Public Service and Public Policy (Health Policy), BS (PPPAFHPBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The School of Public Affairs offers a concentration in health policy as part of the BS in public service and public policy. This program allows students to build a course of study that emphasizes their own areas of interest. The health care industry is continuing to be a major part of the U.S. and world economy.

The concentration in health policy provides students who have an interest in policy to focus on health-related issues and their policy implications. The courses in the concentration are offered by the School of Nutrition and Health Promotion and the School of Human Evolution and Social Change. All the courses are part of the college's regular degree offerings. Thus, students emerge from the program prepared to address policy issues in this substantive area with an understanding of the range of public service careers (including government, nonprofit and for-profit options), the economics of public affairs, the challenge of leadership in the public context and the dynamics of administering public programs.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Downtown Phoenix campus. ## Recreation Therapy, BS (PPRECTBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

The BS program in recreational therapy prepares students to apply for eligibility to take the national professional certification through the National Council for Therapeutic Recreation Certification: <https://nctrc.org/about-certification/ctrs-the-qualified-provider> (<https://nctrc.org/about-certification/ctrs-the-qualified-provider/>).

The program prepares competent, entry-level recreational therapists with the requisite knowledge, skills and abilities needed to improve functional outcomes and increase participation in life activities for individuals experiencing health conditions. It is designed for students who want to learn to conduct assessments, develop service plans, implement therapeutic interventions, and evaluate and document outcomes of care. They gain skills to effectively provide comprehensive therapeutic recreation services that include program design and evaluation, individual and group service provision, and advocacy. The required fieldwork component of the program facilitates the development of competencies to provide quality recreational therapy services.

Students who choose this degree program are committed to improving people's lives and contributing to their communities. This degree program is one of two such programs in Arizona, both offered by the School of Community Resources and Development. This program has a heavier emphasis on healthcare settings such as hospitals and human service agencies while the Bachelor of Science in parks and recreation (therapeutic recreation) prepares students to provide recreational therapy services in community settings such as youth programs, adaptive sports, or parks and recreation.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Downtown Phoenix campus. ## Urban and Metropolitan Studies, BA (PPURBBA)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix

Program Description:

Located in the heart of downtown Phoenix, the BA program in urban and metropolitan studies is for students who have a yearning to study and understand urban theory in order to effectively address the challenges of rapid growth along with other contemporary urban issues.

Students discover what makes the city tick --- and the city is their classroom. They examine challenges and solutions by researching history, society, culture, economy and politics in order to understand urban theory, and they use that knowledge to get involved in their communities. This gives them an outlet through which they can experience practical ways of solving complex problems faced by metropolitan regions. The students are invested in their neighborhoods. Many of them live and work downtown and they learn how to improve urban health and well-being, often training themselves to be the future leaders of urban environments. Others focus on making a wide variety of other contributions to society, studying the role of arts and culture, business and property development, revitalization and community-building in the life of the region.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange program at the following location: Downtown Phoenix campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees. ## Sustainability, School of

Sustainability, BA (SUSUSTBA)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, Online

Program Description:

Students in ASU's School of Sustainability are rethinking and reinventing the future of a world at risk. The school's programs encourage experiential learning, study abroad (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/study-abroad>), research with faculty (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/undergraduate-research>), community engagement and leadership development (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/campus-experience/student-sustainability-clubs-organizations/>). The knowledge and solutions that are created today will shape the social and environmental quality of life for future generations.

The School of Sustainability offers two degrees in sustainability: a BA and a BS. Both programs introduce students to the concept of sustainability in the context of real-world problems and focus on developing practical solutions to some of the most pressing environmental, economic and social challenges of sustainability. The curriculum trains students to approach challenges with consideration of complex adaptive systems and resilience; interconnections and cascading effects between scales; management of trade-offs; stakeholder engagement; future visioning and scenario typologies for transitioning social-ecological systems; and other cutting-edge frameworks.

The Bachelor of Arts is geared toward students interested in the social and human aspects of sustainability in global, regional and local contexts such as international environmental law, urban policy, etc. Students select from one of four Bachelor of Arts track options:

- international development and sustainability
- policy and governance in sustainable systems
- society and sustainability
- sustainable urban dynamics

Disciplinary perspectives included in the core courses of the degree tracks include anthropology, urban planning and design, environmental economics, ethics, geography, philosophy of science, political science, sociology and other disciplines relevant to the sustainability of environmental resources and social institutions.

