The certificate requires 15 credit hours: four required core courses (12 credits) and one elective course (3 credits). Courses taken as part of a university major may count toward that degree and the certificate. Requirements can be met online. All core classes and some elective classes are taught online at least once a year. To earn the certificate, students must complete a minimum of 12 upper-division credit hours. An application to the program is required.

Required Core Courses -- 12 credit hours

TDM 205: Introduction to Travel and Tourism (G) (3)

TDM 345: Meeting and Convention Planning (3)

Notes: Prerequisite: TDM 205, grade of "C" (2.00) or better

TDM 350: Tourism, Recreation and Sports Marketing (3)

Notes: Prerequisite: TDM 205, grade of "C" (2.00) or better

TDM 386: Convention Sales and Management (3)

Elective (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

TDM 225: Introduction to Resort and Hotel Management (3)

TDM 458: International Tourism (G) (3)

PRM 486: Special Events Management (3)

Standards

1. Fifteen credit hours of graded classroom coursework are required (no internship, no independent study).
2. A minimum "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) grade is required for all classes in the certificate.
3. A minimum GPA of 2.00 is required for those pursuing the certificate.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

Students wishing to pursue the convention sales and meeting planning certificate should consult an academic advisor in the School of Community Resources and Development. Students seeking additional information are asked to visit the school's website.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Correctional Studies Certificate (PPCRTSCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in correctional studies educates students about a variety of components that make up the corrections system. It is designed to provide students with understanding and knowledge of the histories, philosophies and contemporary practices of both institutional and community corrections. The program emphasizes evidence-based best practices concerning the rehabilitation of correctional clients to reduce recidivism.

Program Requirements:

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

CRJ 100: Introduction to Criminal Justice (SB) (3)

CRJ 240: Introduction to Corrections (3)

CRJ 443: Community Corrections (3)

CRJ 444: Institutional Corrections (3)

CRJ 445: Tools for Engaging Correctional Populations (3)

Elective Courses (choose two) -- 6 credit hours

CRJ 394: Special Topics (3)

Notes: Only approved corrections-related topics

CRJ 406: Sex Crimes (3)

CRJ 411: Legal Issues in Corrections (3)

CRJ 434: Drugs of Abuse (3)

CRJ 435: Crime and Forensic Mental Health (3)

CRJ 484: Internship (3)

CRJ 494: Special Topics (3)

Notes: Only approved corrections-related topics

Special Topics courses (CRJ 394 and CRJ 494) will be designated and approved by departments and schools. Students will need to work with an advisor in order to select appropriate special topics courses that are approved for credit in the correctional studies certificate program.

At least 15 credit hours must be taken in-residence at ASU.

Lower-division courses such as CRJ 100 (Introduction to Criminal Justice) and CRJ 240 (Introduction to Corrections) may be used to satisfy the requirements of any major or a minor at ASU, as well as requirements for the certificate program in correctional studies. No upper-division courses in criminology and criminal justice, however, may be used to satisfy the requirements of the certificate program in correctional studies and either the major or minor in criminology and criminal justice. For example, students majoring or minoring in criminology and criminal justice may not use CRJ 394, CRJ 406, CRJ 411, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 443, CRJ 444, CRJ 445, CRJ 484, or CRJ 494 to satisfy the requirements of the certificate in correctional studies and either the major or minor in criminology and criminal justice.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students must complete CRJ 100 Introduction to Criminal Justice with a grade of "C" or better (scale is 4.00 = "A") in order to be admitted to the certificate program. This course may be taken in residence at ASU or may be transferred from other institutions, including community colleges. Because this course is a requirement for the bachelor's degree program and the minor in criminology and criminal justice, its completion satisfies the requirements of the major or minor and satisfies the prerequisite requirement for admission to the certificate program in correctional studies.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Creative City Certificate (PPURBCERC)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

Exploring best practices in a global context, students develop asset-based proposals for specific locales including implementation plans. The creative city certificate adds value to other majors as well as work and life experience for students aspiring to assume leadership roles in improving quality of life, specifically by enhancing quality of place.

Cities are centers of human creativity and cultural innovation; they both attract and breed these qualities of urban areas. Such creativity and innovation are apparent in the vitality of the arts as well as that of businesses (large and small), research (basic and applied) and the everyday life unique to any given locale. These are the ingredients that make our places sustainable, economically, socially and environmentally, by endowing a sense of place along with a sense of community.

This certificate also serves professionals in the community working in the areas of:

- community development
- land-use law
- parks and recreation
- philanthropy
- planning
- public art
- urban governance and others

Flexible class times and locations make the program a viable option for those unable to attend classes during the day.

Program Requirements:

The five-course sequence comprising the certificate will enable students to build upon their own strengths in order to help cities and communities creatively build upon their capacities. The creative city certificate consists of a maximum of 15 credit hours of coursework. All courses must be taken at ASU.

Required Core Courses -- 6 credit hours

URB 405: Citizen Engagement and Community Building (3)

URB 406: Public Administration & Community Development (3)

Elective Courses -- 9 credit hours

CRD 301: Sustainable Communities (3)

CRD 302: Inclusive Community Development (SB & C) (3)

GRA 401: Creative Environment (3)

NLM 160: Voluntary Action and Community Leadership (SB) (3)

NLM 220: Introduction to Nonprofit Organizations (3)

NLM 300: Fund Raising and Resource Development (3)

NLM 402: Assessment and Evaluation of Community Services (3)

PAF 420: Public Leadership (3)

PRM 120: Leisure and the Quality of Life (SB) (3)

PRM 210: Leisure Delivery Systems (3)

TDM 448: Heritage and Cultural Tourism (3)

URB 220: Introduction to Urban America (3)

A "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all upper-division coursework.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Criminal Investigations Certificate (PPCRICERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, West

Description:

The certificate in criminal investigations educates students about a variety of aspects of criminal investigations and criminalistics. It is designed to provide students of the social sciences, natural sciences, humanities and public services with an understanding of the nature of criminal evidence; the language of forensic science; the scope, probative value and limitations of a variety of investigative specializations and their techniques; and an appreciation of how forensic investigative methods are used in the quest for justice.

The certificate program allows students to satisfy at least two of their General Studies requirements (SQ and SB) in a thematic manner, but it is not designed to prepare students to work in a crime laboratory.

Program Requirements:

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

CRJ 100: Introduction to Criminal Justice (SB) (3)

CRJ 210: Introduction to Criminal Investigations (3)

CRJ 211: Documenting the Crime Scene (3)

CRJ 410: Procedural Criminal Law (3)

Elective Courses (choose three) -- 9 credit hours

CRJ 321: Imperatives of Proof (3)

CRJ 433: Death Investigations: Principles of Forensic Medicine (3)

CRJ 434: Drugs of Abuse (3)

CRJ 435: Crime and Forensic Mental Health (3)

CRJ 450: Crime Analysis (3)

CRJ 484: Internship (1-6)

CRJ 494: Special Topics (3)

Notes: only in approved investigations-related topics

FOR 350: Computer Forensics (3)

FOR 394: Special Topics (3)

Notes: only in approved investigations-related topics

FOR 410: Professional Practices in Forensic Science (L) (3)

FOR 484: Internship (1-6)

1. It is the student's responsibility to check the prerequisites required by courses in their discipline. Depending upon a student's program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed to complete the requirements of this certificate.
2. Special Topics courses (FOR 394 and CRJ 494) will be designated and approved by departments and schools. Students will need to work with an advisor in order to select appropriate special topics courses that are approved for credit in the criminal investigations certificate program.
3. At least 12 credit hours must be taken in-residence at ASU.
4. A "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all core and elective course work required for the certificate.
5. Upper-division course work may not be used to satisfy the requirements of both a major and the certificate. Thus, if any elective courses in the certificate program are being used to satisfy the requirements of a major, different elective courses must be taken to satisfy the requirements of the certificate program. For example, students majoring in criminology and criminal justice may not use CRJ 321, CRJ 410, CRJ 433, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 450, CRJ 484 or CRJ 494 to satisfy the requirements of the major and the certificate in criminal investigations. Similarly, students majoring in forensic science may not use FOR 350, FOR 410 or FOR 484 to satisfy the requirements of the major and the certificate in criminal investigations.

Prerequisite Information

CRJ 100 Introduction to Criminal Justice, SB (3) is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in CRJ 210, CRJ 211, CRJ 433, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 484 and CRJ 494.

ACO 100 All About Data: Design, Query, and Visualization, CS (3) is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in FOR 350 Computer Forensics.

Either FOR 286 Principles of Forensic Science (3) or the two semester sequence in FOR 105 and FOR 106 is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in FOR 410 Professional Practices in Forensic Science, L (3). ENG 102 or 105 or 108 are also prerequisites for FOR 410.

The completion of at least 45 credit hours is a prerequisite requirement to enroll in FOR 484 Internship.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students must complete the following prerequisite courses with a grade of "C" or higher (scale is 4.00 = "A") in order to be admitted to the certificate program. These courses may be taken in residence at ASU or may be transferred in from other institutions, including community colleges.

The following prerequisite courses are required for admission to the certificate program:

For students majoring in the social sciences, humanities or the arts:*

FOR 105 Physical Evidence and the Crime Scene, SQ (4) and

FOR 106 Biology Behind the Crime Scene, SQ (4)

For students majoring in the natural sciences:*

FOR 286 Principles of Forensic Science (4)

*Neither FOR 105 nor FOR 106 have any prerequisites. These courses are designed for students majoring in the social sciences, humanities or arts to meet the natural science requirement of ASU's General Studies program. Thus, students not majoring in the natural sciences who wish to declare the certificate program in criminal investigations must complete the two-course sequence in FOR 105 and FOR 106. In contrast, students majoring in the natural sciences (including forensic science) should not take FOR 105 and FOR 106; they need only complete FOR 286: Principles of Forensic Science, which has prerequisite requirements of BIO 181, BIO 182, CHM 113 and CHM 116.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Cross-Sector Leadership Certificate (PPCSLDCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in cross-sector leadership provides a comprehensive overview of leading solutions to complex social challenges by integrating the public, private, nonprofit and military sectors.

Students engage in a systems-thinking approach to real-world challenges faced by local and global communities, explore the diverse characteristics and motives of each sector in engaging in cross-sector collaborations, and master processes to formalize such partnerships. Students gain leadership skills, such as leading change within and between organizations across multiple sectors, and they learn to use human-centered design, social entrepreneurship and other approaches when tackling community challenges. Students study values-based leadership and how individual, organizational and sector values can drive a leader's ability to act. Students end the program with a thesis or applied project that integrates the theories, procedures and concepts learned in the certificate courses with experiences from the students' internships in each sector.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in cross-sector leadership is a requirement for, and is limited to, participants in the Public Service Academy's Next Generation Service Corps, a four-year leadership development track that engages future civilian leaders in the public, private and nonprofit sectors to engage in collaboration and change in the context of social challenges in which they hold interest. Students are required to maintain a 3.00 GPA and demonstrate forward academic progress to maintain enrollment in the certificate as well as the Next Generation Service Corps. ROTC students also may pursue the certificate, but must maintain a 3.00 GPA in certificate courses.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

CPP 101: Foundations of Cross Sector Leadership (1)

CPP 201: NGSC Community Impact Lab (2)

CPP 301: Cross-Sector Collaboration (3)

CPP 484: NGSC Nonprofit Internship (1)

CPP 484: NGSC Private Internship (1)

CPP 484: NGSC Public Internship (1)

NLM 410 / CPP 410: Social Entrepreneurship (3)

PAF 311: Leadership and Change (SB) (3)

Elective (Choose one) -- 3 credit hours

CPP 394: NGSC Leadership Instruction (3)

PAF 421: Leadership Capstone (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Enrollment in the 18-credit hour certificate program in cross-sector leadership is offered only to students participating in ASU's Next Generation Service Corps or in the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Enrollment requirements for the certificate are the same as admission requirements for the Next Generation Service Corps or Reserve Officer Training Corps (by request). Public Service Academy staff and the Watts College of Public Service and Community Solutions Dean's Office enroll the students.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree.

Cryptology Certificate (LACRYCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate program in cryptology is designed to provide a strong foundation in the mathematical topics that are most applicable to modern cryptosystems. It also provides specialized knowledge required to understand and work in the field of mathematical cryptology.

Program Requirements:

This certificate requires 18 credit hours. Grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required for all courses.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

MAT 440: Group Theory or MAT 444: Intermediate Abstract Algebra (3)

MAT 445: Theory of Numbers (3)

MAT 447: Cryptography I (3)

MAT 448: Cryptography II (3)

Elective Courses (select two) -- 6 credit hours

MAT 415: Introduction to Combinatorics (3)

MAT 416: Introduction to Graph Theory (3)

MAT 441: Ring Theory (3)

STP 421: Probability (3)

STP 427: Mathematical Statistics (3)

*Students may substitute an approved cryptography-related internship for 3 credit hours of elective work.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

This program has additional admission requirements; students should see a college advisor for details. Applicants should be in good academic standing with a "B" or better (scale is 4.00 = "A") in MAT 300 Mathematical Structures (3) or the equivalent.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Data Science Certificate (ASDTSCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The data science certificate program combines the strengths of database skills with interdisciplinary computational statistics.

The program provides students with an understanding of the computational and statistical methods to extract insights from complex datasets and provides hands-on experience with it. In particular, it includes courses that cover key techniques for the different stages of the data science process: data collection, data processing for small and big data, data cleaning, exploratory data analysis, data visualization, predictive modeling with machine learning techniques, and statistical modeling.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in data science consists of a minimum of 15 upper-division credit hours. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

ACO 320: Database Systems (3)

ACO 423: Data Science (3)

STP 315: Statistical Computing (3)

Electives -- 6 credit hours

ACO 321: Database Development & Applications (3)

ACO 420: Big Data Systems (3)

ACO 421: Data Mining and Warehousing (3)

BMI 311: Modeling Biomedical Knowledge (3)

BMI 312: Modeling Biomedical Data (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Prerequisites for this certificate are:

- ACO 201 Data Structures and Algorithms (3)

- MAT 243 Discrete Mathematical Structures (3) or MAT 300 Mathematical Structures (3)
- STP 226 Elements of Statistics (3)

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Desert Food Production Certificate (LSDFPRCERT)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The certificate program in desert food production equips students interested in producing foods locally with the knowledge and skills necessary to grow edible plants and to navigate the challenges unique to desert climates. Coursework in the program emphasizes organic food production, sustainable horticultural technologies, green waste reduction, water conservation, maintaining biodiversity and biological cycles, and enhancing soil quality. Students gain marketable skills that enable them to participate in the growing trend of producing and supporting the consumption of local foods.

Program Requirements:

The desert food production certificate requires a minimum of 18 credit hours.

Only courses in which a student receives a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.

No more than two credit hours of ABS 484 Internship may be counted toward the certificate requirements.

Four credit hours of certificate electives must be from upper-division courses.

Required Courses -- 12 credit hours

ABS 260: Fundamentals of Sustainable Horticulture (SG) (4)

ABS 368: Plant Propagation (3)

ABS 460: Organic Gardening (2)

ABS 464: Desert Horticulture (3)

Elective Courses -- 6 credit hours

ABS 225: Soils (SQ) (3)

ABS 226: Soils Laboratory (SQ) (1)

ABS 360: Southwest Home Gardening (2)

ABS 462: Greenhouse/Nursery Management (4)

ABS 484: Internship (2)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

Incompatible Majors: None

Other Enrollment Requirements: None

This certificate is open to students in any major. Students should contact an advisor in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts for more information.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Digital Business Innovation Certificate (BADBICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

This certificate program in digital business innovation provides students with a broad overview of modern-day digital information systems. It gives exposure to modern tools for transforming business processes, maintaining digital presence and developing analytical insights.

Students who complete the program will be well-suited for the business landscaped, phenomenally transformed in recent years by digital innovations.

Program Requirements:

The digital innovation certificate is available to all majors. To earn the certificate, students must complete all courses with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a scale of 4.00) or higher. No more than six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and other degree programs, minors, and/or other certificates.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

CIS 105: Computer Applications and Information Technology (CS) (3)

CIS 235: Introduction to Information Systems (3)

CIS 300: Web Design and Development (3)

CIS 308: Advanced Excel in Business (3)

CIS 311: Business Project Management (3)

CIS 312: Business Mobile Commerce and Monetization (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Digital Culture Certificate (HIDGCCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The digital culture certificate program in the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts focuses on the creative exploration of how new media is influencing our culture, or rather the way we live, learn, create and communicate. Pursuing the digital culture certificate will allow students to enhance their program of study with integrated, transdisciplinary training in creative processes and technical skills in new media with cultural applications.

Program Requirements:

The digital culture certificate requires 18 credit hours (12 upper-division) in three areas.

A minimum grade of a "C" (2.00) and an overall GPA of 3.00 is required in all classes in the certificate program. Courses in the certificate program may not be used as part of a major. All upper-division certificate coursework must be taken at ASU.

Required Courses -- 6 credit hours

AME 111: Introduction to Digital Culture (CS) (3)

AME 112: Computational Thinking for Digital Culture or AME 230: Programming for the Media Arts (CS) (3)

Digital Culture Studies -- 3 credit hours

AME 310: Media Literacies and Composition (3)

AME 320: Motion Capture for Integrative Systems (3)

AME 330: Digital-Physical Systems (3)

AME 340: Compositional and Computational Principles for Media Arts (3)

AME 435: Mobile Development (3)

AME 444: Media Installations (3)

AME 470: Programming for Social and Interactive Media (3)

AME 494: Animating Virtual Worlds (3)

AME 494: Rapid Prototyping through Somatic Research (3)

AME 494: Special Topics (3)

Digital Media - Media Arts and Design -- 6 credit hours

AME 394: Special Topics (3)

AME 494: Special Topics (3)

ART 440: Experimental Video Art (3)

ART 494: Visual Prototyping (3)

CIS 300: Web Design and Development (3)

EEE 307: Signal Processing for Digital Culture (3)

FMP 394: Non-Linear Editing for Film and Media (3)

MDC 311: Composing and Performing for Hybrid Ensembles (3)

Capstone -- 3 credit hours

AME 485: Digital Culture Capstone I (3)

Generous substitution rules allow for course flexibility. Students receiving the digital culture certificate can petition to substitute up to six credit hours. Three credit hours can come from any course related to digital culture through courses offered by any ASU unit on any ASU campus, including the interdisciplinary arts and performance program on the West campus and the film and media studies program on the Tempe campus. Courses may include any on the list of related subjects and substitutions (shown above) or courses with comparable content.

The other three substitution hours can be achieved through the following path:

The three-hour media arts and design course requirement may be substituted with a three-hour course in the digital culture-related category. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Degree-seeking undergraduates or nondegree-seeking graduate students may add the digital culture certificate. To add the certificate, students must meet with the digital culture academic success coordinator to develop a pathway that best meets the proficiencies for the work they are interested in pursuing. Students then meet with the academic advisor for their major to add the certificate.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Diversity and Equity Studies Certificate (ASDESCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

This certificate program in diversity and equity studies develops students' intercultural competence through knowledge gained related to the histories, practices and perspectives of diverse groups, both local and global. Reflecting on this knowledge permits students to develop strategies to work with and through differences of gender, race, ethnicity, sexuality, age, religion and class. Integrative social sciences perspectives enable bridge-building within and across differences to redress inequalities.

This certificate is valuable to those pursuing careers in medicine, law, business and management, public policy, human resources, media, government and community advocacy.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in diversity and equity studies requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 must be upper division).

Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline.

Twelve credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences.

The certificate requires three core credit hours and 12 credit hours of electives. Electives are not limited to the certificate elective list; see academic advisor prior to enrollment.

A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a New College major.

A maximum of three credit hours of internship or individualized instruction may be applied toward the certificate.

Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet certificate requirements.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours

SBS 301: Cultural Diversity ((L or SB) & C) (3)

Elective Courses (minimum 9 upper-division) -- 12 credit hours

Domestic Violence and Evidence-based Practice Certificate (PPDVEPCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in domestic violence and evidence-based practice provides students with the experience and knowledge to intervene safely and effectively on behalf of the survivors of gender-based violence, a vulnerable group that helping professionals are likely to encounter in all areas of practice. Those knowledgeable about the dynamics of intimate partner violence are better equipped to assist those suffering its negative physical and mental health consequences.

Evidence-based care is crucial in domestic violence settings. Students of the certificate program engage in service-based and classroom learning to understand the role of evidence-based interventions in promoting survivor safety and client empowerment. Upon completion of the program, certificate holders become Arizona state-certified advocates for victims of domestic violence.

Program Requirements:

During their first semester in the certificate, students enroll in SWU 416, Domestic Violence and National AmeriCorps Service. A grade of B or better is required in each course to satisfy the certificate. Students must participate in an approved internship for a minimum of 300 hours.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

SWU 416: Domestic Violence and National AmeriCorps Service (3)

SWU 484: Internship or SWU 412: Field Instruction I (3)

Notes: Other internship credit may be substituted with department approval.

SWU 484: Internship or SWU 414: Field Instruction II (3)

Notes: Other internship credit may be substituted with department approval.

Electives -- 6 credit hours

SWU 417: Technology, Interpersonal Relationships and Abuse (3)

SWU 418: Global Violence Against Women (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

All students seeking the certificate must have 56 credit hours of coursework completed with a minimum GPA of 2.50. In order to enroll in SWU 416, students must have a current Arizona fingerprint clearance card, which will be verified through the State of Arizona system.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Economic Justice Certificate (LAECNJCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Through the certificate program in economic justice, students will gain knowledge of economic justice that will promote the growth of sustainable local, national, and global communities. They complete coursework in the theories and philosophies of economic justice and economic justice praxis to prepare them for transdisciplinary exploration into areas of personal interest.

Completion of the coursework in this certificate prepares students to support and create change by analyzing and developing policies to build local skills; developing the capacity to design, control, manage and evaluate initiatives that can economically revitalize communities; increasing research abilities; and laying the groundwork for new approaches to economic justice.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in economic justice requires 15 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be completed at the upper-division level. All courses must be completed with a grade or "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Energy and Sustainability Certificate (SUESUCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe

Description:

The transdisciplinary certificate program in energy and sustainability examines current energy systems and what would be required to create a sustainable energy future. Students begin with an overview of how energy affects peoples' lives, the basic science and methods of energy production, and a full overview of energy policy options. Students then select additional energy courses from across many disciplines, depending on their specific interests.

An understanding of energy is increasingly important for jobs related to environmental quality, national security and the efficient functioning of cities. This program helps students enhance their understanding of the methods by which energy is generated and distributed as well as the associated sustainability issues. Students analyze social and policy dimensions of energy systems and infrastructure, and they may tailor the certificate around their unique interests in energy with a variety of electives representing a broad array of academic disciplines. The breadth of their energy knowledge is enriched by taking courses outside their primary area of study.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in Energy and Sustainability consists of 15 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be upper-division.

A GPA of 2.50 is required for all courses completed in the certificate.

Required Core Courses -- 9 credit hours

SOS 494: Renewable Energy (3)
SOS 494: Should I Eat Fish? Ecology, Economics, & Policy (3)
STS 317: Science, Technology, and Global Engagement (SB & G) (3)
STS 329: Technology in Developing Countries (SB & G) (3)
STS 332: Global Issues in Science and Technology (SB) (3)
TEM 450: Design for the Developing World (3)

HST 306 and any 394, 494 or 498 courses must be taken with the specific course title/topic indicated above.

Energy elective courses are not limited to courses from this list only. Other courses on energy may be offered (special topics, etc.). Students may request to have those approved as an elective for this certificate by submitting a School of Sustainability standards petition:

https://students.asu.edu/College\_Standards\_Petitions . Completed petitions may be submitted directly to sosadvising@asu.edu.

Students must earn a grade of "C" or better in all courses.

Some energy elective courses have prerequisites. Any and all prerequisites must be met in order to select and enroll in those courses.

Some energy elective courses are more technical in nature, which may require additional math and science knowledge or prerequisites.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students who wish to declare a certificate in energy and sustainability should make an appointment with a School of Sustainability advisor.

Advising is by appointment only, scheduled through this website: https://webapp4.asu.edu/advsched/?acad\_org=CSS

Ethics Certificate (LAETHCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The ethics certificate program is designed to give students a richer understanding of systematic philosophical thinking about ethics. Students with majors in business, nursing, journalism and public administration, as well as students planning to pursue legal careers, among others, may well find that training in ethics is beneficial to their career goals. The certificate program permits some flexibility regarding course selection, thereby facilitating particular student interests.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in ethics consists of 18 credit hours approved by an undergraduate advisor in the School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies. All courses must be passed with a minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale). At least 12 credit hours must be upper-division. At least six upper-division hours must be in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Core Course (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

Family Communication Certificate (ASFAMCCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in family communication focuses on issues affecting communication in the family. This is a valuable certificate for students planning to enter careers or graduate study in fields like psychology, counseling, family studies, social work, medicine or nursing, law, aging, pastoral care, human services, media or communication technology. It complements the current communication program by bringing together an array of courses that have implications for the family unit, such as courses in new media and health. Students also are encouraged to take courses in other disciplines that complement family-related communication courses.

The program is offered by the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in family communication consists of 19 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). Six credit hours must come from non-communication coursework. A one credit hour exit portfolio is required and may be taken after a minimum of 12 hours toward the certificate has been completed. Twelve of the 19 credit hours must be ASU courses and six credit hours may be shared with major requirements. Four courses must be selected from at least two content areas listed below. ## Film and Video Studies Certificate (ASVIDCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in film and video studies explores film theory and the practice of the moving image. Through this interdisciplinary program, students have an opportunity to develop their interests, skills and understanding of the forms, channels, technologies and histories of the media arts.

Coursework helps students become more astute critics of film and media arts. Students learn about the history of film, television and video arts as well as their place in social, cultural and political expression. This program also helps students strengthen their critical-thinking skills through an analysis of the ongoing philosophical, aesthetic, political and technological debates about film, media and video.

Through this program, students will gain valuable skills for future careers or graduate study in areas such as video and film production, film studies, media studies or digital design.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in film and video studies consists of 18 credit hours, of which 12 credit hours must be upper division. A minimum of six upper division hours must be completed through courses offered by the School of Humanities, Arts, and Cultural Studies. Students choose a focus in either film studies or media and video studies. The film studies emphasis focuses on the impact of film and video. The media and video studies emphasis is concerned with the rendering of film and video. ## Health Education Specialist Certificate (NHEDSCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The health education specialist certificate provides students a pathway to become a certified health education specialist. This nationally and globally recognized credential is based on the Seven Areas of Responsibility, which include competencies and subcompetencies that define the role of the health education specialist, as outlined by the National Commission for Health Education Credentialing. Earning the health education specialist credential showcases competency-based skills and provides professionals a competitive edge, as more employers prefer certified applicants.

Students pursuing or holding a bachelor's degree or graduate-level degree will gain foundational knowledge in the field of public health education and health promotion, including program planning, implementation, evaluation and management, and other certified health education specialist competencies. Students will learn about specific health education strategies for effectively delivering community and school-based health education interventions.

Program Requirements:

Required courses -- 24 credit hours

EXW 102: Principles and Foundations of Health Education and Health Promotion (3)

EXW 340: Health Behavior Theory (3)

EXW 348: Methods of Health Education (3)
EXW 452: Health Advocacy in Health Education (3)
EXW 454: Health Promotion Program Planning and Implementation (3)
EXW 456: Health Promotion Program Evaluation (3)
EXW 466: Health Promotion Program Management and Administration (3)
EXW 476: Community Health (3)

Certificate Elective -- 1 credit hours

EXW 321: Consumer Health (1)
EXW 331: Violence Prevention (1)
EXW 341: Health Education Methods for Injury Prevention (1)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Students must earn a minimum grade of "C" (2.00) in all courses in the certificate.

In order to receive the certificate, students must complete their bachelor's degree at ASU along with all certificate requirements.

Enrollment Requirements:

GPA Requirement: 2.00

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Health and Wellness Coach Certificate (NHHWCCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, West

Description:

This certificate brings together coursework from the disciplines of exercise and wellness, nutrition, behavioral health and coaching psychology to give students a strong background, perspective and real-life experiences in applied coaching techniques and methods used to decrease and prevent chronic disease risks.

Students learn evidence-based behavior change methodologies and practice coaching communication skills and strategies to influence sustainable healthy lifestyles. They learn to guide groups and individuals through meaningful lifestyle changes by using concepts that emphasize evidence-based coaching and behavioral practices as well as motivational interviewing techniques. Students work with clients using learned health coaching techniques and they develop the knowledge and skills to work with people who require lifestyle management strategies to improve their well-being. Faculty consistently monitor and mentor coaching sessions to provide evaluation and feedback on how students may improve their coaching skills, and a final practical skills evaluation is completed to assess a student's coaching abilities. Coaching skills are addressed synchronously over telephone, in person, or via Skype or some other video platform.

Program Requirements:

Students must earn a grade of "C" or better in all courses used in the certificate.

History and Philosophy of Science Certificate (LAHPSCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The undergraduate certificate program in the history and philosophy of science is designed to give students an understanding of the traditional philosophical issues surrounding science and the historical development of concrete scientific theories and ideas.

Philosophical questions about how we understand nature through science and how scientific claims gain authority are enriched when they are considered in a historical context. Such philosophical and historical study also often includes the examination of contemporary sciences and their place within the larger society, including the study of bioethics, policy and law.

This certificate is a valuable addition for students in the sciences or the humanities. It crosses disciplines to help students engage in unfamiliar and familiar paths of inquiry in new and interesting ways. The program is offered by the School of Life Sciences.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 18 credit hours from the HPS and PHI prefixes. At least 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level and all courses counting toward the certificate must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

PHI 314 / HPS 314: Philosophy of Science (HU) (3)

Electives (choose five) -- 15 credit hours

At least nine credit hours must be taken in upper-division HPS courses. Any upper-division HPS course may be used toward the certificate.

PHI 328: History of Ancient Philosophy (HU & H) (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/catalog/courselist?s=HPS&l=upperdivision&t=2197&hon=F>) > HPS
Upper Division Elective (9)
(3)

PHI 329: History of Modern Philosophy (HU & H) (3)

PHI 330: Theory of Knowledge (HU) (3)

PHI 403: Contemporary Analytic Philosophy (HU) (3)

Other elective options may be applied with the approval of an academic advisor in the School of Life Sciences.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Informatics Certificate (ESCPICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate program in informatics teaches students to use computer technology to gather, synthesize, store, visualize and interpret information. These skills are critical to a broad range of disciplines. This program provides students with an understanding of the capabilities and technologies of informatics as it applies to domain-specific problems in their field of study.

Students completing this program are able to understand and use methods for the basic computational principles behind the operation of:

- communication, networking and interaction
- decision-making and problem-solving
- modeling, inference and visualization
- representing, creating and running routine activities
- storing, indexing and retrieving information

Graduates should be in high demand within the software industry and in government, education, science, medicine and other fields that make use of computer technology. Those with the applied and user-oriented focus of the certificate are attractive to such employers.

Program Requirements:

This certificate requires 21 credit hours of coursework. Students will take 15 credit hours of required courses and will select six credit hours of elective coursework. The certificate requires at least 12 credit hours of upper-division coursework.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

TWC 444: User Experience (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The undergraduate certificate in informatics is available to all students who are in good standing at ASU and may be used by interdisciplinary studies BA students as part of their degree program. Students need to submit an undergraduate certificate form to the School of Computing, Informatics and Decision Systems Engineering Academic Advising Center located in Centerpoint, room 105. This form is available on the registrar's website. Interdisciplinary studies students need to contact their advisor to add the informatics concentration to their degree program.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Innovation for Impact Certificate (FIIFICERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The innovation for impact certificate program enables students to cultivate the knowledge, skills and critical dispositions necessary to leverage the power of innovation and achieve personally meaningful and socially significant impact. The program is grounded in the belief that each of us can do great things.

Students learn the tools and concepts to synthesize research from courses across disciplines in social sciences, humanities, natural sciences and engineering --- from across the university as well as around the globe. Students identify a problematic condition or aspirational future and work with peers, mentors and the community to produce innovations that cultivate a better future for society.

Program Requirements:

FIS 201: Innovation in Society (H) (3)

FIS 305: Ways of Knowing (L) (3)

International Business Certificate (BAIBSCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

Students can expand their horizons and opportunities by learning about the global economy. The certificate program is designed to help students develop competence in a foreign language and sensitivity to foreign cultures. It provides an awareness of global social processes and an understanding of international business environments, principles and operations.

The W. P. Carey School of Business has partnerships with universities all over the world, so students can experience new cultures, visit new places and build intercultural and language skills. International internships also are offered in conjunction with the ASU Study Abroad Office.

Program Requirements:

This certificate program requires a minimum of 18 credit hours (at least 12 credit hours must be upper-division). All business coursework must be completed through the W. P. Carey School of Business or through an approved ASU international study program.

