Mechem puts choke on ASASU Senate

Vows to down resolution to form diversity office

By SONDRA ROBERTO
State Press

Associated Students of ASU President Greg Mechem said Friday he will veto a controversial Senate resolution that would add a vice president of cultural diversity to ASASU's executive board on the grounds that it violates the organization's constitution and bylaws.

"It's blatantly unconstitutional," Mechem said. "This shows me that the Senate needs to be further educated. They have not had enough time to review the resolution."

Senate Resolution 16, which was passed in a 10-8 vote Tuesday, approves the creation of a vice president of cultural diversity to organize cultural activities and oversee funding of minority clubs and programs.

Mechem said he strongly agrees that the position is needed to further represent minority groups, who are "perfectly capable" of deciding what is right for them in student government.

However, Mechem said he will veto the bill because of a clause that requires the duties of the office to be created by the activities vice president.

"I am very serious about this," he said. "Any singular department should not have that type of power. We do not have an imperial (activities) vice president."

Mechem said in order to remove political bias, the task of creating the position belongs to the several members of the Activities Vice President Amy Golden agreed, saying she would "be concerned about one person creating the position. "It definitely should be some form of committee."

Vetos bill allowing for private audit of ASASU

By CAROL ANN HANSEN
State Press

Associated Students of ASU President Greg Mechem vetoed a bill Friday that called for an independent audit of the organization.

In a memorandum addressed to the ASASU Senate, Mechem identified three reasons for vetoing the bill:

- The bill did not specify a spending limit to hire an auditing firm.
- The bill did not delineate a process for selecting and contracting an independent accounting firm.
- The bill failed to consider the legality of a state organization's request for an audit of its books by someone other than the Arizona auditor general.

The bill was passed by the Senate last Tuesday after the organization's Finance Committee stressed the importance of an audit to maintain the integrity of ASASU.

Sen. Clay Haden from the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences said an independent audit of ASASU is necessary "to make ASASU more efficient and credible when spending the students' money."

Haden said he feels Mechem's decision to veto the bill was under administrative pressure, and the veto was unnecessary because the Senate could pass a concurrent bill to clarify the process of the audit.

ASU looks to improve mental health coverage

By MARGO GILLMAN
State Press

University health officials and representatives from Blue Cross/Blue Shield hoped to finalize the rates of ASU's 1992-93 health insurance on Friday, but uncertainties about mental health benefits delayed decision-making.

Although it has been determined that Blue Cross/Blue Shield will be the University's medical insurance carrier, Dr. Laurie Vollen, director of the ASU Student Health Center, said mental health coverage may be provided by a separate carrier from Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

"There is no need to change the medical portion," Vollen said. "But there could be a completely different insurance company for mental health."

ASU's current health plan enables students to seek mental health treatment from the Student Health Center, Vollen said. But students who want outside treatment are limited to care provided by Biodyne, a mental health service organization that is contracted with Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

University health officials have decided to look into other mental health programs because "people haven't been able to receive mental health counseling as they should," Vollen said, adding that two other carriers are being considered.

Vollen

During 1990 to 1991, students made 1,650 visits to Biodyne, Vollen said.

And some students who have needed extensive mental health treatment have complained that the care is inadequate for their needs, she said.

"Often, long-term therapy is indicated, but Biodyne is predicated on a short-term therapy model," Vollen said.

Debbie Brogan, chief of ASU's mental health services, said the main problem with the mental health coverage is that it only offers one provider.

"If they want to use their insurance off-campus, they have to use one of the Biodyne offices," she said. "Students just don't have much choice with this package."

"And patients have expressed that they didn't feel it was adequate."

Brogan said students suffering from chronic depression, eating disorders, incest and sexual abuse and anxiety disorders need long-term treatment.

"These usually requires at least several months of treatment on a regular basis," she said. "But Biodyne has a short-term theoretical model that is their emphasis — they will treat as long as possible but their emphasis is on the short-term."

Thomas McGarry, a corporate spokesman for Biodyne, said the company doesn't operate on a short-term treatment philosophy.

"Biodyne's attempt is to resolve the problem that brought them there as soon as possible, as quickly as possible. But the full

ASU group gives mystical meaning to life

Eckankar members do not meditate, they contemplate.

"You just close your eyes and sit quietly and chant," said Mary Link, a secretary in the ASU Cancer Research Institute who has been a member of Eckankar for 20 years.

"You chant," Link explained. "One of the words we use is 'hu' (pronounced HUGH), which is the ancient name of God."

Linda Watts is a doctoral student in anthropology who says contemplation helps her have a more balanced perspective on life.

"In contemplation — or soul travel — you either lie down or sit up in a straight position and put your attention on the third eye or window of the soul," Watts said, explaining the daily 20-minute spiritual exercise.

Watts said the difference between contemplation and meditation is that in contemplation, consciousness is maintained. Contemplation is an active process focusing on answering questions, learning lessons or understanding inner worlds.

Eckankar is an ancient spiritual teaching that has a 25-member organization on campus.

"Eckankar is a spiritual path, rather than being specifically religious," Watt explained. "We focus on the universal principles of spirit and light, and recognize the soul as an eternal part of God."

Al Thompson, a software engineer in the engineering department, is president of the ASU Eckankar organization.

"Eckankar has been on campus for about six years," Thompson said. "The membership of Eckankar ranges from students to janitors to doctors and lawyers."