Students in the School of Sustainability gain not only an understanding of the field of sustainability and strong problem-solving, systems-thinking, stakeholder engagement and future scenario-building skills, they also develop strength in a more traditional discipline of their choice (in addition to their track). Students apply the skills from their core Bachelor of Arts classes and knowledge from their track and related discipline courses in two required capstone experiences in the senior year.

Capstone requirements consist of an internship (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/sustainability-internships-opportunities>) with a sustainability-focused organization and a workshop course in which students work together as a team to develop solutions to real sustainability problems. These workshops are great resume builders as they usually include real work for actual organizations such as city governments, sports organizations, nonprofits, local and global companies, local schools, and ASU facilities management and sustainability practices. Students also are offered workshops on making documentary films, redesigning buildings and downtown areas, and other engaging projects.

Students graduate with a portfolio of accomplishments and skills. They also have the opportunity to participate in study abroad programs, student organizations, professional development workshops and hands-on initiatives such as ProMod (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/student-sustainability-research/promod>).

Additional Program Fee: Y

Second Language Requirement: Yes

First Required Math Course: SOS 101 - Intro Appl Math Life & Soc Sci

Program Math Intensity: Moderate

Concurrent Degrees:

This degree is also offered as concurrent degree program with Supply Chain Management, BS

Accelerated Degree Options:

This program allows students to obtain both a bachelor's and master's degree in as little as five years. It is offered as an accelerated bachelor's and master's degree with:

Sustainability Solutions, MSUS

Acceptance to the graduate program requires a separate application. During their junior year, eligible students will be advised by their academic departments to apply.

Admission Requirements:

General University Admission Requirements:

All students are required to meet general university admission requirements.

Freshman (<https://students.asu.edu/freshman/requirements>)

Transfer (<https://transfer.asu.edu/index.php?q=transferrequirements>)

International (<https://students.asu.edu/international/future>)

Readmission (<https://students.asu.edu/readmission>)

Additional Requirements:

The School of Sustainability has higher admission requirements. Applicants must select a second choice for their major on the application. Students who are not admitted to the School of Sustainability and who did not select a second major or are not admissible to the second major choice are admitted to the exploratory social and behavioral sciences program within the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts. Students with more than 45 transfer hours who are not admissible to the College of Integrative Sciences and Arts are contacted to select an appropriate major.

Freshman applicants must meet the following standards:

- Minimum cumulative high school GPA of 3.00 (4.00 = "A") in competency courses (<https://students.asu.edu/admission/competencies>) AND
- rank in the top 25 percent of their high school graduating class OR
- an SAT combined score of 1120 or higher OR
- an ACT combined score of 22 or higher.

Transfer Admission Requirements:

Transfer students (those with 12 or more transfer credit hours after high school graduation) are required to have a cumulative transfer GPA of 3.00 or higher. The School of Sustainability reviews transfer applications that fall below this GPA level on an individual basis.

Attend Online: ASU offers this program in an online format with multiple enrollment sessions throughout the year. Applicants may view the program description and request more information here. (<https://asuonline.asu.edu/online-degree-programs/undergraduate/bachelor-arts-sustainability/>)

Change of Major Requirements:

ASU students who would like to change their major to sustainability are required to have a cumulative ASU GPA of 3.00 or higher (based on at least 12 credit hours of ASU coursework).

Students should refer to <https://changingmajors.asu.edu/request> for information about how to change a major to this program.

Transfer Options:

ASU is committed to helping students thrive by offering tools that allow personalization of the transfer path to ASU. Students may use the Transfer Map search (<https://webapp4.asu.edu/transfercreditguide/app/transfermap?major=SUSUSTBA~null + &college=CSS>) to outline a list of recommended courses to take prior to transfer.