Only courses in which a student receives a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements, and an overall certificate GPA of at least 2.50 must be earned.

Students must meet all course prerequisites and requirements as listed in the ASU catalog. Requirements must be met within one year after degree conferral date.

International Business Core Course -- 3 credit hours

MGT 302: Principles of International Business (G) or ECN 306: Survey of International Economics (SB & G) (3)

A. International Business Electives -- 6 credit hours

ECN 331: Economics of the European Economic Union (SB & G) (3)

ECN 335: South Asia and the World Economy (SB & G) (3)

ECN 360: Economic Development (SB & G) (3)

ECN 365: Economics of Russia and Eastern Europe (SB & G) (3)

MKT 425: Global Marketing Management (G) (3)

SCM 463: Global Supply Chain Management (G) (3)

*300+ level WPC-prefixed courses earned on a sponsored ASU Study Abroad program may be applied toward the IBC elective area, per approval of the international programs coordinator. Courses applied toward the W. P. Carey business core cannot be used toward the IBC elective area.

B. Nonbusiness Global Awareness Coursework -- 9 credit hours

Nonbusiness Global Awareness Coursework (9)

Notes: These hours may be satisfied by any combination of the following:

1. Students can choose any of the university-designated nonbusiness global awareness ("G") courses.
2. One course must be upper-division to meet the 12 upper-division hours requirement.
3. Recommended: It is recommended to choose courses related to the area of study abroad experience. Additional courses may be approved by the international program coordinator.
4. Nonbusiness global awareness hours may also be satisfied by:

* An ASU or W. P. Carey School of Business education abroad program earning six credit hours or more fulfills six of the credit hours of nonbusiness global requirements.

* An ASU or W. P. Carey School of Business education abroad program earning three credit hours fulfills three of the credit hours of nonbusiness global requirements.

C. Foreign Language Proficiency

The certificate program requires students to meet a foreign language proficiency by meeting one of the the following:

- Completion of one year (two semesters) of the same foreign language at the college level.
- Completion of one semester of the equivalent of 101- and 102-level course work.
- Completion of two years of the same foreign language in high school with a minimum grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale).
- Documentation of a proficiency test confirming preparedness to start at least the second year of a foreign language (201 level or above).
- A student whose native language is not English may have this requirement waived.

D. International Study Experience

The certificate program requires students to participate in an ASU Study Abroad Office sponsored program. Students cannot use independent non-sponsored programs to fulfill this requirement. Sponsored programs can be found on the Study Abroad Office website at <https://mystudyabroad.asu.edu/>.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

The certificate application is accessed and submitted through Advising SOS: <http://wpcarey.asu.edu/sos> (<http://wpcarey.asu.edu/sos>). Students should contact the department for more information.

No more than 6 credit hours may be shared between certificate and other degree programs, minors, or other certificates.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

International Cinema Certificate (LAICINCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The power of international cinema lies in its ability to underscore national differences and engage diverse viewpoints.

The certificate in international cinema provides undergraduates with the means to explore and understand the role that international film plays in highlighting cultural diversity, reflecting the sociocultural, political and economic currents of the period and cultural setting depicted and calling into question an accepted idea of the dominance of Hollywood film.

Following an integrated pathway through the variety of international film courses, the certificate explores facets of international film history and production not often covered by American programs in film studies. Students majoring in a second language can explore a particular culture's filmic heritage and traverse avenues for comparative analysis between the filmic heritage of two or more cultures. Students majoring in other areas can encounter visual narratives different from their own and connect international cinema to their own respective experiences.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires 18 credit hours of upper-division coursework. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better.

Required Core Course -- 3 credit hours

SLC 340: Approaches to International Cinema (HU & G) (3)

Korean Studies Certificate (LAKORCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The certificate in Korean studies aims to train and produce students who are linguistically capable and culturally informed.

The program consists of two major components. The first builds students' Korean language proficiency in the areas of speaking, listening, reading and writing. The second offers students a broad range of knowledge of the culture, literature, history, art and religions of Korea. The certificate allows students to focus on Korean studies.

The program will enrich students' perspectives on different cultures and societies at the intellectual level and also equip them with practical knowledge of Korea that will benefit careers in various professions, including academia, government work, international trade, nongovernmental organizations and translation.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in Korean studies requires a minimum of 22 credit hours, of which at least 12 must be completed at the upper-division level. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Required Courses -- 22 credit hours

Students must choose one two-course sequence from KOR 101, KOR 102, KOR 201, KOR 202, for a total of 10 credit hours. Course substitutions may be permitted for heritage speakers and other advanced speakers of the Korean language based on their proficiency level as determined by the Korean Placement Test.

KOR 101: First-Year Korean I (5)

KOR 102: First-Year Korean II (5)

KOR 201: Second-Year Korean I (G) (5)

KOR 202: Second-Year Korean II (G) (5)

KOR 321: Modern Korean Literature (HU) (3)

KOR 347: Korean Film and Literature (HU) (3)

KOR 350: Women of Korea (H) (3)

KOR 354: Religions of Korea (HU) (3)

Additional courses may be approved in consultation with an academic advisor in the School of International Letters and Cultures or the coordinator of the certificate. The completion of the requirements will be reviewed both by the students' designated advisors and the coordinator of the program. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

ASU students admitted to a degree program in any field of study are eligible for the Korean studies certificate program. Students should contact the School of International Letters and Cultures for more information about completing the certificate.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Latin American Studies Certificate (LALASCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The Latin American studies certificate is designed to give students an understanding of the culture, economies, political structures and history of Latin American nations. The program combines six courses across disciplinary boundaries to provide a diverse perspective of the Latin American experience. The Department of Economics, the School of Geographical Sciences and Urban Planning, the School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies, the School of Politics and Global Studies, the School of Human Evolution and Social Change, the School of International Letters and Cultures (Spanish and Portuguese) and the School of Transborder Studies offer courses that comprise the transdisciplinary certificate.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires a minimum of 18 credit hours of Latin American studies content coursework. At least 12 upper-division credit hours must be completed from coursework offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Language Requirement

Students must demonstrate Spanish or Portuguese proficiency through the 313 level of conversation and composition. The language proficiency requirement may be waived for native speakers or those with in-field experience equivalent to SPA 313 or POR 313.

Language instruction courses dealing with Spanish and Portuguese conversation and composition cannot be used to satisfy the content course requirement. While students are encouraged to enroll in language instruction courses (i.e., conversation and composition) above the 313 level, they cannot apply such course work to the Latin American studies certificate course requirements.

Latin American Content Course Requirements -- 18 credit hours

Students will take 18 upper-division credit hours (six courses) from the list of undergraduate Latin American content courses. Students are required to select nine credit hours (three courses) from within their major and nine credit hours (three courses) outside their major.

Law and Human Behavior Certificate (PPLWHBCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, West

Description:

"Law and human behavior" is an umbrella term that encompasses various aspects of forensic psychology, law and justice. This rapidly emerging field examines how the justice system intersects with the mental health professions. This 18-credit hour certificate program focuses on the criminal justice aspects of forensic psychology, emphasizing victimology, offender treatment, criminal incapacity, mental health law, juvenile justice and delinquency, and the dynamics of how the criminal justice system intersects with behavioral science. The program is designed to provide students of social services and social sciences with an understanding of important but understudied areas where justice policy is in desperate need of empirical, psychological research.

Program Requirements:

Required Core -- 12 credit hours

CRJ 260: Substantive Criminal Law (3)

CRJ 410: Procedural Criminal Law (3)

PSY 366: Abnormal Psychology (SB) (3)

PSY 468: Psychology and Law (3)

Electives (choose two from outside of one's major) -- 6 credit hours

CRJ 309: Criminology (SB) (3)

CRJ 403: Victims and the Criminal Justice System (3)

CRJ 406: Sex Crimes (3)

CRJ 434: Drugs of Abuse (3)

CRJ 435: Crime and Forensic Mental Health (3)

CRJ 484: Internship (1-6)

Notes: Only those relevant to law and human behavior

CRJ 494: Special Topics (3)

Notes: Only those relevant to law and human behavior

PSY 341: Developmental Psychology (SB) (3)

PSY 368: Forensic Psychology (3)

PSY 443: Abnormal Child Psychology (L or SB) (3)

PSY 472: Clinical Psychology (3)

PSY 474: Correctional Psychology (3)

PSY 494: Special Topics (3)

Notes: Only those relevant to law and human behavior

1. It is the student's responsibility to check the prerequisites required by courses in their discipline.
  2. Special Topics courses (CRJ 494 and PSY 494) will be designated and approved by departments and schools. Students will need to work with an advisor in order to select appropriate special topics courses that are approved for credit in the law and human behavior certificate program.
  3. At least 12 credit hours must be taken in-residence at ASU.
  4. A "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or better is required in all core and elective course work required for the certificate.
  5. Bachelor of Science in Criminology and Criminal Justice majors who are also pursuing the Law and Human Behavior certificate may not use CRJ 309, CRJ 403, CRJ 406, CRJ 410, CRJ 434, CRJ 435, CRJ 484, and CRJ 494 towards both their degree and certificate.
- Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students must complete the following prerequisite courses with a grade of "C" or higher (scale is 4.00 = "A") in order to enroll in the certificate program. These courses may be taken in-residence at ASU or may be transferred in from other institutions, including community colleges. Because these courses are requirements for the bachelor's degree program in psychology or criminology and criminal justice, their completion satisfies not only requirements of these two majors, but also the prerequisite requirements for enrollment in the certificate program in law and human behavior.

Completion of the following prerequisite courses with grades of C or higher are required for enrollment in the certificate program:

- CRJ 100 Introduction to Criminal Justice
- PSY 101 Introduction to Psychology
- First-Year Composition (ENG 102, 105 or 107)
- a course which meets the General Studies MA requirement (MAT 117, 119, 142, 170, 210 or 270)

one of the following two-course sequences in statistics and research methods:

- CRJ 302 and 303, or
- PSY 230 and 290

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Certificate (PPLGBTCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

The certificate program in lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender studies offers students a multifaceted understanding of this section of society.

Lesbians, gay men, bisexuals and transgender people play important roles as colleagues, clients, parents, children, siblings, neighbors, employees, employers, religious leaders and friends. Given the increasing visibility and changing political climate for LGBTQ people in the United States, all students, not only those who identify themselves as gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender, are served well by learning about the histories, communities and contemporary social issues regarding people from LGBTQ backgrounds.

The educational experience is enhanced when students are introduced to complex intersections between and among sexual, racial, ethnic, religious, geographic and national identities. The philosophy of this certificate program in lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender studies is to promote intellectual and pedagogical diversity as one of the university's greatest assets, and this is done, in part, by instilling in students a sensitivity to cultures different from their own and through careful analysis of the self in historical, artistic and sociocultural contexts.

The goals of the certificate program are to give students knowledge about the history, evolution of and current issues facing the LGBTQ community; practical experience utilizing coursework knowledge in the community through an internship or community service project; and theoretical perspectives on heterosexuality as a presumptive sexual identity. Students gain an understanding of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender studies as an academic area of inquiry; an understanding of community politics, dynamics and conflicts; and engages in a use-inspired education that culminates in a public presentation.

Capstone -- 3 credit hours

All students will complete a three-credit-hour capstone experience after completing a minimum of nine credit hours in the certificate program. The capstone experience will be supervised by any member of the faculty approved by the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Studies Committee.

Capstone Course (3)

Notes: Select capstone course with consultation of LGBT advisor.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students interested in admission to the certificate program should meet with an academic advisor in the School of Social Transformation as soon as possible in order to complete a certificate declaration form and to select courses that most appropriately meet students' individual needs.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Mathematical Concepts of Engineering Certificate (LAMACECERT)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Description:

The certificate program in mathematical concepts of engineering is designed for students who seek a strong foundation in mathematics to support their studies in engineering. Combining a core foundation in the quantitative and analytical skills found in the field of mathematics with related skills in engineering fields, the program provides students with a solid mathematical background well-suited for multiple career paths.

Program Requirements:

The mathematical concepts of engineering certificate requires a minimum of 21 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in upper-division coursework and at least nine credit hours must be completed at ASU. At least six upper-division hours in the certificate must be completed in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher is required for each course used to fulfill a certificate requirement.

Required Courses -- 18 credit hours

IEE 380: Probability and Statistics for Engineering Problem Solving (CS) (3)

MAT 266: Calculus for Engineers II (MA) (3)

MAT 267: Calculus for Engineers III (MA) (3)

MAT 275: Modern Differential Equations (MA) (3)

MAT 343: Applied Linear Algebra (3)

STP 420: Introductory Applied Statistics (CS) (3)

Electives (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

IEE 381: Lean Six Sigma Methodology (3)

IEE 385: Engineering Statistics: Probability (3)

IEE 470: Stochastic Operations Research (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students must have completed MAT 265 or MAT 270 with a "C" or higher prior to enrolling in the certificate program. Students also must be in good academic standing with a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.00.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Attend Online: ASU offers this program in an online format with multiple enrollment sessions throughout the year. Applicants may view the program description and request more information here. #### Thesis

The certificate requires a thesis of approximately 25 pages in length, written within the student's major discipline for an upper-division course on a topic concerning the Middle Ages or Renaissance. The thesis may be used to fulfill the thesis requirement for students enrolled in Barrett, the Honors College. Students may use no more than three credit hours of individualized instruction courses toward the certificate.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Any student admitted to a degree program at ASU may complete a certificate program. Students should contact the Arizona Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies for more information and to complete the online application <https://acmrs.org/academic-programs/certificate/undergrad> (<https://acmrs.org/academic-programs/certificate/undergrad>). To schedule an advising appointment, students should visit <https://acmrs.org/academic-programs/certificate/advising> (<https://acmrs.org/academic-programs/certificate/advising>).

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Nonprofit Professional Certificate (PPNPYCERT)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Description:

This nationally recognized certificate program awards qualified students from diverse academic fields with the National Certified Nonprofit Professional credential. The CNP credential is awarded through the Nonprofit Leadership Alliance (formerly American Humanics, Inc.), a consortium of universities, nonprofits and funders that are committed to preparing students for management careers in the nonprofit sector: <https://www.certifiedtochangetheworld.org/> (<https://www.certifiedtochangetheworld.org/>).

The NLA/ASU program provides curricular and cocurricular programs that prepare students through its competency-based, experiential educational framework. The program is ideal for students wishing to complement their majors with a strong core of nonprofit management knowledge and skills through professional affiliation with and certification by the Nonprofit Leadership Alliance, the nation's leader in education for nonprofit careers. NLA collaborates with a number of national nonprofit organizations as well as locally based grassroots organizations that actively seek NLA and ASU program interns and job candidates.

Program Requirements:

The program includes active participation by nonprofit professionals who offer workshops, seminars, mentoring and field trips. The certified nonprofit professional credential can be earned in conjunction with any bachelor's degree and requires successful participation in cocurricular, experiential activities in addition to required academic course work. For more information on the credential please visit: NLM 220: Introduction to Nonprofit Organizations (<https://www.certifiedtochangetheworld.org/> ><https://www.certifiedtochangetheworld.org/>)

Power and Society Certificate (ASPWSOCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The certificate program in power and society prepares students to think critically and practically about the relationship between power and society. Courses in the program use multiple perspectives to explore the sources, exercise and consequences of power across a variety of social and historical settings. A special focus on gender is available across the spectrum of courses listed.

The certificate program is recommended for students with academic or career interests in politics, government, economics, organizing and advocacy, public affairs and public policy, journalism, social work, human rights, social justice, education and sustainability.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in power and society requires a minimum of 15 credit hours (at least 12 credit hours must be upper division). Students are encouraged to take courses that develop breadth rather than limiting their selection to courses in one particular discipline.

Twelve credit hours must be completed through the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences. A maximum of six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and a New College major.

The certificate requires three core credit hours and 12 credit hours of electives. Electives are not limited to the certificate elective list; see academic advisor prior to enrollment. A maximum of three credit hours of individualized instruction or internship may be applied toward the certificate. Only courses in which a student received a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher may be used to meet the certificate requirements.

Description:

The certificate program in religion and conflict is of particular interest to students pursuing careers in journalism, law, policy work, diplomacy, the military, public advocacy, publishing, education, ministry or other fields in which an enhanced understanding of religion and conflict is becoming increasingly vital.

A regional component provides students specific regional knowledge of how religion has been implicated in human conflict. Required coursework in at least two different regions fosters a comparative understanding of the dynamics of religion and conflict in historical and global contexts.

A political component explores how religion influences or is influenced by matters of state, law, government or other dimensions of political life.

A cultural component provides students with an understanding of how religion operates as a powerful force that impacts and intersects with expressions of human identity, thought and culture.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires a minimum of 18 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed in upper-division coursework and at least 12 credit hours must be completed at ASU. At least six upper-division hours in the certificate must be completed in courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher is required for each course used to fulfill a certificate requirement.

Electives (two courses) -- 6 credit hours

Certificate Electives (6)

Students select electives from any of the course lists above, keeping in mind that at least 12 credit hours within the certificate must be upper-division.

In some cases, the same course can be used to fulfill more than requirement. For more information, please contact the certificate director in the Center for the Study of Religion and Conflict.

If a course is used to meet more than one component requirement above, additional electives may be required to meet the 18 credit hour minimum. Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

To declare the certificate, students should contact the certificate director in the Center for the Study of Religion and Conflict:

<https://csrc.asu.edu/students/certificate> (<https://csrc.asu.edu/students/certificate>).

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Risk Communication Certificate (ASRCMCERT)

Campus: West

Description:

The rising importance of the field of risk communication stems from the need to name, understand and manage physical and social risks as society is faced with increasingly challenging decisions concerning stressed social and environmental infrastructures. Proficiency in risk communication requires understanding the complex interfaces of physical, biological, psychological and social systems. In response, the certificate in risk communication combines the strengths of the three schools within the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences: the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences, the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences and the School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies.

The program prepares students for a range of diverse careers in risk management, crisis communications and environmental public affairs. Specifically, students develop expertise suited to work as risk management specialists and environmental advocates, preparing them to translate complex scientific ideas and analyses into information that can be evaluated meaningfully by all members of society.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in risk communication requires 15 credit hours (a minimum of 12 credit hours must be upper division). Eight credit hours must be unique credit hours not already being counted toward the students' bachelor degree requirements in communication or environmental science. Other electives can be chosen in consultation with an academic advisor. All courses used to satisfy requirements for the certificate must be passed with a "C" (2.00) or better.

Core Requirements -- 6 credit hours

BIO 130: Introduction to Environmental Science (SQ) or ENV 201: Fundamentals of Environmental Science (3-4)

Notes: ENV 201 is required by Biology or Environmental Science majors.

COM 415: Risk Communication (3)

Elective Courses (choose three courses) -- 9 credit hours

COM 319: Persuasion and Social Influence (SB) (3)

COM 414: Crisis Communication (3)

COM 450: Organizational Communication (SB) (3)

COM 454: Rhetorical and Critical Approaches to Public Relations (3)

COM 463: Intercultural Communication in a Global Context (SB & G) (3)

IAS 340 / PHI 320: Bioethics (HU) (3)

IAS 407 / PHI 407: Environmental Philosophy and Policy (L or HU) (3)

IAS 409 / PHI 409: Eco-Community Ethics (HU) (3)

LSC 362: The Human Environment (3)

PTX 301: Basics of Pharmacology and Toxicology (3)

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students wishing to pursue this certificate should consult an academic advisor in the School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences or the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences to ensure the appropriate set of courses is taken and the required paperwork is submitted.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Risk Management Certificate (BARMGTCERT)

Campus: Polytechnic

Description:

The certificate program in risk management is designed to give students a solid foundation in the theory and practice of modern risk management. The concept of enterprise risk management is highlighted at the onset of the certificate curriculum, emphasizing that risks and risk management strategies must be considered holistically at the firm level, not in isolation.

Upon completion of the certificate, students will be able to identify and measure a variety of business and financial risks, and be able to design and articulate strategies for managing and communicating risks.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in risk management is available to business majors and non-business majors. This certificate requires 18 credit hours of courses. A grade of "C" or better is required for all upper-division coursework. No more than six credit hours may be shared between the certificate and other degree programs, minors, and/or other certificates.

Required Courses -- 9 credit hours

Arranged honors thesis and upper-division colloquia offered by faculty affiliates of the Melikian Center may be credited toward the certificate. Up to four additional credit hours in the language used to fulfill the language requirement.

Capstone Project

In their junior or senior year, students will complete a one-credit hour individualized instruction course offered by the Melikian Center, built around readings on the contemporary geopolitics of the region. Students may instead complete a capstone project during their senior year, chosen in cooperation with a faculty advisor affiliated with the Melikian Center. The project should represent an extended, research-based focus on some dimension of the region's linguistic, cultural, religious, historical or political distinctiveness. It may take the form of an extended research paper from an upper division course, an honors thesis, a translation project, an internship or a study abroad experience.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Secondary Education Certificate (TESEDCERT)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West, ASU@Lake Havasu, ASU@The Gila Valley

Description:

The secondary education certificate program prepares students who wish to teach students enrolled in grades 6-12. While students develop a strong content background, the secondary education certificate focuses on developing the requisite teaching knowledge and abilities to successfully teach middle or high school students. In order to integrate teacher preparation with the academic specialization, the Teachers College collaborates and communicates with academic departments throughout the university. Clinical experience and student teaching are required components of this certificate.

Students who complete this certificate program are issued an institutional recommendation for certification in Arizona. Students desiring to teach in a public school must also pass the appropriate Arizona educator exams (either the National Evaluation Series or the Arizona Educator Proficiency Assessments) to be certified to teach in the state of Arizona.

The secondary education undergraduate certificate is also available for students who have earned a bachelor's degree; this is considered a nondegree graduate pathway.

Program Requirements:

The certificate requires a minimum of 30 hours.

Required Courses -- 15 credit hours

- BLE 407: SEI for Secondary Students (L) (3)
- RDG 323: Literacy Processes in Content Areas (3)
- SED 322: Classroom Leadership in Secondary Schools (L) (3)
- SPE 417: Inclusion Practices at the Secondary Level (3)
- TEL 311: Instruction and Management in the Inclusive Classroom (3)

Methods Course (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

Please consult with MLFTC academic advisor to select appropriate subject methods course.

- BIO 480: Methods of Teaching Biology (3)
- CHM 480: Methods of Teaching Chemistry (3)
- ENG 480: Methods of Teaching English: Composition (L) (3)
- ENG 482: Methods of Teaching English: Language (L) (3)
- HST 480: Methods of Teaching History: Classroom Resources (3)
- MTE 482: Methods of Teaching Mathematics in Secondary School (3)
- MTE 485: Teaching Standards-Based Middle and High School Mathematics (3)
- PHY 480: Methods of Teaching Physics (3)
- SED 403: Secondary Principles, Curriculum and Methods (3)

SED 478: Student Teaching: Secondary Education (Grades 6-12) (11-12)

Notes: A full-time 15-week student teaching experience is also required. Degree requirements for student's major must be completed prior to student teaching.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students interested in pursuing the secondary education certificate should be enrolled as a degree-seeking undergraduate student. This program is also available to students in the Phoenix area or Gila Valley area (Morenci) who have already completed a bachelor's degree and want to be certified to teach. Students interested in this option will apply to ASU as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Students interested in this program should have content knowledge in one of the following areas, demonstrated by having a minimum of 24 credit hours in coursework for the major or a passing score on appropriate teacher certification exam: biology, business, chemistry, Chinese (Mandarin), earth and space science, economics, English, French, general science, geography, German, history, mathematics, physics, political science or Spanish.

Students should have a valid Arizona DPS Identity Verified Print (IVP) fingerprint clearance card.

A 2.50 GPA is required to progress into the final semester of student teaching. Students should contact the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College for more information.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. A student already holding an undergraduate degree may pursue an undergraduate certificate as a nondegree-seeking graduate student.

Speech-Language Pathology Assistant Certificate (LASLPACERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The speech-language pathology assistant certificate program prepares students to work with individuals with communication disorders, under the direction of a licensed speech-language pathologist.

Students majoring in speech and hearing science or persons already holding a bachelor's degree in speech and hearing science receive additional coursework and clinical training to be eligible for the speech-language pathology assistant licensure.

Speech-language pathology assistants work under the direction and supervision of speech-language pathologists in schools, clinics and rehabilitation agencies that provide speech and language services.

Program Requirements:

The speech-language pathology assistant certificate program includes 15 credit hours of course work and clinical internships completed in conjunction with the bachelor's degree in speech and hearing science.

Twelve of the 15 credit hours for the speech-language pathology assistant certificate must be completed at ASU. A minimum grade of "B-" (scale is 4.00 = "A") is required for a course to count toward the certificate.

Required courses -- 15 credit hours

SHS 402: Clinical Methods and Treatment of Communication Disorders (3)

SHS 473: Implementation of Treatment Plans for Individuals with Communication Disorders (3)

SHS 483: Professional Issues and Ethical Considerations for the SLPA (3)

SHS 484: Internship (6)

Notes: Two internships of clinical practice

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Students who have completed at least nine credit hours in speech and hearing science coursework with at least a 2.75 GPA (scale is 4.00 = "A") in those courses are eligible to apply. Applications will also be accepted from students who have completed a bachelor's degree in speech and hearing science or communication disorders from a program accredited by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, providing their GPA in the major was at least 2.75.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Sustainable Food Systems Certificate (SUFSUCERT)

Campus: Tempe

This program's name has changed effective Fall 2019. The previous name was Food System Sustainability.

Description:

Food systems are particularly important for human societies to sustain; however, these systems are particularly vulnerable to multiple threats. Many students from a wide variety of disciplines are interested in food systems, especially as food and sustainability become increasingly relevant issues to employers in fields across the public and private sectors.

This certificate program in sustainable food systems allows students to take advantage of the diversity of courses offered that address challenges to food system sustainability. It encourages students to cover a breadth of topics and perspectives related to food system issues while providing the opportunity to focus on particular skills and approaches suitable for their career paths, which can range from agriculture to marketing and retail to policy or ethics. This program offers an innovative and exciting approach to the challenges of food system sustainability.

Due to the transdisciplinary nature of the certificate program, many courses may be found across all four ASU campuses, allowing students to choose both the focus area and location of study that best fits their needs.

The knowledge, competencies and skills students will have upon completion of this certificate include the ability to identify food system drivers, activities, actors and outcomes at different spatial scales and the capacity to assess the primary social, economic and environmental drivers and outcomes associated with food system sustainability challenges.

Students also acquire the ability to apply one or more of the following analytical skills or approaches to the development of food system sustainability solutions: cultural and social analysis, alternative agricultural design and practice, analysis of biophysical processes and environmental services, urban planning and policy, marketing and entrepreneurial development, sustainability assessment, and consumer preference and behavior.

Program Requirements:

The certificate in sustainable food systems consists of 15 credit hours, at least 12 of which must be upper-division.

A GPA of 2.50 or higher is required in all courses completed for the certificate.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

SOS 117: Food System Sustainability (3)

Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) Certificate (LATESLCERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The teaching English to speakers of other languages undergraduate certificate program consists of a coherent set of courses that provides students with the skills necessary to teach English as a foreign language. This certificate is useful for students interested in careers in this increasingly important field. It also serves as excellent preparation for students wishing to pursue graduate studies in the Master of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages program at ASU or in a similar program at another institution. Note that this certificate does not certify students to teach in Arizona public schools (K-12).

Program Requirements:

The certificate program in teaching English as a second language requires a minimum of 18 credit hours, of which 12 must be completed at the upper-division level. At least six credit hours must be completed from courses offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Each course must be completed with a grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher.

Core -- 12 credit hours

ENG 213: Introduction to the Study of Language (3)

ENG 404: Studies in Second Language Acquisition (6)

Notes: Students complete two ENG 404 courses, one in second language acquisition and one in TESOL methods.

ENG 484: TESOL Internship (3)

Directed Elective (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

ENG 403: Semantics (3)

ENG 404: Studies in Second Language Acquisition (3)

Notes: ENG 404 must be a topic not used to satisfy required courses.

ENG 414: Studies in Linguistics (3)

Linguistics Electives (choose one) -- 3 credit hours

ENG 214: English Grammar and Usage (3)

ENG 312: English in its Social Setting (L or HU or SB) (3)

ENG 313: Phonology and Morphology (3)

ENG 314: Modern Grammar (3)

ENG 413: History of English Language (HU) (3)

Course substitutions may be used with approval of an academic advisor in the Department of English before enrollment.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

For more information about the TESOL certificate, students should contact an advisor in the Department of English.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. ## Translation Certificate (LASPACERT)

Campus: Tempe

Description:

The translation certificate, which focuses on Spanish and English, is designed to provide competence in translation, awareness of the different approaches, an introduction into the main professional areas and an overview of the requirements for further certification in the desired area or areas of expertise: legal, medical, business and technical translation.

Program Requirements:

The certificate program requires a minimum of 15 credit hours. At least 12 credit hours must be completed at the upper-division level. A grade of "C" (2.00 on a 4.00 scale) or higher is required in all courses.

Students are expected to have taken prerequisite courses ENG 301 and SPA 412. However, ENG 301 and SPA 412 may be completed in the first semesters after admission to the program.

Required Course -- 3 credit hours

SLC 401: Translation Theory and Practice (3)

Required Applied Translation Courses -- 9 credit hours

SLC 481: Technical and Scientific Translation (3)

SLC 482: Business and Financial Translation (3)

SLC 485: Translation of Legal Texts or SLC 486: Medical Translation (3)

Students should consult with an academic advisor in the School of International Letters and Cultures and plan their studies accordingly.

Internship Requirement -- 3 credit hours

SLC 484: Internship (3)

Students must complete all required courses before enrolling for an internship. Students must complete 135 on-site internship hours to earn three credit hours in SLC 484.

Depending on a student's undergraduate program of study, prerequisite courses may be needed in order to complete the requirements of this certificate.

Enrollment Requirements:

Since entry into the field of professional translation is gained through work, cultural experience and examination, the entrance requirements to this certificate program include a written proficiency examination in both the source and receptor languages at the level of completion of an advanced composition course in Spanish (SPA 412) and English (ENG 301).

Extensive work experience using Spanish and English or demonstrated bilingual writing competence in English and Spanish is also required.

Students should contact an academic advisor in the school for more information.

A student pursuing an undergraduate certificate must be enrolled as a degree-seeking student at ASU. Undergraduate certificates are not awarded prior to the award of an undergraduate degree. # Undergraduate Programs

Undergraduate Degrees (Program Descriptions)

Business, W. P. Carey School of #### Accountancy, BS (BAACCBS)

Campus: Tempe, West

Program Description:

The School of Accountancy's undergraduate BS program in accountancy offers two tracks during the senior year.

The accounting track is followed by most students and is designed to provide a rich educational experience.

The accounting master's internship is the track designed for the most highly qualified students who wish to commit to the MAcc or MTax program during the second semester of their junior year. The internship provides a particularly rich and individualized educational experience during the senior year. It includes a number of distinct advantages for students: a full-time paid internship for credit with a participating accountancy firm, early consideration for scholarships, and possible eligibility for a GMAT waiver and a graduate application fee waiver for the MAcc or MTax program (eligibility is determined by the GPA at the time of application).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 210 - Brief Calculus

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to choose either a 2.5- or a 3-year path while participating in the same high-quality educational experience of a 4-year option. Students can opt to fast-track their studies after acceptance into a participating program by connecting with their academic advisor. Fast track options appear at the top of the major map.

This program also allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Taxation, MTax

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Freshmen admission requirements: 1230 SAT Reasoning OR 25 ACT score, OR graduated in the top eight percent of high school class, OR an overall high school GPA of 3.60 in ASU competency courses (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Freshmen should select an additional major when applying for admission. Additional choices may include any of the W. P. Carey business BA programs or any other degree program outside W. P. Carey School of Business. Students who are not admissible to a W. P. Carey business BS major and who did not select a second major or are not admissible to their second major choice will be placed in a business BA program in W. P. Carey School of Business.

Readmission requirements: Students must meet freshman admission requirements by way of high school GPA, test score or class rank and must have a 3.00 transfer GPA (if applicable) and a cumulative ASU GPA of 3.00.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer admission requirements (30 or more semester hours of credit after high school): 3.00 transfer GPA and one of the following: 1160 (prior to March 2016) or 1230 SAT Reasoning (after March 2016) OR 25 ACT score OR the student must have graduated in the top eight percent of their high school class.

Transfer students should select an additional major when applying for admission. Additional choices may include any of the W. P. Carey business BA programs or any other business or other degree program outside W. P. Carey School of Business.

Students with fewer than 45 transfer hours who are not admissible to a W. P. Carey School of Business major and who did not select a second major or are not admissible to their second major choice are placed in the exploratory social and behavioral sciences program in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts.

