certificate is an 18-credit hour interdisciplinary opportunity for students from a variety of backgrounds and any major. The biomimicry undergraduate certificate is designed to address the growing interest in biomimicry knowledge and training, and students who complete the certificate will be enabled to integrate biomimicry principles and tools into their prospective career. The biomimicry certificate consists of four core classes, one elective course within the student's discipline, and a practicum capstone course offered through either the student's discipline or BMY 430 Biomimicry Practicum.

Program Requirements:

Students must earn a grade of "B" or better in all biomimicry certificate courses.

Core Courses -- 12 credit hours

BMY 230 / BIO 230: How Nature Works (3)

BMY 302: Principles of Life (3)

BMY 304: The Practice of Biomimicry (3)

SOS 110: Sustainable World (SB) (3)

Elective -- 3 credit hours

Upper Division Elective course that is biomimicry-related and ideally makes a connection between the student's major and the certificate (3)

Capstone -- 3 credit hours

BMV 430: Biomimicry Practicum (3)

Notes: Students may take a biomimicry-focused capstone in their corresponding major upon approval from the School of Sustainability and The Biomimicry Center.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Students must have a 3.00 GPA in order to add the undergraduate certificate in biomimicry.

Child Life Certificate (LACHLFCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe

Description:

Child life specialists are experts in child development who promote effective coping skills among children facing challenges related to health care and hospitalization. This transdisciplinary program offered through the School of Community Resources and Development and the T. Denny Sanford School of Social and Family Dynamics is designed to assist students to prepare for the national qualifying child life exam.

A portion of the national certification exam eligibility requirements, as outlined by the Child Life Council, are met by obtaining this certificate.

Program Requirements:

The program requires 21 credit hours consisting of 18 hours of graded classroom coursework plus a three credit hour practicum. All courses must be completed with a grade of "B" (3.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Courses -- 21 credit hours

- CDE 337: Early Childhood Intervention (3)
- CDE 450: Child Dysfunction in the Family (3)
- PRM 364: Foundations of Recreation Therapy (SB) (3)
- PRM 384: Recreational Therapy Practicum (3)
- PRM 406: Program Design and Administration in Recreation Therapy (3)
- PRM 455: Recreational Therapy with Children, Youth and Families (3)
- PRM 460: Assessment & Documentation in Recreation Therapy (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students wishing to pursue the child life certificate must complete two prerequisites before applying for the program:

- CDE 232 Human Development with a grade of "B" (scale is 4.00 = "A") or higher
- CDE 338 Child Development Practicum (or comparable experience working with children, as determined by the director of the child life certificate)

For additional information and application, students should consult with an academic advisor in either the School of Community Resources and Development or the Sanford School.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Communication Sciences and Disorders Certificate (NHCSDCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The postbaccalaureate certificate in communication sciences and disorders is designed for students who have already received a bachelor's degree in another discipline but wish to pursue a master's degree in speech-language pathology or communication disorders.

The coursework will provide students with the prerequisite background and knowledge necessary to perform at the master's degree level in the field.

Completion of the postbaccalaureate certificate allows students to meet the American Speech Language and Hearing Association requirements to enter master's degree programs in speech-language pathology or communication disorders.

Program Requirements:

There are 27 required credit hours in the certificate in communication sciences and disorders. A "C" minimum is required for all courses in the certificate, although students must maintain a 3.00 GPA in the certificate program.

Required courses -- 27 credit hours

SHS 250: Introduction to Phonetics (3)

SHS 310: Anatomical and Physiological Bases of Speech (3)

SHS 311: Hearing Science (3)

SHS 367: Language Science (SB) (3)

SHS 375: Speech Science (3)

SHS 401: Principles of Audiology (3)

SHS 402: Clinical Methods and Treatment of Communication Disorders (3)

SHS 465: Speech and Language Acquisition (SB) (3)

SHS 496: Aural Rehabilitation (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Prospective students must have earned a bachelor's degree in a field outside of speech and hearing science with a minimum GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students interested in this certificate should apply for university admission as nondegree-seeking graduate students and submit a supplemental application to the program.

Communication Training and Assessment Certificate (ASCTACERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in communication training and assessment combines coursework from across the communication curriculum. This grounding teaches students the best approaches to the assessment, training and development of communications skills in business, professional and community settings.

Certificate holders demonstrate expertise in communication training, presentation skills, professional development and assessment practices.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in communication training and assessment requires a minimum of 18 credit hours (at least 12 credit hours must be upper-division).

At least nine credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a major.

The certificate requires 12 credit hours of core requirements and six credit hours of electives. Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.