ASU has transfer partnerships in Arizona and across the country to create a simplified transfer experience for students. These pathway programs include exclusive benefits, tools and resources, and help students save time and money in their college journey. Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

In addition to going on to graduate school, graduates of the program are qualified for well-paying positions in:

- consultancy
- government
- intergovernmental organizations
- international development
- management

- municipalities
- nongovernmental organizations
- nonprofits
- policy-making enterprises
- regulatory agencies
- utilities

Recent interest in sustainability within business and government has created new employment opportunities (e.g., sustainability coordinators, directors and managers). Of undergraduate alumni who have shared their experiences with the school (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/employment-data> (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/careers/employment-data/>)), 96 percent are either employed in sectors such as those listed above or have gone on to a graduate program. Of those employed, 69 percent have jobs directly related to sustainability.

Those with a BA in sustainability offer employers and graduate programs an integrated approach to developing solutions to sustainability challenges. They understand the complexity of systems, have engaged in a range of knowledge and experience from different disciplinary perspectives, and understand the importance of planning for the future and how to engage stakeholders in that process. Graduates of the program are adaptable and prepared for a changing world.

Sustainability, BS (SUSUSTBS)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, Online

Program Description:

Students in ASU's School of Sustainability are rethinking and reinventing the future of a world at risk. The school's programs encourage experiential learning, study abroad (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/study-abroad> (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/study-abroad/>)), research with faculty (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/undergraduate-research> (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/undergraduate-research/>)), community engagement and leadership development (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/campus-experience/student-sustainability-clubs-organizations/> (<https://schoolofsustainability.asu.edu/student-life/campus-experience/student-sustainability-clubs-organizations/>)). The knowledge and solutions that are created today will shape the social and environmental quality of life for future generations.

The School of Sustainability offers two degrees in sustainability: a BA and a BS. Both programs introduce students to the concept of sustainability in the context of real-world problems and focus on developing practical solutions to some of the most pressing environmental, economic and social challenges of sustainability. The curriculum trains students to approach challenges with consideration of complex adaptive systems and resilience; interconnections and cascading effects between scales; management of trade-offs; stakeholder engagement; future visioning and scenario typologies for transitioning social-ecological systems; and other cutting-edge frameworks.

The Bachelor of Science is geared toward students interested in the more quantitative aspects of sustainability, such as energy, economics and ecology. Students select from one of three Bachelor of Science track options:

- economics of sustainability
- sustainable ecosystems
- sustainable energy, materials and technology

Disciplinary perspectives included in the core courses of the degree tracks include ecology, engineering, environmental economics, environmental science, conservation biology, hydrology, physical geography, earth-systems management and other disciplines relevant to the sustainability of environmental resources and social institutions.

Students in the School of Sustainability not only gain an understanding of the field of sustainability and strong problem-solving, systems-thinking, stakeholder engagement and future scenario-building skills, they also develop strength in a more traditional discipline of their choice, in addition to their track. ## Sustainable Food Systems, BS (SUSFOSYSBS)

Campus: Downtown Phoenix, Polytechnic, Tempe

Program Description:

The BS program in sustainable food systems trains students to understand food-related challenges using a food systems lens which encompasses the many aspects of food and agriculture within an integrated social and environmental context. This lens empowers students to grapple with real-life complexities and become effective agents of change. Coursework covers a wide range of topics from nutrition science to agricultural production, economics, social justice and more.

Housed in the School of Sustainability, students are engaged in an active community collectively working to achieve the 2030 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. Beyond the core subject matter and skills courses, degree requirements include an internship, a chosen focus area and a culminating research project, all of which provide students in-depth knowledge of a food-related subfield and ample preparation for exciting careers.

Teachers College, Mary Lou Fulton

Early Childhood and Early Childhood Special Education, BAE (TEECSEBAE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BAE program for early childhood and early childhood special education prepares students for certification in both early childhood education (birth to age 8 or grade 3) and early childhood special education (birth to age 8 or grade 3).

This is a premier program taught by nationally renowned faculty who emphasize community connectedness, technology infusion, policy and advocacy related to young children with and without disabilities or developmental delays.

The program teaches child development, research-based instructional and assessment practices in early childhood education and the skills to assess, monitor and report the progress of children with and without disabilities. It provides techniques and approaches to collaborate and partner with family members in the growth and development of young children.