Students with more than 45 transfer hours who are not admissible to a W. P. Carey School of Business major and who did not select a second major or are not admissible to their second major choice are prompted in My ASU to select a new major.

Change of Major Requirements:

Students should visit the following W. P. Carey website to determine if they meet change of major requirements:

<https://students.wpcarey.asu.edu/degrees-and-advising/degree-programs/change-majors> (<https://students.wpcarey.asu.edu/degrees-and-advising/degree-programs/change-majors>). Students ready to change their major should submit their request through W. P. Carey's Advising SOS website: <https://wpcarey.asu.edu/sos> (<https://wpcarey.asu.edu/sos>).

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transferecreditguide/app/transfermap?major=BAACCBS-null + &college=CBA>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

The major in accountancy includes the essential academic preparation for students who are:

- planning to pursue a graduate degree or attend law school
- pursuing professional careers in public, corporate and governmental accounting
- seeking positions in consulting or are planning to operate a business
- seeking positions in personal financial planning and portfolio analysis

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' Occupational Outlook Handbook (2018) states, "Employment of accountants and auditors is projected to grow 10 percent from 2016 to 2026, faster than the average for all occupations."

Business (Chinese Language and Culture), BA (BABUSCLBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The mission of the concentration in Chinese language and culture within the BA in business degree program is to create global business professionals who can function culturally and linguistically in the business environment in China and domestically. As China becomes an increasingly important participant in the global economy and as the manufacturing and financial sectors become more globalized, the need for business professionals skilled in communicating in the Chinese language is growing.

With a network of 26 flagship programs at 22 institutions of higher education across the U.S., the language flagship program graduates students who will take their place among the next generation of global professionals, commanding a superior level of proficiency in languages critical to U.S. national security and economic competitiveness. This program prepares participants to function professionally in Chinese within diverse business fields.

Career Opportunities:

Career opportunities are generally substantive and in high demand. Senior management roles for corporate accountants include chief financial officer positions. Currently, more than half the CFOs at larger corporations have formal accounting training. Projecting into the future, the longer term trend is for CFOs to have extensive corporate accounting training, particularly since CFOs at public U.S. corporations personally sign the financial statements.

Typical early to mid-career positions held by corporate accountants include controllers, treasurers and vice presidents in areas like financial planning, divisional controlling, cost accounting directing, senior financial analysis and senior accounting. These positions typically report to the CFO.

BA 160

wpcareyug@asu.edu

480-965-4227

Campus: West, Online

Program Description:

Logistics management focuses on integration and partnerships necessary to meet customer needs on a timely basis, with relevant and high-quality products produced and delivered in a service-effective manner.

This BA program in business with a concentration in global logistics management trains students to be strategic thinkers, excellent analysts, effective communicators and team leaders who are focused on efficiency, effectiveness and increasing revenue.

An efficient logistics management system is critical to the success of global corporations, making sure the supply of goods and services flowing through the system closely matches the demand. Logistics management professionals manage, coordinate and transport products from raw materials to the finished goods sitting on a local store shelf or offered by an online retailer. Efficient logistics is a key reason consumers can buy an ever-increasing variety of goods and services at remarkably low prices. Not surprisingly, logistics also plays a major role in the health care industry where efficient, effective delivery systems are gaining significant traction.

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Please explore Degree Search for similar program options.

Program Description:

The BS program in food industry management is unique and has been developed in close coordination with partners in the food industry to help ensure graduates have the knowledge and skills needed to become immediate leaders in the industry. Students combine core courses in business disciplines (finance, marketing, management, accounting, supply chain management and economics) with courses specific to the food industry.

Students select from courses in the following areas:

- environmental management and sustainability
- food industry sales and management
- food marketing strategy
- food retailing
- food supply networks
- futures and options markets
- innovation and food product development
- insurance

- pricing and promotion strategy in food markets
- retail information analysis
- risk management

Each of these courses addresses a different issue in which fundamental concepts, theoretical approaches, analytical methods and industry practice are unique to the food industry.

Technological Entrepreneurship and Management, BS (TSTEM2BS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The BS program in technological entrepreneurship and management advances the knowledge and practice of entrepreneurship and innovation. To enhance students' understanding of business fundamentals, the Fulton Schools of Engineering have partnered with the W. P. Carey School of Business to offer a degree that is jointly conferred by both colleges. The degree program prepares students to address social and corporate issues to impact and change the world; create, launch and improve technology-based products, services and ventures; and identify and solve open-ended problems using engineering and technology approaches.

Students receive a foundation in both technology and business fundamentals, with an emphasis on technology entrepreneurship and innovation in one of two focus areas: innovation and operation management or social entrepreneurship.

The objectives for this degree program are that students demonstrate the ability to identify, analyze and synthesize information to address and solve use-inspired, open-ended problems, assessing their impact on social, cultural and economic environments; formulate methodologies to advance the knowledge of entrepreneurship and innovation; launch technology-based products and services from idea generation through actualization; use quantitative and qualitative methods to demonstrate continuous improvement of products, services and processes; and utilize a systems approach for the effective design and improvement of entrepreneurial and innovation ventures.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Design & the Arts, Herberger Institute for

Architectural Studies, BSD (ARSTDBSD)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Architects design buildings and environments that are useful, sustainable and aesthetically pleasing. This implies an understanding of people's needs, the science and technology of building and the concepts of aesthetics.

The faculty in The Design School offer a BSD in architectural studies. In addition to developing knowledge and skills in architectural design, building technology, landscape architecture and professional practice, students are encouraged to select electives from a broad range of approved courses within the institute and across the university. These electives may be selected to devise a minor, to further professional study or to enrich the student's academic experience in some other fashion.

All students who are admitted to the major must pass a degree milestone to continue in the major at the end of the first year. For more information on the milestone process, students should refer to <https://design.asu.edu/resources/students/milestones> (<https://design.asu.edu/resources/students/milestones>).

This is an 8-semester program requiring sequential completion of studio coursework (or approved equivalent) at any point of entry.

Art (Art Education), BFA (FAARTEBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BFA program in art with a concentration in art education involves:

- art learning strategies and processes
- facilitation of the teaching of art
- policymaking in art
- the study of art

The program focuses on public and private K-12 instruction, art in higher education and educational programs in art museums. Students investigate issues in art teaching and learning from multiple perspectives, including:

- art inquiry
- context

- development
- studio
- visual culture

In addition to their art education coursework, students are required to take coursework in the various studio programs offered in the School of Art.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

OR MAT 117 OR MAT 119

Program Math Intensity: General

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Currently, all art students are admitted to ASU into the Bachelor of Arts (art studies) program. They must complete a series of requirements that include foundational coursework to be eligible for study in one of the school's Bachelor of Fine Arts degree programs, which includes upper-division coursework in the studio. There is no portfolio review process for admission to the School of Art.

Students in their second year who are interested in studio art and art education obtain a signed BFA declaration form after completing the core requirements and during completion of the last of the 12 hours of 200-level art requirements. Students interested in art history or museum studies submit a major declaration form in the semester in which they complete 30 credit hours. The student's major is changed upon successful completion of the major declaration form. Students may choose to remain in and complete the Bachelor of Arts (art studies).

Beginning Fall 2019, students will be admitted directly to the art education concentration upon admittance to the BFA program in art.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students who have completed the foundational core and pre-art requirements may submit a major declaration form before they have been admitted to ASU. To complete an undergraduate degree in four years, it is recommended that community college transfer students, who are completing a two-year degree and have completed the foundational core and pre-art requirements, apply and submit a declaration form in the semester they are completing their community college degree or the semester before they plan to enter Arizona State University.

Direct transfer of courses from other accredited institutions to the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts are subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum and subject to departmental or school evaluation of studio courses with respect to performance standards.

Every candidate for the bachelor's degree must earn a minimum of 30 credit hours in resident credit at ASU. Transfer students enrolled in the college must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours of resident credit in the major as approved by the faculty.

Beginning Fall 2019, transfer students will be admitted directly to the art education concentration upon admittance to the BFA program in art.

Change of Major Requirements:

An ASU student who would like to change majors to one offered by the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Art (Art History), BA (FAARTHBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The BA in art history is a dynamic program for the investigation of visual culture in which students engage with a rich and diverse curriculum.

Internships are available at a wide range of arts organizations. The program is enriched by partnerships with the ASU Art Museum and museums across the Phoenix metropolitan area and beyond, including an affiliation with the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

Graduates are admitted to prestigious graduate programs nationally.

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

OR MAT 117 OR MAT 119

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to choose either a 2.5- or a 3-year path while participating in the same high-quality educational experience of a 4-year option. Students can opt to fast-track their studies after acceptance into a participating program by connecting with their academic advisor. Fast track options appear at the top of the major map.

This program also allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Creative Enterprise and Cultural Leadership, MA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Additional Requirements:

Students meeting the university requirements for admission may matriculate in the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts. Separate admission procedures and approvals are required for some programs within the college. Students must contact specific departments or schools for details.

Freshmen students applying to the Herberger Institute School of Art enter ASU as art exploratory majors in the School of Art. There is no portfolio review process at the time of admission to ASU for freshmen.

Typically students in their second year who are interested in studio art and art education will submit a portfolio for review once they have completed their core requirements and are completing the last of the 12 hours of 200-level art requirements, or if they are interested in art history or museum studies they will submit a declaration form in the semester in which they complete 30 hours.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Direct transfer of courses from other accredited institutions to the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts are subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum and subject to departmental or school evaluation of studio courses with respect to performance standards.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates of art history at the bachelor's degree level find employment opportunities in commercial art galleries, art museums and historical societies and archives. Other options include arts agencies and public art programs.

A graduate degree is essential for professional positions; a master's degree prepares individuals to teach at the community college level, practice and publish as an art critic or writer, enhance one's own practice as an artist, or gain entry into museums, archives, historical societies, auction houses, publishing companies and academic presses as well as to art libraries. The doctorate is a necessity for employment as a university or college teacher and for responsible administrative and curatorial positions in the museum and publishing world.

Art (Ceramics), BFA (FAARTCBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BFA in art with a concentration in ceramics provides a stimulating and challenging environment for artistic and intellectual growth. With the realization that discipline, familiarity with historical precedents and freedom go hand in hand with creative activities, the area strikes a balance between the acquisition of traditional skills and the promotion of independence and innovation. Responsibility is placed on the individual student to find personally meaningful content and an effective means to express that content within the ceramic arts.

The ceramics program features a complete and varied line of kilns, wheels and other equipment. Faculty members ensure that students of the program learn the techniques and concepts that enable them to take their work in any direction they wish. A guest artist schedule enhances the program as does the Ceramics Research Center at the ASU Art Museum, which has a collection of more than 3,000 pieces and provides unparalleled opportunities to study and research the ceramic arts.

Art (Digital Photography), BFA (HIARTDPBFA)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The BFA in digital photography teaches students to master the technical, aesthetic and conceptual aspects of photography in the information age.

Through assignments, readings, lectures, critiques, discussion and projects, students work with classmates, artists and faculty to develop and refine their own creative vision and comprehensive knowledge of the theory, practice and history of photography. Not bound by traditional schedules or the limitations of location, this program's flexibility creates a unique community of instructors and students and provides studio-practice art education to a wide and diverse student population.

The program culminates in a capstone course dedicated to producing a self-defined final portfolio of accomplished work.

Art (Drawing), BFA (FAARTDBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BFA in art with a concentration in drawing offers a dynamic environment for creative, intellectual and technical growth that leads to quality art practice and professionalism. The program encourages a wide spectrum of innovative approaches to contemporary drawing. Working from a variety of sources and subjects, students develop technical proficiency experimenting with a wide range of materials and processes. In addition, students develop the ability to critically assess imagery through written and verbal analysis. In their final year, students create a body of work with an individualized approach to form and content, culminating in a senior exhibition.

To complete an undergraduate degree in four years, it is recommended that community college transfer students, who are completing a two-year degree and have completed the foundational core and pre-art requirements, apply and submit a declaration form in the semester they are completing their community college degree or the semester before they plan to enter Arizona State University.

Direct transfer of courses from other accredited institutions to the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts are subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum and subject to departmental or school evaluation of studio courses with respect to performance standards.

Every candidate for the bachelor's degree must earn a minimum of 30 credit hours in resident credit at ASU. Transfer students enrolled in the college must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours of resident credit in the major as approved by the faculty.

Beginning Fall 2019, transfer students will be admitted directly to the Drawing concentration upon admittance to the BFA program in art.

Change of Major Requirements:

An ASU student who would like to change majors to one offered by the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=FAARTDBFA~null + &college=CHI>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

This program prepares students to initiate creative careers as visual artists and as professionals in the public and private sphere. Career opportunities depend on focused concentrations within the area and additional education or training per industry standards. Professions could include independent artist, illustrator, mural painter, commission artist, museum or gallery professional, art dealer, creative art director, private school teacher, college professor, community-based artist (in healthcare setting, nonprofit agencies, local and national public arts) and many others.

Program Description:

The BFA program in art with a concentration in fibers cultivates an environment that stimulates creative and intellectual growth. Coursework ranges from the spinning and processing of raw fiber to digital textile printing. With focus on techniques such as weaving, dyeing, textile printing and fiber sculpture, students are encouraged to discover their individual artistic voice. Throughout the program, students are challenged to utilize and interpret textile traditions while considering innovative and interdisciplinary approaches to contemporary practices.

Art (Museum Studies), BA (FAARTMSBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in art with a concentration in museum studies undergraduate program at ASU is one of the most rigorous in the U.S.

Through coursework and internships, students of museum studies explore art and museums, historical societies, archives, art galleries, public art programs, arts publishing and arts agencies. The program ensures that students are knowledgeable in art history and visual thinking as well as in museum practice. Upon completion, students possess critical-writing skills and foreign language ability. (Students must demonstrate an ability to read at least one foreign language).

The curriculum includes art history courses taught by faculty with diverse specialties. Museum professionals and arts administrators teach specialized classes in their areas of expertise. Internships enable students to work directly with working arts professionals in their field of interest. In addition to art history and museum studies courses, students also pursue a range of other courses, which can include in business, marketing, fundraising, international tourism and nonprofit management.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

OR MAT 142 OR MAT 119

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Creative Enterprise and Cultural Leadership, MA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Students meeting the university requirements for admission may matriculate in the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts. Separate admission procedures and approvals are required for some programs within the college. Students must contact specific departments or schools for details.

Freshmen students applying to the Herberger Institute School of Art enter ASU as art exploratory majors in the School of Art. There is no portfolio review process at the time of admission to ASU for freshmen.

Typically students in their second year interested in studio art and art education submit a portfolio for review once they have completed their core requirements and are completing the last of the 12 hours of 200-level art requirements, or if they are interested in art history or museum studies they submit a declaration form in the semester in which they complete 30 hours.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Direct transfer of courses from other accredited institutions to the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts are subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum and subject to departmental or school evaluation of studio courses with respect to performance standards.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates with a bachelor's degree in museum studies find employment opportunities in museums (generally entry-level), art galleries, archives, historical societies, art-based organizations and agencies and with art publishers and publications.

A graduate degree is necessary for many professional positions. An MA in art history or museum studies prepares individuals to teach at the community college level, to practice and publish as an art critic or writer, to enhance one's own practice as an artist or to gain entry into museums, archives, historical societies, auction houses, publishing companies and academic presses, as well as to art libraries. The PhD is necessary for responsible administrative posts in museums and higher education and for employment as a university or college faculty member.

Art (Painting), BFA (FAARTPABFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BFA in art with a concentration in painting offers a dynamic environment for creative, intellectual and technical growth that leads to quality art practice and professionalism. The program encourages a wide spectrum of innovative approaches to contemporary painting. Working from a variety of sources and subjects, students develop technical proficiency experimenting with a wide range of materials and processes. In addition, students develop the ability to critically assess imagery through written and verbal analysis. In their final year, students create a body of work with an individualized approach to form and content, culminating in a senior exhibition.

Art (Photography), BFA (FAARTPHBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Students in the BFA program in art with a concentration in photography are offered an education in the creation and analysis of photographs as a form of creative expression. Students work in a wide range of photographic media including specialized 19th-century processes, traditional black-and-white and state-of-the-art digital output.

The internationally recognized photography faculty at ASU are diverse, representing and encouraging a wide range of approaches to the creation of photo-based art. Students learn to be self-disciplined and self-directed to understand complex ideas around how images function in their work and to develop a strong sense and control of the craft of photography. The Northlight Gallery engages students and provides opportunities to learn about gallery and museum practice through mounting exhibitions and working with artists and the collection.

A portfolio submission is required for a BFA with a concentration in photography. Students are not able to register for upper-division photography courses until their portfolio has been submitted and reviewed (typically submitted during the second year of study). To be eligible to submit their portfolio, a student must have completed two courses: ART 201 and ART 204 OR ART 205 (transfer credit applicable).

Career Opportunities:

A degree in the arts offers students a pathway to a rich and varied choice of careers. Students with a photography degree may work as independent studio photographers or contract for commercial work for firms, museums, galleries, individuals and other artists. Though this is not a commercial degree program, some students apply their skills post-graduation by doing product photography, portraits or event photography. Students have also started their own successful art galleries.

Photo skills hone a particular sensitivity to issues of representation and a heightened sense of time, among many other life-enhancing attributes. These critical and creative sensitivities can be brought to bear in life after graduation whatever career path a student chooses. The bachelor's degree is essential for advanced study leading to the terminal MFA. This advanced degree offers opportunities in:

- curatorial work in galleries, museums and historical collections
- history or studio areas
- nonprofit arts organization management
- university teaching

Art (Printmaking), BFA (FAARTPMBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BFA in art with a concentration in printmaking provides a complete studio experience with regular courses in book arts, digital processes, intaglio, lithography, papermaking, photogravure, relief, screenprint and other graphic applications. Faculty teach in spacious, well-equipped studios that offer a complete range of print media. While individual students are encouraged to pursue a personal direction, the faculty encourage students to become well-rounded printmakers by experiencing and understanding many media processes and approaches. No style, technique or aesthetic approach is stressed over another, so the individual quality of each student's work is the essential measure of achievement. Collaboration, experimentation and transdisciplinary approaches to making art are encouraged, and students often work with other areas in the School of Art, such as photography, intermedia, painting, drawing and sculpture.

Career Opportunities:

Trained printmakers are working artists, practicing the expression of a personal understanding of their place in the world. They may find employment as artists or printmakers in schools of all levels teaching the execution and appreciation of visual art. They also work in fine art print studios, executing original prints for other artists. Printmaking skills such as screenprinting or photomechanical and digital techniques, acquired for the production of art, also have commercial, non-art applications that may afford skilled employment. Artists with printmaking skills may also work with graphic designs, illustrations and signage or may work in museums, conservation, publishing, galleries and in other art-related activities. Additionally, their art may sell successfully in the open marketplace.

Art (Sculpture), BFA (FAARTSBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BFA in art with a concentration in sculpture recognizes the broad, transdisciplinary nature of sculpture today. A wide range of media now falls within an expanded definition of sculpture.

Coursework covers public and site-specific sculpture, foundry, interactive and electronic sculpture, neon, small metals, wood, and video and sound installation. Students learn to put today's creations in the context of the history of sculpture and the larger field of contemporary art. Critical inquiry is augmented by courses in the art history program. Visiting artists, curators and critics share their experience directly with students.

Through one-on-one mentoring, students learn to win commissions and awards, hold exhibitions, and obtain residencies and jobs as studio artists, public artists, fabricators, project managers, teachers and arts administrators.

Students declare their BFA concentration at the time of their ASU admission. Following admission, if students wish to change their BFA concentration, they may meet with their School of Art academic advisor.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Currently, all art students are admitted to ASU into the Bachelor of Arts (art studies) program. They must complete a series of requirements that include foundational coursework to be eligible for study in one of the school's Bachelor of Fine Arts degree programs, which include upper-division coursework in the studio. There is no portfolio review process for admission to the School of Art.

Students in their second year who are interested in studio art and art education obtain a signed BFA declaration form after completing the core requirements and during completion of the last of the 12 hours of 200-level art requirements. Students interested in art history or museum studies submit a major declaration form in the semester in which they complete 30 credit hours. The student's major is changed upon successful completion of the major declaration form. Students may choose to remain in and complete the Bachelor of Arts (art studies).

Beginning Fall 2019, students will be admitted directly to the Sculpture concentration upon admittance to the BFA program in art.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students who have completed the foundational core and pre-art requirements may submit a major declaration form before they have been admitted to ASU. To complete an undergraduate degree in four years, it is recommended that community college transfer students, who are completing a two-year degree and have completed the foundational core and pre-art requirements, apply and submit a declaration form in the semester they are completing their community college degree or the semester before they plan to enter Arizona State University.

Direct transfer of courses from other accredited institutions to the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts are subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum and subject to departmental or school evaluation of studio courses with respect to performance standards.

Every candidate for the bachelor's degree must earn a minimum of 30 credit hours in resident credit at ASU. Transfer students enrolled in the college must complete a minimum of 15 credit hours of resident credit in the major as approved by the faculty.

Beginning Fall 2019, transfer students will be admitted directly to the Sculpture concentration upon admittance to the BFA program in art.

Change of Major Requirements:

An ASU student who would like to change majors to one offered by the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Dance, BFA (FADANBFA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The School of Film, Dance and Theatre provides a dynamic and culturally diverse learning environment in which students develop as creative artists, scholars and educators. The BFA program in dance offers a transdisciplinary curriculum that emphasizes collaboration and a holistic approach to education. The program encourages artists of the 21st-century to develop multiple skills for success in the arts and related fields.

The core values of the program include creativity, research, leadership, reflection, humanity and context. These values are embedded in a broad Academic Catalog Archive 2019-2020 range of academic experiences that emphasize:

- creative practices --- the study of the creative process and dance-making using improvisation, choreography and interdisciplinary approaches
- dance and digital arts
- dance history, ethnography and philosophy
- movement practices --- the study of the theory, history and technique of a range of dance forms and mind-body practices, including contemporary ballet, postmodern contemporary dance, somatic practices and urban dance practices
- seminars

Additional Requirements:

Admission to the BFA in dance is selective and based on an interview process. Students are admitted to ASU as dance interview students and must successfully complete an interview and audition before enrolling in the dance major. If a student passes the interview, the School of Film, Dance and Theatre will change the student's major to the BFA in dance. In the event the student is admitted to ASU but not selected as a dance major or misses the interview application deadline, the student enters ASU as a dance interview student and will need to successfully pass the dance interview and audition milestone in the first semester in order to gain admission into the program.

Interview days take place in November, February and April of each year. To ensure a smooth curricular progression, all prospective dance students, including transfer students, are strongly encouraged to participate in the interview day during the semester prior to their intended date of enrollment. More information on the interview process and deadlines can be found at <https://filmdancetheatre.asu.edu/degree-programs> (<https://filmdancetheatre.asu.edu/degree-programs>).

Career Opportunities:

The comprehensive academic foundation of the Bachelor of Fine Arts program in dance prepares students to be leading dance professionals of the 21st-century. Graduates of the program have the expertise to pursue professions as choreographers, performers, educators, community artists, scholars and much more. After leaving ASU, many graduates:

- conduct academic research
- curate or produce dance festivals and events
- direct or manage performing art companies, studios or dance-related organizations
- facilitate community partnerships and projects
- produce dance media for performance or instruction
- pursue certification in somatic practices (Laban Movement Analysis, Feldenkrais, Alexander Technique, Body-Mind Centering, etc.)
- teach and design curriculum
- work as a dance critic
- work in technical theatre and dance production
- work in the areas of health and wellness (fitness, yoga, massage therapy, etc.)
- work in the field of arts management and administration
- write for scholarly publications

Design Studies, BA (ARDSNBA)

Campus:

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Please explore Degree Search for other similar program options.

Program Description:

The BA in design studies is a four-year, nonstudio program of study in design that focuses on the design disciplines offered in the ASU Herberger Institute:

- architectural studies
- graphic design
- industrial design
- interior design
- landscape architecture

It is a highly flexible program of study, much like a liberal arts degree, in which students select design and design-related courses offered in the institute and throughout the university. Students acquire a breadth of design knowledge via courses taken from three categories: communication for design, design history and general design.

It provides a design education, general and specific, to students who seek opportunities in the broader design sector or in graduate education.

Students may undertake the program in one of two specific concentrations: design studies, which allows students to discover the myriad possibilities of design as a subject area as well as the flexibility that it provides for further exploration; or design management, which offers a selection of courses in management and human communication that complement design.

Digital Culture, BA (HIDGCBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA program in digital culture equips students with the technical skills to create computational media and the cultural skills to know when or why to apply them.

Students learn to create computational media, which is computation combined with objects, sound, video, time, space, culture and bodies; breathe behavior into media, objects or systems by programming; and think critically about how computation impacts lives and how culture makes a difference in how people experience computational media, a critical skill in this dynamic age.

Armed with skills and sound judgment, graduates work in cultural communication, marketing, design, social media, health, education, entertainment and creative arts, and all areas in which culture is shaped by technology and computational media. All have gained techniques to change the world through communication using contemporary computational media, a vital power in the 21st-century. Some graduates go on to invent fresh techniques.

This program is also offered as an accelerated degree with an MA in creative enterprise and creative leadership. ## Digital Culture (Arts and Design Studies), BA (HIDCADSBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in digital culture equips students with the technical skills to create computational media and the cultural skills to know when or why to apply them. Students learn to create computational media, which is computation combined with objects, sound, video, time, space, culture and bodies; breathe behavior into media, objects or systems by programming; and think critically about how computation impacts lives and how culture makes a difference in how people experience computational media, a critical skill in this dynamic age.

Armed with skills and sound judgment, graduates work in cultural communication, marketing, design, social media, health, education, entertainment and creative arts, and all areas in which culture is shaped by technology and computational media. All students gain techniques to change the world and communicate using contemporary computational media, a vital power in the 21st-century. Some go on to invent fresh techniques.

Digital Culture - Arts and Design Studies Concentration

The digital culture program with a concentration in arts and design studies is for students wishing to integrate transdisciplinary studies in design and the arts into new media applications.

Students complement their knowledge of new media with broad-based transdisciplinary studies in design and the arts.

Digital Culture - English Concentration

The digital culture program with a concentration in English is designed for students who wish to explore the historical, scientific and theoretical intersections of art, media and technology. Sharing of stories and media through electronic communities, participatory art-making and creativity forums on the web, gaming, digital movies and effects, mediated public spaces and electronic design are only a few of the new activities that are defining and evolving culture. Students in the major assist in the establishment, evolution and proliferation of such culture at the state, national and international level. Students will use tools of inquiry to examine, analyze and create works of art through a hands-on approach to communication, writing, rhetoric and literacies in collaboration with the English department.

Digital Culture (Music), BA (HIDGCMBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA program in digital culture equips students with the technical skills to create computational media and the cultural skills to know when or why to apply them.

Students learn to create computational media, which is computation combined with objects, sound, video, time, space, culture and bodies; breathe behavior into media, objects or systems by programming; think critically about how computation impacts lives and how culture makes a difference in how people experience computational media, a critical skill in this dynamic age.

Armed with skills and reasoned judgment, graduates work in cultural communication, marketing, design, social media, health, education, entertainment and creative arts, and all areas in which culture is shaped by technology and computational media. All students gain techniques to change the world and communicate using contemporary computational media, a vital power in the 21st-century. Some go on to invent fresh techniques.

Graduates interested in continuing their education are well prepared to apply for the top interdisciplinary new media programs in the nation.

Digital Culture - Music Concentration

In the digital culture program with a concentration in music, students complement their knowledge of digital culture with discipline-specific courses in the School of Music. These courses focus on understanding the foundations, historical and theoretical structures of commercial and popular music, and the principles of electronic music composition and digital sound.

Environmental Design, BS (HIEDSBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS in environmental design offers an integrated curriculum in environmental design primarily in a nonstudio format. This undergraduate program is designed to create a deep awareness and knowledge of issues that influence the design of built environments and the design of artifacts in general.

The program of study emphasizes general knowledge and design research as well as focus areas. Focus areas include histories and theories of design; innovation, technology and design strategies; and sustainability in environmental design. The curriculum provides special understanding of theories, technologies, social issues and management aspects related to the student's chosen focus area. While studio courses cannot be taken as electives, students take career-specific design electives and the degree prepares students for all graduate programs in The Design School.

The program is not a professional degree program but provides a broad base of skills and knowledge in environmental design.

Fashion, BA (HIFSHBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in fashion combines history, business practices and hands-on studio experience to prepare students for a variety of roles in this important industry. This program is distinguished from other fashion programs in the U.S. through its integration with other research disciplines in the university.

Students have the opportunity to pursue tracks in marketing and merchandising, costuming, wearable technology, sustainability, management and leadership, international experience, and fashion and culture. In the capstone experience, students develop a substantial project within their focus track. Opportunities for internships and study abroad further advance students' professional goals.

Through the leadership of well-known industry professionals, students with the bachelor's degree in fashion are connected globally to leaders in the industry.

Film (Film and Media Production), BA (FAFLMBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

By bringing their own unique stories to life, students pursuing the BA in film with a concentration in film and media production develop a comprehensive and practical knowledge of digital media production, an awareness of the impact of media and entertainment on audiences and culture, and an understanding of the role of the artist in society. Students in the concentration have access to digital cameras, lighting and sound equipment, post-production software and facilities, and other resources that will give them an opportunity to produce projects of exceptional quality.

Within this concentration, students have a choice between three upper-division tracks of study: directing, producing and media technology (including cinematography, post-production and sound). Each course of study is supported by the degree-wide emphasis on ethical filmmaking practices, innovative creative expression and preparation for a career as an industry professional.

All students enter as majors in the filmmaking practices concentration. After completing the required five core film degree courses (15 credits), students are eligible to apply to the studio-based concentration in film and media production. Students who enter ASU as freshmen typically apply for the film and media production program in their third or fourth semester; transfer students may apply earlier depending on academic record, experience and preparation.

The program is offered by the School of Film, Dance and Theatre.

- cinematographers and camera operators
- directors for motion pictures, television and documentary
- editors and post-production specialists
- producers and production executives
- screenwriters for motion pictures and television
- videographers and digital media content creators

The bachelor's degree program is an excellent broad-based foundation for work in the profession or to prepare students for further training at graduate schools or conservatories.

Film (Filmmaking Practices), BA (FAFPRBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Students who pursue the BA in film with a concentration in filmmaking practices receive grounding in fundamental production skills; entertainment and media ethics; feature, short, and episodic screenwriting; and general film and media industry history and practices.

Students have the option of two tracks of study in the upper division: screenwriting or preprofessional. Students who choose the track in screenwriting are required to take multiple writing courses at the intermediate and advanced levels. Students in the preprofessional track chose among a series of course options in each of these areas: writing, producing, and film and media technology.

Production experience is regularly available through select lower-division courses that provide creative coursework options, the upper-division course FMP 300 and credited opportunities to work on projects produced by students, faculty, and the School of Film, Dance and Theatre. All students complete a year-long senior project, initiated and developed by the students and supported with dedicated faculty mentorship, and are supported in their professional goals through the innovative Film Spark program in Santa Monica, Calif.

Graphic Design, BSD (ARGRABSD)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Graphic designers are responsible for designing how information is communicated. Forms of communication include print, video, film and electronic (web). Graphic designers are concerned with:

- appearance
- choosing the appropriate mechanism for communication
- clarity of information and its effectiveness
- how communication is transferred and received

The BSD program in graphic design places an emphasis on strategic communication developed through a design process that includes research, analysis, conceptualization, planning and realization. The process leads to innovative visual communication design solutions for contemporary design problems that are local to global in scope.

All students who are admitted to the major must pass a degree milestone at the end of the first year to continue in the major. For more information on the milestone process, students should visit <https://design.asu.edu/resources/students/milestones> (<https://design.asu.edu/resources/students/milestones>).

This is an 8-semester graphic design program that requires sequential completion of studio coursework (or approved equivalent) at any point of entry.

Industrial Design, BSD (ARINDBSD)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Industrial designers are responsible for the design of product and service systems that people use in their everyday lives. The BSD in industrial design at ASU focuses on a new model of transdisciplinary product development called integrated innovation. Using this model of innovation, students systematically work through a matrix of four questions:

- What is valuable to users?
- What is possible through engineering?
- What is desirable to business?
- What is good for society and the environment?

The goal of the program is to help students learn how to create product and service systems that benefit society while minimizing impacts on the environment, can be realized through appropriate technology and engineering, create measurable value for business, and satisfy people's needs.

All students who are admitted to the major must pass a degree milestone to continue in the major at the end of the first year. - consumer goods
- furniture
- health care and medical products
- packaging design
- sports and outdoor goods
- toys
- trade show and exhibit design
- transportation and mobility device design
- user interface design

Graduates may obtain employment with consulting firms that design products and services for a variety of clients. They may obtain employment with nonprofit institutions or nongovernmental organizations addressing specific social or environmental problems. They may pursue entrepreneurship opportunities; some graduates have established their own design and manufacturing ventures. Or, graduates may pursue teaching a variety of courses in art and design schools, colleges or universities, part time or full time.