Thompson explained that there are three aspects important to ECKists: The soul, the ECK, or the Holy Spirit, and the ECK Master or guide.

"The ECK, which is also called the light and the sound, is the feeling of connection of yourself with everything else in life — animate and inanimate," Thompson said.

"The ECK is everywhere — it's here, it's here, here and here," Thompson said, waving his hands through the air and touching the sofa cushions.

The ECK Master serves as a guide for the members, helping them find their way back to God. The current ECK Master, Harold Klemp, travels to Eckankar conferences worldwide and writes books to educate others about Eckankar.

"He is not a person to worship," Thompson said. "He guides us through the physical world and also the inner worlds."

Eckankar members believe in karma and reincarnation. The contemplations, or spiritual exercises, reveal how past lives influence current life.

"Karma is the principle of the law of compensation," Watts explained. "Every positive or negative thought or action comes back in like form."

Thompson emphasized that Eckankar may help people who are looking for answers in their lives.

"Our experiences give us a better perspective on our daily lives," Thompson said. "They help us be more in charge of our own actions and perceptions."

Libya to sever contact with outside world

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libya announced Sunday it will sever all contact with the outside world for the 24 hours before U.N. sanctions take effect in a confrontation over the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

Arab leaders, meanwhile, continued efforts to find a way to head off the sanctions, which would include embargoes on arms sales and commercial air traffic to Libya.

The official JANA news agency distributed a statement saying Libya would cut all international travel and communication links Tuesday as a sign of mourning for a 1986 U.S. air strike that killed 41 Libyans.

The U.N. Security Council has given Libya until Wednesday, the sixth anniversary of the air raid, to surrender two alleged intelligence agents. The men are charged in the bombing of a New York-bound Pan Am jumbo jet in 1988 over Lockerbie, Scotland, that killed 270 people.

Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi apparently chose to observe the air raid anniversary a day early to avoid the U.N. sanctions overshadowing his gesture.

The Security Council is demanding

Libya surrender the two Lockerbie suspects for trial in the United States or Britain and produce proof it has renounced all forms of terrorism. The council also wants Tripoli to cooperate with France in trying four other Libyans accused of killing 171 people in the 1989 bombing of a French airliner over Niger.

Libya has agreed only to turn over the Lockerbie suspects to a neutral country — an offer rejected by the West. Gadhafi denies the men or his government had any role in the bombing.

Libya's foreign minister, Ibrahim al-Bishari, met Saturday with U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali in Geneva and said he offered proposals for ending the standoff. He refused to provide any details.

After a meeting in Tripoli with President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt on Sunday, Gadhafi said they discussed new proposals to resolve the dispute. He did not elaborate.

When asked whether he believed the West would attack Libya, Gadhafi said, "Not unless they go mad, but then what would be the use of an attack?"

Mubarak, a close ally of the West, has been trying to defuse the crisis through mediation. But Egyptian officials have indicated many times that there was little Cairo could do unless Libya surrendered the suspects.

Elsewhere, the foreign ministers of seven Arab nations planned to meet in Rabat, Morocco, late Sunday to seek ways to defuse the confrontation. The committee was created by the Arab League last month in an effort to avoid an escalation of tensions in the region.

Pope to visit Denver next year for world youth day

Catholic youths walk through Denver's Civic Center Park on Sunday morning after Pope John Paul II announced he will visit Denver in August of 1993 for the Catholic Church's eighth annual world youth day.

DENVER (AP) — Pope John Paul II said Sunday he would travel to Denver for the Roman Catholic Church's eighth annual world youth day next year, his first U.S. trip in six years.

Denver edged out Buffalo, N.Y., and Minneapolis-St. Paul to play host to the papal visit, which will coincide with the weeklong youth conference in August 1993.

"I have selected the city of Denver, in the noted Rocky Mountains, in the state of Colorado, which has not been included on the itinerary of my previous apostolic trips" to the United States, the pope told 30,000 worshippers at an open-air Palm Sunday Mass at Vatican City.

Catholics rejoiced as they heard the news during church services across Colorado.

"I think it will be a dream come true," said Renee Fajardo of Denver.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime experience," said 17-year-old Tara Needbone of Northglenn. She said she hoped the visit and the conference would help young people address such issues as racism and drug abuse.

A U.S. bishops' statement said Denver was an "attractive" location for Hispanics in the southwestern United States and Central America. Surveys indicate the U.S. Catholic Church will be 50 percent Hispanic by 2020.

Denver has about 275,000 Hispanics, the largest population of the three cities considered for the conference. Its Catholic population is estimated at 330,000.

Gov. Roy Romer heralded Colorado's victory at an outdoor news conference with Denver Archbishop J. Francis Stafford. Romer said the youth conference would be a chance for Colorado residents of all religions to plan for the future.

"Ultimately, matters of the spirit do shape our values whether privately or governmentally," he told the crowd of about 100.

In New York, Bishop Edward D. Head of the Diocese of Buffalo said he was disappointed the city wasn't selected, but pleased it was a finalist.

"The fact that we were considered is in itself a mark of recognition of the warmth and the goodness of the people of our diocese and of our entire western New York area," he said.

Minneapolis-St. Paul Archbishop John Roach said he, too, was disappointed, but was pleased that the conference would be in the United States.

"The particular city was less important than the fact that it was to be America," Roach said. He said youth from his archdiocese will "go to Denver in great numbers, I hope, and take advantage of this marvelous opportunity."