This program is designed to prepare highly competitive graduates. The teacher certification program in early childhood and early childhood special education is clinically embedded during the junior and senior years. The primary goal of all clinical experiences is to provide interns and student teachers with multiple opportunities to apply knowledge learned in coursework to practice with infants, toddlers, preschoolers and children in preK-3 classrooms. Students complete internships during their junior year that require a minimum of two days per week in a classroom. In their senior year, students complete a full-time, year-long apprenticeship known as the senior year residency. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty and experienced mentor teachers from partner schools coach interns and student teachers during required clinical experiences. The clinical experiences provided by the program is unmatched in Arizona. It provides students an opportunity to work directly with children and make an immediate impact on classroom achievement.

This program also prepares graduates to qualify for the structured English Immersion endorsement.

Graduates earn an institutional recommendation for their teaching certificate. Those desiring to teach in a public school must pass the appropriate Arizona educator exam, National Evaluation Series or Arizona Educator Proficiency Assessments, to be certified to teach in the state of Arizona.

Education Exploratory, (TEEDUEXPL)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

Students in the education exploratory track have the unique opportunity to explore different certification areas prior to selecting one of many majors within the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College. During the program's course, TEL 101: The Teachers College Experience, and through specific events scheduled throughout freshman year, students on this track are exposed to all programs and certification areas. Students make a more informed decision about the grade level or subject they want to teach while the exploratory track keeps them on track to graduate from any of the BAE programs. This track does not lead to a degree, and students need to declare a major after completion of 30 credit hours.

Educational Studies, BAE (EDSLSTBAE)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West, Online

Program Description:

Learning happens everywhere and at all ages. The BAE program in educational studies prepares students to work with children, youth and adults in formal or informal learning environments within nonprofit settings, community institutions, civic organizations and businesses. The degree program provides a foundation for students to shape society by supporting educational endeavors. It also helps them develop skills for effective communication, collaboration, leadership, advocacy and innovation, all of which are essential to education professionals.

Graduates of the program are prepared to teach others and change the face of learning throughout society.

The BAE in educational studies is intended for students seeking a career in formal or informal learning contexts. This degree does not lead to teacher certification.

Veterans may be interested in this program as credit may be offered for military service.

An educational studies minor is also available to ASU students in other degree programs.

Educational Studies (Early Childhood Education), BAE (TEESECEBAE)

Campus: Online

Program Description:

The BAE program in educational studies with a concentration in early childhood education prepares graduates to lead change and innovation in early childhood education. It provides students with experience in collaborative and reflective practice, develops leadership and critical thinking, and builds the skills needed for working with and advocating for children from birth to age five.

This program is delivered online and tailored for individuals working in early childhood settings such as Head Start; child development centers; preschools; and private, public or home-based child care. Students must work or volunteer in an early-childhood setting in the last two years of the program to successfully complete the coursework.

The curriculum allows educators to apply coursework to their professional practice. It focuses on early childhood development, instructional strategies, delivering highly individualized instruction, classroom management, intentional teaching and reflective practice, and advocating for and leading early childhood and family resources.

This program does not lead to teacher certification. Students seeking teacher certification should enroll in one of the other Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College undergraduate programs.

Elementary Education, BAE (TEEDBAE)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West, ASU@Lake Havasu

Program Description:

The elementary education BAE program leads to elementary education certification in the state of Arizona for grades K-8.

This program offers students a firm grounding in academic content with current research and best practices, accompanied by real-world classroom experiences. Faculty are nationally recognized in their fields of expertise. This program also provides meaningful experiences in integrating technology into teaching.

The teacher certification program for elementary education is clinically embedded during the junior and senior years. Coursework is designed to help teacher candidates develop their instructional competencies, professional skills and content knowledge. The primary goal of all clinical experiences is to provide interns and student teachers with multiple opportunities to apply knowledge learned in coursework to practice in K-12 classrooms. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College students complete internships during their junior year in grades K-8 classrooms and student teaching, which is a full-time, year-long apprenticeship known as their senior year residency. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty and highly qualified mentor teachers from partner school districts and charter schools collaboratively coach interns and student teachers. The clinical experience is unmatched in Arizona. It provides students an opportunity to work directly with children and make an immediate impact on student achievement. This intensive, hands-on clinical experience model of teacher preparation creates highly sought-after graduates and is unmatched in Arizona.