Landscape Architecture, BSLA (ARPLABSLA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BSLA program offers students the opportunity to engage with the community in applied projects that focus on designing sustainable outdoor environments and improving the ecological and social health of the urban environment.

Undergraduate landscape architecture projects can range from large-scale work encompassing urban design, landscape reclamation, open space preservation planning and landscape ecological design to projects at the more intimate scale of a neighborhood park or residential back yard. Emerging areas of focus include biotechnical design; urban agriculture; greenways, green roofs and living walls; and healing environments.

Students complement their design learning with electives from a broad range of approved courses.

All students must pass a degree milestone at the end of the first year to continue in the major. For more information, students should visit <https://design.asu.edu/resources/students/milestones> (<https://design.asu.edu/resources/students/milestones>).

This is an 8-semester program requiring sequential completion of studio coursework (or approved equivalent).

Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

The bachelor's degree program is designed to prepare students for landscape architecture professional practice and advanced study at the graduate level, and graduates have found employment in nationally recognized firms working with notable landscape architects in large multinational firms or in public agencies. Graduates have also gone on to pursue graduate study at universities with distinguished graduate programs in landscape architecture and allied design fields.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics projects employment for landscape architects will grow 16 percent from 2010 to 2020, about as fast as the average for all occupations. The bureau also notes employers prefer hiring entry-level landscape architects with internship experience, to significantly reduce the amount of on-the-job training. The bachelor's degree program has an internship requirement meant to address this preference and better prepare graduates for employment.

Music, BA (FAMUSBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in music provides students with a broadly based liberal arts degree applicable to careers in music and many other fields. The curricular core of the Bachelor of Arts in music provides more flexibility than a BMus, leading students to develop mainstream and alternative musical competencies; to explore music as human history, cultural artifact and social behavior; and to pursue other areas of interest.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

OR MAT 117 OR MAT 119

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Creative Enterprise and Cultural Leadership, MA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Important: Applicants must submit an ASU application for undergraduate admission in addition to a separate School of Music application. Students should visit <https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-steps-to-apply> (<https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-steps-to-apply>) for details. Admission to the School of Music is based on an audition. Live auditions take place on campus in November (spring admission) and in January and February (fall admission) of each year. Applicants may review audition information at <http://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-auditions> (<http://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-auditions>).

Admission to the School of Music is highly selective and based on an audition process. Students are admitted as music audition students and must successfully complete the audition before enrolling in music major courses. Upon admission to both ASU and the School of Music, the applicant's major will be changed to music. In the event a student is admitted to ASU but not to the School of Music or misses the audition deadline, the student will remain as a music audition major and will need to successfully pass the music audition milestone in the first semester in order to gain admission into the program.

Application Deadlines: Students should visit <https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-deadlines-fees> (<https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-deadlines-fees>) for complete music deadlines.

Spring 2020: The deadline to apply for admission to this program is Oct. 15, 2019.

Fall 2020: The deadline to apply for admission to this program is Jan. 5, 2020.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer Applicants: Transfer of courses from other accredited institutions is subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum, and departmental or school evaluation of studio and class piano courses with respect to performance standards.

Every candidate for the bachelor's degree must earn a minimum of 30 credit hours in resident credit at ASU. Transfer students enrolled in the institute must complete a minimum of 15 resident credit hours in the major as approved by the faculty.

Change of Major Requirements:

An ASU student who would like to change majors to one offered by the Herberger Institute or one of its programs must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Music (Music and Culture), BA (HIMUSMCBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in music with a concentration in music and culture provides students with a broadly based liberal arts degree applicable to careers in music and many other fields. The music curricular core is combined with elective flexibility, leading students to develop mainstream and alternative musical competencies; to explore music as human history, cultural artifact and social behavior; and to pursue other areas of interest. This is a liberal arts-based degree program in which students have a higher percentage of elective courses, allowing them to tailor both the General Studies courses and the music electives to suit their career goals.

Audition process for admittance to music and culture concentration:

- Submit a writing sample, which will be evaluated by all musicology faculty members.

Submit evidence of musicianship broadly defined (basic notational literacy plus live audition on, for example, didgeridoo or gospel-style composition, or documented transdisciplinary installation including music), which will be evaluated by all musicology faculty.

- Attend an interview with at least three musicology faculty members.

• Each student will be matched with a musicology advisor at the time of acceptance. The advisor will assist students in the choice of ensembles (as qualified) and electives to support their programs of study. Students must audition and be accepted into large ensembles following established procedures.

• Students who wish to take studio lessons as part of the degree must audition for the appropriate performance faculty members. Students should follow the BA in music audition requirements.

Application Deadlines: Students should visit <https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-deadlines-fees> (<https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-deadlines-fees>) for complete music deadlines.

Music Therapy, BMUS (FAMUSTHBM)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BMus program in music therapy prepares students for a career in the health care and special education professions. Music therapists use carefully planned music interventions to achieve desired changes in client individualized behavior and functioning. Music therapy is a profession in which engagement in active music-making helps a client achieve individual therapeutic goals. Educating the potential music therapist requires a wide range of musical skills and the ability to work with people in a therapeutic manner. Music therapy students have many opportunities to develop their clinical skills. Students also study:

- human anatomy
- musical improvisation
- popular music styles
- psychology
- songwriting
- special education
- world music

Additional Requirements:

Important: Applicants must submit an ASU application for undergraduate admission in addition to a separate School of Music application. Students should visit <https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-steps-to-apply> (<https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-steps-to-apply>) for details. Admission to the School of Music is based on an audition. Live auditions take place on campus in November (spring admission) and in January and February (fall admission) of each year. Applicants may review audition information at <http://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-auditions> (<http://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-auditions>).

Admission to the School of Music is highly selective and based on an audition process. Students are admitted as music audition students and must successfully complete the audition before enrolling in music major courses. Upon admission to both ASU and the School of Music, the applicant's major will be changed to music. In the event a student is admitted to ASU but not to the School of Music or misses the audition deadline, the student will remain as a music audition major and will need to successfully pass the music audition milestone in the first semester in order to gain admission into the program.

Application Deadlines: Students should visit <https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-deadlines-fees> (<https://music.asu.edu/admissions/undergraduate-deadlines-fees>) for complete music deadlines.

Spring 2020: The deadline to apply for admission to this program is Oct. 15, 2019.

Fall 2020: The deadline to apply for admission to this program is Jan. 5, 2020.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer Applicants: Transfer of courses from other accredited institutions is subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum, and departmental or school evaluation of studio and class piano courses with respect to performance standards.

Every candidate for the bachelor's degree must earn a minimum of 30 credit hours in resident credit at ASU. Transfer students enrolled in the institute must complete a minimum of 15 resident credit hours in the major as approved by the faculty.

Change of Major Requirements:

An ASU student who would like to change majors to one offered by the Herberger Institute or one of its programs must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=FAMUSPGBM~null + &college=CHI>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates are prepared to work in various professional or entrepreneurial capacities, including:

- performing as a concert soloist or in chamber music ensembles or as a freelance musician in venues such as art galleries, churches, clubs, cruise ships, resorts, restaurants and theme parks
- presenting school programs or serving on state or community arts councils as artist-in-residence
- recording and studio work
- teaching in a private studio or community program
- working in music-related fields such as media production, music business, publishing and marketing

Many graduates pursue a master's degree or a doctorate in music or in another professional field.

Performance and Movement, BA (HIPERMVBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in performance and movement is an inclusive, transdisciplinary degree program that encourages students to develop collaborative approaches to learning and professional industry skills in the performing arts. This program is grounded in cultivating community practice through theatre, dance and music. The bachelor's degree program is located within the ecosystem of Phoenix, the sixth largest urban center in the United States, and enables students to understand, deconstruct and uplift diverse artistic modes across media and encourages the student to create a flexible degree program that intersects and engages these areas of interest. This degree program offers a number of focus areas: dance and theatre, music theatre, social and partnership dance, and urban arts.

Dance and theatre --- The dance and theatre focus area is designed for dancers who seek experience working with theatrical performance and acting, actors and performers who seek to balance text and voice work with movement exploration, and writers and directors who want to explore a wide range of approaches to live performance.

Music theatre --- The music theatre focus area is designed for the theatre student who wishes to focus their studies on musical theatre, vocal performance and dance. Students are offered a variety of courses within the School of Music and the School of Film, Dance and Theatre. This unique academic program allows students to blend key elements of traditional musical theatre curriculum with an expanded focus on foundational courses that provide skills and tools to be a well-rounded theatre artist.

Social and partnership dance --- The social and partnership dance focus area is an innovative program that allows students to explore multiple styles and approaches in social and partnership dance both in formal classroom study and informal student-centered community events. The focus area seeks to prepare future Latin social and ballroom dance leaders with pedagogical, performance and community-building strategies to support the need for serving local and national community engagement in social dance as a means to create social transformation and change.

Urban arts --- The urban arts focus area is designed for the student interested in melding intersectional embodied practice, social justice and urban arts culture by offering a critical look at the historical, social and practical application of urban arts scholarship and culture. The program focus spans various forms of urban artistry and expression through thought-provoking, in-studio courses and hands-on practical application and connects students with scholars and urban arts practitioners to embrace the interdisciplinary nature of urban arts: dance, music, visual and voice.

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Creative Enterprise and Cultural Leadership, MA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Students interested in the BA in theatre are admitted directly into the major by indicating their degree preference on their ASU admission application.

Students interested in the BA in theatre, BA in theatre with a concentration in acting, or BA in theatre with a concentration in design and production will enter as BA theatre majors. Once students begin to complete classes at ASU in the BA theatre program, they may apply to a concentration in either acting or design and production.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Direct transfer of courses from other accredited institutions to the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts are subject to the existence of parallel and equal courses in the college's curriculum and subject to departmental or school evaluation of studio courses with respect to performance standards.

Every candidate for the bachelor's degree must earn a minimum of 30 semester hours in resident credit at ASU. Transfer students enrolled in the college must complete a minimum of 15 semester hours of resident credit in the major as approved by the faculty.

Change of Major Requirements:

An ASU student who would like to change majors to one offered by the Herberger Institute for Design and the Arts must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.50 (scale is 4.00 = "A").

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=FATHEBA~null + &college=CHI>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

Aeronautical Management Technology (Air Traffic Management), BS (ESAMTATBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS program in aeronautical management technology with a concentration in air traffic management provides a technical foundation in the air traffic control procedures used by air traffic controllers in air traffic control towers and air traffic control radar facilities.

Students gain a strong background in aircraft operations, management skills and business principles through coursework specific to air traffic control and aviation. As a part of the degree program, students are required to take courses that will qualify them to earn their airline dispatcher certificate.

This is an intensive program of classroom study and laboratory practice using state-of-the-art air traffic control simulators to enhance and reinforce classroom study. Students receive training in the methodologies and technologies that are currently being developed for the next generation of air traffic control systems. Students develop the following skills:

- analytical thinking
- clear and concise communication

- problem-solving
- teamwork

The Aviation Accreditation Board International accredits this program and the Federal Aviation Administration certifies flight and ground instruction.

Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

The Federal Aviation Administration's 2016 Controller Workforce Plan has projected that the agency plans to hire more than 7,400 new controllers over the next five years to keep pace with the expected attrition rate and traffic growth. The total number of planned hires for the period of 2016--2025 is 12,088 new controllers. The increase in the volume of air traffic requires more controllers to handle the additional work. New computerized systems will assist controllers by automatically making many of the routine decisions. This will allow controllers to handle more traffic, thus increasing their productivity.

Despite the obvious demand for new controllers in the immediate future, competition to get into the FAA-approved training programs is expected to remain intense as there generally are many more applicants than there are openings. Graduates who have met all the FAA requirements are eligible for consideration for employment.

Aeronautical Management Technology (Air Transportation Management), BS (TSAMTMBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The air transportation management concentration, under the BS program in aeronautical management technology, provides students with a strong foundation of aviation concepts, including aviation law, policy and human factors as well as technical knowledge focusing on power plants, structures and aerodynamics. Students progress into courses focusing on business and management and operational aspects of aviation such as airline administration and airport planning. All students finish the program by participating in an internship within industry and completion of a capstone project.

This program prepares students for leadership positions within airlines, airports, government, consulting and entrepreneurial enterprises.

The Aviation Accreditation Board International accredits this program.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Aeronautical Management Technology (Unmanned Aerial Systems), BS (TSAMTUASBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The unmanned aerial systems concentration of the BS program in aeronautical management technology prepares students for careers in the rapidly growing area of unmanned aerial systems, including operations, remote sensing, data collection and analysis.

The concentration incorporates all aviation management technology core courses and unmanned aerial systems concentration courses. This provides an overview of unmanned aerial systems operations followed by detailed knowledge of unmanned aerial systems-specific systems and technology (ground control stations; data links; flight planning and operations; search, detect and avoid technologies; and payloads) and unmanned aerial systems sensor operations. A critical aspect of this academic area of study is the data capture and transfer of the sensor information collected from the unmanned aerial vehicle.

This innovative concentration brings together the most up-to-date and relevant aspects facing multiple industries today by addressing flight system planning and operations and the employment of the systems in the congested National Airspace System.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 170 - Precalculus

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Technology (Aviation Management and Human Factors), MSTech

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Change of Major Requirements:

A current ASU student has no additional requirements for changing majors.

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=TSAMTUASBS~null + &college=CES>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Students graduating from this program are ready to find various employment opportunities as unmanned aerial vehicle pilots and sensor operators in both the U.S. and worldwide. This concentration prepares students to operate small to mid-range platforms that are used by emergency responders, forestry, agriculture, energy and oil, and other similar industries. Entry-level pay is competitive for this highly specialized field.

Aerospace Engineering (Aeronautics), BSE (ESAEROBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The aerospace engineering curriculum provides students with an education in technological areas critical to the design and development of aerospace vehicles and systems. The aeronautics concentration, under the BSE in aerospace engineering, emphasizes engineering and the design of aircraft, helicopters, missiles and other vehicles that fly through the atmosphere. Topics in required courses cover:

- aerodynamics
- aerospace materials
- aircraft structures
- flight mechanics
- propulsion
- stability and control

Required astronautics topics include:

- attitude control
- orbital mechanics

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Additional Requirements:

The admission standards for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university admission standards.

International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant (see <https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply>)), then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), 79 on iBT (internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and
- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Transfer students with 24 or more transferable college credit hours must meet EITHER the primary or the secondary criteria (not both):

Primary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies (if Admission Services requires submission of a high school transcript)

Secondary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer credit hours, and
- minimum GPA of 2.75 in all critical courses: MAE 201, MAE 202, MAE 213 and MAE 242

Career Opportunities:

A majority of students entering the field of aerospace engineering desire to work on the design and analysis of aerospace vehicles. Most graduates are employed in the aerospace industry or in government positions related to aerospace. Specific careers in aerospace engineering include:

- aeronautical and space systems integration
- configuration development
- material and structural design
- propulsion engineering
- space mission design and analysis
- vehicle and component analysis using computer-aided tools
- vehicle design and performance
- wind tunnel and flight testing

The aerospace engineering program has the following educational objectives:

- Through volunteering, entrepreneurial endeavors, community service, employment, etc., graduates of the aerospace engineering program will demonstrate commitment to the Sun Devil ideals of global engagement, social embeddedness, social transformation and sustainability.

Graduates of the aerospace engineering program should have attained one or more of the following objectives within a few years after completing their degrees:

- employment in aerospace or other field in a position that capitalizes on the skills and abilities gained through the degree in aerospace engineering, in positions of increasing responsibility and leadership within the organization
- admission into a graduate degree program in aerospace engineering or other technical field
- admission into a professional degree program, such as law or business, in accordance with the specific interests and abilities of the graduate

Aerospace Engineering (Astronautics), BSE (ESAEASBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The aerospace engineering curriculum provides students with an education in technological areas critical to the design and development of aerospace vehicles and systems.

The astronautics curriculum covers:

- attitude determination and control
- elective topics in aeronautics
- gas dynamics
- orbital mechanics
- rocket propulsion
- space environment
- space structures
- telecommunications

Students in the astronautics concentration culminate their major study with a capstone design project that incorporates the multiple disciplines involved in the creation of a space-going vehicle.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

Aerospace Engineering (Autonomous Vehicle Systems), BSE (ESAEAVSBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Emerging emphasis on autonomous aircraft technology and operations in both military and civilian sectors signals a new era within the aeronautical community focused on autonomous vehicles and systems. The autonomous vehicle concentration provides graduates with knowledge and skills required for any career in aerospace engineering plus those specific to unmanned aerial vehicles and systems.

The curriculum is structured so that students have general exposure to the engineering of autonomous aircraft plus track courses in one area important to this field. The tracks are guidance, navigation and control, and communications. The tracks are intended for aerospace engineering students.

All paths through this concentration satisfy accreditation criteria for aerospace engineering.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

Program Description:

The air traffic management program provides a technical foundation in the air traffic control procedures used by air traffic controllers in air traffic control towers and air traffic control radar facilities. Students gain a strong background in aircraft operations, management skills and business principles through coursework specific to air traffic control and aviation. As a part of the degree program, students are required to take courses that will qualify them to earn their airline dispatcher certificate.

This is an intensive program of classroom study and laboratory practice using state-of-the-art air traffic control simulators to enhance and reinforce classroom study. Students develop the following skills:

- analytical thinking
- clear and concise communication
- problem-solving
- teamwork

The Aviation Accreditation Board International accredits this program and the Federal Aviation Administration certifies flight and ground instruction.

Career Opportunities:

The Federal Aviation Administration's 2015 Controller Workforce Plan has projected that the agency plans to hire more than 6,300 new controllers over the next five years to keep pace with the expected attrition rate and traffic growth. The total number of planned hires for the period of 2015--2024 is 10,241 new controllers. Increases in the volume of air traffic will require more controllers to handle the additional work. New computerized systems will assist controllers by automatically making many of the routine decisions. This will allow controllers to handle more traffic, thus increasing their productivity.

To prepare for this challenge, students receive training in the methodologies and technologies that are currently being developed for the next generation of air traffic control systems. Despite the obvious demand for new controllers in the immediate future, competition to get into the FAA-approved training programs is expected to remain intense as there generally are many more applicants than there are openings. Graduates who have met all the FAA requirements will be eligible for consideration for employment.

Applied Computer Science, BS (TSAC SBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Please explore Degree Search for other similar program options.

Program Description:

The BS program in applied computer science provides students with an education that targets the computing profession. Students learn to use mathematics, science and economics, along with technological knowledge and skill in the application of programming languages and software processes, to design, analyze, implement and test software systems and applications. The program is problem- and project-based, using the languages, tools and methods of computing best practices. Graduates gain significant exposure to team-based software development through industry-driven projects.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Applied Science (Aviation), BAS (TSAMTABAS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

This BAS program in applied science allows students who have an applicable AAS from an accredited institution to transfer 60 credit hours toward a BAS at ASU. Students pursuing this degree may have more than 60 credit hours to complete in order to obtain their Bachelor of Applied Science upon transfer to ASU. Students who have earned an Associate of Applied Science degree from a regionally accredited Arizona community college may be eligible to transfer up to 75 credits toward the Bachelor of Applied Science degree. Students should work with their academic advisor to ensure their courses will meet degree requirements.

The concentration in aviation is for students who have received training and education in some aspect of the air transportation industry, such as air transportation management, flight or aviation maintenance, as part of their associate degree.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BAS program with a concentration in graphic information technology allows students who have an applicable AAS from an accredited institution to transfer 60 credit hours toward a Bachelor of Applied Science degree at ASU. Students pursuing this degree may have more than 60 credit hours to complete in order to obtain their Bachelor of Applied Science upon transfer to ASU. Students who have earned an Associate of Applied Science degree from a regionally accredited Arizona community college may be eligible to transfer up to 75 credits toward the Bachelor of Applied Science degree. Students should work with their academic advisor to ensure their courses will meet degree requirements.

The cross-media nature of the graphics industry requires tomorrow's graduates to understand the full spectrum of visual design and production as well as current business practices. The graphic information technology program prepares graduates for careers as visual design technologists encompassing front-end web design and development, printing and digital publishing, commercial photography and videography, and game art and animation. This is an intensive program of study emphasizing theory and hands-on laboratory practice.

- user experience (UX) designers
- user interface (UI) designers
- front-end web designers and developers
- graphic designers
- art directors
- commercial photographers and videographers
- video editors
- motion graphics and animation professionals
- production managers
- digital print and publishing professionals

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Technology (Graphic Information Technology), MSTech

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Students applying to this program must have completed an Associate of Applied Science degree in a similar field such as computer graphic design, digital arts, digital photography, eLearning design specialist, game technology, graphic design, animation and Web publishing design, graphic design: visual communication, information technology; Web and graphic design, media arts; desktop publishing, media art; Web design, multimedia, multimedia and business technology, and video production technology.

Change of Major Requirements:

Students interested in changing to this BAS degree must have completed a related AAS degree at a regionally accredited university in a similar program, such as graphic design, animation, visual communication, web design and development, commercial photography and video.

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=TSGITBAS-null + &college=CES>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Applied Science (Internet and Web Development), BAS (TSIWDBAS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The BAS program with a concentration in internet and web development is an intensive program of study emphasizing hands-on laboratory practice. Students develop skills in front-end web design and development, including advanced web mark up and scripting, user experience design, usability, multimedia design and emerging web technologies.

The Bachelor of Applied Science degree program allows students who have an applicable AAS from an accredited institution to transfer 60 credit hours toward a bachelor's degree at ASU. Students pursuing this degree may have more than 60 credit hours to complete in order to obtain their Bachelor of Applied Science upon transfer to ASU. Students who have earned an Associate of Applied Science degree from a regionally accredited Arizona community college may be eligible to transfer up to 75 credits toward the Bachelor of Applied Science degree. Students should work with their academic advisor to ensure their courses will meet degree requirements.

All courses for this program are available on campus and through ASU Online.

Biomedical Engineering, BSE (ESBMEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Biomedical engineering applies principles of engineering to the study and resolution of problems in biology and medicine.

Graduates are trained to apply their skills in an ethical, sustainable and environmentally responsible manner to make contributions that address societal and individual needs.

The program objective is to prepare high-quality graduates with a broad-based education in biomedical engineering for productive employment, graduate study or professional programs, especially in human and animal medicine, biotechnology and related biology-based engineering fields; for continued development of technical knowledge, awareness and leadership abilities so graduates may address domestic or global issues in human health; and for preparation to ethically and responsibly contribute to society by drawing from an integrated, transdisciplinary biomedical engineering education that focuses on sustainability and environmentalism.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org/> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Biomedical Engineering, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

The admission standards for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university admission standards.

International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant (see <https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply>)), then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 79 on iBT (Internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and
- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Transfer students with 24 or more transferable college credit hours must meet EITHER the primary OR the secondary criteria (not both):

Primary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies (if Admission Services requires submission of a high school transcript)

Secondary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- minimum GPA of 3.00 in all critical courses for Terms 1 and 2 (see major map for critical courses)

Change of Major Requirements:

Current ASU students should refer to <https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements> (<https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements/>) for the major change requirements for this program.

Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Biomedical engineers are primarily employed in:

- governmental regulatory agencies
- hospital and research facilities
- medical and educational institutions
- medical device, biotechnology and pharmaceutical industries

In industry, they may work in all aspects of product development including:

- business development
- manufacturing
- marketing
- quality
- regulatory
- research and design
- sales

Because of their background in both the engineering and medical fields, they often serve a coordinating or interfacing function and provide a key role for transdisciplinary teams. Government positions may involve evaluating new technologies, testing product quality and safety, and setting standards.

In the hospital, biomedical engineers serving in a clinical engineering function may provide advice on the selection and use of medical equipment and supervise performance testing and maintenance. Biomedical engineers may also build customized devices for special health care, rehabilitation or research needs.

Chemical Engineering, BSE (ESCHEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Chemical engineering deals with the application of chemistry, physics and mathematics to the process of converting raw materials or chemicals into more useful or valuable forms. Chemical engineering also involves the design of valuable new materials and chemical products.

The BSE program offered in chemical engineering builds on a broad base of knowledge within the basic and mathematical sciences and engineering, and it offers excellent career opportunities. Chemical engineers are engaged in the development and production of a diverse range of products, including high-performance materials needed for aerospace, automotive, biomedical, electronic and environmental applications. The modern discipline of chemical engineering is intertwined with biology and biomedical engineering.

Civil Engineering, BSE (ESCEEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Civil engineering majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering have three choices within the accredited BSE program:

- civil engineering
- civil engineering with environmental engineering concentration
- civil engineering with sustainable engineering concentration

The first choice allows students to choose among design and technical elective courses in their senior year. The other choices specify design and technical courses to students with minimal choices. Regardless of choice, the Bachelor of Science in Engineering in civil engineering is accredited by ABET.

Civil engineering involves the analysis, planning, design, construction, maintenance and application of sustainable practices in all areas of urban infrastructure for government, commerce, industry and the public domain. These include airports, bridges, canals, dams, factories, office towers, roadway systems, schools, tunnels and subway systems, and water purification facilities.

Civil engineers are concerned with the impact their projects have on the public and the environment; they coordinate the needs of society with technical and economic feasibility.

The curriculum exposes students to the following areas of civil engineering, with a strong emphasis on sustainability:

- construction engineering
- environmental engineering
- geotechnical engineering
- hydrosystems engineering
- structures
- transportation

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <https://www.abet.org> (<https://www.abet.org>).

Career Opportunities:

ASU graduates with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering readily find employment. Civil engineers work in many different types of companies, from large corporations to small, private consulting firms or governmental agencies. A civil engineering background is an excellent foundation for jobs in management and public service. Civil engineering is one of the best engineering professions from the viewpoint of international travel opportunities or for eventually establishing one's own consulting business.

The bachelor's degree program prepares graduates for the fundamentals of engineering examination, the professional engineering examination and for graduate degree programs.

Civil engineering with a concentration in environmental engineering is a transdisciplinary field based on traditional civil engineering principles and on chemistry, biology and geology. Environmental engineers are involved with:

- air pollution technology
- analysis of the fate and transport of pollutants
- application of sustainable practices in all areas of urban infrastructure
- construction of hazardous waste containment systems
- design and operation of water and wastewater treatment systems
- remediation of contaminated soils and waters
- surface water quality management
- water conservation and reuse

The curriculum also exposes students to other traditional civil engineering areas.

Career Opportunities:

ASU graduates with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering with a concentration in environmental engineering find employment in:

- consulting firms
- industry
- municipalities
- regulatory agencies

The growth of environmental engineering positions has been balanced by the growing number of students entering the field, resulting in a stable job market.

A civil engineering background is an excellent foundation for jobs in management and public service. International opportunities are abundant and are likely to expand. The bachelor's degree program in civil engineering prepares graduates for the fundamentals of engineering examination, the professional engineering examination and graduate degree programs.

Civil Engineering (Sustainable Engineering), BSE (ESCEESUBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Civil engineering majors have three choices within the accredited BSE program:

- civil engineering
- civil engineering with environmental engineering concentration
- civil engineering with sustainable engineering concentration

The first choice allows students to choose among design and technical elective courses in their senior year. The other choices specify design and technical courses to students with minimal choices. Regardless of choice, the Bachelor of Science in Engineering in civil engineering is accredited by ABET.

The bachelor's degree in civil engineering with a concentration in sustainable engineering incorporates systems modeling and life cycle approaches to assessing the resiliency and material selection across all areas of urban infrastructure, or built environment, currently addressed within the civil engineering degree. The program is designed to provide students with exposure to material from several disciplines that comply with the principles of economic, social and ecological sustainability and apply them to traditional civil engineering areas.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org/> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Civil, Environmental and Sustainable Engineering, MSE
- Civil, Environmental, and Sustainable Engineering, MS
- Construction Engineering, MSE

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

The admission standards for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university standards. International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant (see <http://global.asu.edu/future/undergrad> (<http://global.asu.edu/future/undergrad>)), then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 79 on iBT (internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and
- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Career Opportunities:

Civil engineers with knowledge of sustainable engineering may find employment in many different types of companies: from large corporations to small, private consulting firms or governmental agencies. Civil engineering is one of the best engineering professions from the viewpoint of international travel opportunities or for eventually establishing one's own consulting business. The bachelor's degree in civil engineering prepares graduates for the fundamentals of engineering examination, the principles and practice of engineering examination, and for graduate degrees.

Computer Science, BS (ESCSEBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Computer science professionals design, analyze and improve the quality of computer software and systems for a variety of applications, including:

- artificial intelligence
- computer vision
- cyber security
- graphics
- information management
- multimedia
- networking

Examples of projects a computer scientist might work on include:

- computer networking
- database and information systems
- distribution processing systems
- gaming systems
- next-generation computing systems
- search engines
- software engineering
- Web services

The BS program in computer science focuses on the design of computers, computational processes for problem-solving and information transfer and transformation with an emphasis on improving software and system quality, security, performance and usability. The program supports the evolution of the computing and informatics disciplines: the integration of computer and information sciences with engineering, science and other disciplines.

Accredited by the Computing Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org/> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Career Opportunities:

Computer science graduates secure employment in a variety of capacities ranging from computer and software design to development of information technologies. Their jobs are often distinguished by the high level of theoretical expertise applied to solving complex problems and to the creation and application of new computing technologies. Some computer science-related jobs may include:

- creating computer games and graphics systems
- designing artificial intelligence systems
- developing mobile computing applications
- developing network security applications
- discovering data management and mining solutions for large scale data analytics
- inventing and implementing more efficient computing systems for managing data and information, including information retrieval and search on the Internet

With the theoretical foundation built into the program, computer science graduates can excel in system and software development as well as in designing effective computing solutions for emerging and challenging problems in modern society. Skills in system development and research can lead to entrepreneurial activity that produces innovative computing products and services.

Computer Science (Software Engineering), BS (ESCSESBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The software engineering concentration of the BS program in computer science is appropriate for computer science students seeking careers as software engineers. Students learn advanced processes, methodologies and tools for developing and testing large and small software applications in emerging areas such as:

- databases
- enterprise systems
- interoperable systems
- mobile computing
- service-orientated computing

They also learn information assurance concepts and techniques, or principles of human-computer interaction and methods, for developing these applications. The curriculum prepares students to assume leadership roles in software development organizations and to practice professional standards and emerging software technology to the software engineering life-cycle activities.

Career opportunities are plentiful for software engineers. Graduates of this program possess the knowledge and skills to work across the spectrum of software development process activities, including:

- architecture
- coding
- project management
- quality assurance
- requirements engineering
- testing

Careers include:

- software analyst
- software architect
- software engineer
- software task leader

Computer Systems Engineering, BSE (ESCSEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BSE program in computer systems engineering focuses on the analysis, design, testing, integration and evaluation of hardware and software systems. The curriculum is grounded in many engineering disciplines, including the applications of science and technology to the design of:

- computer architecture
- computer security
- digital circuits
- distributed and embedded systems
- networking
- operating systems

Students engage in the design of integrated hardware and software solutions for computing, communication and control applications. They practice many aspects of engineering activities, such as the development of:

- computer networks
- embedded and ubiquitous systems
- high-performance computer systems
- individual digital components

Students become skilled at interfacing different pieces of hardware and software components and integrating systems and products with new capabilities and improved quality and performance.

Computer systems engineers are employed in industry, government, education and consulting firms where they engage in the design, development and operation of hardware and software systems of computer and networking equipment.

Computer systems engineers often find themselves focusing on engineering problems or challenges of emerging computer systems, from chips to device controllers, embedded systems and high-performance computing servers. Their jobs usually involve the research, design and development of computer hardware and software for practical applications. Their work can result in innovative, state-of-the-art products that integrate computing and communication capabilities, such as those in:

- avionics and space vehicles
- digital television and photography
- intelligent highways and control systems for vehicles
- mobile devices and smart applications
- new apparatuses for health care and for the sight-impaired or others with physical disabilities
- security and defense systems

Computer Systems Engineering (Cybersecurity), BSE (ESCSEIBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The cybersecurity concentration in the computer systems engineering BSE degree program provides students with the knowledge and skills needed to build dependable and secure information systems and networks and to ensure the integrity and quality of the information being stored, processed and transmitted.