The pope hasn't announced any other stops on his U.S. visit.

Even before Denver was selected, Catholic officials drew up a tentative schedule detailing the pope's appearances from his arrival at Stapleton International Airport Aug. 13, 1993, to his departure two days later.

The visit is centered on the church's world youth day conference, which is held outside the Vatican every other year. Generally, the rallies attract thousands of young people who pray, sing and listen to the pope.

U.S. bishops estimate as many as 100,000 people would attend the Denver rally.

Rafsanjani backers score landslide win in Iranian elections

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The government predicted Sunday that backers of President Hashemi Rafsanjani would win a landslide victory in parliamentary elections, bolstering his drive to liberalize the economy and mend ties with the West.

Rafsanjani

The early results from Friday's voting appeared to be a sharp setback for more-radical followers of the late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who have dominated the 270-seat parliament, or Majlis.

Iran's official news media said 55 of the 123 candidates who won enough votes to capture a seat outright were members of the Society of Combatant Clergymen, whose leader is Rafsanjani.

The other 68 decided races were in remote areas and the affiliation of the winners was not immediately clear.

But the fact that the government-run news agency was predicting victory early indicated confidence that the measures Rafsanjani took before the vote to eliminate as many radical critics as possible proved successful.

A week before the election, the Council of Guardians, a 12-man review panel of religious and civilian legal experts, eliminated one-third of the 3,000 candidates.

About 13.5 million votes had been counted in 189 districts as of Sunday, with final results from all 196 districts expected within two days, the Islamic Republic News Agency said. The electorate is estimated at 30 million, with anyone over 15 in the population of 60 million allowed to vote.

With 10 percent of the potential 3 million votes counted in the key Tehran area, all but one of the top 30 vote-winners were members of Rafsanjani's society. His most rabid opponents in parliament, Mehdi Karrubi, the speaker, and Ali Akbar Mohtashemi, a former interior minister, were far down the list for deciding candidates for the runoff election.

Rafsanjani's supporters, pushing pragmatic government measures, clashed repeatedly in the previous parliament with radicals intent on emphasizing religious fervor at home and Islamic revolution abroad.

The radicals also wanted extensive state ownership of business, while the technocrats argued for a more open economy to deal with Iran's high inflation and unemployment and the lack of reconstruction since the 1980-88 war with Iraq.

In Washington, President Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, said that "I think what you would call moderates seem to have done quite well" in Iran.

But Scowcroft also said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that a big military buildup by Iran raised questions about Rafsanjani's commitment to moderation.

Rafsanjani has advocated change since

Khomeini died three years ago, and the election was the first chance for Iranians to have a say.

While Khomeini is still revered as a saint, enthusiasm for the mass rallies and constant political sloganeering born during the Islamic revolution has dimmed.

Rafsanjani also has gradually loosened the strict enforcement of Islamic laws since the end of the war with Iraq. The religious police who ensured that women did not show any hair and couples did not touch are gone, folded into the regular police or sent to rural public works projects.

The political slogans that once covered every wall are being painted over. Instead, the city is full of flower beds, and advertising started about four months ago.

But "Death to America" is still a popular slogan, one area of little change. Radical leaders tried to paint their moderate opponents as U.S.-lovers during the campaign.

Mechem denounces lax legislation

As the last weeks of ASASU President Greg "I am not a lame duck" Mechem's term wind into history, he is reasserting his political prowess in order to go out as he came — surrounded by controversy.

Mechem vows to veto two separate bills. The first, a call for a vice president of cultural diversity. The second, a bill that mandates an audit of ASASU affairs.

Mechem's level-headed rejection of the diversity resolution surprisingly shows him to be among the only responsible voices on the third floor.

Recognizing the resolution's unconstitutionality, which was arrogantly ignored by the Senate, Mechem acted quickly and properly to restore the integrity of ASASU's democratic system of checks and balances.

Mechem's second move, vetoing an independent audit of ASASU, sounds suspicious only until it is revealed how badly the Senate constructed the bill.

The bill specifies neither the cost of such an audit nor a procedure for picking the firm to do it. In addition, it is likely that the Senate lacks the authority to call for the audit.

By rising against the Senate's tide of lackadaisical procedures, Mechem has shown that indeed, he is no lame duck. One hopes the Senate will drop such quackery.

Success breeds contempt

At first, I didn't recognize him with his stubble beard, shaggy hair, ruffled clothes and bloodshot eyes. Then he raised his glass in a weary greeting.

Yes, it was George DeSoot, prominent businessman, civic leader, political activist, family man and all-around swell guy.

"It's me," he said, seeing the look of disbelief on my face. "Come over and buy yourself a drink. I'd buy, but I can no longer afford such extravagant gestures."

I joined him and, as diplomatically as I could, asked what had brought him to such a sorry state.

"What do you mean by that?" he asked. You know what I mean. I am shocked by your seedy appearance. If you stopped me on the street, I would have given you a dollar.

"Good," he said, "because that means my efforts have not been in vain."

Your efforts? You look like a bum.

"Exactly." Tell me, what has happened? It has been a while since I last saw you. Did your thriving business falter? Did your happy marriage collapse? Did you develop an incurable slice and suffer the shame of a high handicap?

"No, it was much deeper and more profound than that. I'm not sure you would understand."