Graduates are recommended for grades K-8 elementary teacher certification. Those desiring to teach in a public school must pass the appropriate Arizona educator exams, National Evaluation Series or Arizona Educator Proficiency Assessments, to be certified to teach in the state of Arizona.

Elementary Education (Bilingual Education and English as a Second Language), BAE (TEDLLBAE)

Campus: Tempe

Program Description:

The BAE program for elementary education with a concentration in bilingual education and English as a second language offers students a firm grounding in current research about and best practices for English language learners, accompanied by real-world classroom experiences.

Undergraduates majoring in bilingual education and English as a second language for elementary education (grades K-8) are prepared to nurture and develop languages other than English in dual-language settings and to value the rich linguistic resources that are present in any classroom to support student learning. Students in this program take several courses that focus on developing teachers for linguistically and culturally diverse settings. These courses include topics such as language diversity, dialectal variation in the classroom and funds of knowledge.

Understanding the challenges that emerging bilinguals face instructionally, coupled with understanding the implications of language policy in various learning contexts is imperative to student experiences and coursework. Students learn processes for identifying English language learners as well as developing and supporting the needs of students with individual language learning plans. Students also learn principles of first- and second-language acquisition, foundations of various program models, global awareness and diversity in families and communities in multicultural settings, as well as academic content areas including math, language arts, computer literacy and science with a specific focus on meeting the academic and linguistic needs of English language learners.

The program requires six credit hours of a foreign language or its equivalent and enables students to work with second-language learners.

The elementary education, BLE/ESL teacher certification program is clinically embedded during the junior and senior years. During this time, students are intentionally and directly implementing course learning and theory to practices in the classroom. Strategies within the BLE/ESL program focus on foundations of second language acquisition, biliteracy, culturally relevant pedagogy, effective language instruction and prepares pre-service teachers to develop critical perspectives that allows them to advocate for bilingual children and families.

Field experiences are diverse and involve meeting the needs of emerging bilinguals in structured English immersion, English language development and dual language settings. The primary goal of all clinical experiences is to provide interns and student teachers with multiple opportunities to apply knowledge learned in coursework to practice in preK-12 classrooms. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College students complete internships during the junior year that require one day per week in grades K-8 classrooms and student teaching, which is a full-time, year-long apprenticeship known as their senior year residency.

Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty and highly qualified mentor teachers from partner school districts and charter schools collaboratively coach interns and student teachers during required clinical experiences with high concentrations of English language learners. The clinical experience provided by the program is unmatched in Arizona and provides students an opportunity to work directly with children and make an immediate impact on classroom achievement. This intensive, hands-on clinical experience model of teacher preparation creates highly sought-after graduates.

Graduates are recommended for grades K-8 elementary teacher certification. Those desiring to teach in a public school must pass the appropriate Arizona educator exams (National Evaluation Series or Arizona Educator Proficiency Assessments) to be certified to teach in the state of Arizona. In addition, students must complete six credit hours of a foreign language or equivalent and pass an appropriate language proficiency test to be eligible for the BLE endorsement. All graduates who meet the foreign language requirement receive an ESL endorsement.

Elementary Education (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics), BAE (TEESTEMBAE)

Campus: Polytechnic

Program Description:

The BAE program in elementary education with an emphasis on science, technology, engineering and mathematics has coursework designed for teachers looking to advance their skills in STEM disciplines and learn techniques to effectively engage K-12 learners in the 21st-century. The coursework addresses essentials for educators to equip the learners with the specialized knowledge needed in STEM topics to solve challenging problems and apply critical thinking skills. The STEM program offers students a firm grounding in science, using the tools of technology, the processes of engineering and the language of math, with current research and best practices accompanied by real-world experiences.

The elementary education teacher certification program is clinically embedded during the junior and senior years. Coursework is designed to help teacher candidates develop their instructional competencies, professional skills and content knowledge. The primary goal of all clinical experiences is to provide interns and student teachers with multiple opportunities to apply knowledge learned in coursework to practice in preK-12 classrooms. ## Secondary Education, BAE (TESEDBAE)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West, ASU@The Gila Valley, ASU@Yuma

Program Description:

This degree is offered on-site at ASU@The Gila Valley (in partnership with Eastern Arizona College) and ASU@Yuma (in partnership with Arizona Western College) through the Transfer Admission Guarantee program: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs> (<https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>).