ASU has been certified as a National Center of Academic Excellence in Information Assurance Education and a National Center of Academic Excellence in Information Assurance - Research by the National Security Agency and the Department of Homeland Security. Information assurance courseware at ASU has been certified by the Information Assurance Courseware Evaluation Program to satisfy the standards for Information Systems Security Professionals (NSTISSI 4011) and Senior Systems Managers (CNSSI 4012).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Computer Science (Art, Media and Engineering), MS
- Computer Science (Big Data Systems), MCS
- Computer Science (Big Data Systems), MS
- Computer Science (Biomedical Informatics), MS
- Computer Science (Cybersecurity), MCS
- Computer Science (Cybersecurity), MS
- Computer Science, MCS
- Computer Science, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

The admission standards for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university standards. International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant, (see <https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply>)) then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), 79 on iBT (Internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and
- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Transfer students with 24 or more transferable college credit hours must meet EITHER the primary OR the secondary criteria (not both):

Primary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies (if Admission Services requires submission of a high school transcript)

Secondary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- minimum GPA of 2.75 in all critical courses for Terms 1 and 2 (see major map for critical courses)

Change of Major Requirements:

Current ASU students should refer to <https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements/> (<https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements/>) for the major change requirements for this program.

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=ESCSEIBSE-null + &college=CES>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Domestic students enrolled in the cybersecurity concentration are eligible for federal fellowships such as the Department of Defense Information Assurance Scholarship Program and the Federal Cyber Service Scholarship for Service Program. For more information on the scholarship programs, students should visit <https://globalsecurity.asu.edu/center-cybersecurity-and-digital-forensics/scholarship> (<https://globalsecurity.asu.edu/center-cybersecurity-and-digital-forensics/scholarship>).

Graduates with a degree in computer systems engineering with a concentration in cybersecurity find employment in a variety of capacities ranging from computer systems and software development to research on information assurance technologies. Some related jobs may include:

- analyzing computer forensic data

- designing secure information systems and networks
- information security consulting
- information systems security engineering
- network security engineering

Construction Engineering, BSE (ESCONBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BSE program in construction engineering focuses on a combination of design and management topics, preparing students for a career in the engineering and construction industry. The program prepares students who wish to gain a professional engineering license while working at the interface of design and construction, and it is attractive for students interested in a career that emphasizes the construction of infrastructure.

The degree program includes engineering design and construction management courses with a focus on sustainability and building information modeling topics. Construction management content includes:

- construction methods
- contract management
- cost and schedule control
- people management
- project estimating

The curriculum's design content includes structures, geotechnical engineering and transportation. Students are further prepared with the computer, management, technical and people skills needed to succeed. This degree is the third in the Southwestern U.S. and one of about 20 worldwide.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org/> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Career Opportunities:

The construction engineering graduate is prepared to begin as a field engineer, project engineer or project designer working for:

- construction companies
- design firms
- facility owners
- material suppliers
- specialty subcontractors

Graduates have unique skills to be able to take on the role of integrator in the delivery of design-build projects or development activities. As the graduate's career progresses, they should be able to take on leadership roles in the delivery of sustainable facilities in the built environment and then progress through successively higher levels of management responsibility. The graduate should be particularly attuned to design and construction of heavy civil and industrial facilities meeting the infrastructure needs of society.

Construction Management, BS (ESCONMGTB)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in construction management allows students to specialize in commercial, heavy, residential and specialty construction and facility management. Students learn to organize, lead and manage the building construction business processes related to real estate, facility and infrastructure projects.

Construction management is the most vital function on a job site. Construction managers represent the interests of the building owner or the contractor and interact with architects, engineers, subcontractors, vendors and suppliers to ensure the success of the construction projects in the built environment. This program focuses on the business of construction and technology, such as building information modeling.

Students learn:

- the basics of design
- the construction methods specific to each type of construction (heavy, residential, commercial, specialty)
- how to estimate, schedule and control the costs of a project
- the process of sustainable or green construction
- what it takes to manage the people involved and the various types of contracts

Students are prepared with the computer, management, technical and people skills needed to succeed. This is one of two construction programs in the state of Arizona and one of approximately 80 accredited programs in the nation.

This program is accredited by the American Council for Construction Education: <https://www.acce-hq.org/> (<https://www.acce-hq.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 170 - Precalculus

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Construction Management, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Career Opportunities:

The construction management program provides a foundation for students who wish to pursue careers as project managers, project engineers, estimators or schedulers and eventually become principals of firms engaged in the construction of industrial, commercial or residential projects.

The heavy construction emphasis area prepares students for careers related to public works such as highways, airports, bridges, utility systems and water or waste treatment facilities.

The commercial and residential emphasis areas prepare students for careers in real estate development, home production systems, commercial construction, health care and special industrial building projects. Students are also prepared to enter the sustainable or green construction market.

The specialty construction emphasis prepares students to organize, lead and manage the building process at the subcontractor level and prepares students for careers as contractors working with mechanical and electrical systems. It also prepares students for careers in management at specialty contracting firms, such as control systems, electrical distribution or heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems for large and complex facilities such as data centers, health care organizations and semiconductor manufacturing plants as well as commercial facilities.

Electrical Engineering, BSE (ESEEEBSE)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The goal of the electrical engineering undergraduate program is to prepare graduates for positions as electrical engineers. Faculty in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering offer a BSE in electrical engineering. Following initial coursework in mathematics and sciences, the foundation classes build a solid base of engineering knowledge. The electrical engineering curriculum includes a number of required upper-division electrical engineering and technical elective courses in such areas as:

- circuits
- communication, signal processing and control systems
- computer engineering
- electromagnetics
- power
- solid-state devices

Approved technical elective courses provide students with an opportunity either to broaden their background in electrical engineering or to study, in greater depth, technical subjects in which they have special interest.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org/> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to choose either a 2.5- or a 3-year path while participating in the same high-quality educational experience of a 4-year option. Students can opt to fast-track their studies after acceptance into a participating program by connecting with their academic advisor. Fast track options appear at the top of the major map.

This program also allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Computer Engineering (Electrical Engineering), MS
- Electrical Engineering, MSE

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

Career Opportunities:

Graduates with the bachelor's degree in electrical engineering find many exciting opportunities in industry. These include:

- communication equipment and network providers
- computer and peripheral device manufacturers and defense organizations
- consulting companies
- electric power utilities
- semiconductor chip designers and manufacturers

The program also prepares graduates for continued learning experiences, either in a formal graduate program or in continuing education applications.

Electrical Engineering (Electric Power and Energy Systems), BSE (ESEEEPBSE)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The goal of the electric power and energy systems concentration in the BSE electrical engineering program is to prepare graduates for positions in industries dealing with generation, transmission and utilization of electric power. Generation includes conventional power generation (fossil fuel and nuclear) and alternative energy systems, including solar, wind and fuel cells.

Students in this program complete the foundation courses in math, science and engineering. Students are then required to take the pathway course in electric power and complete nine of the 15 technical elective credit hours with power classes. In addition, the senior design capstone project focuses upon the area of electric power and energy systems.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Career opportunities for graduates with a concentration in electric power and energy systems include:

- consulting engineering firms
- employment in utility companies
- entrepreneurial opportunities
- power equipment manufacturers
- research and design organizations
- state, federal and municipal agencies

This concentration also prepares students to pursue graduate degrees in the areas of:

- power generation
- power systems
- power transmission and distribution
- renewable and sustainable energy sources

The program also prepares graduates for continued learning experiences, either in a formal graduate program or in continuing education applications.

Engineering, BSE (TSEGRBSE)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The ABET-accredited BSE in engineering program prepares graduates to collaborate across disciplines to design and build solutions to real-world problems. In the engineering program, students apply engineering fundamental knowledge and design thinking to real projects every semester.

In the Bachelor of Science in Engineering program, students choose a disciplinary concentration where they develop in-depth knowledge in a specific area, as well as a secondary focus area. This flexibility allows students to tailor their degree to achieve their individual career and life goals.

Students can choose from the following concentrations:

- automotive systems
- electrical systems
- mechanical engineering systems
- robotics

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Engineering (Automotive Systems), BSE (TSEGRASBSE)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The ABET-accredited BSE engineering program prepares graduates to collaborate across disciplines to design and build solutions to real-world problems. In the program, students apply fundamental engineering knowledge and design thinking to real projects every semester.

Students in the automotive systems concentration of the Bachelor of Science in Engineering program first build a broad engineering foundation to which they add skills and knowledge necessary for vehicle design and testing. The concentration curriculum focuses on automotive engineering fundamentals, including powertrain engineering and chassis system design as well as hands-on projects that involve designing, analyzing and building of actual automotive systems.

Graduates of this concentration are able to provide leadership in automotive engineering settings, especially automotive testing and hybrid propulsion systems, which are intrinsically transdisciplinary in nature.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Engineering, MS
- Manufacturing Engineering, MS
- Secondary Education (Teacher Certification), MEd
- Technology (Management of Technology), MSTech

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Engineers collaborate on transdisciplinary teams to design, manufacture and deliver innovative technological products and services. The Bachelor of Science in Engineering program enables students to develop sophisticated technical skills in tandem with the professional skills of communication, teamwork and collaboration, and self-motivation and adaptability that many employers seek.

Graduates of the automotive concentration are prepared for employment in automotive-related companies, from large original equipment manufacturing companies and their testing grounds to smaller specialty or aftermarket companies. The program's emphasis on open-ended design and project-based learning supports the development of entrepreneurial skills and attitudes, and some students start companies of their own.

Because of the transdisciplinary nature of the Bachelor of Science in Engineering, graduates also have opportunities to perform functions that traditionally have been done by mechanical, manufacturing, automation and development engineers.

Engineering Management, BSE (ESEMGBSE)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The BSE in engineering management is designed to provide the graduate with skills for effective management and leadership of engineering-driven enterprises.

The curriculum provides a breadth of engineering science and design with depth in one specific area suitable for practice. This knowledge is augmented with an understanding of business practices, organizational behavior and management skills to enable the graduate to succeed in the management of a scientific or engineering enterprise. Topics covered include project and resource management, financial engineering, risk management, configuration management, service plans, product liability, entrepreneurship and operations management, in addition to product design and process development.

Graduates have a deep understanding of at least one industry sector based upon the focus area courses.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with Economics, BS

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to choose either a 2.5- or a 3-year path while participating in the same high-quality educational experience of a 4-year option. Students can opt to fast-track their studies after acceptance into a participating program by connecting with their academic advisor. Fast track options appear at the top of the major map.

This program also allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Industrial Engineering, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

The admission requirements for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university admission requirements.

Students should select a second major choice when applying for admission to a degree program in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering.

International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant (see <https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply>)), then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 79 on iBT (internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and

- Admission may be granted with one deficiency in no more than two competency (<https://students.asu.edu/admission/competencies>) areas. Deficiencies in both math and laboratory science are not acceptable.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- satisfy the freshmen admission requirements

Transfer students with more than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- if Admission Services requires submission of a high school transcript, admission may be granted with one deficiency in no more than two competency (<https://students.asu.edu/admission/competencies>) areas. Deficiencies in both math and laboratory science are not acceptable.

Concurrent degree admission requirements: Engineering Management, BSE and Economics, BS:

- minimum 1250 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (650 minimum on SAT math) or minimum 29 ACT combined score (29 minimum on ACT math), and
- 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA

Attend Online: ASU offers this program in an online format with multiple enrollment sessions throughout the year. Applicants may view the program description and request more information here. Career Opportunities:

An engineering management graduate is prepared to begin a career as a:

- production supervisor
- project management team member or lead
- supply logistics engineer
- system specification and customer relationship management specialist or similar role

Graduates are ready to progress through successively higher levels of management responsibility.

Environmental Engineering, BSE (ESEVEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The environmental engineering BSE degree program educates tomorrow's engineers to solve complex environmental problems and design systems at the human, urban and planetary scale. Environmental engineers are actively involved with:

- air quality monitoring and air pollution control technology
- analysis of fate and transport of pollutants
- application of sustainable design principles
- design and operation of water and wastewater treatment systems
- design of hazardous waste containment systems
- design of solid waste management systems
- remediation of contaminated soil, sediment and water
- water quality, water conservation and water reuse

In recognition of the interdisciplinary nature of environmental engineering challenges, the degree incorporates courses from other programs in the Fulton Schools of Engineering including chemical engineering and environmental resources management. Engineering courses build on strong foundation in chemistry, biology, geology, physics and mathematics. Courses cover fundamental engineering concepts applied to environmental processes and environmental engineering design as well as applied learning experiences including required internship or research experience and capstone design course.

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and

minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Transfer students with more than 24 transferable college credit hours:

Primary

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies (if Admissions Services requires submission of a high school transcript)

Secondary Criteria

minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer hours, and

- minimum GPA of 2.75 in all critical courses for Terms 1 and 2 (see major map for critical courses)

Change of Major Requirements:

Current ASU students should refer to <https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements> (<https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements/>) for the major change requirements for this program.

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (https://webapp4.asu.edu/transferecreditguide/app/transfermap?major=ESEVEBSE~null + &college=CES) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates from the environmental engineering program have career opportunities in both the private and public sectors. The private sector consulting industry in environmental engineering is growing as greater environmental awareness and emerging novel pollutants require continual refinement of regulations and environmental system design standards. In the public sector, municipalities and regulating agencies require a knowledgeable workforce to understand how public policy can improve human health and ecosystem services through environmental engineering processes.

The college seeks to accredit the Bachelor of Science in Engineering in environmental engineering to allow graduates to pursue professional licensure that enables environmental engineers to design and build drinking water and wastewater treatment facilities, contaminated soil and water remediation systems, and hazardous and solid waste confinement systems.

Environmental and Resource Management, BS (TSETMBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS in environmental and resource management provides critical scientific and management skills for graduates who work in industry or government to ensure the health of natural ecosystems and mitigate the environmental impact of our industrial world.

The curriculum combines a strong foundation in biology, chemistry, physics and mathematics, with a solid grounding in environmental law and policy. Students learn to apply environmental technologies to drinking water and wastewater treatment, management of hazardous and solid wastes, and control of industrial and mobile sources of air pollution. They study OSHA regulations on health and safety and strategies to protect workers in hazardous environments. International environmental issues and legal frameworks are included along with U.S. environmental laws.

Graduates with these skills are in high demand and can find work in industry, governmental management and regulatory agencies, or in policy-making organizations.

An accelerated BS/MS degree option is available in which up to nine hours of the bachelor's degree may be applied toward the 33 hours required for the master's degree in environmental and resource management. A special application is required for this option.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 210 - Brief Calculus

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Environmental and Resource Management (Water Management), MS

Environmental and Resource Management, MS

Technology (Environmental Technology Management), MSTech

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates are firmly grounded in the scientific, technical and legal problems facing environmental managers in today's business climate. They are prepared to be environmental, health and safety professionals in industrial settings such as manufacturing, mining, oil and gas or environmental engineering consulting firms. They also assure compliance with OSHA and EPA requirements in laboratories at pharmaceutical companies, water treatment plants or academic labs. On the regulatory side, graduates work for agencies such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or state and county departments of environmental quality.

Graphic Information Technology, BS (TSGITBS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The cross-media nature of the graphics industry requires tomorrow's graduates to understand the full spectrum of visual design and production as well as current business practices.

The graphic information technology program prepares graduates for careers as visual design technologists encompassing front-end web design and development, printing and digital publishing, commercial photography and videography, and game art and animation. This is an intensive program of study emphasizing theory and hands-on laboratory practice. Careers may include:

- art directors
- commercial photographers and videographers
- digital print and publishing professionals
- front-end web designers and developers
- graphic designers
- motion graphics and animation professionals
- production managers
- user experience designers
- user interface designers
- video editors

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 170 - Precalculus

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with Journalism and Mass Communication, BA

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Additional Requirements:

Concurrent degree admission requirements:

Freshman applicants must meet all of the following standards:

- 3.75 minimum ABOR GPA
- no English competency deficiencies
- 960 SAT Reasoning or 22 ACT score

Transfer applicants also must meet the following standard:

Transfer students must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 from a transfer institution.

Graphic Information Technology (User Experience), BS (ESGITUEBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The user experience concentration is designed to provide graphic information technology majors with an interdisciplinary foundation in design, research and communication to prepare them for the rapidly growing area of user experience. The concentration provides students with a conceptual understanding of, and applied skills in methods of gathering user information, analyzing data and communicating through visual design technologies. Although its disciplinary home and primary focus is graphic information technology, the concentration includes courses from the fields of human systems engineering and technical communication in order to provide students with the multiple perspectives and complementary skills needed for user experience work.

Human Systems Engineering, BS (ESHSEBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS program in human systems engineering provides students with an understanding of the science of human performance and with experience using methods and tools to apply this understanding to design and problem-solving in a wide variety of domains, such as product usability, learning design, sports performance, and workplace and hospital safety.

A wide variety of professions need experts in human factors to work on problems that involve an understanding of human performance. Interest areas include user experience, aviation human factors, cognitive performance, consumer psychology, transportation human factors, patient safety, effective teamwork, health psychology, learning optimization, social cognition, threat detection and sports psychology.

The program is offered by the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering.

Industrial Engineering, BSE (ESIEEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Industrial engineering is concerned with the design, improvement, installation and operation of integrated systems of people, materials, information, equipment and energy. The purpose is to determine efficient ways to make a product or to provide a service. Industrial engineering draws upon specialized knowledge and skill in the mathematical, physical and social sciences together with the principles and methods of engineering analysis and design.

The underlying concepts for the BSE program in industrial engineering include certain business principles but emphasize the use of mathematics and information technology to build models to describe, understand and optimize system performance. Depending on the subspecialties involved and the intended application, industrial engineering may also be known as operations management, management science, operations research, systems engineering or manufacturing engineering.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Industrial Engineering, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

The admission standards for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university standards. International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant (see <https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply>)), then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), 79 on iBT (Internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and
- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Transfer students with 24 or more transferable college credit hours must meet EITHER the primary OR the secondary criteria (not both):

Primary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies (if Admission Services requires submission of a high school transcript)

Secondary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- minimum GPA of 2.75 in all critical courses for Terms 1 and 2 (see major map for critical courses)

Change of Major Requirements:

Current ASU students should refer to <https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements> (<https://engineering.asu.edu/admission-requirements/>) for the major change requirements for this program.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates in industrial engineering are prepared to design and manage systems for a wide range of organizations. They find exciting career opportunities in all types of manufacturing and service industries, including:

- banking and finance
- defense and government
- health care
- hospitality, sports and entertainment
- management consulting
- manufacturing (e.g., aerospace, automotive, semiconductor)
- software industry

Informatics, BS (ESCPIBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Informatics is about discovering, developing and understanding computer applications that improve people's lives. The BS in informatics prepares skilled professionals who take a transdisciplinary, user-oriented perspective toward information and computing systems, apply current informatics methods to address society's needs, and contribute to the next generation of such systems.

The informatics bachelor's degree program provides an option for students interested in a flexible program in applied information and computing technologies. The program provides skills in design and implementation of computer systems while offering opportunities for building applications used by people in many fields. Students learn to develop software for devices of all sizes, from supercomputers to cell phones and even smaller. The challenges of informatics include designing, developing and applying tools that model, aid or automate activities within science, engineering, business, geography, education and entertainment.

Informatics careers center on solving problems through the design and creation of information systems, user interfaces, mobile technologies and social media.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates have the ability to develop future information technology solutions that place a strong emphasis on user needs and provide the ability to adapt and change dynamically with society's needs. This makes the informatician a strong candidate for jobs in:

- management consulting firms

- technology research centers
- technology start-ups

Additionally, the program prepares students for graduate programs that offer an emphasis in emerging technologies.

Information Technology, BS (TSIFTBS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

Information technology is the business of the movement of data by retrieving, managing, securing and analyzing data sets. It is an embedded system used in our everyday lives that defines how humans interact on a daily basis. The field's fast pace of growth is a worldwide event, and it is in need of self-motivated, problem-solving individuals who are looking toward a career in the exciting world of information technology.

The BS undergraduate degree program in information technology starts by introducing basic fundamentals that help lay the foundation of the information technology coursework. These fundamentals build toward a focus area that allow students to hone their skill set, preparing them for employment in the fast-paced environment that is information technology. This program has been designed with key-driven threads to incorporate emerging technologies that are utilized in real-world business models.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Manufacturing Engineering, BS (TSMEGRBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

Successful manufacturing enterprises balance design, sustainability and quality with production to prosper in the global marketplace. Manufacturing engineering combines manufacturing processes (e.g., how materials are altered in either shape or properties) and the processes of manufacturing (e.g., design and management of manufacturing systems).

The BS program in manufacturing engineering prepares graduates to analyze, synthesize and control manufacturing operations using statistical methods; collaborate across disciplines to design and build solutions to real-world problems; design innovative products and the equipment, tooling and environments necessary for their manufacture; model, simulate and analyze manufacturing production processes for both small- and large-scale environments; and provide technological leadership.

The curriculum is project-based, hands-on, teamwork-oriented and delivered in outstanding fabrication facilities. Graduates of this program become key team members who create and implement processes for making such varied products as airplanes, surgical instrument, toys and foodstuffs.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Manufacturing Engineering, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

Career Opportunities:

Engineers collaborate on transdisciplinary teams to design, manufacture and deliver innovative technological products and services. The Bachelor of Science in Engineering program in manufacturing engineering enables students to develop sophisticated technical skills in tandem with the professional skills of communication, teamwork and collaboration, and self-motivation and adaptability that many employers seek. Graduates are prepared to work in large corporations, government agencies, small businesses, as well as to go on to graduate school to pursue advanced degrees. The program's emphasis on open-ended design and project-based learning supports the development of entrepreneurial skills and attitudes, and some students start companies of their own.

Graduates typically work as manufacturing engineers in a variety of companies, large and small. They are often members of design and development teams, cooperating with other people within and outside of their company. Career employment opportunities include direct manufacturing support, manufacturing management, and quality control and assurance. Due to a strong, broad and practical engineering skill set, graduates are highly valuable in small or new startup companies. Program graduates are well-placed and command top salaries.

Materials Science and Engineering, BSE (ESMSEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Materials engineers are responsible for designing and developing advanced materials for a wide variety of engineering applications. Courses in materials teach students in the BSE program in materials science and engineering about the design of materials and how to process them to improve their structure, properties and performance. Materials engineers are in demand by almost every industry, from automotive to aerospace to biomaterials to nanotechnology.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <https://www.abet.org> (<https://www.abet.org/>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 265 - Calculus for Engineers I

Additional Requirements:

The admission standards for majors in the Ira A. Fulton Schools of Engineering are higher than minimum university standards. International students may have an additional English-language proficiency criterion. Foreign nationals must meet the same admission requirements shown below with the possible additional requirement of a minimum TOEFL score. If the university requires a TOEFL score from the applicant (see <https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply> (<https://admission.asu.edu/international/undergrad-apply>)), then admission to engineering requires a minimum TOEFL score of 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), 79 on iBT (Internet-based) or a minimum IELTS score of 6.5.

Freshman Admission:

- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score or minimum 24 ACT combined score or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students with fewer than 24 transferable college credit hours:

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for less than 24 transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies, and
- minimum 1210 SAT combined evidence-based reading and writing plus math score (or 1140 if taken prior to March 5, 2016) or minimum 24 ACT combined score, or 3.00 minimum ABOR GPA, or class ranking in top 25 percent of high school class

Transfer students with 24 or more transferable college credit hours must meet EITHER the primary OR the secondary criteria (not both):

Primary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 3.00 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- no high school math or science competency deficiencies (if Admission Services requires submission of a high school transcript)

Secondary Criteria

- minimum transfer GPA of 2.75 for 24 or more transfer hours, and
- minimum GPA of 2.75 in all critical courses for Terms 1 and 2 (see major map for critical courses)

Mechanical Engineering, BSE (ESMAEMBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Mechanical engineering is a creative, diverse discipline. Mechanical engineers design, build and control the devices, machines, processes and systems that are the mainstay of modern industrialized society.

Students are prepared for a career in mechanical engineering through a curriculum that includes study of the principles governing energy transfer, mechanical design, sensors and control devices, and the application of these principles to the creative solution of practical modern problems.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

A major strength of a mechanical engineering education is the flexibility it provides in future employment opportunities for its graduates. Mechanical engineers are employed in virtually every kind of industry. They are involved in seeking new knowledge through research; in generating creative design and development; and in the production, control, management and sales of the devices and systems needed by society.

The BSE program in mechanical engineering has the following program educational objectives:

- Through volunteering, entrepreneurial endeavors, community service, their employment, etc., graduates of the mechanical engineering program will demonstrate commitment to the Sun Devil ideals of global engagement, social embeddedness, social transformation and sustainability. Graduates of the mechanical engineering program should have attained one or more of the following objectives within a few years after completing their degrees:
- employment in engineering or other fields in a position that capitalizes on the skills and abilities gained through the degree program in mechanical engineering (holding positions of increasing responsibility and leadership within their organizations)
- admission into a graduate degree program in mechanical engineering or other technical field.
- admission into a professional degree program, such as law, business or medicine, in accordance with the specific interests and abilities of the graduate

Mechanical Engineering (Computational Mechanics), BSE (ESMAECBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

As mathematical and numerical modeling takes on a much larger role in product development, graduates who are highly skilled in computational and mathematical engineering will be in high demand. The concentration in computational mechanics under the BSE program in mechanical engineering is designed to teach students the modern computational tools available for solving large-scale and complex technical problems. The curriculum focuses on high-performance computing and the accurate modeling of large and small scale systems.

Mechanical Engineering (Energy and Environment), BSE (ESMAEEBSE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The concentration in energy and environment within the BSE in mechanical engineering is designed to prepare students to analyze technical problems in:

- air pollution
- climate change
- energy efficiency
- environmental sustainability
- renewable energy
- timely issues facing the global community

Although the primary focus of this program is technical, the general education courses in the areas of the humanities and social and behavioral sciences introduce students to the global, political and societal issues relating to energy and the environment. By focusing on issues such as air pollution, water scarcity and the lack of alternative transportation, this program becomes even more attractive for employers in the greater Phoenix area as well as nationwide.

Software Engineering, BS (TSSERBS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The BS program in software engineering blends engineering, computing, project leadership and software construction. Students learn how to make creative software solutions to today's problems. Software systems are complex, often including millions of lines of code. Graduates of the bachelor's degree program in software engineering possess the knowledge and skills of a defined engineering approach to complex systems analysis, planning, design and construction.

The program has a unique, project-driven curriculum, establishing a new model for software engineering education. The program is built around the concepts of engaged learning, discovery-based education and learn-by-doing. Students complete projects in every semester of the program to provide emphasis in communication, teamwork, critical thinking and professionalism. Students have flexibility in designing their course of study; they select a software engineering application area such as Web and mobile applications or embedded systems as their primary focus, and they may obtain interdisciplinary knowledge through a secondary area of their design.

Accredited by the Engineering Accreditation Commission of ABET, <http://www.abet.org> (<http://www.abet.org>).

The accelerated program is only allowed for the software engineering program on the Polytechnic campus.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Career Opportunities:

Software engineers solve a broad set of transdisciplinary problems and apply new technologies to improve the quality of life. Graduates design and engineer innovative systems that may include mechanical and electrical components that interact with software. The bachelor's degree program in software engineering is a unique program in which students learn by solving engaging projects, commonly as a member of a development team. The program prepares graduates for advanced study in computing, an allied field, or to enter the computing profession (most commonly as an application software engineer). According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, software engineers are highly paid, and there is significant growth in the number of employment opportunities. Some software engineering jobs may include:

- creating applications for mobile devices
- creating web applications
- designing, creating and validating software for avionics, robotics and similar systems fields

Technological Entrepreneurship and Management, BS (TSTEM2BS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The BS program in technological entrepreneurship and management advances the knowledge and practice of entrepreneurship and innovation. To enhance students' understanding of business fundamentals, the Fulton Schools of Engineering have partnered with the W. P. Carey School of Business to offer a degree that is jointly conferred by both colleges. The degree program prepares students to address social and corporate issues to impact and change the world; create, launch and improve technology-based products, services and ventures; and identify and solve open-ended problems using engineering and technology approaches.

Students receive a foundation in both technology and business fundamentals, with an emphasis on technology entrepreneurship and innovation in one of two focus areas: innovation and operation management or social entrepreneurship.

The objectives for this degree program are that students demonstrate the ability to identify, analyze and synthesize information to address and solve use-inspired, open-ended problems, assessing their impact on social, cultural and economic environments; formulate methodologies to advance the knowledge of entrepreneurship and innovation; launch technology-based products and services from idea generation through actualization; use quantitative and qualitative methods to demonstrate continuous improvement of products, services and processes; and utilize a systems approach for the effective design and improvement of entrepreneurial and innovation ventures.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Global Management, Thunderbird School of ### Global Management, BGM (TBTGMBGM)

Campus: West, Online

Program Description:

The BGM degree program draws on Thunderbird School of Global Management's expertise in global management practices and intercultural communication training to provide students with a highly specialized, global business education.

The Bachelor of Global Management program prepares students to take on leadership roles in multinational corporations as well as nongovernmental organizations. Thunderbird's outstanding global management faculty members and strong relationships with global organizations allows students to develop the skills needed to operate effectively in today's globally connected world. Students develop skills that international employers, governments and nongovernmental entities value highly.

The program offers two tracks: the international business, language and culture track in which two years of foreign language is required; and the international business and culture track in which there is no foreign language requirement but there is more emphasis on management-related courses. Students who select the foreign language track may complete coursework in Mandarin or Spanish. Speakers of English as a second language may choose the international business and culture track or choose a third language within the international business, language and culture track. The international business, language and culture track is offered to on-campus students only. Online students may pursue only the international business and culture track.

Students have the opportunity to put the skills they have learned into practice in real-world settings through a required internship. Although students are strongly encouraged to pursue international internships, students may also satisfy this requirement by doing a local internship with an international orientation. Students also complete a senior capstone project of their choice, which draws upon the unique skills they have developed throughout the program. The internship and the capstone project allow students to demonstrate their skills and work experience for potential employers as part of their professional development plan.

Applied Science (Medical Laboratory Science), BAS (NUMLSBAS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The BAS in medical laboratory sciences is designed to provide the academic knowledge and professional skills that allow students to advance their employment opportunities within the fields of medical technology, cytology, clinical laboratory science and related areas.

Medical laboratory scientists, also known as clinical laboratory scientists, are highly skilled professionals who perform analytical tests on blood, tissue and body fluids to provide laboratory information for the detection, diagnosis and treatment of human diseases. There also is a growing trend for medical laboratory scientists to perform wellness laboratory testing aimed at preventing disease. These professionals work independently using skills and knowledge that are greater in depth and breadth compared to those of medical laboratory technicians, who typically are graduates of a two-year or community college program.

The program is accredited by the National Accrediting Agency for Clinical Laboratory Science, 5600 N. River Rd, Suite 720, Rosemont, IL, 60018, <https://www.naacls.org/> (<https://www.naacls.org/>).

Biomedical Informatics, BS (ESBMIBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Biomedical informatics combines information technology, data science and knowledge for improvement in patient health care. The program educates undergraduate students in the informatics knowledge and skills that are so important in today's health care industry.

The program enables its graduates to improve the quality of patient health care and reduce the cost of it by consolidating patient health history and interventions across hospitals and clinics, providing the right information about patient health to clinicians, and reducing clinical errors and waste. Graduates are able to minimize the number of patient hospital visits by managing and monitoring a patient's clinical condition at home, and they are able to shorten hospital stays and improve the patient hospital experience by providing the patient with faster access to resources.

Graduates are able to evaluate a patient's condition; make an early detection of disease; support the clinician in making a better, more precise diagnosis and prognosis; plan a treatment for the patient's disease; and track disease progression.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates with a degree in the rapidly expanding field of biomedical informatics are prepared for careers in a wide range of health care settings. They are employed in positions such as biomedical analysts, medical information analysts, software analysts, electronic health records analysts, public health informatics scientists and research associates, among others. Some with interests in life sciences and technology may see this program as a unique way to combine the two. Others may find this degree the first step toward medical school or advanced medical research or to continued graduate-level study in biomedical informatics.

Exercise and Wellness, BS (ECXERBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The BS degree program in exercise and wellness is designed to equip the next generation of inclusive fitness professionals with the skills to lower the health care burden by using physical activity as a means to prevent and treat chronic conditions and to improve the health and well-being of the global population.

Through a combination of applied exercise science coursework and hands-on laboratory experiences, students gain the practical skills to implement evidence-based exercise programs to work with clients to achieve health and fitness goals, in both clinical and nonclinical settings.

The exercise and wellness graduate is able to apply best practices in exercise prescription and behavior change to help people adopt and maintain healthier habits and combat the ongoing health problems caused by an increase in sedentary lifestyles. Graduates are prepared for nationally accredited, advanced certification in the health and fitness area and for immediate careers in clinical, commercial or public sectors of the fitness industry. They may also transition to graduate programs specializing in fit, sedentary or symptomatic populations.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 117 - College Algebra

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Clinical Exercise Physiology, MS

Exercise and Wellness, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Exercise and Wellness (Fitness and Wellness Specialist), BS (ECXWBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Interested students should apply to the BS program in exercise and wellness.