Try me. "All right. I took a good look at myself and began experiencing guilt, shame, remorse and self-loathing."

For what? He choked back a sob and said: "For being white, a male and successful."

Is that all? "Is that all, you ask? Isn't that enough — that I and those who are like me have brought on almost all of our society's evils and injustices; greedy exploiters; defenders of the status quo; oppressors of everyone who isn't white, male and successful?"

I hadn't noticed. How did you manage to do all that?

"How? Just by being what I was. Don't you follow current affairs, national debates, the issues? Look in today's paper. There, a story about the chairman of Chicago's City Colleges. See what the National Organization for Women said about him? Right there. Read it."

Yes, the executive director of NOW's Chicago office told the college board: "Do not allow yourself to be influenced by a chairman who is white, rich and male."

"See? She has him pegged, the swine. And it's happening everywhere. We are being exposed for what we are."

When did you make this self-analysis? "It began when my kids came home from college on spring break and told me they had taken a course in political correctness and were ashamed to have a father who was white, male and successful, and why didn't I go dance with wolves like a decent guy."

Kids, they'll break your heart. "Then my wife told me she was sick and tired of staying home and making cookies and having teas."

I always thought she made swell cookies.

"And a group of my employees formed a Fairness and Happiness on the Job Study Group and told me that it did not seem fair that I should be rich when they weren't."

But you started and built that company.

"Don't make hollow excuses for me. Then I went to a board meeting of that charity, Businessmen for Hope and Joy, and I was pelted by six different groups for being insensitive and disrespectful by flaunting my white, male, successful condition. And that is when I looked in a mirror and realized that I was scum."

What did you do?

"Well, I couldn't find a wolf, so I went next door and tried to dance with my neighbors' Doberman but he bit me on the leg, which confirmed my sense of unworthiness. And I decided to renounce my evil ways and change myself into someone more worthy of respect."

By not shaving? "No. I knew I could not stop being white, since I happened to be born that way. And while I could stop being a male, I've always had a terrible fear of surgery, so I ruled that out. But there was one thing I could change."

And that is? "Being successful. When I thought about it, I realized that was my major flaw. You seldom hear anyone criticized for being a white male who is a failure or a mediocrity, not even if he's a Cub. So I rejected my success."

How do you do that? "I stopped going to my office. I'd sleep late, play Nintendo all afternoon, then come and hang out here until last call."

What happened to your business? "Went belly up. And the day it happened, I called the employees together and told them that I was proud to announce that I was no longer rich and asked them to share in my joy before I turned out the lights."

Were they impressed? "Actually, no. I guess you can't please everybody. Then I went home and told my kids and wife that I was no longer an exploiter and oppressor."

And they shared your happiness? "No, they tried to get me committed, so I grabbed what I could stuff in a suitcase and fled. And I've been at peace with myself ever since."

I guess that's what matters the most. "Yes, so let's drink to the big day less than two weeks off."

What day is that? "April 15. For the first time in my adult life, I don't have to pay a nickel. I might even write a book."

What will you call it? "Failure: The Road to Success."

"AT LAST — THE CAVALRY!"

to the editor Letter

Movie seated fairly

Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to Mr. Sullivan's article on segregated seating at the "Thunderheart" screening April 2.

Neeb Hall seats almost 500 people and because of the sneak preview program is new to our campus, extra efforts have been taken to ensure a full-capacity audience. Therefore, I often work with different groups who express interest in the up-coming films. I do not exclusively work with minority groups. I have worked with RAs, fraternities and sororities as well as other campus clubs and organizations. I usually reserve one row per group (about 35 seats) and I open these sections to the general public 15 minutes before each showing. These reserved sections have never been a problem before because we generally do not have 900 people turning out for a film.

"Political correctness" is not an issue in my decision of which groups will receive reserved seating. It is merely a matter of who approaches me first with a guaranteed list of names. The reserved sectioning was a way to jointly accommodate groups' projects while getting the word out about the sneak preview program.

I plan to continue working with individual groups during the four remaining screenings. I am taking steps, however, to prevent the number of turn-aways that occurred at "Thunderheart" by limiting the number of tickets that are distributed and by showing two screenings of the films that appear popular.

Police Report

ASU police reported the following incidents over the weekend:

- A student tried to enter the U2 concert at the University Activity Center by using an invalid VIP Services pass. Police confiscated the pass.

- Two men not affiliated with the University were arrested in separate incidents outside the UAC Friday night for fighting and disorderly conduct.

- Several bootleg U2 shirts were seized and turned over to authorized vendors inside the UAC by order of federal injunction.

- A man not affiliated with the University was arrested for possession of marijuana inside the UAC during the U2 concert.

- Three men not affiliated with the University were arrested for selling imitation U2 tickets on Stadium Drive.

- A man not affiliated with the University approached ASU President Lattie Coor's house, 2400 S. College Ave., and asked for money. When he was told "no" by the female who answered, he pushed her. The man later was warned by an officer about trespassing on ASU property when he was found on the corner of Broadway Road and Mill Avenue.

- Sixty dollars was stolen from the cash drawer in the billing office at Hayden Library.

- A student's tennis racket and bat, valued at $405, were stolen from the Student Recreation Complex where they were left unattended.

- An intoxicated student was helped off the lawn on the north side of Old Main. He was released to a friend.