Current ASU students at the Downtown Phoenix, Tempe, Polytechnic and West campuses may add this degree as a concurrent degree along with their original major in any secondary education content area. For more information on how to add this program as a concurrent degree, students should contact the Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College Advising Office: <https://education.asu.edu/student-life/student-services-undergraduate> (<https://education.asu.edu/student-life/student-services-undergraduate>).

New ASU applicants also may apply directly to this degree as a concurrent program along with the BS in biological sciences or the BA in chemistry at the Tempe, Polytechnic or West campuses.

The BAE program in secondary education prepares educators to teach youth enrolled in grades 6-12. While teacher candidates develop a strong theoretical background in their specific content areas, the program focuses on developing the skills and teaching abilities required to successfully teach middle or high school students. This program also offers a full, structured English immersion endorsement to work with English language learners and provides extensive experiences in integrating technology into teaching.

Specializations are typically available in the following content areas, depending on campus location: biology, business, chemistry, earth and space sciences, economics, English, general science, geography, history, math, physics, political science, some foreign languages.

The program's clinical experience component provides students with an opportunity to work directly with children and make an immediate impact on classroom achievement. The primary goal of all clinical experiences is to provide students with multiple opportunities to apply knowledge learned in coursework to practice in the classroom. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College students complete internships during the junior and senior years, one day a week, while enrolled in upper-division education courses.

The culminating experience is a student teaching practicum, which requires working alongside a highly qualified mentor teacher, full-time, for the entire semester. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty and highly qualified mentor teachers from partner school districts and charter schools collaboratively coach interns and student teachers during required clinical experiences. This intensive, hands-on model of teacher preparation creates highly sought-after graduates.

Secondary Education (History), BAE (TEHISBAE)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West

Program Description:

The BAE program in secondary education prepares educators to teach youth enrolled in grades 6-12. While teacher candidates develop a strong theoretical background in their specific content areas, the program focuses on developing the skills and teaching abilities required to successfully teach middle or high school students. This program also offers a full, structured English Immersion endorsement to work with English language learners and provides extensive experiences in integrating technology into teaching.

The teacher certification program for secondary education is clinically embedded during the junior and senior years. The primary goal of all clinical experiences is to provide interns and student teachers with multiple opportunities to apply knowledge learned in coursework to practice in 6-12 classrooms. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College students complete internships during the junior year that require one day per week in grades 6-12 classrooms. During senior year, students complete a single semester student teaching placement known as the senior year residency. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty and highly qualified mentor teachers from partner school districts and charter schools collaboratively coach interns and student teachers during required clinical experiences. The clinical experience provided by the program provides students an opportunity to work directly with children and make an immediate impact on classroom achievement. This intensive, hands-on clinical experience model of teacher preparation creates highly sought-after graduates.

Graduates of the program desiring to teach in a public school must pass the appropriate Arizona educator exams (either the National Evaluation Series or Arizona Educator Proficiency Assessments) to be certified to teach in the state of Arizona.

Special Education (Visual Impairment), BAE (TESPEVIBAE)

Campus: Tempe, West

Program Description:

The BAE program in special education with a concentration in visual impairment leads to the state certification: Mild Moderate Disabilities Special Education, K-12. The certification program prepares students to work with children with mild to moderate disabilities in inclusive settings. This program also offers a full structured English immersion endorsement (Structured English Immersion, PreK-12) to work with English language learners and provides extensive experiences in integrating technology into teaching. The degree and certification programs are aligned with Arizona standards and ethical practices for the national professional organization, Council for Exceptional Children. The certification program allows graduates to work with students who have varying degrees of visual impairments (blind and partially sighted) in public, private and inclusive settings.

The program develops in students the knowledge and skills required to meet the educational needs of students with visual impairments. The curriculum focuses on diagnostic assessment, orientation and mobility skills and specific teaching methodologies for students with visual impairments. The program also has a strong focus on assistive technology to advance educational learning for the classroom and for daily living.