Program Description:

The BS program in exercise and wellness provides students with the knowledge and practical skills necessary to assist individuals in reaching optimal health. Students are prepared to pursue nationally recognized and credentialed certifications provided by professional organizations in fields of study related to physical activity, strength and conditioning, or exercise physiology. The exercise and wellness student is also well prepared, with the addition of the prerequisite courses, to continue into graduate schools required for careers in physical therapy, occupational therapy, athletic training or other medical fields.

The exercise and wellness program consists of a carefully designed curriculum emphasizing:

- competency in the instruction of basic and advanced techniques related to flexibility, resistance training and cardiovascular exercise
- competencies required to attain advanced level certifications from professional associations in the field
- foundational knowledge of exercise physiology and applied kinesiology
- methods to understand and help improve individuals with regard to their health behavior choices
- skills in assessing and interviewing clients in preparation for fitness and wellness programming
- skills in designing and manipulating program variables to work with apparently healthy or symptomatic individuals

Students in the exercise and wellness degree program also have the ability to enroll in courses that will enhance their abilities to work with high performance athletes, obese individuals or those at risk for suffering from other hypokinetic diseases.

Employment of fitness and wellness professionals is expected to grow by up to 24 percent through 2020, much faster than other occupations, driven by efforts to reduce health care costs by teaching people about healthy behaviors. The need for exercise and wellness programming and facilities will increase the need for workers in these areas.

Exercise and Wellness (Strength and Conditioning Specialist), BS (NHEXWSCBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Interested students should apply to the BS program in exercise and wellness.

Program Description:

The strength and conditioning specialist concentration is designed for students who want to work with active or athletic populations, including sport and tactical occupations. These students may work with high school, college or professional sports organizations in scholastic or private sports performance training facilities, with tactical sports performance clients (e.g., military, police, firefighters, EMT) in municipal or government-run facilities or with individual clients participating in more active, higher intensity-based fitness programs. Students in this concentration will be exposed to applied assessment labs and practical fieldwork to gain the knowledge they will need to be competent coaches in this field. Graduates will be prepared to sit for the Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist or the Tactical Strength and Conditioning-Facilitator examinations offered by the National Strength and Conditioning Association (<https://www.nasca.com>) at the completion of their coursework. Students interested in careers in the field of sports medicine (athletic trainers, sports physical therapists, orthopedic surgeons, etc.) may also benefit from the coursework to provide an understanding of the training programs that accompany sports participation.

Health Education and Health Promotion, BS (NHHEHPBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, ASU@Lake Havasu, Online

Program Description:

The BS in health education and health promotion provides students a pathway to become a certified health education specialist through the National Commission for Health Education Credentialing (<https://www.nchec.org/> (<https://www.nchec.org/>)). Based on a random sample of community health job advertisements (September, 2017), health professionals with the CHES credential earn up to a 47 percent higher salary than health professionals without it.

The program provides professional preparation in population-based health education, including school and community health education. Students pursuing a bachelor's degree in health education and health promotion gain foundational knowledge in health promotion program planning, implementation and evaluation as well as in certified health education specialist competencies, and they learn about specific health education strategies for effectively delivering community and school health education. Students develop an understanding of various areas addressed by certified health education specialists, including injury prevention, violence prevention, substance abuse prevention, sexual health education, emotional health education, foundations of school health education, social media and marketing in health education, nutrition, physical activity, and stress for chronic disease prevention.

Career Opportunities:

The rising cost of health care has increased the need for individuals with the skills and abilities to provide health education and health promotion programs. As health care costs continue to rise, insurance companies, employers and governments are attempting to find ways to curb costs. One of the more cost effective ways is to employ health education and health promotion professionals to teach people how to prevent disease and injury, live healthy lives and avoid costly treatments for illnesses. Health promotion professionals work in various environments based on the industry in which they are employed.

Undergraduates in this degree program often pursue careers in wellness and health promotion in such environments as:

- colleges and universities
- community health agencies
- hospitals and medical facilities
- insurance companies
- private health care organizations
- schools
- state and county health departments
- voluntary health organizations
- wellness centers
- work site wellness and health promotion

Students may also pursue further graduate study in such fields as:

- health education

- health promotion
- health psychology
- medicine and dentistry (with additional elective sciences)
- public health
- social work

Advanced degrees or certifications may be required for academic or clinical positions.

Health Sciences (Health Policy), BS (NUHSCHPBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Interested students should apply to the BS in health sciences or the BS in the science of health care delivery.

Program Description:

The BS program in health sciences is designed to provide the academic knowledge and skills to allow students to move directly into a range of employment opportunities within the health field or continue their education in discipline-specific programs. Students complete a complement of core courses that emphasize ethics, communication skills, critical thinking and cultural awareness.

The health policy program is designed for students interested in the community policy aspects of disease prevention and health promotion. The continuum of health care now spans a diverse array of health providers ranging from private practitioner offices and outpatient care centers to residential care facilities and acute care hospitals. Key to the enhancement of health care within the U.S. is the development and implementation of innovative, cost-effective and universally accessible programs. Students in this concentration are required to complete a supervised practicum, providing hands-on experience within their field of interest. Students may also wish to consider using their electives to complete a minor in nonprofit administration, which requires 15 credit hours.

International Public Health, BIPH (NHIPHBIPH)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The Bachelor of International Public Health is designed to build and strengthen the international public health workforce and includes coursework from three leading universities: ASU; the University of New South Wales, Sydney; and King's College, London. Aligned with U.S. accreditation standards in public health, the coursework teaches new approaches to emerging public health issues including health promotion, communicable disease prevention, environmental health, public health surveillance and global health management.

Students also have the opportunity to study abroad through optional faculty-led Global Intensive Experiences as well as semester, summer and spring break programs.

In their final year, students complete a capstone experience in their area of interest, which prepares them for careers in global health policy, data and informatics, quality and process improvement, and community-based care.

Kinesiology, BS (NUKINBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, ASU@Lake Havasu

Program Description:

A BS degree in kinesiology prepares students for graduate study in physical or occupational therapy, physician assistant programs, medicine and other health-related professional programs. In order to be successful in these programs, students need to have a deep understanding of how the human body works.

In kinesiology, all aspects of human function are studied, but it is done from the perspective of human movement. The curriculum provides a scientifically inclusive approach to human movement, studying mechanical, anatomical, neural, developmental, physiological and psychological mechanisms. This gives students in the program a well-rounded understanding of all aspects of human function as it pertains to movement and exercise.

Public Health, BS (NHPBHBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The BS degree program in public health teaches students to develop and apply knowledge from multiple disciplines for the promotion and protection of the health of the human population. This degree is designed to appeal to students interested in populations of people (rather than an individual's health), preparing the students with skills in the five core areas of public health, namely:

- behavior science and health education
- biostatistics
- environmental health
- epidemiology
- health services administration

The required internship component of the program (POP 444: Population Health Field Experience) allows students to gain practical experience in public health professions. Graduates typically work as public health practitioners who are competent to plan, implement, evaluate and monitor public health functions and activities in a variety of settings. They are prepared to fill various positions in public and community health as well as pursue further education through graduate study, including a master's degree in public health.

Honors - Barrett, The Honors College

Honors College, (9HOHONALL)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:*ABOUT THE COLLEGE

Barrett, The Honors College at ASU is widely visited and emulated by other colleges and universities in the U.S. and abroad as the model for honors education in the United States. Barrett stands alone in dedicated resources, size and complexity with a presence on four ASU campuses; a multimillion dollar endowment used to support honors students and their projects; and dedicated deans, faculty and staff that include seven administrators, 42 Faculty Fellows and 62 staff within the college, and more than 1,800 faculty members who teach honors students university-wide each year. Barrett represents a powerful and unique combination of the special care and attention an honors student should expect from an excellent residential liberal arts college, with the vast program choices and research mentoring resources of a vibrant Research I university. This honors community is known nationally for its number of National Merit, National Hispanic and Flinn scholars, and nationally ranked numbers of recipients of Fulbright, Truman, Goldwater, Udall and Marshall Fellowships.

In 2009, Barrett opened the nation's first comprehensive 4-year residential honors college within a top-tier Research I university. The $140 million, 9-acre honors campus in Tempe includes administrative, faculty and staff offices, as well as classrooms and residence halls for 1,700 honors students. It uniquely features a signature dining hall refectory and café, several courtyards, student lounges, activity rooms, computer labs and a community center. The 4-year residential campus in Tempe expanded to the 18-acre Vista Del Sol site across the street in 2013 and now accommodates 1,500 additional beds for upper-division honors students, the honors admissions and recruiting operations, classrooms, and community space, offices and amenities that include a theater, pool, writing center, fitness, recreation and events facilities. Honors students on the Polytechnic, West and Downtown campuses also enjoy the benefits of living in new and growing honors communities that offer academic and co-curricular experiences.

Honors faculty and staff are committed solely to enabling the best education possible for intellectually-engaged students from Arizona, America and the world.

STUDENT OPPORTUNITIES

ASU's size, number of majors, student organizations and student support services is an advantage and provides important opportunities for Honors students to engage in meaningful ways. With the largest residential college profile across all four ASU campuses, Barrett dramatically contributes to the student life of the entire university. Barrett students demonstrate leadership in the classroom, in research labs, in mentoring and tutoring other students, and in securing leadership roles in ASASU student government, Changemaker Central, Greek Life, and more than 700 student organizations, chapters and societies. Barrett students positively impact ASU and local, national and global communities through internships, service, travel and other professional development opportunities within Honors and across ASU. Barrett offers a full range of student-driven service, wellness, arts, cultural, social, entrepreneurial, professional development and sustainability programming. More recently, Barrett formed unique partnerships with Indigo and CalmCircle to provide students access to individualized personal development and well-being tools.

Popular Honors events on the Tempe campus include: Lunch with the Dean, Dinner with Faculty nights, and Ladies' Tea at the historic University Club. Honors students have opportunities to attend Tony Award-winning Broadway musicals at Gammage Theater; explore the world's only Musical Instrument Museum; round up cattle on our cattle drive; attend biweekly yoga classes; learn healthy eating habits from a certified nutritionist; and share their musical talents at monthly Open Mic Nights in Barrett's very own Burning B Café.

The Downtown Phoenix campus hosts weekly events to engage students with the culture of the community in which they reside. Popular events include B-town Attends, Mindful Tuesdays, Life Hacks, and the signature event, Red Carpet, held at a culturally significant facility such as the Phoenix Art Museum.

The Polytechnic campus is known for cutting-edge labs, innovative faculty and students who are solving real-world problems with ground-breaking applied technology and solutions. Many Honors students present their work at the end of each semester at the Ira A. Fulton Polytechnic Innovation Showcase, which is an impressive exhibition featuring many of these innovative student projects and interdisciplinary collaborations. The Barrett Honors faculty and staff at the Polytechnic campus also host unique programming such as the Fall Freshman Retreat in Prescott, Human Event Tribunals, and the annual Dinner Down the Orchard, which is a signature event for Barrett Honors students on all campuses.

West campus Barrett Honors faculty and staff host Culture Clash, an event at which students are immersed in different cultures and enjoy food, discussion and films from each unique culture. West campus students also partake in traditions like the Barrett Ball, Homecoming Carnival, and the signature event, Womyn's Collegiate Leadership Conference.

Recently, Barrett expanded its global initiatives platform to include its Distinguished Global Leader Series, global classroom, summer abroad and shorter global intensive experiences, internship and service abroad, and credit and noncredit opportunities. Great American Cities is one of the most popular travel programs; students visit cities like Boston, New York City, New Orleans, Anchorage and Miami and engage in a service project while enjoying the history, culture and great food of their destination. Other travel opportunities range from turn-around trips to Arizona monuments to overnight trips to Disneyland.

Additional Requirements:

Students must complete an application to Arizona State University before submitting a separate application to Barrett, The Honors College.

Students who have demonstrated high levels of academic achievement in high school or college may apply for admission to Barrett. Each candidate must file an application to the college separate from the ASU application, in accordance with the appropriate Barrett deadlines.

Applicants are evaluated on the basis of their academic records, their ranking within the graduating class, and their performances on the SAT or ACT. The college also values students who have special talents and aptitudes, exhibit exceptional leadership qualities, have had unusual life experiences or display significant community involvement.

The Barrett admission application and additional information about the college and its activities are available at <https://barretthonors.asu.edu> (<https://barretthonors.asu.edu>).

Integrative Sciences and Arts, College of ## Applied Biological Sciences (Applied Biological Sciences), BS (TSABSABS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS program with a concentration in applied biological sciences offers students solid foundations in biology and related sciences while allowing them to focus on an area of special interest. This concentration works well for students interested in pursuing research careers in biology or for students planning to enter graduate or professional programs related to human health including:

- biotechnology
- dentistry
- epidemiology
- medical technology
- medicine
- physical therapy
- physician's assistant programs
- public health

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 210 - Brief Calculus

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Applied Biological Sciences, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Applied Biological Sciences (Natural Resource Ecology), BS (LSABSNRBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS in applied biological sciences with a concentration in natural resource ecology is for students who are interested in sustainably managing and restoring degraded plant, soil and wildlife resources. Graduates of this degree program have the academic background and hands-on experience that allow them to work in government agencies or environmental consulting firms or enter graduate programs in the area of natural resource ecology. Range conservationists, wildlife managers and other ecologists work in a variety of ecosystems to ensure sustainability of our natural resources for future generations.

Applied Biological Sciences (Sustainable Horticulture), BS (TSABSUBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The sustainable horticulture concentration within the BS program in applied biological sciences is designed for students who want theory and practical experiences in the unique aspects of the culture of plants in an urban desert environment. Students acquire the skills to produce, design and care for ornamental and edible plantscapes using sustainable technologies.

Students are prepared for a range of horticulture careers in the private and public sectors, including in nursery plant production, landscape design and culture as well as local food production and organic urban farming.

Career Opportunities:

Horticulture is a multibillion dollar national and international enterprise that offers a diverse and exciting choice of professional careers. Graduates can pursue numerous entry-level careers in horticulture. Employment opportunities exist in private and public sectors. The sustainable horticulture concentration prepares graduates to succeed in graduate or professional schools in disciplines such as:

- aftermarket care of plants
- biology of the plants in desert cities
- care and management of trees in cities
- creation of public, community and private gardens in arid climates
- design and installation of outdoor landscapes including landscape irrigation systems
- integrated pest management
- marketing
- nursery production
- organic farming
- plant identification
- plant propagation

The general program in sustainable horticulture also prepares graduates to succeed in roles such as:

- arboretum or botanical garden manager
- city horticulturist
- city park superintendent or manager
- horticultural consultant
- horticultural plant researcher or educator
- horticulture products and supplies
- horticulture supply sales representative
- integrated pest management specialist
- interior plant specialist
- irrigation system designer or consultant
- landscape designer or contractor
- landscape services company owner or operator
- nursery plant broker and plant salesperson

- nursery production owner or manager
- organic farmer or permaculturist
- plant propagator
- urban forester, tree specialist or arborist
- urban plant ecologist

Career opportunities for urban horticulture graduates are not limited to any one geographic location; graduates can embark on careers throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico and overseas.

Applied Mathematics, BS (LSMATBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS in applied mathematics offered by the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts is a transdisciplinary program focused on developing flexible problem-solvers who can apply mathematical techniques and skills to a wide range of problems in the sciences, such as biology, social sciences, chemistry, physics and engineering.

The coursework builds a foundation in mathematical modeling, data analysis and the interpretation of mathematical results in real-world settings. Students choose electives in the sciences, technology, engineering or other areas of interest to complement and provide context for their mathematical training.

Applied Physics, BS (LSAPHYBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The acceleration of advances at the frontier between physics, engineering and technology creates a need for interdisciplinary training and research that is not readily accommodated by traditional single-focus programs in physics. Bringing fundamental physics together with its immediate applications, the BS in applied physics is attractive to students whose interests span new physical technologies in industry and engineering. The degree combines physics, computer science and applied mathematics to tackle complex real-life problems in physics, material sciences, engineering, chemistry and others.

The bachelor's degree program brings together the expertise of physics faculty, particularly in the modeling of physical systems, which relies heavily on both modern numerical techniques and fundamental physics. The growing presence of Intel and other high-tech companies in the east valley and metropolitan Phoenix presents a unique opportunity to enhance the students' interaction with industry. Given the importance of hands-on experience, the degree program offers a series of unique courses allowing students interactive involvement in a project-based environment.

Applied Quantitative Science, BS (LSAQSBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

Students learn to integrate and apply STEM supported skills that are increasingly in demand in the 21st-century.

Graduates of the BS in applied quantitative science acquire six habits of mind, mental activity that becomes increasingly automatic over progress through the curriculum and extending into career development. Students are able to:

- apply and project quantitative reasoning to unfamiliar contexts
- communicate well within and without the expert domain
- critically and adaptably think about complex problems
- effectively search through and evaluate information
- experiment creatively and in an informed manner in search of new insights
- use sophisticated insight involving statistical inference and quantitative reasoning

This program is offered as a stand-alone degree on the Polytechnic campus. Students pursuing degrees on all four metropolitan campuses can add this degree as a concurrent degree.

Applied Science (Applied Leadership), BAS (LSALSBAS)

Campus: Polytechnic, ASU@Cochise, PIMA, ASU@Pinal, ASU@The Gila Valley, ASU@Yavapai, Online

Program Description:

This BAS program prepares students for leadership positions in a wide variety of organizations and career fields. The concentration in applied leadership provides a valuable degree pathway for students with Associate of Applied Science degrees in fields such as fire science, environmental technology, machine shop technology and welding technology. Students learn leadership skills necessary to prepare them to become effective leaders in diverse environments --- applying those skills as team leaders, floor managers and shift captains.

The concentration in applied leadership focuses on the practice of innovative and effective leadership and helps students develop the skills and knowledge that leaders need to solve problems, communicate effectively, resolve conflicts, assess program effectiveness, lead projects and manage resources.

Applied Science (Technical Communication), BAS (LSTECBAS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BAS in applied science with a concentration in technical communication is a flexible degree plan designed specifically for students who have earned an AAS degree from a regionally accredited institution. This major combines the technical experience gained in the student's associate degree program with a broader education of skills in management, leadership, critical thinking and communication.

Technical communication is applied workplace communication that makes technical information understandable and available to many audiences. In the technical communication concentration, students learn how to produce, design and manage information using both traditional and developing technologies.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Counseling and Applied Psychological Science, BS (LSCAPSBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

Counseling and applied psychological science is a specialty in promoting psychological well-being. Counselors and applied psychologists provide the tools and resources necessary for individuals, families and organizations to cope with everyday problems.

The BS program in counseling and applied psychological science provides foundational training in counseling theories, addictions, trauma, lifespan development, group counseling and professional ethics. A unique aspect of the program is its attention to cultural diversity, which focuses on age, gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, religion and socioeconomic status.

Graduates may qualify for employment in behavioral health care delivery settings such as community agencies, hospitals, and rehabilitation centers to support counselors and other mental health professionals. Graduates are prepared for a variety of careers, such as behavioral health technicians, vocational rehabilitation assistants, human service workers and life-skills instructors. Graduates will not be license-eligible as professional counselors but are well-prepared to enter graduate degree programs in counseling and related fields.

Interdisciplinary Studies, BA (LSBISBIS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The ASU BA program in interdisciplinary studies, one of the top five in the country, offers students the freedom to select two areas of study, referred to as concentration areas, from a rich menu of more than 140 possibilities. Concentration checksheets are available at <https://cisa.asu.edu/interdisciplinary-studies-concentrations> (<https://cisa.asu.edu/interdisciplinary-studies-concentrations>).

The core curriculum provides students the intellectual tools to integrate their concentration areas, engage in transdisciplinary problem-solving and prepare for careers and graduate programs that increasingly cross disciplinary boundaries. An interdisciplinary studies student could choose to integrate concentrations like music and business, psychology and social welfare, communication and justice studies, public administration and ethics, digital culture and computer gaming, or many other unique combinations.

Interdisciplinary studies is an approach to answering questions, solving problems and addressing contemporary social issues from multiple perspectives. Interdisciplinary studies students take an active role in designing their educational plans and defining their career goals. The degree emphasizes written communication, versatility, self-assessment and critical thinking --- essential skills for today's dynamic world.

Those interested in the online program for interdisciplinary studies may visit the ASU Online website for more information.

Political Science, BS (LSPOLBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BS in political science gives students the background and skills to gain employment in a relevant profession, to continue their studies in graduate programs in political science or in the social sciences, or to pursue a particular discipline at a professional school. The program helps students understand the assumptions underlying political science and develop the research skills to analyze complex socio-political issues. Those objectives are accomplished by offering a flexible program and by providing students with both individual and group experiences, working with faculty on concrete intellectual and policy issues.

Additional Program Fee: N

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Integrative Social Science, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Career Opportunities:

The program serves as good preparation for staff, manager or policy analyst positions in local, state and federal government. This degree is recognized by employers as qualification for many careers in business (for-profit and nonprofit) and industry. Opportunities may include positions that involve binational, crossborder positions linking U.S. and Mexican businesses, Arizona-Sonora local government or local community groups on both sides of the border.

Many students use the degree as a gateway to law school or as a basis for further study in such applied fields as:

- community development
- political science
- public administration
- public policy
- social science
- urban affairs
- urban and regional planning

Psychology, BA (LSPGSBA)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

Psychology is the scientific study of mind and behavior. The BA program in psychology emphasizes critical thinking, empirical research methods and writing. It adds practical experience through internships, service-learning and faculty-supervised research. The Bachelor of Arts provides a broad foundation in psychology and affords students the flexibility to choose from a variety of courses outside the major. The bachelor's degree program prepares students for employment or preparation for graduate study in applied psychology and related fields (e.g., social work, counseling and management).

Science, Technology and Society, BS (ECSTSBS)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

Questions surrounding the interaction of science, technology and human systems are highly transdisciplinary and cultural, requiring analytical techniques that transcend space and time. Thus, the BS program in science, technology and society stresses the need to step outside both disciplinary and cultural boxes in pursuit of knowledge. Accordingly, the program is heavy on cultural and information literacy and critical thinking. The primary goal is to produce generalists who understand the intricate interrelationship of science, technology and society and who are armed with the technical skills to change their environment. The following three tracks are available:

- general science, technology and society
- global technology and development
- science, technology and governance

Students may use the general science, technology and society track to design targeted programs of their choosing, including premed and prelaw.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Polytechnic campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Career Opportunities:

The bachelor's degree program in science, technology and society prepares professionals and scholars for careers in the 21st-century world focusing primarily, but not exclusively, on the interaction of science and technology with human systems. The program focuses on the development of the technical skills required to audit social, political and policy impacts of technological advancement and the competence required to navigate questions surrounding the future trajectory of science and technology. Graduates are prepared for graduate or professional study, or professional careers as:

- commercial and industrial designers
- compliance managers
- environmental restoration planners
- public relations specialists
- recycling coordinators
- regulatory affairs specialists
- sales representatives (wholesale, manufacturing, technical, scientific products)
- sustainability specialists
- training and development specialists
- transportation planners

Technical Communication, BS (LSTECBS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

Technical communication is applied workplace communication that makes technical or specialized information understandable and available to many different users. It involves using a range of technologies to craft an ever-expanding array of print and digital information products: websites, social media sites, help files, training materials, grants and proposals, and information graphics, to name just a few. Technical communicators work in many professional roles, such as information developers, grant writers, Web interface designers or usability experts. What all of these roles have in common is the focus on creating accessible and appealing communication that has a practical purpose and is intended for a particular audience. In the technical communication program, students learn how to write, design, produce and manage print and digital information using traditional and developing technologies.

The BS degree program in technical communication in the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts is the only undergraduate technical communication degree program available in the state of Arizona.

Those interested in the technical communication online program may visit the ASU Online website for more information.

Technical Communication (User Experience), BS (LSTECUBS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Online

Program Description:

The user experience concentration is designed to provide technical communication majors with an interdisciplinary foundation in communication, research and design that is central to the rapidly growing area of user experience. The user experience concentration provides students with a conceptual understanding and applied skills in methods of gathering user information, analyzing data and communicating research findings to stakeholders. Although its disciplinary home and primary focus is technical communication, the concentration includes courses from human systems engineering and graphic information technology in order to provide students with the multiple perspectives and complementary skills needed for user experience work.

Interdisciplinary Arts & Sciences, New College of ### Applied Computing, BS (ASACOBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

Students in the BS program in applied computing learn a computer science foundation and then explore the established knowledge and emerging developments in the high-demand areas of database systems, computer networks and cybersecurity. The program also provides the opportunity to investigate interdisciplinary connections, including the combination of computing with its real-world application in other disciplines through concurrent degrees and minors. Hands-on class projects, internships, industry partnerships and authentic and impactful research conducted with faculty provide numerous opportunities for students to apply their knowledge before they graduate. Students use their programming expertise, systems knowledge and critical-thinking skills to effectively problem-solve and articulate their experience through presentations, scientific posters and professional papers.

With the depth of knowledge and experience in databases, networks and cybersecurity, graduates have a strong foundation in systems with established interconnections among these fields, preparing them for graduate study and careers that include cybersecurity analysts, database architects and network engineers.

Applied Computing (Cybersecurity), BS (ASACOCBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The cybersecurity concentration is designed to prepare students for a continuing and progressive career in cybersecurity. The innovative cybersecurity concentration builds upon the BS program in applied computing. Students acquire the technical knowledge to secure networks and applications, an understanding of cybersecurity governance models and risk-management fundamentals, methods of communicating complex risk issues, and solutions for the challenges of implementing cybersecurity controls within various organizational models. Leadership, critical thinking and effective communication also are emphasized.

Students gain experience with real-world cybersecurity organizations, protecting digital assets against compromise or theft. Graduates of the applied computing program with a concentration in cybersecurity are well prepared for graduate study as well as entry-level employment with businesses, nonprofits, government agencies and academic institutions.

Applied Mathematics, BS (ASMATBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The School of Mathematical and Natural Sciences offers a BS degree in applied mathematics in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at ASU's West campus.

Applied mathematics is an interdisciplinary program that provides a broad and rigorous foundation in applied mathematics. It includes a foundation in computing and statistics as well as both theoretical and applied mathematics.

The program emphasizes quantitative problem-solving and critical thinking through courses that expose students to a variety of mathematical theories, techniques and applications currently used by analysts and researchers in government, industry and nonprofit organizations.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. ## Applied Science, BAS (ASBASBAS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BAS is for students who have already earned a community college AAS degree. The program allows students to apply the technical knowledge gained from their associate degree and significantly broaden their education through completion of a concentration of their design that expands on the coursework completed in their AAS or by creating a new concentration in a different area of study.

The program includes a unique, personalized area of concentration tailored to the student's individual interests and career goals. The possibilities include but are not limited to applied computing, applied ethics, biology, biomedical research, business, conflict resolution, communication, creative writing, cybersecurity, English, environmental science, film and video studies, forensic psychology, forensic science, interdisciplinary arts and performance, risk communication, peace studies, political science, psychology, Spanish and statistics. The program also includes an internship experience.

Students who have earned an Associate of Applied Science degree from a regionally accredited Arizona community college may be eligible to transfer up to 75 credits toward the Bachelor of Applied Science degree. Students who have earned an Associate of Applied Science from an accredited institution may transfer 60 credit hours toward the Bachelor of Applied Science degree.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Biology, BA (ASLSCBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BA program in biology, with an emphasis in the natural sciences, examines the interdisciplinary nature of the life and physical sciences, focusing on the ways in which these disciplines intersect. The program's organization and flexibility allows students to simultaneously study another subject outside their major. Students are encouraged to add a minor or concurrent degree in another subject area.

Students gain hands-on experience as they work both in small groups and one-on-one with individual faculty members. Students may participate in cutting-edge scientific research by assisting in faculty research laboratories or even publish in top journals and present their results at regional and national scientific meetings.

Graduates are prepared for entry-level jobs in research, with nonprofit, education and outreach organizations or for other roles in the life sciences. Graduates are also prepared for related graduate programs.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Biology, BS (ASLSCBS)

Campus: West, ASU@Lake Havasu

Program Description:

The BS program in biology, with an emphasis in the natural sciences, examines these disciplines through experiential learning, and all of the program's core courses include laboratories. By learning in an integrative environment that emphasizes the connectedness of the life sciences, students gain a better understanding of larger scientific concepts and can view these concepts from multiple perspectives.

Students are encouraged to conduct independent research under the mentorship of faculty members or during internships. Some even publish in top journals and present their results at scientific meetings.

Graduates are prepared for employment with state and federal agencies or private organizations such as biomedical laboratories and environmental consultancies, or to enter graduate or doctoral programs in human or veterinary medicine, pharmacy, dentistry or scientific research.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. - business
- laboratory or field research
- medicine
- publishing
- scientific journalism
- teaching

Undergraduate laboratory experience, both on and off campus, enhances employability as a laboratory technician or research associate in university and government research laboratories; in hospital and diagnostic laboratories; and in pharmaceutical, biotechnology, agricultural and food processing companies.

Students engaged in field studies are prepared for entry-level positions in private companies and state and federal agencies (e.g., wildlife biologist, environmental consultant or conservation officer).

Biology (Environmental Science), BS (ASLSCEBS)*Campus: West, ASU@Lake Havasu

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Please explore Degree Search for other similar program options.

Program Description:

The BS program in biology with a concentration in environmental science emphasizes experiential learning with courses that include required laboratories. By learning in an integrative environment that underscores the connectedness of these disciplines, students gain a better understanding of larger scientific concepts and they view these concepts from multiple perspectives. Students pursuing this concentration take a set of courses that focus more on environmental science than those pursuing a Bachelor of Science in biology.

While the emphasis is on science, students learn to approach environmental science from an interdisciplinary perspective, in part by studying environmental ethics and policy.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Career Opportunities:

According to the 2010-2011 Occupational Outlook Handbook (U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2010), employment of environmental scientists is expected to grow by 28 percent between 2008 and 2018. This is far more rapid growth than the average rate of growth for all occupations. The handbook indicates most rapid growth will occur in the private sector, primarily in private environmental consulting firms.

This concentration allows students to tailor their courses of study to their interests in the science of the environment to help prepare them for careers in the public and private sectors (e.g., environmental consulting, environmental remediation, natural resource management) and entry into graduate programs in environmental science and related disciplines.

Biology (Forensics), BS (ASLSCFBS)

Campus: West

ASU is no longer accepting new students to this program. Students interested in this program should apply to the BS in forensic science.

Program Description:

The forensics concentration of the BS program in biology emphasizes the study of scientific techniques used to solve crimes. Students pursuing the forensics concentration take a more forensics-relevant set of courses than those students pursuing the BS in biology.

Much of the required coursework is completed in chemistry or biology lab science courses to ensure that graduates of this program are competitive as they apply to graduate degree programs, pursue relevant careers and enter the workforce.

Graduates are prepared to pursue careers in forensics laboratories and in the research and development of new criminal forensic technologies. Completion of the bachelor's degree in biology also ensures graduates are prepared for graduate, professional or medical degree programs.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. #### Career Opportunities:

Graduates of this program pursue careers in forensics laboratories and in the research and development of new technologies in forensics. Graduates are particularly competitive for positions in forensics laboratories because the concentration focuses heavily on chemistry and biology laboratory coursework (areas that administrators and current employees in crime labs have reported are critically important). For example, as reliance upon DNA fingerprinting technologies increases, demand for forensic scientists trained in the requisite amounts of molecular biology will increase. The concentration also places focus on oral communication skills (e.g., through coursework in argumentation, COM 222 Argumentation (3) or COM 422 Advanced Argumentation (3)), which will prepare graduates for the multifaceted aspects of their careers in forensics (e.g., providing articulate and compelling expert testimony in criminal trials). Graduates of this program are also well positioned to enter graduate programs in forensic science.

Biology (Pharmacology/Toxicology), BS (ASLSCPBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The pharmacology and toxicology concentration of the BS program in biology provides an emphasis in the biochemical, molecular and physiological components of drug and body interactions. The degree program emphasizes experiential learning, and all required core courses have laboratories. By learning in an integrative environment that emphasizes the connectedness of the disciplines, students gain a better understanding of larger scientific concepts and they can view these concepts from multiple perspectives. To have a thorough understanding of the interactions of chemicals in the biological system, students study both biology and chemistry and become familiar with chemical interactions at physiological, molecular and cellular levels. Undergraduates have the opportunity to conduct independent research under the mentorship of faculty members or in internships outside the school.

Biotechnology and Bioenterprise, BS (ASBITEBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BS program in biotechnology and bioenterprise provides students with essential transdisciplinary and practical experience in biotechnology research. Students acquire the associated business and entrepreneurship skills needed to develop and market biotechnological innovations and solutions to problems facing the biotechnology and health sciences communities in Arizona, the nation and beyond.