- A man not affiliated with the University had his car stereo, valued at $250, stolen from the parking lot of Dash Inn. The steering column of his vehicle was cracked during the theft, causing $250 in damage.

Tempe police reported the following incidents over the weekend:

- A 30-year-old Tempe man was airlifted to Barrow's neurological center in Phoenix after he was accidentally shot in his left eye by his 15-year-old girlfriend. The girl was playing with the victim's .32-caliber automatic, and the couple said they were not arguing when the shot was fired. The man had repeatedly told his girlfriend not to play with the gun before she shot him. He is listed in stable condition. The girl was released to her mother. Police may charge her with aggravated assault.

- The rear window of McDuffy's, 230 W. Fifth Street, was shattered by an unknown object during an apparent burglary attempt. Two doors inside the sports bar that lead to the business office were also kicked down. The owner said no property was missing, and officers could find no prints.

- A 16-year-old student at Corona Del Sol High School had his 1980 Chevrolet Citation damaged while it was parked at Marcos De Niza High School, 6000 S. Lakeshore Drive. Three Tempe High School students poured Slim-Fast diet beverage into the student's gas tank, causing $100 in damage. One of the suspect's fathers said he would pay for the damage.

- A 3-year-old boy had his volleyball, valued at $5, stolen from him while he was playing in his front yard. The boy could not provide a suspect description due to his age, but his mother said she saw a white mid-size Ford or Chevrolet car speeding away from the house.

Diversity

But Kate Lawrence, senator of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and activities vice president-elect, said Mechem and other dissenting senators have misinterpreted the resolution.

"It is not a bill, it's a resolution that calls for the creation of a department," she said. "The activities vice president is here all summer long. The Senate, however, will not meet until September — that's the problem."

Lawrence begins her tenure as activities vice president May 11.

Lawrence explained that the purpose of empowering her future office with creating a brand new office was to present new senators next fall with groundwork and then go from there.

"They can then do all the investigation that they want, but they'll already have a lot of the groundwork done," she said. "We didn't want to dump something on the incoming Senate when they don't even know what they're doing as senators yet."

Lawrence added that during the summer months she will not singlehandedly investigate possibilities for the new office. Members of the Multicultural Awareness Board, which falls under the department of the activities vice president will do most of the work.

"We don't even need, technically, a resolution to do the groundwork," Lawrence said. "I could just have the MCAB start working on the research and setting it up. It will be my responsibility to see that this gets done as soon as possible."

The resolution also states that the position of vice president of cultural diversity must be filled by ASASU spring elections, emphasizing the need to create the office promptly.

"For two years I've heard cultural diversity pushed aside," Lawrence said. "Then it takes an entire year to find out that they can't do anything this year, but next year maybe they can, and then with the new officers it's the same thing."

"I want to see people stop talking about it and take some action, and I believe that was the intention of the resolution and the authors."

However, Mechem maintains that there is no rushing within the democratic system of checks and balances.

"The system is set up to be cumbersome, set up to be slow, so railroading items cannot happen," he said. "If you run too fast, you'll trip. That doesn't mean this will take one year and then another year to go through, but the (University Affairs) Committee needs to come back with the recommendation."

range of treatment options are there. We're concerned with an effective and quality outcome — and that will vary from person to person."

Prior to the 1989-90 school year, students were able to decide where they wanted to receive mental health care by choosing from a list of private physicians under the Blue Cross/Blue Shield preferred provider plan, Brogan said.

Of next year's plan, Brogan said, "I hope that students will end up with more choices — but the problem is that the insurance premium is higher when there is more choice."

Vollen said a move to a different mental health provider may occur because Blue Cross/Blue Shield will only consider contracting with Biodyne to control costs.

"If they were to open the panel (of mental health care services), there would be far too many claims on mental health, and more dollars (spent) in claims — and Blue Cross/Blue Cross wants to protect themselves."

Vollen said the mental health carrier will likely be determined next week when Blue Cross/Blue Shield and the other carriers offer their final proposals.

Audit

"We expected some hinderance, but not a level-by-level clamp-down," he said.

"Now that it's vetoed we are behind a power curve to get the audit passed," Haden said, addressing the lack of time left in the semester.

Sen. Jamal Allen from the College of Law told the Senate that the organization's books have not been audited by an outside firm in 14 years.

"We need to do it regardless of the cost," Allen said.

The Finance Committee estimates that an independent audit would cost between $10,000 and $15,000.

"But for an $800,000 budget, it's a reasonable price," Haden said.

Alex Bouzari, senator for the College of Business, said if ASASU has nothing to hide, it should welcome an audit.

Bouzari said budget cuts have forced ASASU's services to plunge in the past three years, making an audit "really needed."

Although ASASU is audited by the University, Haden and Bouzari said the type of analysis the University provides is not adequate.

"They don't do the type of audit we are asking for," Haden said, adding that the University performs a financial analysis, not an operational analysis examining the system's efficiency and procedures.

Bouzari and Haden said that even though Mechem vetoed the bill, they are not going "to let the issue die."

"We are going to take what action we can," Haden said, adding that he is not optimistic about the probability of resolving the issue before the end of the semester.

However, Mechem said the audit was totally unnecessary. "(ASASU) is audited every day by the comptroller's office, every day by the decisions of the executive officers and by the ASASU coordinator," he said, adding that ASASU is audited "on a weekly, month and yearly basis by an internal auditing firm at ASU."

Mechem said the audit would drain the last of ASASU's budget.