Special Education and Elementary Education, BAE (TESPEBAE)

Campus: Polytechnic, Tempe, West, ASU@The Gila Valley, ASU@Yuma

Program Description:

Special educators make a difference in the lives of children and families. They are curious about how people learn and develop throughout their lifespan. A special education degree prepares students to understand human diversity, communicate effectively and develop problem-solving skills that support their success and that of others.

The BAE program in special education and elementary education prepares teachers to work with all students in inclusive settings. Since the general education classroom is a viable placement option for many students with mild and moderate learning and behavioral disabilities, teacher candidates learn to use evidence-based practices that promote students' success with general education content, including high leverage practices in literacy, math, sciences and social studies. They develop adaptive techniques for students with disabilities and learn to use instructional and assistive technologies to facilitate success in the general education curriculum. Since special educators work within collaborative partnerships that promote inclusive practices, these skills are emphasized throughout the professional preparation sequence, with additional training in interpersonal communication and problem-solving skills.

The special education and elementary education program is clinically embedded during the junior and senior years. This certification program provides teacher candidates with multiple opportunities to work directly with children and youth to practice what is learned during coursework in authentic settings. During the junior year, teacher candidates intern in classrooms serving students with special needs. The senior year residency is a full-time, two-semester student teaching apprenticeship. Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College faculty and highly qualified mentor teachers from partner school districts and charter schools collaboratively coach interns and student teachers during these clinical experiences. This intensive, hands-on model of teacher preparation creates highly sought-after graduates.

Program graduates are eligible for the Standard Professional Mild/Moderate Disabilities Special Education Certificate - Grades K-12 and the Standard Professional Elementary, K-8 Certificate from the Arizona Department of Education. Those desiring to teach in a public school in Arizona must also pass the appropriate Arizona educator exams: National Evaluation Series or Arizona Educator Proficiency Assessments.

Students may learn more about these programs by visiting the admission site: <https://admission.asu.edu/transfer/pathway-programs>.

Career Opportunities:

National and state studies report the projected need in the next five to 10 years will be high for special education teachers. Graduates of the program are eligible to teach in elementary education grades K-8 and K-12 for the following high-incidence disabilities:

- emotional disorders
- intellectual disabilities (mild or moderate)
- orthopedic impairments
- other health impairments
- specific learning disabilities

Graduates can teach in a variety of inclusive educational settings, including public, charter and private schools, as well as nontraditional settings (juvenile system, children's hospital, etc.).

In order to complete this concurrent degree in four years, you must take courses during the summer. This may impact your financial aid. Financial aid is available to those who apply and qualify, and students may receive funds to help cover costs for each semester of enrollment. The amount of financial aid that a student is eligible for varies depending on prior education experience and other individual factors. In order to complete this concurrent degree in four years, you must take courses during the summer. This may impact your financial aid. Financial aid is available to those who apply and qualify, and students may receive funds to help cover costs for each semester of enrollment. The amount of financial aid that a student is eligible for varies depending on prior education experience and other individual factors. Learn more about summer financial aid and additional ways to cover summer costs.

- Students interested in the Mayo School of Health Sciences Echocardiography program must complete all prerequisites at ASU and a one credit medical terminology course from GateWay Community College prior to matriculation to the 21 month professional program at Mayo. Students must be accepted into the program, which has limited slots for admission. For admission criteria and application process go here. If a student is accepted for the program, completion requires the student to attend ASU to meet our remaining requirements in the summer prior to the beginning of the program. Students must work closely with the ASU academic success specialist to make certain all prerequisites have been met. Upon successful completion of the Echocardiography curriculum at Mayo, the student must have the credits transferred back to ASU for acceptance as a block. At that time, the student may apply for graduation from ASU with the BS in Health Sciences. Students who begin the Mayo track but are not accepted into the Mayo program may choose another track in order to graduate with the BS in Health Sciences.

- For those interested in working with hispanic/latino populations, the Spanish and Health track is ideal. Since the first course in the track, SPA 314 or 316, has prerequisites (SPA 313 or SPA 315), students should either have taken one of those courses or they should schedule an appointment on the Downtown campus with Dr. Barbara Lafford for placement. Plan ahead to complete your prerequisites.
- Students who plan to complete the track in Language, Speech and Communication must complete PHY 101 and BIO 160 to fill their natural science area of the general studies.