The program emphasizes coursework in the biological, biomolecular and biotechnological sciences, which are key components that underpin biotechnology. Students can tailor the degree to their specific interests and aspirations through focus areas in biotechnology, bioentrepreneurship and biostatistics. The program is unique due to its focus on blending biotechnology and entrepreneurship.

Communication, BA (ASCOMMBA)

Campus: West, ASU@Lake Havasu

Program Description:

The BA program in communication offered at ASU's West campus is a broad-based program that trains individuals to speak and write competently, manage relationships well, problem-solve effectively and understand the role and function of communication in public forums, organizational settings, relational exchanges and intercultural situations.

The curriculum provides an extensive understanding of the practical, theoretical and professional nuances of today's field of communication. Utilizing the nationally recognized CommLabASU, students perform in-depth study of what contributes to and detracts from effective human communication, recognizing that the art of communication is far more nuanced than simple speaking and writing prowess.

Students may pursue one or more focus areas to amplify their academic and professional preparation in specific contexts, including public relations, risk and strategic communication; media, culture and social technology; communication training and mentoring; sport communication; and dialogue, relationships and communities.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. The Bachelor of Arts in communication prepares students for careers in social media and technology, global communication, public relations and strategic communications, risk and crisis communication, communication training, and mentoring, sport communication and communication philosophy. Because communication skills are crucial to many professions, graduates work in a variety of fields, including:

- advertising
- customer service and customer relations
- education
- fundraising
- health and human services
- human resources
- international service
- legal professions
- lobbying
- management
- marketing

Computational Forensics, BS (ASCPFBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BS in computational forensics is a multidisciplinary degree program that encompasses areas of physical, biological and social sciences, with an additional focus on statistics and computation.

Students investigate specific forensic problems using statistics, computing and mathematics, with the main goal of advancing their forensic science knowledge and capabilities. Students study and develop the quantitative and computational methods that assist basic and applied research efforts in forensic science, establish or prove scientific basis in investigative procedures, and support forensic examiner casework. Through modeling, computer simulations and computer-based analysis and recognition, students gain an in-depth understanding of the forensic science discipline, the scientific method and the systematic approach to forensic science.

Disability Studies, BA (ASDISASBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BA program in disability studies explores historical, linguistic, social, artistic and legal dimensions of disability with the goal of improving the conditions of people whose lives are touched by disabilities.

With larger numbers of disabled people and disciplines focused on social justice, the new model for disability studies is that of empowerment rather than fixing a deficit. The curriculum combines theory and practice that prepare students to address injustices, exclusions and misapprehensions regarding disabilities through advocacy and self-advocacy, education, knowledge of the law, and historical awareness.

Students in this major develop a professional-level digital portfolio of research in preparation for the job market.

English, BA (ASENGBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

Students in the BA program in English learn how to write clearly and effectively, to think critically and to construct well-supported arguments.

The program stresses the formal aesthetic qualities of texts and the issues of class, gender, race and ethnicity relating to literary representation. Students gain a familiarity with standard literary-critical terminology and an awareness of various theoretical approaches to literary study. Students also become aware of uses of the English language in the U.S. and around the world.

The program provides students with a balanced overview of major literature in the English language and an awareness of the role of literary discourse in broader social and historical contexts.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Environmental Science, BA (ASENVBA)

Campus: West, ASU@Lake Havasu

Program Description:

The study of society's impact on the earth's ecosystems and resources has become increasingly important over the past 20 years. The BA program in environmental science at ASU's West campus is dedicated to finding solutions to the challenges posed by climate change.

As technology evolves at a dizzying pace and the global population grows each year, the measurement of the human race's impact on our environment has created many new jobs and career paths. Environmental basics are required, ensuring that students are well-versed in biological study including molecular, organismal and ecosystem biology. This is backed by a strong foundation in chemistry, statistics and geographic information systems.

Because environmental science is a versatile and multifaceted field, ASU supplements this degree with a focus on the management and communication skills necessary in various environmentally-specific careers.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Forensic Science, BS (ASFOREBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

Forensic science is the study and application of scientific methods to matters of law. The BS program in forensic science emphasizes laboratory coursework in chemistry and biology as both areas provide essential experience with techniques commonly used in crime labs. Rigorous coursework in the natural and mathematical sciences is required to ensure graduates are competitive in the workforce. The program is enhanced by a focus on oral communication skills that help prepare graduates for the multifaceted, transdisciplinary aspects of careers in forensic science, such as providing articulate expert witness testimony.

If a student is interested in pursuing a career as a forensic DNA analyst, nine cumulative hours of coursework in biochemistry, molecular biology and genetics are required, and coursework in population genetics is desirable. Students should note that the addition of these courses to the academic program may mean the student would have more than 120 credit hours. Employers may require documentation for completed coursework, such as an official course syllabus.

Forensic science students may apply for and participate in internships sponsored by metropolitan Phoenix area crime labs or other crime labs around the country. Internships are competitive, and the application process takes time. Generally, fall semester internships require application in the spring semester prior, and spring or summer semester internships require application by the start of the preceding fall semester. Internship positions are unpaid and require concurrent enrollment in FOR 484 Internship. Also, students must have a faculty mentor and abide by all internship standards of the school and those of the organization providing the internship. Students may also participate in cutting-edge research with a faculty mentor either as a volunteer in the faculty member's lab or by registering for FOR 499 Individualized Instruction. For more information, students should see an academic advisor.

Job applicants and students seeking a volunteer or internship position within a crime lab are required to undergo an extensive background check that includes a polygraph exam, fingerprinting and drug testing. Actions that can disqualify an applicant include recent or past illicit drug use (including marijuana), felony convictions and drunk driving convictions.

Career Opportunities:

Scientific and technological advances in the field of forensic science, as well as continually increasing caseloads in law enforcement, are projected to increase the number of forensic science technicians needed over the next decade. The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that between 2016 and 2026, employment of forensic science technicians will increase 17 percent, an average increase much greater than most occupations.

Forensic science program graduates are prepared to enter the workforce with crime labs and private forensic science labs at the local, state and federal levels. Graduates also are prepared for graduate programs in forensic science, law school, medical school and related fields.

Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences, BA (ASIASBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

Today's employment landscape is evolving into one that prizes expertise in an increasing number of specialized fields. The BA program in interdisciplinary arts and sciences at ASU's West campus allows students to build a flexible, customized degree that is unique to their specific career goals. For example, a business degree with an emphasis in communications can lead to employment opportunities that aren't as easily accessed by a traditional business degree alone.

By providing the opportunity to combine disciplines, the college equips students with the specialized education they need to reach their individual career goals.

This degree program culminates in a capstone internship experience that provides real-world perspective, skills and connections, creating versatile graduates and attractive job applicants in the corporate world.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. ## Pharmacology and Toxicology, BS (ASPTXBS)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The human body comes into contact with countless chemicals and drugs during the course of a lifetime. The study of how these foreign materials react with our bodies has been an intense and enduring venture that has yielded astounding breakthroughs and contributions to the medical community.

The West campus of Arizona State University is proud to be part of that venture, offering the BS program in pharmacology and toxicology. To have a thorough understanding of the interactions of chemicals in the biological system, students in the program study both biology and chemistry, and become familiar with chemical interactions at physiological, molecular and cellular levels.

With a heavy focus on experiential learning within the laboratory, graduates of the pharmacology and toxicology degree program are better prepared to obtain careers ranging from clinical research coordinators to veterinarians to even governmental roles.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Psychology is the scientific study of human behavior. This diverse field includes mental health and counseling as well as child development, neuroscience and brain function, memory and decision-making, behavior analysis, statistics and more. It also crosses over into other disciplines such as medicine, law, business and economics.

This BA program in psychology --- which emphasizes critical thinking and reasoning, quantitative research methods and writing --- goes beyond the classroom, adding practical experiences through internships, service-learning and faculty-supervised research. (Some opportunities are not available to students enrolled in the degree offered through ASU Online.)

Graduates are prepared for graduate programs in psychology or other areas as well as professional employment.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Students should click the link for more information and eligibility requirements of the WUE program (<https://admission.asu.edu/wue>).

Psychology, BS (ASPGSBS)

Campus: West, ASU@Lake Havasu, Online

Program Description:

Psychology is the scientific study of human behavior. This diverse field includes mental health and counseling as well as child development, neuroscience and brain function, memory and decision-making, behavior analysis, statistics and crosses into other disciplines such as medicine, law, business and economics.

Emphasizing critical thinking and reasoning, and quantitative research methods and writing, this BS program in psychology goes beyond the classroom with practical experiences through internships, service-learning and faculty-supervised research. (Some opportunities are not available to students enrolled in the degree offered through ASU Online.)

The Bachelor of Science degree differs from the BA in that it requires two additional lab courses and advanced statistical training, providing a greater depth of knowledge in the biological and neuroscientific aspects of psychology that are increasingly important both for research and for clinical practice. The advanced statistical training further prepares students for careers and graduate training involving psychological research, clinical research and legal policy research.

Psychology (Forensic Psychology), BA (ASPGSFPBA)

Campus: West, Online

Program Description:

Forensic psychology is the application of psychology to the law. The concentration in forensic psychology within the BA program in psychology combines general training in psychology with specialized coursework in criminal law, criminal behavior, the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders, and legal decision-making.

When courts are faced with cases in which a psychology-related question arises, they may turn to psychologists and ask for help with the case. For example, psychologists might assist the court in understanding a criminal's mental state at the time of a crime or whether a particular jury might have been biased against a defendant based on his or her race. This is the realm of forensic psychology.

This program teaches students about the various roles for psychologists in the legal system and helps them discover which roles they might like to pursue through careers in mental health, criminal justice or through graduate training.

The BS degree differs from the Bachelor of Arts in that it requires two additional lab science courses.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Social and Behavioral Sciences, BA (ASSBSBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The curriculum of the BA program in social and behavioral sciences provides an understanding of assumptions underlying the social and behavioral sciences, develops students' research skills for analysis of complex social issues, offers a flexible program tailored to the career goals of the individual student, and offers individual and group experiences in working with faculty on concrete intellectual and policy issues.

The core courses provide students with a background suitable to helping them better understand psychological and social principles related to the behavior of individuals across multiple social contexts and institutions (e.g., family, community, society and culture).

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. Career Opportunities:

The interdisciplinary degree is an excellent option that matches the individual's interests and fulfills many employers' expectations of a bachelor's degree, namely that it should expose the student to a variety of outlooks and challenges.

Such a degree is competitive in most situations in which the disciplinary social and behavioral degrees are accepted, and it is advantageous when seeking entry to broad professional programs such as regional planning or urban studies.

This degree provides a solid background in social sciences and methodologies that prepares students for graduate work in community development, counseling, criminal justice, professional schools (e.g., law, public administration, social work), public policy, social science disciplines and urban studies or planning.

Other careers include:

- border patrol officer
- community developer
- customer services manager
- housing specialist
- human Relations Officer
- immigration advocate
- lawyer
- lobbyist
- mediator
- nonprofit manager
- social sciences professor
- social services case worker

Social and Cultural Analysis (American Studies), BA (ASSCAASBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BA program in social and cultural analysis with a concentration in American studies engages in the transdisciplinary and comparative study of the United States as a cultural and political site of ongoing change and conflict.

Students learn diverse methods of analyzing nationalist politics, public and private cultural practices, transnationalism, and the nation-making processes of migration, in keeping with the creative and critical scholarship of the discipline. The curriculum also brings attention to identity formations around gender, sexuality, race and ethnicity.

As a transdisciplinary field, American studies unites the social sciences, the humanities and the arts to stimulate students into engaging in rigorous and adventurous conversations about American culture, politics and history. Students explore knowledge beyond disciplinary boundaries by bringing differing perspectives and understandings into dialogue with one another and generating a unique level of intellectual rigor and excitement.

Social and Cultural Analysis (Ethnicity, Race and Indigenous Studies), BA (ASSCAERBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BA program in social and cultural analysis with a concentration in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies combines transdisciplinary topics and methods to critically analyze relationships among individuals, groups, institutions, governments, economies and environments.

The program enriches the study of individual racialized and indigenous groups by drawing upon theories, methods and pedagogies in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies while engaging complementary fields of literature, history, sociology, oral history, sexuality, queer studies, social justice and transnational and cultural studies. Coursework grounds the students in a deep understanding of the particular historical, social, economic, cultural and political experiences of individual racialized groups as well as in an analysis of the relationships among them.

Social and Cultural Analysis (Queer and Sexuality Studies), BA (ASSCAQSBA)

Campus: West

Program Description:

The BA program in social and cultural analysis with a concentration in queer and sexuality studies combines transdisciplinary topics and methods to critically analyze the function of ideologies of sexuality, the history and present conditions of sexual identity formation, structural inequalities and queer resistance to those same inequalities, and the diversity of LGBTQA communities.

Drawing from the premise that sex, gender and sexual orientation are both private experiences as well as profoundly political and public issues with important legal, social and cultural implications, the intellectual core of this program draws from theories, methods and pedagogies in queer theory and sexuality studies while engaging complementary fields of social justice, cultural studies, women's studies, gender studies, literature, history, sociology, psychology and transnational studies. Areas of emphasis include sexuality in culture, transnational queer studies, queer social movements and resistance, sexual fluidity, trans studies and critical heterosexualities.

Risk is a part of daily life and wherever there is risk, there are opportunities for actuarial intervention. Many actuaries work with insurance companies to calculate premiums, determine reserves needed to ensure an organization's financial health and to ensure organizations conform to stringent, complex legal mandates. Others help companies to establish retirement plans or are employed as consultants. With a Bachelor of Science degree in actuarial science, students acquire skills that are transferable to any industry and any organization that requires risk modeling and management, including:

- colleges and universities
- consulting firms
- energy, such as utilities, oil and gas
- environment (on issues such as climate change and the financial impact or risk of extreme events)
- financial services, such as banking and investment management
- government agencies such as Social Security, the Department of Labor and Medicare (to manage social programs and to develop regulations and legislation)
- insurance companies
- retirement and pensions
- transportation, such as shipping and air travel

Students can also apply the advanced problem-solving skills learned in the actuarial science undergraduate program to a variety of other professional careers, including:

- analysts
- business operations specialists
- consultants
- teachers

Career Opportunities:

Graduates of the American Indian studies program are qualified to fill positions at the tribal, state and federal government levels and in the private sector. Graduates can advance to graduate school or can pursue professional careers in fields such as government service or public service. For example, federally and tribally operated schools located in remote areas within Indian Country have high turnover rates for both teachers and staff. American Indian studies graduates should be available to help fill these positions. Furthermore, the federal government, a major employer on many reservations across the country, is in need of qualified people who are knowledgeable in Indian cultures, laws and policies. Additionally, many American Indian nations' economies and infrastructures are developing at a rapid pace, and they are in continuous need to fill mid-management and management-level positions.

Graduates find positions in many areas, such as:

- community action work
- public administration (tribal or state relations, nonprofit management, education administration, planner)
- public health
- the arts
- tribal employment (political office, tribal management, cultural resource programming, grant writer, cultural specialist, youth services)

This program also provides suitable preparation for graduate study or law school.

Anthropology, BA (LAASBBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

A BA in anthropology lies at the cross-section between complex reasoning, the collection and analysis of data, and pure human ingenuity.

In this degree program students learn how to use the scientific method to formulate and test hypotheses and gather qualitative and quantitative data through participant observation, interviewing, ethnographic study, careful excavation and measurement. They also learn how to employ statistics to analyze and extract meaning from data.

A special feature of the ASU anthropology program is its relevance to other disciplines and many exciting hands-on learning opportunities in laboratories and through study abroad and field-based courses.

Using skills gained through this program, graduates discover rewarding career paths and new avenues of public understanding in everything from humankind's historical origins to modern sociocultural intricacies.

As the many spheres of human interaction expand globally, people trained in anthropology are increasingly sought for their broad, holistic knowledge and perspectives, which are the hallmarks of anthropology.

Some career opportunities include:

- acting as legal advocates in international cases
- analyzing and proposing policies
- conducting postgraduate academic research
- consulting for private and public organizations

- curating cultural resources
- directing nonprofit organizations
- directing programs in the private or public sector
- managing culture or heritage resources in private or public sectors
- modeling infectious diseases
- planning communities
- providing healthcare as nurses, doctors or public or global health professionals
- teaching

Anthropology, BS (LAASBBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Anthropology is the study of how and why humans evolved and how our evolutionary biological, social and cultural trajectories help us understand the meaning of being human in past, present and future environments. The Bachelor's of Arts program in anthropology gives students an opportunity to master anthropological or anthropologically relevant knowledge and skills through applications of the scientific method and quantitative methodologies.

In core and elective courses, the bachelor's degree program in anthropology allows students to explore problems that may require the use of theories and methods from diverse disciplines, including biology, global health, applied mathematics, psychology, economics, sociology, medicine, law and engineering. The curriculum provides many exciting, hands-on learning opportunities through laboratories, study abroad and field-based courses.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 251 - Calculus for Life Sciences

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=LAASBBS~null + &college=CLA>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

The demand in the job market for people with an anthropology background is stimulated by a growing need for researchers and analysts with keen thinking skills who can manage, evaluate and interpret large amounts of data. As the many spheres of human interaction expand globally, people trained in anthropology will increasingly be sought for their broad, holistic knowledge and perspective, which are the hallmarks of anthropology. Some career opportunities include:

- acting as legal advocates in international cases

Applied Mathematics for Life and Social Sciences, BS (LAAMLBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS in applied mathematics for the life and social sciences offers a challenging and exciting curriculum that investigates and integrates complex areas of the physical, life and social sciences while preparing a new generation skilled in the use of theories and techniques such as mathematical modeling and computational methods to solve practical real-world problems.

The program focuses on the development of critical-thinking skills and purposeful competencies in mathematics. It instills an appreciation for the contributions of mathematics to the fields of sciences, engineering, business, government and economics. Coursework is directed toward an understanding of mathematical theory and its relation to other fields of studies. Emphasis is placed on precision of definition, reasoning to accurate conclusions, and analyzing and developing solutions to problems using mathematical principles.

Career Opportunities:

The bachelor's degree program in applied mathematics for the life and social sciences prepares students to enter the environmental, life, health, mathematical and social science fields. Graduates of the program possess the quantitative, scientific and analytical skills that are critical for professionals working in these areas.

The need for scientists and professionals quantitatively trained in the life and social sciences is strong in Arizona and the nation. This degree's applied use of mathematics, modeling, statistics and simulation methodologies are in high demand and provide excellent training for future academics and professionals in industries including:

- astrophysics
- biostatistics
- chemical engineering
- communications
- computational biology
- computer animation
- data mining
- demography
- digital and medical imaging
- e-commerce
- education
- forensics
- genomics
- informatics and complex systems research

Asian Languages (Chinese), BA (LACHIBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA program in Asian languages with a concentration in Chinese emphasizes proficiency in reading, writing and speaking Mandarin and in reading classical Chinese. Students gain an in-depth understanding of the fundamentals of the rich Chinese cultural tradition, centered on primary Chinese texts (in Chinese and in English translation) from the literary, intellectual and religious cultures of Chinese-speaking societies. These texts include visual and written materials on a variety of topics, including:

- history
- linguistics
- literary theory
- media
- philosophy
- religion
- urban culture

Highly-motivated students interested in learning Chinese to professional-level proficiency are encouraged to inquire about the Chinese Language Flagship Program: <https://international.clas.asu.edu/chineseflagship> (<https://international.clas.asu.edu/chineseflagship>). All students with higher levels of linguistic competency may enroll in targeted courses (conducted in Chinese) offered as part of the Chinese flagship track.

Biochemistry, BA (LABCHBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA program in biochemistry provides students with a course of study in the chemical processes of living organisms. Among the endeavors that depend upon a thorough grounding in this area are discoveries of new drugs, the recognition and control of new pathogens, development of new catalysts for energy transformations, and the production of new materials and solutions to problems such as food production and environmental remediation.

This program is a flexible option for students interested in a liberal arts degree with a strong grounding in physical science. It is ideal for students seeking to complete two degrees. Students wishing to pursue a scientific graduate degree should consider the BS in biochemistry.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Biological Sciences, BS (LABSCBS)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The life sciences delve into the basic organization and processes of life (microbes, plants and animals) at scales ranging from molecules to ecosystems and in time from picoseconds to millennia. This includes investigations into how hereditary information is transferred and organisms evolve, the interplay of organisms and their environments, and how these factors interact in health and disease. Students interested in a degree in life sciences can opt for a BS in biological sciences or choose one of five concentrations:

- biology and society
- biomedical sciences
- conservation biology and ecology
- genetics, cell and developmental biology
- neurobiology, physiology and behavior

This program is available as an accelerated degree program: <https://sols.asu.edu/degree-programs/accelerated-bachelor-master-science> (<https://sols.asu.edu/degree-programs/accelerated-bachelor-master-science>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 251 - Calculus for Life Sciences

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with Secondary Education, BAE

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

- Biology (Biology and Society), MS
- Biology, MS

Microbiology, MS

Molecular and Cellular Biology, MS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

Career Opportunities:

The biological sciences major with no concentration is designed for students who are committed to studying and training in multiple disciplines in biology and students who want to get more exposure to the life sciences before deciding whether they want to declare a concentration as an undergraduate. Therefore, students in this major take core courses from several concentrations. Students in this major have more flexibility to customize their program of study so they can focus on their own area of interest that may not have a concentration, such as plant biology or genomics.

The biological science major provides an excellent foundation for graduate study as well as preparation for professional schooling in:

- dentistry
- medicine
- pharmacy
- veterinary medicine

Graduates may enter positions in:

- biotechnology
- education
- government
- industry

Biological Sciences (Biology and Society), BS (LABSCSBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in biological sciences with a concentration in biology and society focuses on training biology students to understand the social context of their science, to ask how and why a biological problem has been and should be studied. Students explore the ways in which policy decisions shape and are shaped by biological research and they investigate the meaning and significance of the life sciences in understanding our complex world.

The biology and society curriculum is highly individualized. This unique degree is home to world-class researchers and teachers in diverse fields, including bioscience ethics, history and philosophy of science, science communication, science education and science policy, all brought together under one program. Students have the opportunity to work with many renowned scholars in independent study and research projects.

Career Opportunities:

Biology and society students gain the historical, philosophical, political and ethical perspectives needed to explore interactions between the life sciences and related, complex human issues. As a result, the program contributes to better informed and more effective teachers, writers, policymakers, clinicians and researchers in areas related to biology, medicine and society.

As a result of the individualized, skill-based curriculum, biology and society majors are eligible for a broad range of career options. Most graduates have chosen to pursue professional degrees in medicine, law, public health or public policy, or graduate study in biology, ethics, education or history and philosophy of science. Our graduates enter the workforce, whether in academia, industry, government or clinical practice, with a deep sensitivity to the complexity of biology in society and the skill to navigate that complexity throughout their careers.

Biological Sciences (Biomedical Sciences), BS (LABSCMBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The biomedical sciences concentration serves students in the biological sciences BS degree program who wish to pursue careers in medicine, other health professions or biomedical research in academic, clinical or industry settings. The curriculum aligns with the broad scientific competencies recommended for premed students in a report of the American Medical Colleges and the Howard Hughes Medical Committee and reflected in the 2015 changes to the MCAT.

Coursework draws from the school's concentration in genetics, cell and developmental biology and the concentration in neurobiology, physiology and behavior, with the addition of courses in biology and in medicine and society. The concentration focuses on chemistry, biochemistry, math and physics coursework that is necessary to prepare students for the MCAT or medical school admissions. The concentration emphasizes core concepts, competencies and critical intellectual skills necessary to succeed in medical school or biomedical research.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates are well-equipped to enter into careers as research scientists or as scientists in the health professions, having met the majority of prerequisite requirements and mastered many of the competencies valued by graduate programs in medical, dental and optometry fields or programs which prepare students to be physician assistants or physical therapists. Additionally, graduates of this program have an understanding of the process of science, preparing them for a career in research. They have knowledge of foundational concepts in biological sciences, chemistry, physics and statistics and the ability to understand and apply core biomedical concepts. This prepares them for entry into biology research in a vast number of areas, some of which include genetics, genomics, evolution, physiology and immunology.

Biological Sciences (Conservation Biology and Ecology), BS (LABSCCBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Ecology is the study of the distribution and abundance of organisms, the interactions among organisms, and the interactions between organisms and the physical environment. Conservation biology is an applied science based on ecological principles that focuses on conserving biological diversity and on restoring degraded ecosystems. Arizona State University is committed to a more sustainable world, and sharing knowledge of conservation biology and ecology through the BS program in biological sciences with a concentration in conservation biology and ecology is one critical component to help meet this global challenge.

Conservation biologists at ASU investigate the impact of humans on Earth's biodiversity and develop practical approaches to prevent the extinction of species and promote the sustainable use of biological resources. Some investigate the causes of ecosystem degradation and use ecological principles to reestablish desired conditions in a variety of ecosystems, including rivers, wetlands, grasslands, urban landscapes and forests.

Career Opportunities:

The curriculum prepares students with skills and concepts for employment and provides a solid platform for students who wish to attend graduate school. Graduates are prepared for careers with:

- governmental agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency and state game and fish departments
- K-12 education, colleges and universities
- nongovernmental organizations such as The Nature Conservancy and Conservation International
- private companies focused on environmental resources, environmental law or environmental economics

The concentration can provide training in specific skills that might be needed in these areas:

- animal and plant physiology, identification and ecology
- behavioral ecology and population biology
- community, ecosystem and landscape ecology
- conservation of endangered species
- ecology of different habitats, including cities, lakes, rivers and grasslands
- restoration of degraded ecosystems

Biological Sciences (Genetics, Cell and Developmental Biology), BS (LABSCGBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS degree program in biological sciences with a concentration in genetics, cell and developmental biology integrates the study of three exciting, closely related areas of life science research. Genetics examines the blueprints of life, such as DNA sequence and gene expression, while cell biology studies the machinery of life enclosed within the boundaries of cells. Developmental biology uses both genetics and cell biology to understand how genes and the environment interact to produce a whole new individual from a single cell as well as the various developmental changes that organisms undergo throughout life. The combined study of genetics, cell biology and development has resulted in a better understanding of many diseases and promises to prove even more important in the future.

Career Opportunities:

Graduates of this concentration have a variety of career options. This degree provides the fundamental coursework necessary for admission into medical, dental, veterinarian, pharmacy or graduate schools or any of the health professions. There also are many employment opportunities that can be pursued upon receipt of the Bachelor of Science with this concentration:

- animal breeder technician
- bioinformaticist
- biotechnologist
- cell culture specialist
- cloning technician
- crime lab technician
- cytotechnologist
- drug design technician
- food and drug inspector
- genetic counselor
- histologist
- in-vitro fertilization technician
- plant improvement specialist
- teacher
- technical writer
- vaccine development technician

Students in this concentration program learn critical-thinking skills that can be applied to many scientific problems and professions as well as to the challenges of daily life. Students are encouraged to engage in independent research projects or internship opportunities to develop a better sense of how science is done.

Biological Sciences (Neurobiology, Physiology and Behavior), BS (LABSCABS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The neurobiology, physiology and behavior concentration serves students in the biological sciences BS degree program with a broad yet rigorous education. While it might seem that physiology and behavior are quite separate fields, the two interact extensively in living organisms to achieve common goals. By studying behavior and physiology from the perspectives of molecular and cellular biology, evolution, organ systems (neural, endocrine, cardiovascular, respiratory, immune, etc.) and the environment, the concentration in physiology and behavior provides insight into how these aspects work together in a variety of ways. Students in this concentration also learn to apply principles from mathematics, chemistry and physics. Discoveries are made at the laboratory bench and in the field, and students in the concentration are encouraged to participate in research projects in the labs of our faculty members.

Career Opportunities:

The broad education and critical-thinking skills students receive in this concentration are well suited for a variety of rewarding careers. Premedical, preveterinary and pre dental students get the background and courses needed for professional school application and beyond. Many students go on to graduate school for academic, teaching or research careers in areas such as:

- endocrinology
- environmental or behavioral physiology
- human physiology
- metabolism
- neurobiology
- social behavior

With a Bachelor of Science degree in this concentration, there are opportunities for technical positions in hospitals, research institutes and industry (food, dairy, chemical, pharmaceutical and biotechnology) as well as in government laboratories and agencies. The most important skills students learn in the concentration are critical-thinking and problem-solving skills that can be applied to many scientific problems and professions as well as to the challenges of daily life.

Chemistry, BA (LACHMBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Chemistry is concerned with the composition, properties and reactions of matter. The BA program in chemistry provides the fundamental knowledge and skills necessary to address scientific needs of society in transdisciplinary areas such as energy and sustainability, medicine and health, materials and nanoscience, geologic and biospheric science, frontiers of chemical measurement, and fundamental molecular science.

The Bachelor of Arts degree in chemistry is a flexible option for students interested in a liberal arts degree with a strong grounding in physical science. It is ideal for students seeking to complete two degrees. Students pursuing a bachelor's degree in chemistry have opportunities to explore interests in analytical, inorganic, organic and physical chemistry as well as biochemistry, geochemistry, solid-state and materials chemistry. Students wishing to pursue a scientific graduate degree should consider the BS in chemistry.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: MAT 270 - Calculus w/Analytic Geometry I

Career Opportunities:

A solid undergraduate program of education in chemistry provides the necessary background for many career paths in chemical industries, government and other areas. Chemistry can be combined with law for patent work, economics for sales and marketing careers, and computer science for careers in information storage and retrieval. Students planning careers in medicine, dentistry or veterinary medicine often pursue a course of study in chemistry with supporting work in biology as the route for preprofessional training.

Chemistry (Environmental Chemistry), BS (LACHMEBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS in chemistry with an environmental chemistry concentration is a transdisciplinary degree program that combines training in the traditional disciplines of chemistry with related environmental sciences courses from geology, mathematics and physics. Discoveries of new materials, processes and solutions to problems such as pollution control and climate change depend upon a thorough grounding in this area of science.

This program prepares students to become scientists and leaders in solving environmental problems and serves as excellent preparation for a career in environmental science or further study of physical sciences in graduate school.

Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership, BA (LACELBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA program in civic and economic thought and leadership prepares students for citizenship, responsibility and the privilege of leadership.

Through the high-impact curriculum, students learn to read, analyze and debate the fundamental ideas in economics, politics and ethics that affect how civil society functions. They learn to ask the right questions when confronting complex problems, and they lead the charge toward workable solutions. Students learn how to become visionary, entrepreneurial leaders who make ethical decisions and unite stakeholders by identifying shared goals. They hone writing, speaking and presentation skills in classes that require them to challenge presumptions and lead constructive conversations about the real issues of the 21st century. Students enjoy access to scholars and professionals in a world-class public affairs and speakers program, and they are given opportunities to apply theory to practice through internships and service-leadership projects that introduce them to the demands of leadership in a liberal democracy

Communication, BA (LACOMBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in communication at ASU's Tempe campus focuses on how message processes create, maintain and transform identities, relationships, workplaces and communities. This program provides a culturally based liberal arts focus with a second language requirement. Such courses and activities will allow students to explore many fascinating questions, such as how messages can optimally advocate for a cause, sports team or organization; how people can communicate creatively in a variety of settings and styles; how valid messages differ from invalid messages; how and why cultural differences make communication difficult; and why some topics are difficult to discuss and consistently lead to conflict.

Through rigorous coursework and rewarding applied experiences, students gain effective communication skills that are highly sought by employers. Students learn to write and speak effectively and are able to convey complex ideas simply. They are prepared for employment in communication-intensive fields or for graduate study.

Computational Mathematical Sciences, BS (LACMSBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

This BS program in computational mathematical sciences is a fusion of mathematics, science and computing. Students in this program learn how to translate problems in science and engineering into mathematical problems and solve them using computing algorithms. They develop strong problem-solving, analytical and programming skills as they work across diverse areas of science and mathematics.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 270 - Calculus w/Analytic Geometry I

Program Math Intensity: Substantial

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Mathematics, MA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Career Opportunities:

In a recent study, mathematics, computer science, applied mathematics and statistics all ranked among the top 15 most valuable college majors in terms of salary and career prospects. The computational mathematical sciences program brings all these disciplines together.

A bachelor's degree in computational mathematical sciences is one of the most versatile math degrees, offering students many career options. The degree positions students for careers in computer technology, business, medical research, teaching and education, engineering and more. Some students pursue graduate opportunities in areas such as biophysics, economics, medicine, statistics and law. Diverse areas of study such as cancer modeling, weather forecasting and financial modeling all involve computational mathematical sciences.