"There is no way that anyone on campus can afford to spend $10,000 to $15,000 on top of budget cuts (for an audit)," he said.

Mechem denounced accusations that his veto was caused by administrative pressure.

"Why would I want to sign a completely undefined, introduced-in-five-minutes, railroaded-through-the-Senate bill to Vice President of Student Affairs Christine Wilkinson knowing that she would have no choice but to veto it herself?"

"It has nothing to do with being lackey to the administration."

● NEW YORK (AP) — Police arrested six people who surged toward the stage during a live broadcast of "Saturday Night Live" to protest "Basic Instinct" star Sharon Stone, who was guest host of the NBC show.

"We are protesting Hollywood's homophobia and misogyny as exemplified in the film," James Wagner, a spokesman for the group, told The Associated Press early Sunday.

The protesters didn't interrupt the show, but their voices could be heard during the opening monologue when Stone mocked a scene from the film, in which she portrays a bisexual murder suspect.

Critics of the film say it unfairly depicts bisexual and lesbian women as villains and glamorizes violent heterosexual sex.

NBC guards took the four men and two women away from the stage before police arrived. All were charged with disorderly conduct and harassment, police spokeswoman Sgt. Mary Wrensen said. They were being held Sunday pending arraignment, police said.

● WASHINGTON (AP) — The striped scourge of the Great Lakes had a big year and may have another big one ahead, government experts said Tuesday.

Zebra mussels — tiny shellfish inadvertently introduced to the United States by European freighters — were found in four more rivers in 1991, said Noreen Clough of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"It's spreading," Ms. Clough said. The inedible hardshell intruders float with currents and attach themselves like barnacles to boat bottoms and can live for weeks outside the water, making it easy for boaters to haul them cross-country.

Initially spotted in Lake St. Clair near Detroit, the fast-multiplying mollusks worked their way through the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River in less than three years.

Last year, zebra mussels were found in the Hudson, Susquehanna, Illinois, Ohio, Tennessee and Mississippi rivers.

The Chesapeake Bay may be next, said Fish and Wildlife Service research analyst Bob Peoples.

Zebra mussels have been spotted near Binghamton, N.Y., in the Susquehanna River, which flows into the Chesapeake. "They tend to get into the headwaters and just flow downstream," he explained.

The two experts on aquatic invaders appeared at a news conference convened to draw attention to problems in the Great Lakes and President Bush's proposal to spend less next year to fight zebra mussels and other alien waterlife.

The mussels, usually no more than 1½ inches long, are believed to have been carried here from Eastern Europe in the mid-1980s in the ballast water of freighters.

They've multiplied dramatically because they spawn almost continuously — an adult female can produce upwards of 30,000 eggs in a year — and because they have few natural predators here.

The mussels have caused Monroe, Mich., to temporarily close a water plant because of restricted water flow; 30 tons of mussels clogged a 2½-mile intake pipe at an Ontario water plant.

Future of men's gymnastics?

It's unclear after ASU's season concludes with 8th-place finish

By MICHAEL FLORES
State Press

As the final team scores at the NCAA Men's Gymnastics West Regional Championship in Albuquerque were being tabulated Saturday night and ASU realized that its season had reached an end, a deeper sense of finality seemed to take over.

The Sun Devils' final score of 270.65 was not enough to bring them the fourth-place (or higher) finish they needed to advance to the NCAA championship. Instead ASU placed eighth, more than 15 points off the winning pace.

Under normal circumstances, the thoughts of team members would quickly turn to next season. But with last week's news that there might not be too many more seasons for the ASU men's gymnastics team, team members could only think back to the year that has just passed.

"I was very disappointed with the team's performance as a whole, but happy with the individuals that qualified," ASU coach Don Robinson said. "I felt we could have scored a 281 perhaps, but even that wouldn't have been enough for fourth place."

Because of an Athletic Department deficit of more than $2 million, the Intercollegiate Athletic Board has submitted a proposal to ASU President Lattie Coor that, if accepted, would leave men's gymnastics, as well as ASU's archery and badminton programs, scrambling for funds to maintain their current competitive statures.

Robinson has been told that he would have to raise $750,000 in each of the next three years to help fund an endowment that would prevent the program from being reduced in size or eliminated.

Stanford gets best of ASU for 9-2 win

From staff and wire reports

PALO ALTO, Calif. — Jeffrey Hammonds had three hits, including a solo home run, to lead Stanford to a 9-2 baseball victory against ASU on Sunday at Sunken Diamond.

The 13th-ranked Cardinal (24-15, 9-9 Six-Pac) were also led by starting pitcher Jamie Sepeda, who went the distance in giving up only five hits and two runs while striking out eight.

Brent Smith started at pitcher for 10th-ranked ASU (25-14, 10-8) and was the loser, allowing six hits and six earned runs in 3 2/3 innings.

Stanford took two of the three games in the weekend series.

The Sun Devils return to action when they host UNLV for the first of a two-game series tonight at 7 at Packard Stadium.

Game 2 goes down to wire in sweep of Beavers

By DARREN URBAN
State Press

For a fan, there's nothing like tense late-inning play to provide some excitement at a ball game. The ASU softball team would be happy to oblige.

The Sun Devils swept Oregon State in a doubleheader Sunday, winning the first game 4-0 and holding off a seventh-inning Beaver rally in the nightcap for a 3-2 victory at Sun Devil Club Stadium.