Core Requirements -- 12 credit hours

COM 225: Public Speaking (L) or COM 325: Advanced Public Speaking (L) or COM 342: Oral History and Storytelling (3)

COM 383: Communication and Mentoring or COM 483: Advanced Communication and Mentoring (3)

Computational Life Sciences Certificate (LACLSICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

In the life sciences, employers need graduates who are skilled in understanding and interpreting data. In particular, students who have experience using new, computational approaches and computer programs to process data are in demand. By completing this certificate in computational life sciences, students learn how to identify and interpret data that is generated from a wide range of fields in the life sciences. These fields include, but are not limited to: ecology, botany, evolutionary biology, neuroscience, molecular and cellular biology, and animal behavior. Students learn about many types of data generated from sources such as DNA, RNA, protein, imaging, conservation and even from long-term ecological research sites.

Students are introduced to a suite of computational approaches that are used to analyze, visualize and interpret this data. Finally, students will delve into the ethical implications of collecting, analyzing and sharing the results of computational life sciences data.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in computational life sciences requires a minimum of 15 credit hours, of which at least 12 credit hours must be upper-division. The core consists of one computing course and one ethics course. A minimum of nine credit hours in elective courses complete the certificate. The computing course not used toward the core requirements may be used toward the elective credit hours. A grade of C (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher is required for all courses used toward the certificate.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

BIO 316: History of Biology: Conflicts and Controversies (H) or BIO 317: History of Science (HU & H) or BIO 318: History of Medicine (HU & H) (3)
BIO 439: Computing for Research or BIO 440: Functional Genomics (3)

Electives -- 9 credit hours

BIO 355: Introduction to Computational Molecular Biology (CS) (3)
BIO 411: Quantitative Methods in Conservation and Ecology (4)
BIO 415: Biometry (CS) (4)
BIO 439: Computing for Research (3)
BIO 440: Functional Genomics (3)
BIO 494: Data Analysis in Neuroscience (3)
BIO 494: Genomic Analysis (3)
BMI 311: Modeling Biomedical Knowledge (3)
BMI 312: Modeling Biomedical Data (3)
BMI 330: Topics in Translational Bioinformatics (3)

If not used as the required computing course, students may include BIO 439 or BIO 440 as a certificate elective.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Computer Gaming Certificate (ESSCICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The computer gaming certificate program is designed to provide a game development skill set that the student can apply to domain-specific applications in the student's major. The skill set includes architecture of game engines, art design and computer graphics for gaming, and game software development.

In this certificate program, students learn to apply gaming technology to the rapidly growing video game industry and to business, medicine, geography, biotechnology and education. Examples of projects include:

- building a game that teaches linear algebra by incorporating trigonometric rules into the game design
- creating a game that teaches correct sentence construction to beginning learners of English
- creating a game to help patients with physical therapy
- creating an interactive virtual world for corporate training
- designing a game platform incorporating geographic information systems
- inventing a surgical simulation to educate medical students

Program Requirements:

Students will complete nine credit hours of core courses (including a final capstone project) and nine credit hours of elective courses. The certificate requires 12 credit hours of upper-division coursework. Students need to allow at least three years to complete the certificate program due to the prerequisite structure.

Core Courses -- 9 credit hours

CPI 111: Game Development I (CS) (3)

CPI 211: Game Development II (3)

CPI 441: Gaming Capstone (3)

Electives -- 9 credit hours

CPI 311: Game Engine Development or SER 332: Introduction to Graphics and Game Development (3)

CPI 321: Fundamentals of Game Art (3)

CPI 411: Graphics for Games or SER 432: Game Engine Architecture (3)

CPI 421: 3-D Modeling and Texturing (3)

CPI 462: Design for Learning in Virtual Worlds (3)

CPI 484: Internship (3)

SER 431: Advanced Graphics (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The computer gaming certificate is open to any student admitted to an undergraduate degree program at ASU and in good academic standing. This certificate can also be used by interdisciplinary studies BA students as part of their degree program.

All students are eligible to take CPI courses. Students who want to declare the certificate need to complete the undergraduate certificate form on the registrar's website and submit it to the School of Computing, Informatics and Decision Systems Engineering Academic Advising Center located in Centerpoint, Room 105. Interdisciplinary studies students need to contact their advisor to add the computer gaming concentration to their degree program.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Convention Sales and Meeting Planning Certificate (PPTDMCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The U.S. meetings, conventions and exhibitions industry generates more than $120 billion a year, supporting nearly two million jobs. Students can explore this exciting growth industry with the convention sales and meeting planning certificate program. The demand for professionals is strong, and this program provides an excellent foundation for enhancing career opportunities nationally, regionally and locally.

Phoenix is a major convention and meeting destination. There is a need for qualified professionals to service conventions and meetings, due in large part to the $600 million investment in the Phoenix Convention Center expansion, development of new hotels and other visitor-related products and the steady influx of corporate headquarters relocating to the greater Phoenix area.

The certificate, which has been endorsed by the Greater Phoenix Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Arizona Sunbelt Chapter of Meeting Professionals International, enhances a graduate's career opportunities as a tourism professional.