Earth and Environmental Studies, BA (LAEESBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BA in earth and environmental studies provides a foundational understanding of the evolution of the earth system with an emphasis on the planetary context for sustainable human societies. The degree program includes broad training in the physical sciences, especially process-oriented geosciences that focus on Earth's life-sustaining surface environment. Advanced courses focus on topics including:

- climate change
- earth's water, energy and material resources
- impact of land-use change on human civilization
- physical, chemical and biological process interactions that define Earth's evolution

This is designed as a liberal arts program with an emphasis on basic scientific literacy, not as a preparatory degree program for graduate study in the natural sciences. However, successful earth and environmental studies graduates are well prepared for green energy career opportunities such as:

- education
- environmental reporting
- natural resource management
- public planning
- sustainability

Career Opportunities:

With a breadth of knowledge and experience and the acquired skills to integrate various domains of knowledge, graduates of the earth and environmental studies program are prepared for a variety of careers that help find solutions to tomorrow's environmental and sustainability challenges. Chief among these are careers in the following settings:

- consultancy
- education
- governmental agencies
- industry
- museums
- nongovernmental organizations
- nonprofit organizations
- publishing
- regulatory agencies
- utilities

Recent environmental awareness in business and government has also resulted in new employment opportunities (e.g., environmental coordinators, directors and managers). Graduates are also well-prepared for admission to strong professional schools in fields outside the natural sciences.

Earth and Space Exploration, BS (LASESBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in earth and space exploration offers students an integrated education across earth sciences, planetary sciences, astrophysics and engineering. The degree program incorporates a learning community that includes science and engineering students, a yearlong collaborative capstone senior exploration project and strong quantitative preparation.

This strong foundation in geosciences, astrophysics and exploration engineering prepares students for key roles in:

- earth resources and exploration
- environmental and geologic engineering
- space research and industry
- water and environmental use policy

Earth and Space Exploration (Astrobiology and Biogeosciences), BS (LASESABBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Astrobiology studies the origins, evolution, distribution and future of life in the universe. Biogeoscience focuses on the interaction of biological and geological processes on Earth at present and in the geologic past. These topics are closely related because the concepts of biogeoscience inform the study of planetary habitability and the search for habitable worlds. Therefore, the astrobiology and biogeoscience concentration in the BS program in earth and space exploration is designed to offer students a strong foundation for exploring the interaction of geological and biological processes, how such interactions sustain life on Earth, and how they might operate on other planets. This scientific background is needed to contribute to the search for life on other planets as well as the exploration of extreme environments here on Earth. It also provides training in the interplay of forces that impact global change.

Earth and Space Exploration (Astrophysics), BS (LASESABS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS in earth and space exploration with a concentration in astrophysics is designed to offer students a fundamental grounding in astronomy and astrophysics, with exposure to the related fields of geology, planetary science and engineering. Students emerge from this program with the skills to pursue a career in astrophysics, physics or related fields.

The rigorous coursework includes a combination of physics courses taught in the School of Earth and Space Exploration and the Department of Physics. The tools of astronomical discovery are increasingly dependent on technological advances so students will be exposed to engineering principles. Through the capstone project in the senior year, students gain valuable experience in translating science drivers into engineering solutions.

Earth and Space Exploration (Exploration Systems Design), BS (LASESESDBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in earth and space exploration with a concentration in exploration systems design offers students a fundamental curriculum in geology, physics and astrophysics while providing tools that enable them to design and build hardware and software to achieve specified scientific goals.

At the heart of the program is a sound grounding in the fundamentals of physics, mathematics and chemistry. Upon that foundation, students explicitly tackle issues concerning hardware design and instrument assembly and, ultimately, how to knit these components together when conceiving the requirements needed for a mission or project destined for space or another planet.

As part of this degree program, each student has the opportunity to learn how projects and missions are designed and planned, starting with the scientific drivers and then defining engineering specifications. All students are expected to complete a senior project that takes a desired scientific measurement and realizes the technological solution to achieve the observation.

Earth and Space Exploration (Geological Sciences), BS (LASESGSBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Geological science is the study of the Earth and other planets with an emphasis on the processes that have shaped them since the origin of the solar system. Students explore topics such as the co-evolution of life, oceans, atmosphere and the Earth's climate system, and the record of that evolution encoded in rocks, soil, ice and isotopes.

The BS program in earth and space exploration with a concentration in geological sciences educates students in the fundamentals of geological sciences, providing a solid background in chemistry, mathematics and physics as well as transdisciplinary training in engineering, astronomy and planetary science.

Students gain a strong understanding of field methods as well as modern computing, remote sensing and instrumentation to effectively study the natural environment and Earth's resources. Graduates of the program can apply their knowledge for the benefit of Arizona, the nation and society in general.

Economics, BS (LAECNBS)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The mission of the Department of Economics at ASU is to provide the highest quality instruction to students, conduct cutting-edge research in economics, and provide leadership and service to our professional communities. The department's undergraduate program aims to provide students with the critical-thinking and communication skills needed to succeed in business, government or graduate school.

The BS in economics is built on a strong core of economic theory, supplemented by mathematics and data analysis. All students are encouraged to develop programs of study tailored to their individual needs and interests. Students choose from a variety of courses within the department as well as from The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the university to broaden their knowledge and skills and individualize their learning experience.

Career Opportunities:

Students graduating with a bachelor's degree in English with a concentration in secondary education have tremendous opportunities for employment. With more than one million students in a state ranked seventh in the nation in population growth, the need for certified teachers in Arizona is self-evident. Arizona State University provides more of those teachers than any other institution of higher education. In the last 15 years, ASU graduates have had their pick of teaching jobs around the valley and around the state. After student teaching in school districts in the greater Phoenix area or in one of the 22 Native American nations in the state, students are often hired to teach in the same school in which they completed their internship. New teachers continue to be in demand because the predicted rate of population growth in Arizona is still strong and the retirement rate of teachers is increasing.

Global Health, BA (LASSHBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The BA in global health is a transdisciplinary degree program designed for students who seek a broad and flexible set of skills for understanding contemporary health challenges and thinking about how they might best be solved. Global health is understood in the anthropological sense, meaning ways of understanding and addressing disease, health and well-being that can incorporate all cultures, places and time and that can integrate knowledge of health's social, historical, biological and ecological dimensions.

The curriculum emphasizes the development of core skills in critical thinking, problem-solving and the importance of direct experience (research, study abroad, service learning and advocacy). The program cultivates capacities to deal with any complex problem with social components: how to identify the critical issues, ask the right questions and create solutions that are meaningful and effective.

Students are required to participate in an approved global health study abroad program.

Career Opportunities:

Nationally and internationally, the health field provides enormous and varied career opportunities, and demand is high and growing for graduates with specific skills. The major supports the goals of those pursuing careers in academic research, teaching and health services. Sample employment venues include:

- departments of health
- government agencies
- international agencies (World Health Organization, Center for Disease Control, Global Health Council, World Bank, Inter-American Development Bank)
- nongovernmental organizations
- private sector
- universities

The degree program also provides a broad intellectual base for those who plan advanced specialist health training in fields such as:

- dentistry
- medicine
- nursing
- pharmacy

In Arizona and elsewhere, there is a pressing need for professionals with appropriate skills to work in cross-cultural settings or with underserved populations (such as migrants, minorities and those living in poverty), and many of these jobs are directly or indirectly related to health.

History, BA (LAHISBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

Students pursuing the BA in history study the growth and development of human society from political, social, economic and cultural perspectives. Students learn to craft stories from materials other people have left behind --- constitutions, land deeds, diaries, guns and bones. They learn to make decisions about what to investigate, about whom to believe, about what happened first, and about why things fell apart or came together.

History is a discipline that constantly adopts new techniques of analysis and new ways of gathering and presenting information. Students of history learn to use and create digital media, to perform quantitative as well as qualitative analysis, and to present their findings in compelling ways to all kinds of audiences.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

History, MA

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Career Opportunities:

History majors are in demand. They know how to find and evaluate evidence, form arguments and present analysis --- skills essential to most careers including law, business, education, medicine and government.

Three out of four employers surveyed by the Association of American Colleges and Universities say they want colleges to place more emphasis on helping students develop five key learning outcomes: critical thinking, complex problem-solving, written communication, oral communication and applied knowledge in real-world settings. These learning outcomes are integral elements of an undergraduate degree in history.

History majors seek jobs in:

- business and industry
- communications
- education
- foreign service
- law enforcement
- museums

- public administration
- social services

History is an excellent foundation for graduate and professional studies in:

- business
- history
- justice studies
- law
- medicine
- public administration
- public history
- theology

History (Secondary Education), BA (LAHISSEBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The secondary education concentration within the BA in history offers a flexible degree for students who are considering a career in education. The concentration program fully prepares students for teaching and certification. At the same time, the concentration provides all the disciplinary knowledge of a traditional history degree and prepares students for a variety of noneducation careers. By developing strong critical reading, writing and research skills as well as skills in oral presentation, the program creates a solid foundation for graduate work in history, law or business.

International Letters and Cultures (Classical Civilization), BA (LASLCVBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Classics is a transdisciplinary field that includes the study of the literature, art, history and philosophy of the ancient Greeks and Romans, subjects which fueled the Renaissance and have continued to provide an intellectual foundation for innovative and influential people ever since.

ASU's BA program in international letters and cultures with a concentration in classical civilization provides a thorough grounding in the culture and history of the ancient Greeks or Romans while allowing students to satisfy their language requirement. The program begins with two cores: an introduction to ancient Greek and Roman literature (read in English translation) and knowledge of ancient history. With that basis, students are allowed to build a program to meet their needs and interests. Among the variety of topics students pursue are:

- ancient history, war, politics and economics
- archaeology of the ancient Mediterranean world
- art and architecture of the ancient Egyptians, Greeks and Romans
- mythology and religious practices of the Greeks and Romans
- thought of figures such as Plato, Aristotle and Lucretius
- use of the classics in today's film, books and other media

Career Opportunities:

College graduates with a degree in classical civilization have the valuable experience of studying a culture very different from yet lying at the root of the modern world. This gives them a perspective that serves them well in a variety of disciplines. Classical civilization graduates may consider careers in:

- business
- film, television or multimedia
- K-12 education
- law
- public service
- writing and editing (fiction, journalism, technical writing)

Additional education may be required for some career fields.

International Letters and Cultures (Classics), BA (LASLCCBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Classics is the study of the literature, art, history and philosophy of the ancient Greeks and Romans --- a transdisciplinary field that fueled the Renaissance and that has continued to provide an intellectual foundation for innovative and influential people ever since.

The BA program in international letters and cultures with a concentration in classics begins with two cores: language skills in ancient Greek or Latin (or, if the student chooses, both) and knowledge of ancient history. With that basis, students build a program to meet their needs and interests. Among the variety of topics students pursue are:

- ancient history, war, politics and economics
- literary classics such as Homer, Sophocles, Virgil and Ovid

- the archaeology of the ancient Mediterranean world
- the art and architecture of the ancient Egyptians, Greeks and Romans
- the mythology and religious practices of the Greeks and Romans
- the thought of figures such as Plato, Aristotle and Lucretius
- the use of the classics in today's film, books and other media

In addition to the concentration in classics, ASU also offers a classical civilization concentration with a similar focus but different language requirements. Students should consult their advisor and choose the concentration that best meets their needs.

Career Opportunities:

College graduates with a degree in the classics have developed skills in research and the precise use and analysis of language that will serve them well in a wide range of fields. The transdisciplinary study of a culture very different from the modern world, yet lying at the root of it, also fosters a student's ability to view issues from many angles and think critically about them.

Classics graduates often find careers in:

- business
- Christian ministry
- film, television and multimedia
- law
- politics
- education
- writing and editing (fiction, journalism, technical writing)

As many employers are well aware, a classics graduate has the training to solve difficult puzzles, to see through obscure language and to conduct rigorous research on often ill-defined problems. These skills are prized in any field of endeavor.

- attend rabbinical seminary in preparation for becoming a community rabbi or chaplain
- engage in world political and economic issues
- pursue advanced education in Jewish professional service fields

The degree also provides a firm foundation for students who wish to pursue advanced degrees related to their area of interest in fields that may include:

- archaeology
- creative writing
- ethics
- film and media
- history
- journalism
- justice studies
- law
- philosophy
- political science
- religious studies

Justice Studies, BA (LAJUSBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Justice studies is an innovative social science program examining current social justice issues such as human rights, domestic violence and immigration, against a backdrop of legal systems, law and culture. Students enrolled in the BA program in justice studies also have the opportunity to explore other languages and cultures, giving them the tools needed to communicate and work effectively with people both within and outside the U.S. As so many social justice issues occur across countries and cultures, this equips students with a dynamic knowledge of the world's justice systems and gives them the skills to create meaningful, real-world change.

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Justice Studies, MS

Science and Technology Policy, MSTP

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Change of Major Requirements:

A current ASU student has no additional requirements for changing majors.

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=LAJUSBA~null + &college=CLA>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

Many graduates go on to law school, graduate school or other professional degree programs. Students emerge from this program with knowledge and skills designed to bring social justice concerns to their professional careers. Program graduates work in a variety of fields, including:

- administration
- business
- economics
- education
- human welfare and social work
- international relations
- law and law enforcement
- nongovernmental organizations
- politics

Justice Studies, BS (LAJUSBS)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

Justice studies examines current social justice issues through analyzing the legal system, law and culture and how these impact society. In the BS degree program in justice studies, students use statistics and quantitative application skills to understand social justice issues in diverse settings and working with a variety of people and cultures. The skills gained allow students to create real-world change and think of innovative ways to combat issues, among other things, of human rights, domestic violence and immigration.

Mathematics, BA (LAMATBA)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

Math is the science of problem-solving. Students in the BA degree program in mathematics apply the critical thinking and problem-solving skills they learn to many endeavors, because math is a crucial component in engineering, life sciences, business, economics and social sciences. In the bachelor's degree program in mathematics, students acquire a strong general mathematics background, but retain the flexibility to pursue other areas of interest through a minor or even a second major. Combining a second area of study such as life science, physics, computer science or business creates a powerful combination for future career goals.

Mathematics (Secondary Education), BS (LAMATSBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

ASU's BS program in mathematics with a concentration in secondary education provides a new pathway for students interested in teaching. Students acquire strong content knowledge in diverse areas of math and the skills to convey these concepts to others. This degree program offers a deeper mastery of mathematics coupled with the ability to handle the challenges of a high school classroom.

Students who wish to teach at the secondary level take courses preparing them to earn certification in the State of Arizona through this program. By providing a carefully designed curriculum of courses and instructional experiences, the program develops the deep understandings and connections needed to be a highly effective mathematics teacher. Graduates emerge equipped to provide mathematics instruction that is coherent, meaningful and challenging.

Mathematics (Statistics), BS (LAMATTBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

In the BS program in mathematics with a concentration in statistics, students learn innovative mathematical, computational and statistical methods to analyze data sets as well as how to use data in real-world applications. Using data analytics, students discover how to generate insights that inform fact-based decision-making. They use cutting-edge techniques to study and understand methods of statistical inference and explore strategies for dealing with uncertainty.

Career Opportunities:

Statistical analysis and data mining have been identified as two of the most desirable skills in today's job market. Based on factors like pay, growth and job satisfaction, statistics has been named in separate job reports as one of the best careers for millennials. Data and the analysis of data is big business, and the Department of Labor projects a 25 percent growth in the need for employees trained in data analytics. For students pursuing a bachelor's degree in mathematics with a concentration in statistics, that means an exciting future of career opportunities in fields as diverse as business, finance, engineering, technology, sports, marketing, government and other areas of the economy.

These are just a few of the top career paths you can pursue with a major in this bachelor's degree program:

- actuary
- data scientist
- financial analyst
- market research analyst
- software engineer
- sports statistician
- statistician
- teacher or professor

Students also can combine statistics with other disciplines, such as business or economics, to enhance preparation for their personal career goals.

Microbiology, BS (LAMICBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in microbiology combines the study of the branch of biology involving the smallest of living things (bacteria, fungi, algae, protozoa and viruses) and immunology (the study of all aspects of the immune system). Despite their small size, microbes are fundamental to life on Earth and compose the majority of all Earth's life forms. In addition to their essential contributions to the natural world, microbes have been model experimental subjects due to their impact on human health and ease of manipulation in the laboratory. A significant portion of medical research employs microbiological and immunological methods in order to examine basic genetic and biological phenomena.

Career Opportunities:

The microbiology degree program places emphasis on understanding microorganisms and their interrelationships with other organisms in nature and on the influence of microorganisms in biomedicine and biotechnology. Students in the microbiology degree program will study not only the background and current findings in the field of microbiology but also acquire the critical-thinking skills and the hands-on laboratory and field skills required to succeed in science. The major provides excellent training for premedical, pre dental, preveterinary and prepharmacy students as well as advanced study in microbiology and immunology.

The discipline of microbiology is diverse and the job opportunities for microbiologists are enormous. Graduates with a degree in microbiology have opportunities for employment in:

- government
- hospitals
- industrial laboratories (food, dairy, chemical, pharmaceutical, environmental and biotechnology companies)
- public health laboratories
- research laboratories

Many students are also suitably prepared for admission into graduate school and advanced study in these fields:

- dentistry
- medicine
- pharmacy
- veterinary medicine

Microbiology (Medical Microbiology), BS (LAMICMBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The medical microbiology concentration serves students in the microbiology BS degree program who aim to pursue careers in health professions, medical microbiology or biomedical research.

The curriculum aligns with the scientific competencies recommended for premed students in a report of the American Medical Colleges and the Howard Hughes Medical Institute Committee and are also reflected in the 2015 changes to the MCAT. Coursework includes many of the courses in the microbiology major, including chemistry, biochemistry, math and physics, with some microbiology courses replaced by cell biology, animal physiology and courses that relate to human biology and society to emphasize core concepts, competencies and critical intellectual skills necessary to succeed in medical school or biomedical research. The concentration includes coursework that students need to prepare for the MCAT or medical school admission.

Molecular Biosciences and Biotechnology, BS (LAMBBBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in molecular biosciences and biotechnology encompasses many of the cutting-edge disciplines in life sciences research. Biotechnology is an exciting, rapidly growing field with major applications in agriculture (green biotechnology, leading to improved crops or production of vaccines in plants), health care (red biotechnology, leading to better therapeutics, diagnostics and personalized medicine) and industry (white biotechnology, leading to sustainable production of energy, enzymes and chemicals).

This molecular biosciences and biotechnology degree program focuses on the interface between molecular biology and biotechnology. The interface drives major advancements in knowledge and applied research and development, like the development of next-generation biomedical products or biofuels. Hands-on research and the capstone course with both science and business or entrepreneurial components round out this exciting program.

This program is available as an accelerated degree program. Students can visit this website to learn more about accelerated degree programs: <https://sols.asu.edu/degree-programs/accelerated-bachelor-master-science> (<https://sols.asu.edu/degree-programs/accelerated-bachelor-master-science>).

Career Opportunities:

The molecular biosciences and biotechnology degree program provides an excellent background and training for a growing number of careers that incorporate this innovative area of the molecular life sciences. Independent research and courses with classroom plus lab components result in a solid base of knowledge and practical expertise in biotechnology and the molecular biosciences, providing many options for further education or for entering the workforce.

After graduation, many molecular biosciences and biotechnology students enter graduate programs in a molecular biosciences and biotechnology-related area. A number of students also enroll in medical school, other health-related professional programs or in other advanced programs. Students also have the knowledge and technical skills to enter the biotechnology workforce in an area matching their expertise and interest.

The molecular biosciences and biotechnology program has a faculty mentoring program which provides students with the opportunity to speak with faculty regarding career choices, selection and timeline of major courses and of independent research projects, and much more.

Neuroscience, BS (LABMENBS)

Campus:

Program Description:

Neuroscience is concerned with understanding the structure and function of the nervous system and its relation to behavior. The field of neuroscience spans all levels of biological analysis, with interfaces to many fields such as mathematics, law and engineering.

The BS degree program in neuroscience consists of rigorous, in-depth training in cellular, molecular and systems biology. With this broad depth of fundamental knowledge, students gravitate toward different areas of specialization in neuroscience. Students are prepared for collaborative and interdisciplinary research and teaching positions in neuroscience. The degree program also enables students to enter biomedical fields that prepare students for careers in medicine, nursing or veterinary medicine and to integrate innovative outcomes from the research community into their practices.

Philosophy, BA (LAPHIBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The BA in philosophy teaches students how to think well which, in turn, lays the foundation for personal and professional success.

Philosophy students learn how to structure arguments, write precisely and clearly, and communicate their ideas in an orderly, persuasive and unambiguous way. Many philosophical texts are complicated, and philosophy courses teach students how to read, comprehend and summarize conceptually difficult material. In short, studying philosophy trains one to be a better, clearer thinker.

Coursework includes the major subfields of philosophy, such as metaphysics, epistemology and ethics, and electives that connect philosophy to other areas of inquiry, emphasizing the social relevance of philosophy.

Philosophy alumni are well-prepared for leadership roles in whatever path they take, whether it be in business, law, politics, medicine or education.

Philosophy (Morality, Politics and Law), BA (LAPHIMPBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The BA in philosophy with a concentration in morality, politics and law combines the basic analytical approaches of philosophy with an emphasis on the moral questions that arise in political theory and law. The foundations of our political and legal systems are moral values, such as individual liberty, equality and justice. These are contested values, open to different understandings of their nature and implications.

Students explore the nature of morality, political theory, legal theory and the interconnections between them. Students complete philosophy courses as well as courses from disciplines related to philosophy to enrich and enliven their understanding of the intersections of morality, politics and law. This degree program is of special interest to students planning to pursue postgraduate work in law, policy or politics.

Physics (Secondary Education), BS (LAPHYSEBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in physics with a concentration in secondary education provides rigorous training in physics and in education. Physics is the cornerstone of STEM disciplines --- science, technology, engineering and mathematics --- and the shortage of highly qualified physics teachers in every state is an ongoing problem. This concentration is designed to produce more and better qualified physics teachers to meet local and national needs. Students who graduate from this program are recommended by the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College for certification by the State of Arizona.

Politics and the Economy, BS (LAPECBS)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in politics and the economy prepares students for careers that require a sophisticated understanding of the relationship between politics and the economy. This degree is a response to the growing recognition that many of the world's most pressing problems (e.g., growth and development, tax reforms, and climate change) are fundamentally political and economic problems. The program combines core courses in economics and political science. Utilizing the strengths of both the Department of Economics and the School of Politics and Global Studies, students graduate with strong quantitative and modeling skills and a rich understanding of political context.

Career Opportunities:

According to external forecasters of employment growth (U.S. Department of Labor and the U.S. News & World Report), job opportunities for graduates of the politics and the economy degree program are expected to grow as fast or faster than the average growth of the labor force. They note that the demand for graduates grounded in economics and political science is driven by the growing complexity of the global economy, the increased implementation of financial regulations in wealthier nations and the growing competitiveness of the business environment. In terms of specific sectors, undergraduates are well-prepared for entry positions in government at all levels (local, state and federal), business, economic and political consulting, and law. They are also prepared to pursue advanced degrees in law, business, economics or political science.

Religious Studies, BA (LARELBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

ASU is not currently accepting applications for this program. Interested students should apply to the concentration in Religion, Culture and Public Life (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/programs/t5/majorinfo/ASU00/LARELCPBA/undergrad/false>) or the concentration in Religion, Politics and Global Affairs (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/programs/t5/majorinfo/ASU00/LARELPGBA/undergrad/false>).

Program Description:

Religion is an important part of human experience. Religious understanding informs and shapes politics, literature, philosophy, art and science as well as the daily life of millions around the globe. An understanding of religious traditions is critical to understanding our shared past and present and to navigating toward our shared future.

Students who pursue the BA in religious studies come from a wide diversity of faiths, cultural backgrounds and intellectual interests. What many find fascinating and exciting about religious studies is that it draws from a wide variety of disciplines --- history, philosophy, anthropology, literature, political science and theology, to name a few. Course offerings reflect a diversity of approaches (historical, anthropological, ethical and theological), regions (North America, South America, Europe, Middle East, Africa, South Asia and Southeast Asia) and traditions (Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism and Native American traditions).

Religious Studies (Religion, Culture and Public Life), BA (LARELCPBA)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The BA in religious studies with a concentration in religion, culture and public life approaches religion as a mode of human culture, as constituted in intellect, language, emotion, practice, art and everyday life.

The program focuses on the role religions play in the formation of cultural identities, traditions, norms and memories, and it examines in particular the impact religions have on culturally specified ways people reason, communicate, socialize, work, entertain, dress, eat, live and die. Special consideration is given to the influence of religion on gender roles and sexual norms; the formation of images of the body and the moral assessment of medical practices; and the reflection and reproduction of religion in film, popular culture, and conventional, digital and social media.

The concentration addresses present-day interests and prepares students for jobs in a variety of professions, including education, journalism, media studies, gender studies, health care, politics, law, education, migration and international studies.

Urban Planning, BSP (ARPUPBSP)

Campus: Tempe, Online

Program Description:

The urban planning program introduces students to issues faced by urban areas and the tools necessary to address them. Urban planners guide communities in making wise decisions about their use of land and resources. The BSP program in urban planning provides students with expertise in both the analysis and the synthesis of the physical, social, political and economic issues that shape urban and regional development. Planning includes:

- computer and research methods
- environmental impact assessment
- geographic information systems
- housing

- landscape architecture and urban design
- planning and zoning law
- public policy formulation and administration
- transportation
- urban and development economics
- utilities

Students take courses that include:

- comprehensive planning
- computer and analytical methods
- planning law
- public policy formulation and administration
- site planning
- socioeconomic and environmental analyses
- urban design

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: N

First Required Math Course: MAT 142 - College Mathematics

Program Math Intensity: General

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Urban and Environmental Planning, MUEP

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

Nursing, BSN (NUNURDBSN)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, ASU@The Gila Valley, Online

Program Description:

Through a curriculum centered upon evidence-based practice, clinical reasoning, innovation, interprofessional communication and information technology, the BSN degree program prepares students to provide high-quality professional nursing care. The Bachelor of Science in Nursing may be earned through several unique pathways.

Traditional Prelicensure Nursing Program

The traditional prelicensure clinical nursing program is a full-time, upper-division nursing program designed for students who wish to become a registered nurse by completing a Bachelor of Science in nursing. The program has three start dates per year --- spring, summer and fall and may be completed in a 16-month year-round schedule or a 24-month academic year schedule. Graduates are eligible to sit for the National Council Licensure Examination to gain licensure as a registered nurse.

Students advance into the program in one of two ways: direct admission or the competitive advancement process. Direct admission is offered to incoming first-time freshman who meet specific admission criteria. Students admitted directly must meet continuing eligibility criteria while attending ASU to advance into the upper-division nursing program. Directly admitted nursing students who do not meet continuing eligibility criteria, transfer students or ASU students who are changing majors may apply for advancement to the upper-division nursing program by competing for any remaining spaces. More information can be found at: <https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/programs/bsn/traditional> (<https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/programs/bsn/traditional>).

Postbaccalaureate Clinical Nursing Program

The postbaccalaureate clinical nursing program is a full-time, 12-month upper-division clinical nursing program designed for students with a bachelor's degree in another discipline who wish to become a registered nurse by completing a BSN. Selection is competitive and students start the program in the spring semester.

Students pursuing advancement to the postbaccalaureate clinical nursing program complete prerequisite coursework and apply for advancement to the program. Graduates are eligible to sit for the National Council Licensure Examination to gain licensure as a registered nurse. More information can be found at: <https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/programs/bsn/postbaccalaureate> (<https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/programs/bsn/postbaccalaureate>).

Online RN to BSN Program

The online RN to BSN program is available online to students who have earned an associate degree in nursing and have a current RN license in good standing with the state board of nursing. The RN to BSN program courses are offered online in 7.5-week sessions and can be completed in 14 to 24 months. There are five starts per year: two in the fall, two in the spring and one in the summer. Assignments may include readings, discussions, papers, presentations and practical application activities completed wherever the student resides.

Transfer pathway agreements are in place with all community colleges in Arizona, which provide additional benefits to students. The RN to BSN program does not have approval from the Boards of Nursing in Tennessee, Rhode Island or Washington to be offered to RNs licensed in those states. More information can be found at https://asuonline.asu.edu/rnbsn?utm\_source=nursing-journal&utm\_medium=print&utm\_campaign=Now2 (https://asuonline.asu.edu/rnbsn?utm\_source=nursing-journal&utm\_medium=print&utm\_campaign=Now2).

Concurrent Enrollment Program

The concurrent enrollment program pathway is offered through participating community colleges. This program is designed for qualified nursing students who are interested in earning their Bachelor of Science in nursing while simultaneously pursuing their associate degree in nursing. Selected students enroll in the community college program and the ASU RN to BSN courses at the same time (concurrently). RN to BSN courses taken at ASU are delivered in an online format. More information can be found at <https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/programs/bsn/cep> (<https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/programs/bsn/cep>).

Eastern Arizona College Partnership

The ASU and Eastern Arizona College partnership has two options: the concurrent enrollment program and the RN to BSN. The concurrent enrollment program is designed for qualified students pursuing an Associate of Applied Science in nursing from EAC while simultaneously earning a Bachelor of Science in Nursing from ASU. Another option allows students with an associate degree or diploma in nursing to pursue the ASU BSN at Eastern Arizona College on the Thatcher campus. Courses in this program are delivered in a hybrid format on the Thatcher campus. More information can be found at <https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/admissions/eastern-arizona-college> (<https://nursingandhealth.asu.edu/admissions/eastern-arizona-college>).

Nonprofit Leadership and Management, BS (PPNLMBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

Through the BS program in nonprofit leadership and management, students are empowered to become successful professionals who work to advance the quality of life in communities. The nonprofit sector in the United States is unique in form and function. This sector includes institutions and individuals situated between government, public, business and commerce sectors. With more than 1.6 million organizations in the U.S., the sector employs more people than the finance, insurance and real estate industries combined.

Philanthropy (voluntary action for the public good) is a hallmark of the nonprofit sector as individuals give their time, money and know-how to causes about which they care. Students in the nonprofit leadership and management program learn about the nonprofit sector through curriculum instruction and field experience. The required internship component of the program leads students to professional opportunities within the nonprofit sector. Within the undergraduate degree requirements, students also may choose to pursue the National Certified Nonprofit Professional credential through ASU's affiliation with the Nonprofit Leadership Alliance: <https://www.nonprofitleadershipalliance.org/credential/> (<https://www.nonprofitleadershipalliance.org/credential/>).

Career Opportunities:

Depending on their interests, graduates seek work in diverse settings that include a wide range of missions, including arts and culture, environmental, health, youth development, etc. Some graduates find employment with local, grassroots, direct-service nonprofits while others find work with grant-making foundations. Many work in affiliates of well-known national organizations such as:

- American Red Cross
- America's Second Harvest
- Humane Society of the United States
- March of Dimes
- National Urban League
- United Way
- youth-serving entities such as Big Brothers Big Sisters, Boys and Girls Clubs, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of the USA, Camp Fire USA

and the YMCA of the USA

Increasing opportunities in the nonprofit sector include careers across the spectrum of community issues such as the arts, environment, health care and others. Typical positions include roles as:

- field executives
- fund development directors
- program directors
- program officers for grant-making organizations
- volunteer program managers

Parks and Recreation Management, BS (PPPRMBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The BS program in parks and recreation management provides a transdisciplinary education in the management of parks, protected areas, community-based recreation services and special-event management. The parks and recreation field emerged from the youth development, recreation and park movements of the late 19th-century. Students learn to integrate the managerial, natural and social sciences to make informed decisions for recreation service delivery.

The curriculum of classroom instruction and field experiences covers:

- communication
- history
- inclusive services
- management
- parks and recreation policy
- planning
- programming

The required internship component of the program allows students to gain practical experience in the parks and recreation professions. The bachelor's degree program in parks and recreation management prepares students for professional positions in a variety of public, private and nonprofit organizations.

The National Recreation and Park Association accredits this degree program.

Program Description:

The BS program in parks and recreation management with a concentration in therapeutic recreation prepares students to apply for eligibility to take the national professional certification in through the National Council for Therapeutic Recreation Certification: <http://www.nctrc.org> (<http://www.nctrc.org>).

The degree program prepares competent, entry-level recreational therapists with the requisite knowledge, skills and abilities to improve functional outcomes and increase participation in life activities with individuals experiencing health conditions. It is designed for students who want to learn to conduct assessments, develop service plans, implement therapeutic interventions, evaluate and document outcomes of care. They gain skills to effectively provide comprehensive therapeutic recreation services that include program design and evaluation, individual and group service provision, and advocacy. The required fieldwork component of the program facilitates the development of competencies needed to provide quality recreational therapy services.

Students who choose this degree program are truly committed to improving people's lives and contributing to their communities. This degree program is one of two such programs in Arizona, both offered by the School of Community Resources and Development. This program prepares students to provide recreational therapy services in community settings such as youth programs, adaptive sports, or parks and recreation while the Bachelor of Science in recreational therapy has a heavier emphasis on healthcare settings such as hospitals and human service agencies.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Downtown Phoenix campus.