It was the second straight day ASU (25-17, 5-5 Pac-10) had to fight off late inning bids. Saturday, the Sun Devils took two from Oregon, but not before the Ducks put the tying run on base in the final frame in both games.

"We've kind of had a seventh-inning syndrome lately," Wells said. "It's like we get to the seventh and say 'Oh, my gosh.'"

Despite its woeful record, OSU (9-18, 1-9) had eeked out a 1-1 tie before ASU came alive in the bottom of the sixth inning. Senior center fielder Rachel Brown smacked lead-off double, eventually scoring on a sacrifice fly by junior shortstop Cheri Keller, and the Sun Devils added an insurance run later in the frame.

But as ASU is beginning to learn, closing out a win is a chore as the Achilles' heel of the Sun Devils — defense — popped up again. Literally.

A lead-off pop-up in short center field was apparently going to be handled by Keller, but Brown, rushing in to make the play, bumped her teammate and the ball dropped for an error. After a sacrifice bunt, OSU's Raquel Trujillo and Tricia Barr followed with singles, and the Beavers had one run in the go-ahead run at second base.

But sophomore pitcher Mona Nard wormed her way out of the jam, inducing a fly out by Germaine Fairchild and a foul out to first by Jennifer Smith.

It was a workhorse effort for Nard (9-4), who despite giving up only one earned run, was knocked around for nine hits in seven innings. Wells gave Nard some advice early in the game, when the heat and the OSU batters began giving Nard fits.

"Mona was getting frustrated," Wells said. "Although it isn't always apparent, she wasn't doing everything right, and she

Track has productive day against in-state rivals

Jumpers and sprinters lead women to victory

By BRIAN CHARLES
State Press

No one likes a two-hour bus ride, but the ASU men's and women's track teams made the long trip worthwhile, dismantling both of the UofA and NAU teams on Saturday at Roy P. Drachman Stadium in Tucson.

Coach Tom Jones predicted that the women would need a strong day from the long jumpers and the sprints. His crystal ball was accurate, as they were two of the key components to the Sun Devil victory.

ASU dominated in the long jump, as seniors Tesra Bester, LaShawn Simmons and Lisa Hale comprised the top three finishers. But the jumping core didn't stop there, as Bester and Hale finished second and sixth, respectively, in the triple jump.

Simmons, who competed in four events, took second in the 100-meter hurdles behind teammate Ime Akpan, third in the 200m dash behind teammate LaNia Brice, and finished the day with a victory in the 100m dash, running in 11.95 seconds.

Akpan and Brice took second and third, respectively, in the 100m.

Other solid efforts were turned in by senior All-American Tracy Mattes, who won the 400m dash in 54.08, then went on to take second in the 400m hurdles. Fellow All-American Shanequa Campbell finished second to Mattes in the 400m dash, just nine-tenths of a second behind.

The distance crew also contributed some points to the Sun Devil win, highlighted by junior Kelly Cordell's victory in the 3,000m. In addition, ASU dominated the 800m, with junior Sharette Garcia edging out All-American teammate Kim Toney by a half-second to take first place. Garcia was also first in the 1,500m.

The ASU men also saw a few surprises on the day, highlighted by sophomore LaMont Dailey's win in the 100m high hurdles. Dailey, who was suffering from a hamstring injury, had not run in three weeks.

"I felt really good coming in (to the meet)," the sophomore said. "I was really happy to contribute the points, and it was a big win for us. I still have to bring my times down, however."

ASU also took the top three spots in the long jump, with junior Victor Agbekaku, snatching first place from teammates Danny Simpson and Brian Ellis, who were second and third, respectively. Also, Ellis won top honors in the triple jump.

Another busy Sun Devil was junior Jim Leeper, who competed in three events.

Leeper started the day with an eighth-place showing in the discus, changed shoes and reported to the track for a third-place finish in the 110m high hurdles, then changed shoes again for a third-place finish in the 400m hurdles.

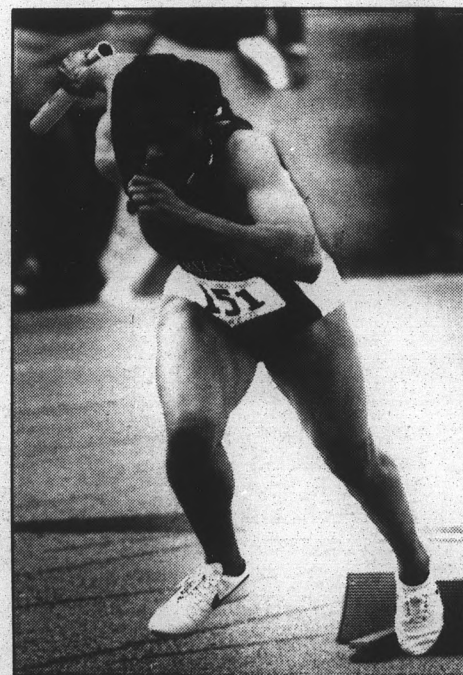

"All of the running around makes it hard to concentrate on your event," Leeper added, "but it is something you just have to get used to."

The pole vaulters were solid, led by sophomore All-American Nick Hysong, who captured first place. Hysong was joined by freshman Mark Knight in fourth.

Senior All-American Todd Lewis led the distance corps with a second-place finish in the 3,000m steeplechase. Freshman Erin Scroggins placed sixth in the 1,500m, and freshmen Jim McCreery and Erik Walbot took second and fourth, respectively, in the 800m.

Junior Gabe Beechum continues to soar in the high jump, taking first once again.

In the sprints, junior Jimmy Kegler led the way with a second-place finish in the 100m dash at 10.6, then followed that up with a fourth-place finish in the 200m at 21.29. Teammate Fred Campbell also took fourth in the 100m and sixth in the 200m.

Sun Devil sprinter Ime Akpan was second in the 100-meter dash and third in the 200m dash in a meet against UofA and NAU on Saturday.

Gymnastics

Also, men's gymnastics is in danger of losing its NCAA title meet due to the fact that fewer schools around the country are competing in the sport.

Robinson said the dark cloud suddenly hanging over his program might have been a factor in the team's performance over the weekend.

"Sure, there has been some stress from all the crud that has been going on," he said. "I know I've been upset about it. But I think a lot of it came down to nerves and lack of experience."

As it happened, five Sun Devils qualified individually for the national championships in four events.

Junior Paul Bedewi qualified for nationals in three events — floor exercise, still rings and vault. Senior Chris Smith qualified in the high bar and vault. Others making the cut were sophomores Marty Larsen (floor exercise) and Geoff Eaton (still rings) and junior Dave Kiesel (vault).

Kiesel, a last-minute addition to the lineup, tied for fourth with Bedewi in the vault.

But ASU got off to a poor start in the high bar competition and couldn't get on track.

"We got in trouble early, which you can't do," Robinson said. "You've got to have the scores."

Top-ranked Nebraska won the meet with a score of 286.175, followed by No. 2 Stanford (285.275), No. 5 Brigham Young (283.60) and No. 15 UCLA (282.525). All four qualified for the national championships April 24 to 25 in Lincoln, Neb.

"I thought the top four were good choices," Robinson said. "They'll represent our region well. I think the Western region is the much tougher of the two regions. We've got some of the best teams in the country."

knows what she's not doing. I was just trying to get her to relax, and to rest, because she played the first game (at first base)."

In the first game, senior Terry Carnicelli and junior Amber Tintzman combined to hurl a four-hit shutout, while Brown, senior right fielder Missy Eskew, and senior second baseman Dottie Conroy each had two hits apiece for ASU.

For Carnicelli (10-6), it was a welcome comeback from her outing against Oregon. Cruising with a 9-0 seventh-inning lead, Carnicelli and reliever Dawn Wood were rocked for eight runs by the Ducks before the Sun Devils escaped with a one-run win.

This time, Carnicelli left after five innings and Tintzman finished up for the save, as Brown's first-inning RBI single was all ASU needed.

The sweep extends the Sun Devil winning streak to five, and ASU now is alone in third place in the conference, something Wells attributes to a total team effort of late.

"In the first half of the season, we had not played well," Wells said. "We made some defensive changes, and now everyone is contributing."

Brown, who had the game-winning RBI in the first game, finished the day 4-for-6, and said the defensive changes have turned around the team.

"We have good pitching and good hitting," Brown said. "It was the defense that was hurting us, and with the changes that's come around."

FOR MONDAY, APRIL 13, 1992

ARIES
(Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)
Now is the time to act on original ideas in business. Quell morning impatience with a co-worker. Evening hours favor home entertaining and mixing business with pleasure.
TAURUS
(Apr. 20 to May 20)
There may be a slight tendency to be reckless with spending, but pleasure outings and romance are happily highlighted. Children's interests are also a concern.
GEMINI
(May 21 to June 20)
Others will cooperate with you, so there's no point in being self-insistent. Talks regarding domestic interests are favored. Enjoyment comes through home life.
CANCER
(June 21 to July 22)
You are a trifle impatient as the day begins, but it's a good time for contacting other people and for getting your ideas across. Other individuals are willing to work with you.
LEO
(July 23 to Aug. 22)
You could have words with a friend today, but judgment is very good where financial interests are concerned. Shopping is a plus. Buying and selling are favored.
VIRGO
(Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
You shouldn't force issues with a superior, but otherwise things go very much your way today. The combination of charm and good sense serves you well.
LIBRA
(Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
You are pleased with the results of a private talk today. You will be wanting to spend some time by yourself. A pet project has your attention fully engaged.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
It should be a day of social successes for you. You are right to turn down someone's financial proposition. Tonight, popularity is on the rise and you attract romance.
SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
Except for a minor irritation with a close tie, this should be a good day for you. Focus your attention on career concerns and you will make important headway.
CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
You will have to slow down to do your best work on the job. It's a good time to send manuscripts to publishers. You could be receiving a lovely travel invitation now.
AQUARIUS
(Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
It's best to act not too quickly on a business proposal. Give yourself enough time to study all the facts. Meet with financial advisers. A luxury item appeals to you.
PISCES
(Feb. 19 to Mar. 20)
A relative may try your patience now, but that is quickly forgotten as you get swept up in today's exciting partnership developments. Romance blossoms and love flourishes.
YOU BORN TODAY have strong feelings which you do not always reveal to others. You often keep things to yourself and consequently are sometimes misunderstood. Both creative and practical, you can succeed in both business and the arts. You have management abilities, but sometimes your financial fortunes fluctuate. Birthdate of: Eudora Welty, writer; Thomas Jefferson, political leader, and Howard Keel, actor.
